State Senate Approves Increase In University Registration Fees

Loucks Heads Campus Group Study Of FSU

A student-faculty committee, headed by Dean of Men Donald Loucks, will make a comprehensive study of students and student life as part of the second comprehensive self-study in FSU's existence.

Dean Loucks said his first step would be to meet with Dr. Ralph Witherspoon, chairman of a similar committee in the previous self-study. An early meeting, probably next week, will be called for the entire committee, said Loucks.

Student members of the committee are Joan Abbott, Gerry Dobson, Ivylyn Frazier, Marianna Girtman and Don Thigpen. Faculty members are Dr. John Anderson, Dr. Richard Baker, Mr. John Carey, Mrs. Ailene Thompson, Dr. Ernst Thonnard and Miss Marie Williams.

The activation of all committees "right on schedule" according to Dr. Hugh Stickler, chairman of the steering committee for the study.

Department and agency studies committees should have had their first organizational meetings and have appointed chairmen by tonight, said Dr. Stickler.

Committees for university-wide area studies are in the process of being activated now. At the present the steering committee has set up 19 committees for this part of the project.

These committees are academic affairs, business and auxiliary organizations, extension and university relations, FSU alumni, FSU faculty, graduate school, high-school and university academic relationships, the public image of FSU, non-academic personnel, university relations, organization and administration, physical education and intercollegiate athletics, research and creative work, student personnel services and academic counseling, students and student life, university budget and finance, university calendar and university library.

A $46 a year jump in registration fees for students at the three major state universities was approved by State Senate Wednesday.

Fees will be upped from $180 to $226 under the resolution for Florida residents and out of state tuition will be raised from $530 to $576, as proposed by the Board of Control.

The fee raises affect Florida State University, the University of Florida and the University of South Florida.

Final approval of the increased fees will mean a jump of $90 per year in the base costs of a college education at Florida State University. Housing fees are also being raised, from $90 to $100 a semester.

The resolution also raised fees from $150 to $180 at Florida A & M for Florida residents and from $500 to $530 for out of state students.

The fee increases will also have to be approved by the House of Representatives.

Sen. Wilson Carraway of Tallahassee who introduced the measure said the board estimated that the increase in fees would provide an additional $2 million for operation during the next two years.

Defeat of this measure would make increased state taxes a necessity, the senator said. The universities must have additional funds to operate, he stressed.

DISTRIBUTION

The Board of Control has directed that the division of the funds will be as follows: $126, matriculation; $36, building fees; $22, health fees; and $41, university and student activities. The matriculation fee, which is fed back into the general revenue of the state to help meet operating expenses, receives the increase.

Passage of the resolution came after extended debate on the Senate floor and a great deal of behind-the-scenes negotiation.

When the resolution was introduced Monday, Sen. John Rawls of Marianna threw out the first of several blocks to the passage of the measure.

The Senator proposed to attach a rider to the bill which would have prevented the Florida Flambeau from receiving any funds from the student activity fee.

The Flambeau's share of the fee is set by Student Government and is currently about $3 per student, totaling about $22,000.

Bill Passes Enabling New FSU Hospital

A bill authorizing Florida State University to borrow funds for the construction of a new infirmary was passed by the State Senate Wednesday.

The bill was sent to the House of Representatives for approval.

The action permits the university to use up to $125,000 from the state hospital funds and to borrow up to $700,000 from the federal government for the construction of the new hospital.

Construction could begin as early as next Fall if the bill is approved, Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby said.

On completion of the planned 80-bed hospital the present building would be released for women's housing. The building could then accommodate about 100 women students, Dr. Oglesby said.

Before construction can begin the plans must be completed, along with a budget showing how the university proposes to pay back the loan. These must be submitted to the Atlanta office, which must approve them and forward them to Washington, D.C. for further approval.

Bonds would also have to be validated and bids let before actual building would begin.

The senator also complained that the Flambeau had attacked the president of the State Senate and a former president, labeling them "thieves and crooks." The paper had editorially condemned the whole Senate as being backward because it would not accept racial integration, he said.

His objections pertained to issues last year and in the 1958-59 editions. Some statements that the paper had made were libelous, the senator maintained.

Sen. Carraway recommended that, if Sen. Rawls wished to ban the use of student fees for the paper, he should do so in a separate recommendation.

Sen. Rawls, however, conferred with FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell, next year's Flambeau editor Ben Sharp and several student leaders, and agreed to postpone any such action until the next session of the legislature.

OTHER AMENDMENTS

As the amendment reached the floor several amendments were proposed, among them one which would have limited increases to out of state students, and another which would have given the Board of Control the right to waive fees for needy students, both of which were defeated.

The exemption of Florida students from fee hikes was defeated 25-12 in a roll-call vote.

One senator charged that the state institutions were becoming closed corporations for the wealthy. Sen. Turner Davis of Madison suggested that before too long only rich people will be able to afford an education.

About 1,000 scholarships are available for needy students in the university system, Sen Carraway countered. The problem the universities are facing is not taking care of needy students but finding parking places for students who bring their automobiles with them to college, he said.

Class Funds Cut

Student Senate Discusses Budget

Four hundred dollars each was tentatively cut from the budgets of the Freshman, Sophomore and Junior Classes as discussion began Wednesday on the record $368,782 budget.

The $1,200 shaved from the class funds will be redistributed for Spring Formal use. Previously, each class received higher amounts and then donated $400 each to the dance.

Flambeau funds were cut $50, bringing the total to $22,000, which is still a considerable raise from last year since the Seminole Flambeau will no longer be published.

Senate turned itself into one large committee in order to facilitate free discussion without hindrance from excessive parliamentary procedure. Formal Senate action will be taken on the budget after all discussion has been completed.

Student Body President Carl Butler was present to answer questions about the various items. He stated that, "No senator came to ask me any questions this week" after they had all received copies of the budget and been urged to him before the next session if they had any questions.

COLLEGIANS CUT

Collegians were cut $100 when

the student legislators decided to stop subsidizing the group's annual banquet.

Men's Vice President Marion Clark moved that "Action be taken to eliminate or disguise the sign reading 'Florida State College for Women' in front of Westcott Auditorium." The resolution passed unanimously.

Linda Reams, University Court Chairman, spoke against a bill which would abolish the requirement of one year's experience for candidate's seeking the office of chairman of University Court.

Another provision of the same bill would have created a screening board of three students and four faculty members, but the entire bill was defeated and another passed in its place.

The approved bill widens the field of candidates for Chief Justice of Honor Court by allowing anyone to run who has served more than one semester on Honor Court, University Court or Traffic Court.

Victorian Age Murder Forms Base Of Coffee Hour Talk

An internationally recognized authority on Victorian literature will speak on "Victorian Studies in Scarlet" at the English Coffee Hour today. The lecture will be based on murder, both real and fictional in 19th century England.

The literary social hour will feature Dr. Richard D. Altick, professor of English at Ohio State University. The Coffee Hour will be at 4 p. m. in the Westminster House.

Dr. Altick directed the doctoral dissertations of Dr. Francis G. Townsend, head of the English Dept., and Dr. C. E. Tarny, instructor in English at Florida State University.

"We occasionally like to have a visitor on this program," said Dr. Townsend, so Dr. Altick was brought here to speak.

His studies of the economics of literature include "the effect of the reading market on teh form of literary works." Dr. Altick has also studied intensively the physical make-up of printing as well as studying Victorian literature in general.

He received his Ph D. from the University of Pennsylvania and has taught at New York iCty University and Stanford University.

His publications include "The Scholar Adventurers, one of the non-fiction best sellers in 1950; Preface to Critical Reading, a textbook and The English Common Reader, a study of the reading public. He also wrote a section on publishing history in the 19th century for the Cambridge Bibliography of English Literature.

Dr. Altick is currently working on a book on Browning and is co-author of a new textbook, Selective Bibliography for the Study of English and American Literature.

Nicotine Fits Are In Order

No matter how many filters your cigarette has, you are not allowed to smoke it in class anymore.

At the last meeting of the Council of Deans, three new smoking regulations were approved in an effort to keep the classroom buildings in better shape.

According to these rules:

A) Smoking is prohibited in classrooms during scheduled classes, teaching labs, libraries, etc.

B) Smoking is also prohibited in all posted areas.

C) Discarded smoking materials should be placed in provided receptacles

These regulations were approved because of the scarring of floors from cigarette burns, the litter created by discarded cigarette butts and the always present danger of fire.

The regulations will go into effect as soon as the academic deans have informed the members of their faculties. The enforcement of these rules is up to the professors and deans.

'Fill The Fountain' Effort Will End 'Chest' Drive

Campus organizations will attempt to financially "fill the fountain" today at 4 p.m. in the climaxing event of the year's Campus Chest drive.

Westcott fountain is the designated target for the coin-throwers, representatives of various fraternities, sororities, and campus organizations who have collected money from their respective groups.

"We have set our goal at $1,000, but this can be reached only if everyone contributes," said Eleanor Bilote, chairman of the Campus Chest committee.

The "Embers" made the kick-off contribution to the week's drive by providing time and entertainment for the street dance Tuesday night.

Containers for contributions were placed in the Corner, the Seminole Club, the Student Center, and other locations where donations may be made.

The Campus Chest committee is a Student Government committee set up to raise money for various charitable organizations and scholarship funds.

CBS To Film FSU Circus

The CBS Television Sports Dept. is coming to Florida State University during the week of the Home Show, May 2 through 6, to film the "Flying High" Circus performance.

The Circus is to be incorporated into the hour long show, "Sports Spectacular" and will be aired May 18 from 7 to 8 p.m.

The CBS technical crew will be working with the Circus production on the weekend previous to official opening to "iron-out" necessary details and take close-up shots which would be impossible during the actual show, said Coach Ed Gilbert.

In addition to filming the featured acts in the show, audience reaction will be filmed each evening, as well as historical facts concerning the campus and academic status at the University.

Six television cameras and a production crew of thirty members will be sent from New York for the filming.

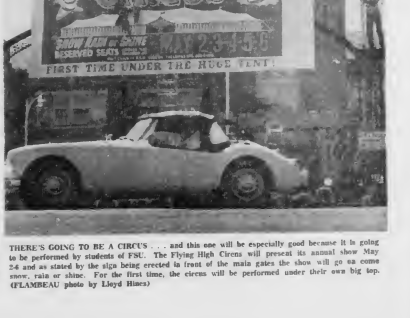
About 150 FSU students make up the cast for "Flying High," performing under a circus tent for the first time this year. They will be presenting a total of seven shows; the first is a closed show for the Southern Universities Student Government Association convention. Two performances are being staged the final evening of the show to accommodate the parents who are expected to be on campus for the weekend.

Tickets are now on sale for all Circus performances at the athletic ticket office and at the main ticket office in Westcott Auditorium. Reserved seat tickets are $.75 for students and $1.50 for non-students. General admission is $.50 for students and $1.25 for non-students.

'Inherit The Wind' Play Cast Member Is Found Pregnant

The University Theatre production of Inherit the Wind has lost a cast member due to pregnancy.

The expectant mother is a monkey who was to be featured in the April 28-29 production of the drama based on the famous Scopes "monkey trial" in Tennessee.



Borrowed from the Panacea Zoological Gardens, the monkey, nicknamed Godiva, proved to be a temperamental unfriendly actress, drama assistant Sam Baker said.

Examination revealed that the monkey will become a mother in the near future.

Godiva's place in the cast will be taken by a monkey from Florala, Ala. who can do tricks, Baker said.

The University Theatre still needs an organ grinder's organ to go with the monkey and to help set the mood for the dramatic legal battle over the teaching of evolution in a Tennessee high school.

Tickets for the play go on sale Monday at Westcott Ticket Office at $.75 for students with coupon no. 12 and $1.50 for adults.

THERE'S GOING TO BE A CIRCUS . . . and this one will be especially good because it is going to be performed by students of FSU. The Flying High Circus will present its annual show May 2-6 and as stated by the sign being erected in front of the main gates the show will go on come hell, rain or shine. For the first time, the circus will be performed under their own big top. (FLAMBEAU photo by Lloyd Rines)

No provisions have as yet been made for special off-campus housing, although applicants are being advised of the university policy that women having relatives or close family friends in Tallahassee may be granted permission to live off - campus the first semester.

Special arrangements were made for some new women students to live in Tallahassee homes last fall.

Applicants on the waiting list have been told, "It may be that you will wish to transfer your application to the second semester when we know that space will be available."

FSU women's residence halls and sorority houses accomodate 2942 women and no substantial additions have been made since Dorman Hall opened in September, 1959.

Two new dorms, one for men and one for women, are on the construction priority list for state university but may be delayed unless sufficient funds are appropriated by the Legislature.

The annual student government installation banquet will be held Thursday, May 11, at 6:30 p.m. in the Suwannee Room.

Newly elected officers will be formally installed in office at the banquet and must be present to receive their certificates of election and to be eligible to assume their respective offices.

Due to the number of people expected to attend, it is necessary to ask each student government member to pay $2 for the meal. Those attending the banquet and must be present to receive their certificates of election and to be eligible to assume their respective offices.

The conference will open at 10 a.m. Thursday with a business meeting in Opperman Music Hall. At this time the delegates will be welcomed by FSU President Gordon W. Blackwell and Bobby Byrd, student body vice president.

That afternoon there will be panel discussions. Following dinner and state caucuses, in which delegates from each south author to discuss matter pertaining to their own state, the delegates will be entertained by Herb Skribner, American folk humorist, the Limelighters, and the jazz quartet of Pete Fountain.

Friday morning a breakfast will be held for all student body presidents attending the confab. Following another day of panel discussions and state caucuses, the delegates will attend a special performance of the FSU Circus, "Flying High."

Election of the new chairman of SUSGA will take place at the business session on Friday afternoon The new chairman will take office at the final business meeting Saturday morning when the newly adopted charter of the association will be presented to each member school.

The SUSGA convention was held at FSU three years ago, but at that time there were only about three member schools in the group. SUSGA is a non-policy making and non-legislative organization that exists solely to serve the students of the southeast and to assist student leaders of its member institutions to better serve their own student bodies.

Flambeau Editorials

The Florida Flambeau editorials represent only the views of student members of the staff. Signed columns on this page represent only the opinions of their authors. Any student may submit either editorials or columns for consideration.

We're Hostile To Ignorance

The Florida Flambeau has been officially raked over the coals this week in the State Senate. It has been held to blame for editorials and policies which occurred in the past, and it has been accused of upholding philosophies that are contrary to the beliefs of most of the student body and their parents.

A RADIO BROADCAST implied that the reason for cutting off Flambeau funds was because the paper was "hostile to the porkchoppers and probably Communist." Does hostility to the powerful legislative block imply the presence of red doctrines?

In its policy, the Flambeau states that the opinions stressed in its editorials are the opinions of the editor and the staff. However, the opinions expressed in signed columns and letters to the editor, are strictly those of the writer. Any student is free to write a letter to the editor, and guest columns are accepted at all times. The only qualifications on any copy is that it not be libelous or indecent.

AS FOR THE DOUBLE insinuation that the Flambeau is hostile to members of the state legislature and probably Communist, does this hold true also to those state papers, like the Miami Herald who are not always in perfect accord with the pork choppers? It is just a little too farfetched to make such an accusation.

The Flambeau does not, and has never spurred on "full integration." It has always expressed the opinion that segregation was not only unlawful in the eyes of the United States Supreme Court, but that it is also immoral. It has covered any issues that might have arisen in this area on the question, but it does not have a record of violently advocating complete and immediate integration.

Something For Everybody

It is very good news to hear that the present University hospital is to be replaced with a new medical building. This addition to the campus will be more in line with the growing appearance of an updated university and possibly will go a long way towards alleviating the long time grumbling directed by many students towards the present hospital accomodations.

A specifically designed hospital might help hold the better staff members on this campus, and would be an inductment to new staffers to join the FSU Hospital.

The present hospital is a part of a women's dorm and was intended to house patients suffering from nothing more serious than persecution complexes when test results were returned. The acquirement of a real, honest to goodness hospital facility will release the present building for coed housing, and in a small way, help to relieve the ever present housing crush.

The health of students is most important to their overall performance in all that they do. A hospital is always a morale factor, and one thing FSU needs is morale. Nothing could go further towards injuring FSU's reputation in the eyes of parents expecting to send a son or daughter here than the lack of an adequate hospital and the medical care it was able to administer.

Too many buildings on any campus are impersonal edifices that often have no bearing on one's college sojourn. Not so with the campus infirmary. Sooner or later chances are pretty good that each student will have to make use of available campus medical care, if only for nothing more serious than a case of sniffles. Every student has a very definite, very personal stake in the campus hospital.

Of the money to be spent on the FSU campus in the next several years, perhaps none will go into anything remotely as important to the individual student as the new hospital. This is one facility that there is no good reason for the student body to complain about. This building will have a purpose all its own, to be used equally by all needing its ministrations. It won't be "decorational" building given over to the exclusive use of state employees filling office space, or house the specialty classes of some specialized field of study.

Let's Get Serious

Review — 'Perils Of Poland'

By GERRY DOBSON

We have been fortunate enough to have available to us the latest chapter, LXIX, of "The Perils of Jefferson Poland." When we last left Jefferson, he was a student at San Jose State College in California after having been booted out of FSU. The latest installment told of the efforts of San Jose State students to raise enough money to send Jefferson to jail (a worthy cause).

UPON ARRIVING in jail, he found that various welcoming activities had been planned for him. One of the inmates wanted to give him a coming out party, and a jailer is alleged to have been considering letting our hero participate in some sort of football game. I vaguely recall the words "bullpen" and "club" were also used. Then the whole group was planning to give him a blanket party.

Jefferson, however, unwilling to impose upon the hospitality of his companions, with three from jail, no doubt a crushing burden to those who pinched pennies to send him there.

THIS LATEST EPISODE was fast moving, well written, but lacked action. None of the activities mentioned actually were undertaken, so the plot became a little obscure. One might ask, for example, why the author included chapter LXIX since nothing really happened in it. Maybe it was intended to be a descriptive change of pace from the usual hell-for-leather tone of the serial.

But, at least, the taxpayers of Leon County can be grateful to our hero for spending them part of the cost of his board bill during his stay.

One Must Be Adequately Informed

TO THE EDITOR:

I welcome the transfer of authority over the budget for intercollegiate athletics and other activities from the Dean of Students to the Student Government. At least these funds have been removed one step further from pressure by those alumni who think a university exists to sponsor a football team.

UNFORTUNATELY I cannot share the Flambeau's confidence that "past student senate budgeting" of smaller sums indicates that the senate will do a "responsible" job of handling the university activity budget. To be responsible, one must be adequately informed. For this reason all senate bills and resolutions are mimeographed and distributed so that senators may read them carefully, re-read them, propose amendments or revisions, etc. Yet when the senators appropriate the student activities budget — some $80,000 — they have available no information more detailed than a list of organizations, the sums each requests, the sums each received the preceding year, and the sums the Secretary of Finance thinks they should receive for the current year.

Do the senators care to see a report explaining what each organization plans to spend its student body subsidy for? No. The Secretary of Finance has such information, but it is not distributed to the senators. Last year a day student senator, Jefferson Poland, proposed that the Finance Secretary's breakdown of expenditures be mimeographed and made available to the Senate. Not one senator supported his proposal. Our leaders preferred to spend some $80,000 in virtual ignorance of its intended use.

One may well wonder how our senators will spend the additional university activities budget of $200,000.

'It's Hard For A Kept Press To Be Free'

The following column is reprinted by permission of Malcolm B. Johnson, Executive Editor, The Tallahassee Democrat.

By MALCOLM B. JOHNSON

Sen. John Rawls isn't likely to go very far with his move to cut off the funds of the Florida State University student newspaper, but he's showing the kids it is hard for a kept press to be a free press.

The Marianna Senator interrupted passage of a measure raising registration fees at all State universities by questioning allocation of part of the money to support the FSU Flambeau, which he said had castigated the Senate and its president because they would not go all out for racial integration.

HE OFFERED AN amendment to prohibit use of any of the registration fees, which all students must pay, for support of the paper.

Sen. Wilson Carraway, who was sponsoring the bill, argued quite appropriately that if Rawls wanted to cut off the Flambeau's funds he should do it with a separate bill, not by a rider to a measure which will produce additional operating revenue for all the universities.

THE LEON COUNTY Senator said the Flambeau has changed considerably in the last couple of years. This is true. It has a much more responsible policy than it had several years ago, when the editor brashly announced that having been selected for his job he answered to no one.

The Flambeau will get about $3 out of each registration fee of $226 a year paid by students next year under the bill. It won't get any extra from the $46 increase proposed.

The newspaper is supported out of a $41-per-student allocation to student government. This fund also helps support such things as the band, artist series, lecture series, intercollegiate athletics and the circus.

IF THE LEGISLATURE undertakes to supervise all those operations, it will create an intolerable situation on the campuses. Administration of colleges and student functions must be left to college officials.

Senator Rawls gives the student editors something to about, though, when he s some students don't like forced to pay what amou a subscription fee for a paper to which they obje principle.

There is, indeed, a ba ring to cries of "press dom" from a newspaper p is dependent on the subs a payment required of student who wants to em a State-supported univers

Toys In The Attic

Student Defends 'Flambeau'

TO THE EDITOR:

In regard to the article appearing in the April 18, 1961 issue of The Tampa Tribune attacking the use of student activity fees to support the Flambeau, let me say that I am one of the students mentioned by Senator Rawls who does not agree with most of the printed material editorials contained in the paper. However, I do defend the right of the Flambeau's editors to say what they wish.

SEN. RAWLS repeatedly refers to what is most obviously editorials or letters to the editor as the position of the newspaper. Most intelligent people know the meaning of the word "editorial." Less intelligent people, who are least able to read, may read the small print under the bold face "FLAMBEAU EDITORIALS" where it is clearly defined. Apparently the Hon. Senator is in neither of these categories.

Sen. Rawls attacks what he calls the paper's espousement of integration. Even if it were the Flambeau's official stand and not merely the opinions of individuals I fail to see how a senator can condemn a paper for upholding a ruling which has been handed down from the Supreme Court of the United States.

. . . AS I SAID before, I disagree with many of the editorials that appear in the Flambeau, but I don't advocate abolishing it. No newspaper's editorial philosophy is in agreement with the philosophies of all its subscribers. An educated person should realize this.

The Flambeau has many fine points, one of which you won't find in a lot of newspapers today. It contains ideas and philosophies of any student who takes the time to write whether they agree with the editors or not.

Sen. Rawls has stated that students are forced to subscribe to a newspaper they don't believe in. The student government emulates the money allocated to student activities and the student government regulates the money allocated to student activities, and the student government is elected by the students. Apparently, they are doing a good job for they are now taking over control of the budget for all student activity fees. If there is any abolishing needed, I am sure that the students are capable of taking care of it themselves through student government.

THIS UNIVERSITY needs controversy. There is far too much conformity and suppression of ideas now without closing off the last avenue where a student can state his ideas regardless of their controversiality.

I suggest that Sen. Rawls tend to the things that he knows something about and leave the Flambeau to the students. It is their paper.

CHARES A. BEVIS

'Bury The Issue'

TO THE EDITOR:

I for one am sick and tired of hearing about the trials and tribulations of Jefferson Poland. I realize the Flambeau staff is in sympathy with his cause but I would venture a guess that the rest of the student body is not. If the "Voice of FSU" would consider this and bury the particular issue I'm sure it would be appreciated.

Contrary To Whose Beliefs?

TO THE EDITOR:

Senator Rawls: In a recent newspaper article you stated that the freedom of the individual enrolled at FSU is infringed upon by the fact that the individual's student activity fee automatically pays for the Flambeau, a newspaper which you say may not "publish a philosophy contrary to the individual's belief."

I WILL ADMIT that several times the Flambeau has published material which was contrary to my beliefs. And each time I eagerly awaited the next issue to read a fiery rebuttal from someone who shared my opinions.

The mature adult, young or old, accepts the fact that in our country he will not be spoon-fed jelly all of his life. He knows that a philosophy opposing his own is conducive to thinking, and he avoids the mental lethargy of "yes" men.

IT IS TRUE that a student cannot cancel a subscription to the Flambeau if it puts forth an opinion contrary to his own. It is also true that a voter in a particular county cannot "cancel" his representative who advocates policies contrary to those of the voter. This is indeed an infringement of individual freedom, a violation of a "gentlemen's agreement" to represent the people, all of them.

You mentioned in the article the issue of integration. I am wondering, since you are so conscious of the individual student's money and how it is spent at FSU, what you would do about the following situation. An out-of-state student pays full tuition and fees. He is not subsidized by the state. This particular student wants an education at FSU where he is enrolled. The integration issue is forced to a climax by the Federal Government. The State of Florida closes FSU. Is the State acting in accordance with the beliefs of this student?

WILL THE STUDENT be reimbursed because he money was not spent as he thinks it should be? Or will the student have to accept the fact that people who have no interest in his education are to represent him in these matters? Will he have to live according to philosophies contrary to his individual beliefs rather than just read about them?

The shabby treatment of some of our faculty, students, policies, and now our newspaper by some government officials is indeed contrary to a great many individual beliefs.

U.S. 'Protection' Hasn't Aided Cuba

By JOAN ABBOTT

The rebel forces' attempt to checkmate Castro in Cuba has apparently failed, as Russian-supplied tanks mow down the pawns of the invading forces.

The invasion which began optimistically now appears doomed to a resounding defeat. The surviving rebels have learned by the loss; might, in the form of tanks, planes and heavy artillery, must be met with might. The rebels have the spirit, the desire and the will to win, but these assets are pitifully small in opposition to the military prowess of Castro's Cuban Army.

THE INVASION, now in ruins, could have been a success. It could have been if "Uncle Sam" had willed it so.

President Kennedy took to the airways to tell the Russians to keep their hands out of the Cuban melee. However, the President knew that the Cuban Army had been supplied with Soviet machines of war. As a military man, Kennedy knew what type of armaments were necessary to stage a successful counter-attack. He could not help but have known that if the Castro-held heavy military equipment were brought into play the invasion was as good as over. Yet he tersely announced that the U. S sympathies lay with the rebel forces, at the same time warning the Reds not to dabble in this miniature war.

THEY HAD ALREADY gotten their feet wet in the Cuban battle.

The question now is if the Russians are going to play dirty, pulling strings behind the scenes, why doesn't the U. S. in what amounts almost purely to a self-defense maneuver, also "fight dirty"?

If the U. S. knew that Communist countries aiding and abetting Castro they surely were, why did the U. S. use the same tactics? The Russians have accepted U. S. of supplying armaments to the rebels all Communist-dominated and many world countries believe the U. S. is aiding the rebels thus in the face of this we It would not have really U. S. prestige to do so might even have helped standing. In some of the countries if they saw that U S was willing to back its beliefs and its words terrifically.

SELLING WAR material other countries is perfectly acceptable, at least every else does it. The U S supplies such aides to other countries—why not them, to Cuba? If Kennedy felt a need to save-face or wanted "out" on the deal he might have had the purchase notes—which, by a tacit agreement, might never have come due.

Thus the U. S. could have fought fire with fire in the ban fiasco; Cuba today might have been on the way to liberation from the Castro regime; and the U. S. would have been saved the utter embarrassment of being a Communist dominated country 86 miles from Key West. For if the question a government that can tion without continued ties to tyranny and can be dramatically based fallacies back-yard of the "shining example" of democratic government—where can it be used to succeed?

Communists Are Enemies

TO THE EDITOR:

In regard to your latest Herb Block Cartoon depicting the Committee on Un-American Activities and the John Birch Society, saying, "They're all communist except thee and me." It has been accepted even as far up as the Pentagon that the communists are not only our rivals but are our out and out enemies set out to infiltrate and overthrow our government. Both any and every means possible. Why not the only committee that the United States has that exposes these traitors who would have us put under a governmental system that is completely backed with all but our Constitution and democratic government stands for?

People may say that guilt by association is bud but if those people would study the present situation in this country they would realize that times are bad and it is high time that someone spoke out and informed the public what is going on. Idealistic government looks good on paper but why stick to something in history and realistic reasoning has proven unworkable.

No More Ivy Leo

TO THE EDITOR:

After thirteen years of Congress, Florida State University has finally made the step of the Ivy League. But on the weekend our fair school backed out of its button down collar shirt and its Ivy-league-cut pants to be the public of Tallahassee its underwear.

Westcott no longer has Ivy covered walls. No dust there is well thought out reason having the vines torn off the truckload, but I hate think that it justifies the moral of the only thing made FSU's "trademark" halfway presentable, the on Westcott.

Florida State Thinclads Tackle Gators Tonight

...Senior Sprinter

By PAM BRAY and VICKY WARDEN
Flambeau Sports Writers

Florida State University renews their hot rivalry tonight when the Seminole tracksters meet the Florida Gators, who ranked second in the Southeastern Conference last year.

This is the last dual meet of the season for the Seminoles who have a 3-1 record to dual meet competition so far this year. The tribe defeated Miami, Alabama, and Furman and lost to Louisiana State, the Southeastern Conference champions.

This meet will also be the final home appearance for six Florida State seniors: team captain Don Ostergaard, javelin thrower Jim Higgins, high jumper Steve Long, broad jumper Keith Crawford, and distance runners Don Roberts and Kent Mills.

The Gators and Seminoles have met in five previous dual meets. The Seminole tracksters have a one meet edge over Florida, having won the last three of the five meets.

As far as meet records go in the FSU-Florida contests, the teams have an equal number, each holding eight records. Florida State holds the meet records in the shot put, the javelin, the 440 relay, the mile run, the 440 yard run, the 220, the two mile run, and mile relay.

Florida holds the records in the pole vault, the high jump, the broad jump, the discus, the 100, the 880, and the high and low hurdles.

FLA. LOSES FOUR

Florida has had a rough season, bowing to Duke, Georgia Tech, and Miami.

Both Florida and Florida State participated in the Florida Relays, hosted by the Gators in Gainesville, this year. FSU placed sixth. Florida came in thirteenth along with South Carolina and Virginia Military.

The Gator's strength may have been weakened by the loss of several of their top men, such as Henry Wadsworth, a nationally ranked polevaulter who set the pole vault and high jump records in the UF-FSU track meet in Gainesville last year. They also lost a javelin thrower, a hall-miler, and a hurdler by graduation.

Florida's heaviest scoring may be made in the javelin the discus, the high jump, and the 440 yard run. Florida State's strength will be greatest in the shot put, the broad jump, the discus, the high jump, the 440 relay, the low hurdles, and 100 yard dash.

OSTERGARD SHINES

Florida State's Don Ostergard, who tossed the shot 54-½ for a school record as FSU won its third consecutive Piedmont Relays title last week, holds the Fla.-FSU meet record in that event at 51-1½. He expects stiff competition from Florida football captain Jim Beaver.

Florida's Walt Buettner set the meet discus record last season at 156-8. Both Buettner and FSU's Jeff Clark have bettered that mark this season. Seminoles Steve Long and George Smith, who both have cleared 6-5 in the high jump, will be challenged by Florida's Wendell Willis.

Top runners for FSU in this campaign have been Craig Johnson in the sprints; Quentin Till and Bill Davis in the middle distances; and Bill Welch, Dave Ellis, and Terry Long in the hurdles. A consistent broad jump winner for the Seminoles is Herb Kraft and Don Roberts and Kent Mills have added points in the middle distances.

Coach Mike Long, who hopes to witness the fourth straight dual triumph over the Gators, said: "They (FSU) will try to balance out places in every event, so as to win by having a greater depth."

The Shakeup

The big shakeup of Major League baseball locations the writers have been predicting for over a decade ally becoming a reality. And it has wrought a ized lull of changes.

Milwaukee donned the quick change first and since it has be- high fashion. The Braves shed their home in Boston and seventh place finish simultaneously. With the enthusiasm of converts and a host of young talent that coincidentally ved at the same time, the Braves began to surge. They won pennants and a World Championship while their coffers ge to fill.

Their tale is a story of salvation for other starving teams and the league as their broke management looks for a place to e or their rich management looks for a way to overrun their

Consequently, the sagging St. Louis Browns went to Baltimore, Philadelphia Athletics went to Kansas City, the Brooklyn Dodg went to Los Angeles; the New York Giants went to San Fran- and recently the Washington Senators went to Minnesota. addition, the American League added a pair of new nines, the new Washington Senators and the Los Angeles Angels, which are two clubs from cast off players from other teams.

In some cases, a change of scenery has been just what a ing club needed, but it has proven to be less than a painless ion is salvation.

The Milwaukee it was successful. But the Braves had the talent on before the shift. Likewise, Baltimore was a more promising ame than was St. Louis, but the Orioles success has been ost about by a mass purchase of young ball players at high

For the others, the bonanza has yet to be realized. Los Angeles San Francisco have drawn bigger crowds but the quality of team has failed to improve. The younger teams have not had ough time to either prove or disprove themselves.

It is understandable for sagging squads to want to improve standings in order to get out from under their burden of sual string of setbacks incurred over the years. But a quick is not necessarily the answer.

A new arena will not support a pathetic team for very long they will not have the loyalty of the fans which has been built over the years to carry them over a rough spot.

Quick moves play havoc with this loyalty. No fan can feel attached to a club which will readily turn down his support and shy away. If this type of quick move becomes prevalent, the majority of the league will be on par with a pin ball machine with ball bouncing around continually.

Baseball owners need to realize that the American fan is not anything that can be exploited continually. Fans in this respect are a natural resource and they can only be depleted so long.

The only way for a club to be successful is to build their club by making the change. And it would be better if the clubs remained in their own locations and treated their long-suffering fans with a touch of good baseball for a change.

Fans can be cultivated to produce support but the answer to getting that support is not continual exploitation of new furtile areas.

Tribe Sweeps Four On Rood

Sizzling Baseball Seminoles Invade Georgia 'Dogs Today

By BILL VERIGAN
Assistant Sports Editor

Fresh from a four game sweep on the road, Florida State's sizzling baseball squad invades the University of Georgia to do battle with the Bulldogs today and tomorrow.

Earlier in the season the Tribe toppled the Bulldogs in two games on its home diamond, and Georgia will be gunning for an upset against the sixth ranked Seminoles. Hitting power, which was amply displayed by both teams in their first meetings, will be the feature attraction of the contests.

The Florida State baseballers own a 15-8 edge in the series with the Bulldogs, who have been a contender in the Southeastern Conference race. In the earlier meetings previously this year FSU walked away with the honors 9-8 and 11-3 in the season-opener.

Jim Daniel, who has fanned 49 batters in 56 innings, and owns one of the earlier wins over the Bulldogs. Frank Davis, a senior moundsman with the school strikeout record, or Ray McShane, a junior ace, will probably start for FSU.

After sweeping the Florida Southern nine, 5-4 and 13-2, the Tribe traveled to Miami to defeat the Hurricanes on Monday and Tuesday. Getting by Miami 2-0 and 14-6 also put FSU in the driver's seat for a nomination for the NCAA bid for tournament competition.

Sharing the wins were Frank Davis and Jim Daniel. Davis stands at 4-1 for the season and Daniel is FSU's winningest pitcher this season with a 6-1 mark.

In the first game of the series the Seminoles jumped off to their quick lead and it was good enough to take the contest.

Davis went the route for Florida State.

The second game turned into a rout when Bobby Hughes, Hurricane pitcher, was sent scurrying from the mound during a seven-run explosion in the fifth inning.

Before the action-packed seventh inning the score was knotted at 2-2, but four walks, an error, and four hits by Roger Zimmerman, Hal Mangin, Ray McShane, and Neil Martin broke Miami's back.

With a .303 team batting average, FSU has four men with 30 or more at bats who are hitting better than .300. Neil Martin is the leading hitter with a .381 average. He is followed by Hal Mangin, .375; Jack Dull, .366; and Doug Walker, .300.

Florida State's undefeated freshman baseball team meets Florida's freshmen in a two-game series at Gainesville today and tomorrow. The Baby Seminoles haven't allowed a run in three starts this season.

Garnet Faces Gold In Spring Grid Tilt

The annual Garnet-Gold spring intrasquad football game will be played in Campbell Stadium at 2:30 Saturday.

Ed Feely will call the signals for the Golds and Ed Trancygier will direct the Garnet attack. The Garnets will be sporting twelve lettermen while the Golds will have only eight. Both squads will have thirty-five members.

John Coatta will be head coach for the Garents and Ken Meyer will head the Golds coaching staff. Assisting Coatta will be assistant coaches Don James, Dick Flavers and Vince Gibson plus Al Ulmer, graduate assistant.

Completing the Golds coaching staff are Bob Harbison, Bubba McGowan, and Charlie LaPrade with graduate assistants, Ted Rudrigue and Bob Nellums. Coach Bill Peterson will be just a spectator for the game.

Of the 70 players who may see action Saturday, 43 are sophomores. 17 are juniors and only 10 will be seniors next fall. Due to injuries five sophomores will not be able to play. Junior halfback Happy Fickas also has been benched with a knee injury, but may see limited action.

With Feely, the Golds will have senior letterman Roy Bickford and Jim Parham, sophomore aiding at the quarterback position. Soph quarterback Charlie Calhoun and John Massey will assist Trancygier for the Garnets.

In the Golds backfield will be lettermen Jack Forehand, Tom Hillabrand and Buddy Yarbrough. The Garnet backs will include Willie Whitehead, Paul Andrews and John McConnaughhay.

On the line for the Golds will be standouts Steve Klemus, Bill Tyre, Larry Hood, Charlie Kenipp, Bruce Darsey, Don Donatelli and Fred Grimes. The Garnets line will be sporting four lettermen, John Levings, Frank DeFrancesco, Joe Verbinski and Lamar Elton.

Coach Bill Peterson said "This game will give us a pretty good insight of our weaknesses that we can expect next fall. For the boys it will help them to know what they need to work on during the summer; for the spectators it will give them some idea about how good and tough we will be next year. The game will be a real good game probably with little scoring."

Racquettes Defeat Rollins

The FSU Racquettes defeated the Rollins girls' team 7-2 in a dual match at Winter Park Saturday.

Caryl Lenahan in the top spot defeated Rocky Sullivan 6-2, 6-2. Dana Lenahan in the two position defeated Jane Feise, 6-3, 8-6. Gail DeLozier won out over Sue Williams 6-1, 6-1, in the third match. Barbara Bossong went three sets before being defeated by Amelia Hunt, 1-6, 6-4, 8-6. Ann Lake was downed by Bonnie Stewart 6-4, 6-2, in the fifth match. Virginia Dumas in the sixth match defeated Lynn Morris 6-1, 6-1.

In the doubles events the Racquettes took all three matches. Lenahan-Lenahan beat out Sullivan-Williams 6-2, 6-1. DeLozier-Bossong stopped Hunt-Stewart 6-3, 7-5. Lake-Dumas won the last match 6-0, 6-3 as they downed the combination of Lee Russell and Kathryn Benson.

Rollins will return the match at 10 a.m. here Saturday at the varsity courts.

FSU Golfers Meet Gators, Beat Southern

The FSU golfers meet mighty Florida here tomorrow at the Capital City Country Club at 10 a. m. in an attempt to avenge a previous 23-6 loss to the Gators earlier this season.

Downing Gray and Manny Nordone shot par 72's to lead Florida State to its fifteenth dual golf victory 18-9, over Florida Southern here Tuesday. Frank Malara and Bryan Bergerson each posted 73's for FSU. Joe Hamby's 73 was the best for the visiting Moccasins.

Now 15-2, FSU closes its dual schedule here tomorrow with the Gators. Five boys will be playing their last time in dual meets for FSU. They are: Dick Dunlap, Downing Gray, Frank Malara and Rock and John Fralelgh.

Canoes Go Up The Lazy River . . .

By MARY ELLEN HARRIS
Flambau Feature Editor

"Up a lazy river" doesn't always hold true for the Physical Education Dept.-sponsored canoe trips.

Sometimes they go downstream. Such was the case this past Saturday when Dr. Peter Everett, associate professor of physical education, his three sons and 30 students took a canoe trip down the Wacissa River.

ANNUAL TRIP

The trip was one of the two annual canoe trips sponsored by the department.

The students left campus at 8 a.m. and returned at 5:30 p.m. They spent approximately six hours on the river, stopping an hour at noon for lunch.

According to Dr. Everett, the weather was not pleasant but "nobody seemed to mind." He added that if it was necessary to face the wind downstream during the morning but that afternoon was "much nicer" except for the ram.

NO MISHAPS

No mishaps occurred said Dr. Everet. A few students who were not adept at handling a canoe ended up in the shallows instead of midstream, but none of the 12 canoes suffered an upset.

For the "nature lovers," a few snakes and wild hogs were seen, Dr. Everett added.

The second canoe trip of the year will be April 29, and will be down the St. Marks River. Participants will leave from the "Natural Bridge" on the river.

Those interested should sign up at Montgomery or Tully Gymnasium. A swimming test will be required for participation in the trip.

40 Departments Involved

Machines May Replace Scholars In Research

Scholars soon will be able to turn over some of their more irksome research tasks including a "search of the literature," to high speed computers, according to the rector of Florida State University's Comouting Center.

As far as FSU is concerned, Dr. E. P. Miles Jr. told a campuswide meeting of 110 faculty members from 40 departments interested in utilizing the Computing Center, this is in the "it's a dream awhile stage." But he said five utility companies over the nation are preparing to put a new "character recognition" device into use by the end of this year to speed up billing.

There is a general expectation of a big technological breakthrough in scanning devices and information retrieval, said Dr. Miles. When it arrives on the university campus researchers should be able to save a lot of eyesight and speed up the preliminaries to their research.

In order to locate pertinent literature on their research problem — say some historical movement — the researcher would supply the computer a few key words or phrases and then it would be set to work scanning appropriate journals or documents. After digesting the memorized material the computer would come up either with printed extracts or page references.

Dr. Miles told the faculty group he hopes that next fall, when a new and more powerful computer is expected to be available, that graduate assistants trained in computer use will be available to help instructors and students make use of the machine in the regular education program.

The new computer, called the IBM 709, will replace an IBM 650 now in use. To be installed in the Mathematics - Meteorology Building, the new machine will process data between 16 and 2400 times as fast as the present one. It will be able to perform additions or subtractions of integers, for instance, at a rate of 40,000 a second compared to 8200 for the 650.

The machine has been offered to FSU at one-fifth of its commercial price and the National Science Foundation has tentatively indicated support for half the price, subject to matching funds being made available locally.

FSU's nuclear research program now provides the 650 its speed, the new one is installed the Atom Van de Graaff accelerator will come up with between two and two million pieces of information in a 24-hour period it must be fed to the computer.

By department the heaviest users of the 650 are physics, statistics, education, chemistry, zoology, mathematics, meteorology . sociology, computing center, economics, business, psychology and oceanography.

Church Key To Change Name And Sponsor Annual Project

Church Key Society has voted to change its name, its symbol worn after tapping, and to sponsor certain annual projects such as a bridge tournament.

Although these were tentative amendments for the group, they were re-voted on and accepted following Senate approval of Church Key Society last week. "We felt a re-vote was the best procedure since there was no longer the pressure from Senate that there was at the time of the previous vote," said Tom McKay, Church Key president. The re-vote, however, brought the same results.

A number of names have been proposed within the group, and it was expected that one would be adopted at last night's meeting. The Society's membership is restricted to no more than 21.

"We were very pleased with Senate's action last week, but we nevertheless feel our proposed changes are advantageous to our future," McKay stated.

The group meets four times a month and according to its constitution, taps new members twice a year. They select a sweetheart, this year's being Ann Schloss, a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

The society is planning a coffee next Thursday night to which invitations will be issued.

Other officers of Church Key are: Spanky Pernell, vice-president; Gary Usina, treasurer; Walt Fleming, secretary; Tony Cling-er, social chairman; Lan Wilcox, sargeant-at-arms. Advisors for the group are Major Ira Gross and Mrs. John Andrews.

Ballet Delay

The Wednesday night performance of the National Ballet of Canada was delayed for 15 minutes because of electrical wiring difficulties, according to Mrs. Kay Yernon, director of special activities.

Someone backstage stepped on wires just before curtain time and they had to be rewired.

Massive voice for a missile base

In America's space-age defense system, the order of the day is total, high-speed communications.

And at Vandenberg Air Force Base, as elsewhere, General Telephone & Electronics is carrying out the order with efficiency and dispatch.

Here the link to the system that mans the mighty Atlas missiles is a fully automatic 5,000-line dial telephone exchange. The "outside voice" that links the base with alert and command posts throughout the world is a multichannel microwave radio relay system capable of handling hundreds of telephone conversations, teletype messages and early-warning radar data simultaneously.

The communications equipment connecting Vandenberg Air Force Base with the outside was designed, manufactured and installed by our subsidiaries, Automatic Electric and Lenkurt Electric, and is operated for the government by General Telephone of California.

This advanced high-speed system is expressive of the way General Telephone & Electronics strives to serve the nation through better communications – not only for national defense, but for homes, business and industry as well.

"Y" News-Advocate

Public Relations Men Produce Newspaper

Seventy members of two public relations classes at Florida State University have helped to produce the current issue of the local Young Men's Christian Association newspaper, the "Y" News-Advocate.

APPLIED PRINCIPLES

"The students had an opportunity to apply the general principles of public relations to a practical situation, the production of a house publication," Dr. Kobre said.

Three thousand copies of the "Y" News-Advocate were printed and are being sent to the organization's members and to officials of civic clubs. A number of copies are being mailed out in connection with the current "Y" membership drive.

"The response to the publication has been gratifying," Chester Francis, executive director of the "Y" said. "We received many telephone calls about the organization's activities. Many new and old memberships have been taken out. We want to thank the students and Dr. Kobre for their excellent work."

LEGISLATURES WIVES . . . were entertained at a luncheon in the Suwannee Room, Wednesday, during their day on campus, by members of the home economics department who modeled suits, dresses, and coats in a fashion show. Commentator for the show was Dorothy Roberts. Among the group were Mrs. Farris Bryant, left, and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell.

Become A Gourmet With Around-The-World Cuisine

By MARTHA ROBERTS
Flambeau Staff Writer

France, Austria, Sweden, Greece, China, Mexico and Italy—these are only a few of the many countries brought to the Florida State University campus through the gourmet dinners of the Hotel and Restaurant Management students.

The dinners, featuring world-wide cuisine, are presented every Tuesday and Thursday night as a part of the six-hour Hotel and Restaurant Management laboratory. A luncheon is also held on Tuesday.

According to Peter Dukas, director of the Hotel and Restaurant Management Dept., the laboratory class dinners are specifically designed not only to provide a different experience in dining for both students and faculty, but also as a very real exercise in the development of executive tools and skills needed for effective hotel and restaurant management.

WEEKLY DINNER

Each laboratory class gives a dinner weekly featuring international menus. One student acts as general manager of the function and the other students fill the various roles in the production of the meal.

In planning the menus, the students frequently write to the foreign embassies for authentic recipes of the national dishes of the various countries. Library research is also done and the appropriate records for dining music are procured from the record library.

In addition, the theme is carried out in the decor of the rooms in which these dinners are held. There are two rooms on the second floor of the Seminole Dining Hall Building which are used expressly for these functions.

Modern equipment is available to the students to aid them in the production of the dinners. The students not only plan, prepare, and serve the meals, but are also responsible for the "dirty work" of cleaning up after them.

NON-PROFIT FUNCTION

According to Ashby Stiff, hotel and restaurant management instructor, the reservations for the dinners are filled well in advance. They are open to the entire campus community and are non-profit functions, the charge covering the cost of the food only.

Through a system of rotating leadership, each student has an opportunity to develop organizational skills, planning ability, effective personnel management and practical supervision techniques and the social skills necessary to satisfy discriminating guests in future operations these students will manage.

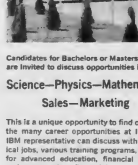
BOP Postpones Selection Of Editor For Third Time

Selection of an editor for the Legend '62, the literary anthology, was postponed for the third time Wednesday when the Board Publications failed to have a quorum.

Four student members and one faculty member were present for the meeting. By-laws call for the presence of three student members in order to conduct business.

The editor's election will be next Wednesday if a quorum of the Board is present, Chairman Nancy Henderson said.



There are two applicants for the position, Penny Diehl and Leslie Powell.

This year's editor of the anthology, Leslie Lowell, warned that the quality of the magazine would suffer unless the editor were chosen soon so that work could begin.

Dance Group Presents: 'An Evening Of Dance'

Tickets are now on sale in Westcott Ticket Office for the annual Spring program, "An Evening of Dance," presented by the Florida State University Theatre Dance Group.

The program, to be presented Tuesday and Wednesday in Westcott Auditorium, will feature ten original dance compositions. The presentation will incorporate the talents of FSU's 25-member modern dance group directed by Miss Nellie-Bond Dickenson.

"From the Notebooks of a Choreographer," the finale number on the program, shows how a choreographer goes about finding seeds of movement in the creation of a dance. Narration, choreography, and scenes by Miss Dickinson and 11 dancers perform the number.

"By Chance" is the title of another number, choreographed by Patricia Beatty, assistant director of the group. Dance movements, costumes color scheme for this dance, were all selected by the throwing of dice.

Holly Chapman, assistant to the director and a new member of the faculty, has based her dance on "Color Moods."

BEATNIK DANCE

"The Mystic and the Beatnik," an amusing satirical number, first performed two years ago, is being repeated by request. Miss Dickinson, director of both choreographer and soloist for this number. Beatner will be Sherry Aerni.

Also on the program will be "Rain! Rain!", "Quartet," "Kaleidoscope," "From Haitian Hills," and "Lyric Landscape." The presentations use the choreographic talents of Vasha Nowakowski, Myrna Boyette, Robin Leeger and Miss Dickinson.

THE THEATRE DANCE GROUP . . . at FSU will present its annual Spring program in Westcott Auditorium on April 25-26. Here in a modern dance number called "Color Moods" is student dancer Mignon Boyette.

Theatre Dance Will Stage Yearly Spring Presentation

Ten original dance compositions will be a feature of the Florida State University Theatre Dance Group's annual Spring program, "An Evening of Dance" tonight and tomorrow night at 8:15 in Westcott auditorium.

Fifteen members of the 25-member modern dance group will be making their debut with Theatre Dance at these performances. These students were chosen at the Theatre Dance tryouts at the beginning of this school year.

The group, which studied various aspects of technique throughout the first semester has been working from the beginning of the semester on this annual program.

"An Evening of Dance" is just what the title implies. There is no specific theme connected with but one of the numbers is simply a development of movements.

A different approach in choreography in this year's program will be the number entitled "By Chance," choreographed by Patricia Reams, assistant director of the group. Mrs. Reams, a student last under Merce Cunningham, who has recently won a dance magazine award for his approach to dance composition, used his theory in the development of this dance.

DICE DECIDED

The approach, called composition by chance, is used by first limiting the possibilities of movements to be used and then by throwing dice to determine the particular movement for each dancer, the length of the movement, and its position on the stage. In this case, the dancers do not relate to each other except in the fact that they are in the same space at the same time. Each person on the stage is actually performing a solo.

The only number on the program telling a story is the presentation, "From Haitian Hills," choreographed by Mignon Boyette, secretary of the group. This gives a dramatic approach to dance.

The first number on the program, "From the Notebooks of a Choreographer," incorporating 11 members of the group, is a continuation of a number used last year. This dance exemplifies the method used by a choreographer in finding sources of movement in the creation of a dance. Narration, choreography and script for this creation are by Miss Nelle-Bond Dickinson, director of the modern dance organization.

Miss Dickinson's composition "Quartet" uses dancers as melodies would be used in a musical composition. Other dances include "Rain Rain," choreographed by Yasha Nowakoski, "Kaleidoscope" by Robin Leeger, "Lyric Landscape" and "The Mystic and the Beatnik," by Miss Dickinson, and "Color Moods" by Holly Chapman.

Tickets for Theatre Dance performances can be obtained at the main ticket office in Westcott.

BOP Session Repeats Stand

The Board of Publications reiterated its policy prohibiting personal attacks on individuals in the Florida Flambeau in a special session Friday.

The board framed a formal apology to Sen. John Rawls of Marianna, expressing its regret for the alleged violation of this policy in Friday's paper in a letter headed "Student Defends Flambeau."

The letter was written following the Senator's proposal to prohibit the Flambeau from receiving funds from the student activity fee on the grounds that students were forced to subscribe to a paper not in accord with their ideologies.

The board agreed to call the attention of the editor to the letter as an example of violations of the board's policy. The same letter was also printed in the Tampa Tribune.

Two juniors elected were Jan Dougherty and Gail Gillespie, both English majors.

Seniors and recent graduates are Raffaele F. Biondi, Mary A. Brotherson, Gwynn M Collins, Dorothy Cronin, Francis E. Dean, Phung Lien Dean, Martha Ann Dreadin, Carolyn Jane Gaines, Patricia Guthrie, Gale Bartholemew Hill, Julia K. Hobbs

Stoakes To Speak At Coffee Hour

Dr. Paul Stoakes, professor of English and director of the English Language Institute, will speak on "Teaching English Abroad" at the English Coffee Hour Friday.

"English is probably the most widely studied subject on the face of the earth," said Dr. Stoakes, who will discuss the implications of this for teachers, here and abroad, and for the general public.

He has spent some six years in four different foreign countries teaching English to foreigners and helping train foreign teachers of English.

His most recent assignment was to Damascus, Syria, United Arab Republic, where he spent two months in the fall of 1960 as consultant to the Syrian Ministry of Education and Damascus University.

Previously he served as visiting professor of English at the Universidad de Oriente, Santiago de Cuba, where he helped set up a four-year program for the training of Cuban teachers of English.

He spent two years in Bogota, Colombia, as director of the English teaching program at the Centro Colombo-Americano, an American cultural institute subsidized by the American people.

In the summer of 1957, he spent three months in Mexico lecturing to teachers of English and taking part in teacher institutes. He is the author of Ingles Practico, a textbook widely used in South America, and now in its 16th edition.

Constitutional amendments to be voted on next Tuesday are printed in full on page 2.

Dogs Are Well Cared For And Serve Double Purpose

Dogs from kennels atop the Biological Sciences Bldg. are used both for experimental and teaching purposes, according to Dr. Harry Lisoner, associate professor of biological sciences.

The dogs, many of which may appear in poor condition, are well taken care of and humanely treated, he said.

The department receives them from the city dog pound at the discretion of the pound and on condition that dogs which are not useable for scientific purposes are destroyed in the pound manner. These are killed by anesthesia.

Two students had reported to Dr. Lisoner that the dogs were starving. These students were jumping to hasty conclusions without first talking to any of the people responsible for their care, Dr. Lisner said.

SEXUAL FACTORS

They failed to recognize several factors, among them that they were picked up by the dog catcher and that many of the animals were "terribly sick" when brought to the University, he said. In Florida animals are prey to many kinds of worms and parasites, especially when they are allowed to run loose.

In many cases the infested dogs are unable to properly assimilate food although they may ingest it in sufficient quantities.

The fact that there are many "healthy well animals" in the same cages with those that appear underfed demonstrates this assertion. In the case of the emaciated dogs "this neglect started long before we even knew they existed," Dr. Lisner said.

Those that are used for experimentation or classroom demonstration are given a general anesthetic, the experiment is performed and then the animal is given an overdose of the anesthetic and killed

WIDE RANGE

The experiments cover a wide range including studies of circulation, digestion and reflex actions. Nearly all of the human processes can be demonstrated on living animals under a general anesthetic.

"Using dogs can study living organisms you can never learn how the parts function and how they integrate into the whole," the scientist said.

"The animals never suffer unnecessary pain or discomfort," he emphasized.

When people hear the dogs barking they often think they are being experimented on, but this is not true. Out on the open roof there are two possums at which the dogs sometimes bark, also they often bark when anyone goes out on the roof. Otherwise they get into the same normal scraps and fights with each other as dogs in any kennel or dog pound do.

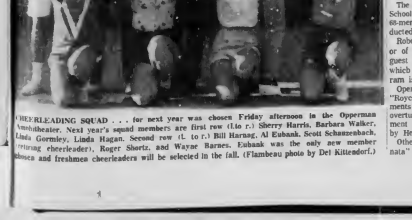
WIRE FENCES

The runs are separated by wire fences but because of the construction of the kennels there is a space at the bottom where the smaller dogs can go back and forth from one cage to another.

Therefore although it may appear that many smaller dogs are in a cage with a big dog it is by actual choice of the smaller dogs.

The researcher emphasized that at many other schools and universities the experimental animals are also obtained from the dog pound. However the anti - vivisectionists in some areas have prevented the researchers from obtaining dogs in this way and consequently the schools are forced to buy animals at extremely high prices.

DOGS FROM KENNELS . . . atop the Biological Sciences Bldg. serve a double purpose. They are used for experimental and teaching purposes, and are well cared for according to Dr. Harry Lisner. (Flambeau photo by Marc Julius)



Homecoming Ideas Needed

More students are participating in homecoming planning this year with the selection of a representative from each living unit and organization to serve on the Homecoming committee.

A contest is now underway to choose a theme for the Nov. 17-18 Homecoming, when the Semi noles will play Mississippi Southern.

Any students may submit a theme in the contest. The winner will receive a set of tickets to the Homecoming variety show and dance.

The January 9, 1959 issue of the Florida Flambeau ran a lead editorial "NSA Vote Important." The Flambeau explained that the average students at FSU would be little, if any, affected by FSU's membership in NSA.

It explained what NSA is in these words: "It is an organization composed of nearly 400 American university student bodies. Its purpose is to provide a forum for discussion of common student government problems." The initials NSA represent the title, National Student Association.

THE FLAMBEAU WAS WRONG when it stated that this was not "a burning issue." It shortly became one. Senate held its debates concerning the NSA in other than the regular Senate room in order to accomodate the unusual number of students who came to hear and see the debate.

After much discussion revolving around the policies of the NSA in regard to an alleged pro-integration stand, and its having been listed at one time by the House Un-American Activities Committee. Senate voted to keep FSU out of the NSA at that time.

Something that apparently got overlooked was a feeling on the part of the "average" student that perhaps FSU did not have enough knowledge of the organization and its functions to leap into a membership that might possibly bring more regret than satisfaction.

THERE IS SOME INDICATION now that the "average" student may have been correct in his desire to remain aloof from NSA. There is rumbling in the NSA ranks.

This rumbling comes from an organization calling itself Students Committed to Accurate National Representation (SCANR). This movement, centered at Northwestern University, describes itself as "non-partisan", calls for more "accurate and honest student representation" and accuses the NSA of acting in "bad faith." This is fairly strong criticism, coming from a university that is not exactly backward in national standing.

SCANR takes exception to the NSA view that there is no minority view among its delegates: that all favor such prbgrams as NSA chooses to uphold with the so-called 'voice of the American Student'. SCANR makes the point that too many students whose voices are being used by NSA do not necessarily know that they are even being represented by the older organization.

THE PURPOSE OF SCANR is not to destroy or harm any existing organization, according to its national chairman, but to correct what it terms "misrepresentation." Northwestern is not alone in its opposition to NSA. A list of criticisms of NSA was drawn up by a group of interested students from seven Chicago area schools.

Charges against NSA are that it practices massive deception in its constitution by its claim of speaking for the students of the United States of America. SCANR says that not only are unaware students "represented" by NSA but that accurate representation is not given those students who are familiar with the organization.

NOR ARE MINORITY VIEWS expressed by delegates. SCANR charges that minority reports are not printed with the official minutes of NSA conventions and that the minutes of a meeting where dissents "are buried" are impossible to obtain.

FSU students may recognize the accusation that the "machinery (NSA's) has been put in order which will keep the dissenters from being heard." Not only that, but the "tone of any NSA organized or sponsored gathering is prearranged so that his (dissenting) opinion simply does not fit into the framework of the conference proceedings."

If, as SCANR charges, the NSA conventions are merely unanimous, resolution-passing sessions, than it is fortunate that FSU stayed out of NSA. We have enough unanimity here, esecially where resolution-passing is concerned.

Coma Turns Thumbs Down

By LESLIE POWELL

Coma tugged her toga back onto her bony shoulder. "Anybody caught wearing a Church Key in here," she said, indicating the Soda Shop confines with a sweep of her arm, "will be fed to the Christians."

She stopped to square her toupee away; she shook it irrefusively, discarding a roadmap, pencil stubs, crumpled kleenex and a number of other useful household items. With an air of finality, she removed a stubborn homesteading spider and dropped him into her neighbor's coffee where he forthwith dissolved.

"NOW THEN," she thundered, "where was I?" She stopped again, to hitch up the willing toga "I dreamed I was a public speaker in my madame form toga," she sighed.

"What this college needs is more classy carryings on like the Royal Table of Elders. The sound of that is like the slap of flat feet on marble floors, like the rustling of togas amidst olive wreaths.

"Might even be a Brutus in the bunch. You never can tell. Think: Bite black headlines shouting Marshall Is The Invisible Tower. And the sub-head says: Assassins Hit and Run. The sub-sub-head proclaims: Flee On Fast Horses Biddeo is Hall. The readers ow..d. This is because pages between the heads and the story are full of important goodies like race schedules and All Around The Campsite. The story itself, when it is finally located between Who and What and the latest bingo prize winners, says: 'We know it was horses hid in the hall because there was unmistakable evidence.' The story further goes into the lineage of the presumed horses and alleges that their political affiliations probably are lousy.

THIS MAKES everybody happy. Readers are happy because they haven't had 'o read too much and still are un on the latest scandal. Nobody really had to read past the head, sub-head or sub-sub-head.

"THE ROUND TABLE of Elders is happy because it has been an exciting meeting the first since the Indian Wars. It has put names before the public and virtually assured that rather than thumbs down at the coming circus events, the mass will raise the 'V' sign and yell and fight in the hills and the streets and in the publishing houses.'

"Marilyn Anthony is happy because whether the right colprits are caught or not makes little difference. He's got the goods just lying around ready to pin on whoever crosses his path. It really doesn't matter because now these goods are thrown at the suspects, they can't possible come out of the affair smelling like roses.

"ALL BUT SEVENTH sons of seventh sons are eligible for suspicion and consequences. This criteria was established because it is the most logical, meaning under it Markup himself is ineligible to participate in the rat race. He must, perforce, act as judge."

Coma sighed. 'Wouldn't you know," she said. "That when the rest of the crowd raised the 'V' signal, I'd have to turn thumbs down!"

Opposing Views On Poland

TO THE EDITOR:

I was just wondering if the motive for Phil Steeves' letter in the last issue of the Flambeau asking to bury the "Poland Issue" was an unconscious feeling of shame

It seems to me that most of us should be ashamed that the callous apathy the administration is daring to dispose of any student who holds beliefs contrary to theirs. Very soon, every student who dares to list "no preference" or "agnostic" as his religious preference may receive a letter from one of our beloved deans telling him that he is not wanted on our Christian All-White Campus. The next to go will be anyone suspected of participating in heterosexual activities, and then, all those who do not like foot-ball.

Who said, "Give me liberty or give me death!". We are all dead.

Candidates' Letters

Candidates for Senate seats and class presidencies must turn in the campaign letters which they expect to run in the FLAMBEAU not later than noon Thursday, April 27.

Candidates' letters should not exceed 150 words. Letters that are not turned in to the editor, or to the editorial office, Room 211, Longmire, will not be accepted for publication.

Candidates are reminded, again, that all letters for publication must bear a written signature.

Idealism Won't Work On Paper

TO THE EDITOR:

The Student Senate has been laboring to re-establish a system of honor on our campus. It is easy to put idealistic thoughts on paper and to make them an "official" part of the student body, but for the students to observe them is another thing.

I favor a change in the Honor System which would not require any legislation—publishing verbatim transcripts of Honor Court sessions.

FSU HAS HAD AN honor system for many years, but how much honor have we ever had? To be truthful, we have had and have very little.

"Honor" implies allegiance to one's standards. Are we in agreement that our standard is expressed in the proposed Honor Code amendment? Have we subscribed to a standard of integrity, truthfulness, and freedom from fraud? Realistically speaking, no. This is not intended to imply that we wouldn't like to have our ideals but be a reality.

We have much to learn, not just from books but also about principles and how they affect our lives.

A MILLION DOCUMENTS such as the Honor Code Amendment cannot legislate honor—or honesty. Such things cannot be legislated. Only the people can make a piece of legislation "law" by accepting it and by trying to enforce it.

The failure of "honor" legislation can be disastrous. In failing it will have a bad effect on the student's moral standards since they will violators profit from cheating and remaining undetected.

One of the most common reasons for the decline of the Honor System is a lack of confidence in the competence of the Honor Court. At FSU very significant reasons for lack of trust is due to the lack of knowledge of the Court—what happens to a defendant when on trial. All we know is that the Court operates. It is possible that we aren't enough to understand? Or we intelligent enough to comprehend the significance of a student honor court? We should be able to understand judicial and state judicial proceedings, but we aren't ready to be told about "our" system.

I BELIEVE THAT a verbatim transcript of the Honor Court proceedings would be almost no good. It would prevent the reasons which prohibit public trials. Regardless a thorough record of the proceedings would certainly be superior to the seldom-published reports which are now used.

This transcript would enable the public to know that the defendant is not treated unfairly with and that the Court is keenly alive to a sense of responsibility and to the importance of its function — to provide intelligent support and favoritism or partiality.

We can have honor if we really want it. We cannot enforce it, however, to have it immediately. We can expect it to be given the opportunity to develop.

Honor Court Is Criticized

TO THE EDITOR:

In recent days I have come into close contact with the Honor Court. Before this I was unaware of the gross injustices of the highest court on the FSU campus. In the United States we are innocent until proven guilty. Apparently the Honor Court does not believe this for one accused of an Honor Court violation does not have the opportunity to have counsel or to bring witnesses in his defense.

THE EIGHTH amendment to the United States Constitution says that citizens of this nation shall be free from cruel and unusual punishment. Honor Court does not believe this either They think nothing of expelling or flunking a student for a "crime" for which evidence is not conclusive. I am sure that a system of equally administered punishment would function to give a student a fair punishment for "crimes" committed

Perhaps the analogy between the United States government and the government of FSU is a bit trite, but I believe it makes my point clear.

Computers Will Put More Mathematicians To Work

TO THE EDITOR:

I wish to express my appreciation for the excellent coverage given in the Flambeau to our recent "Conference on Utilization of the Computing Center for Classroom Instruction." Unfortunately, the person selecting the headline for this article had not attended the conference and somehow missed the point of the write-up and the discussion upon which it was based. I certainly do not feel that the computer is going to replace scholars and research workers in the various areas discussed to fact, a key conference I pointed out that wherever many uninformed thought the development of high speed computers would put the mathematician out of business, no single factor prompting the recent revolution in employment opportunities for mathematicians has been so important in putting the mathematician "into business" in a big way as has the development of the electronic computer. Old problems are being done better and faster by computer and many problems previously left undone due to the prohibitively large number of man hours of computation required are now handled with ease. It is expected that scholars from other areas attending the training for utilization of the computer in their research will find that they can get more research done more effectively and with more precision which will have to be left undone without the capabilities of electronic assistance

Students and faculty interested in more information about the current and possible uses of electronic computers and data processing systems are invited to visit and browse a while at the display entitled "Computers —Today and Tomorrow" appearing on the third floor of the Library.

Tribe Pummels Gators

By PAM BRAY and VICKIE WARREN

The Florida State Seminoles overpowered the Florida Gators for their fourth straight dual triumph over the Florida trackmen Saturday.

Winning 14 of 16 events, four of them being clean sweeps, the Tribe racked up 104⅓ to Florida's 30⅔. The victory over Florida wound up FSU's dual meet schedule for this season, giving the Tribe a 4-1 record and the Gators a 0-4 record.

This win brought the dual meet record between the two schools to 4-2, the Seminoles having the edge.

The Tribe set two meet records and tied a third. Terry Long rendered his best performance of the season by establishing new meet, school, and FSU track records in the 220 low hurdles. He was also an element in the winning 440 relay team which tied the meet record at :42.9. Other members of the 440 team were Craig Johnson, Keith Crawford, and Quentin Till.

Executing a 6-5¾ leap in the high jump, George Smith set a meet record just a quarter of an inch short of Steve Long's school record.

Another meet record was set by Gator Walt Boutiner who managed a 154-foot effort in the discus. Florida's only other first went to Oscar McCollum in the javelin.

Sophomore Craig Johnson was top man on the totem pole for the Seminoles. Racking up 12½ points by winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes and running laps on the winning 440 and mile relays, he was high scorer for the meet.

Florida State's clean sweeps were taken in the 100 yard dash, the high hurdles, the pole vault, and the broad jump.

Davis Sparks – But Loses

Pitcher Tommy Davis did double duty for the Baby Seminole baseball team by going 13 innings on the mound in two days against the University of Florida freshman squad, but the Baby Gators still managed two wins, 2-1 and 4-3.

Davis didn't allow a single earned run during his stint on the mound. In the first game he had to battle for 10 innings, and the next day he was called on for three relief innings after starter Marty Howell.

The freshmen have a 3-2 season record with wins against Gulf Coast Junior College and South Georgia. The next contest for the Baby Seminoles will be against powerful Manatee Junior College at Seminole Field on Thursday.

Georgia Snaps Florida State Eight Game Victory Streak

Florida State's battling baseball team had an eight game winning streak snapped by a tough Georgia Bulldog nine over the weekend in a twin bill at Athens, Ga.

In the first contest the Seminoles triumphed 5-3 but were downed 10-9 the second day.

FSU won its first game on the efforts of the arm of its winning pitcher, Frank Davis. Davis went the route and fanned five Bulldogs while walking four. In the last inning he was forced to fight off a determined Georgia bid which resulted in only one run but loaded the bases before the last out.

Buddy Scott battered FSU starter Jim Daniel, for two homers in the second contest, one of which was a grand-slam shot. During the day he drove in six Georgia runs.

The tribe committed six costly blunders during the day which allowed eight unearned runs to cross the plate.

The only partial compensation for the loss came from two Seminole double plays which gave them a record-tying total of 24 for the season. The put-outs came on the combinations of Daniel to Roger Zimmerman and Zimmerman to Jack Dull to Doug Walker.

Jack Ross, who relieved Daniel in the sixth inning, absorbed the loss for a 1-1 season record. Davis' mark for the year is 5-1 after his Bulldog win.

Florida State's win-loss record for the current campaign is 19-5 with Georgia now sporting an 8-9 record. There is not another game until May 8 and 9 against the Georgia Southern nine at Seminole field.

Leading batter for FSU is Jack Dull, who has a .363 average. He is followed by Hal Mangin with a .361 mark. Neil Martin, who is batting at a .356 clip and Doug Walker with a .341 average.

Golds Mangle Garnets 25-0

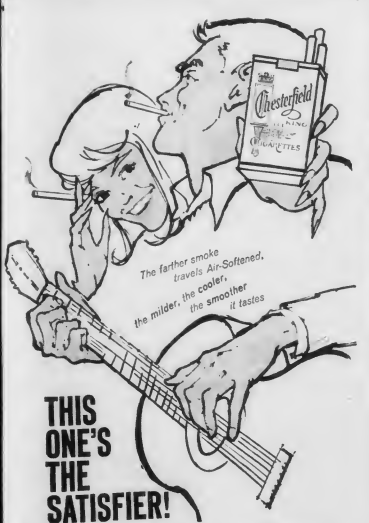
Eddie Feely's bright quarterbacking was the highlight of Florida State's annual spring practice football contest which ended in a 25-0 route by the Gold team over an outclassed Garnet squad last Saturday at Campbell Stadium.

Feely, leading field general for the Seminoles last season was the spark that set the Gold team in action. The flashy quarterback passed for 10 completions in 13 tries and darted 50 yards in 11 times.

Jack Forehand, Gold left halfback, gained most rushing yardage, however, as he gobbled up 76 yards on the ground.

The first time the Gold team got its hands on the pigskin it marched 46 yards in nine plays to spill the first Garnet blood of the day. The score came on a 4-yard pass from Feely to Tom Hillabrand. Before the half ended the Feely-led team had a 13-0 lead which was jacked up when Tom Haney grabbed a mistired pass from Garnet quarterback Ed Francyger and dashed 35 yards down the sidelines for the tally.

A handoff from Feely to Forehand accounted for the third touchdown on a 41-yard jaunt. The last score of the day came on a two-yard plunge to payoff that climaxed a 89-yard march in 20 plays.



The most improved player award went to Wilbe Whitehead, and Gene McDowell the was closely followed in the voting by Forehand.

The Garnets posed only one serious threat all afternoon. Francygier has been slowed down considerably during the last part of spring practice by an ankle injury, and he was notably off his usual game. He was rushed hard and many of his passes went astray.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY'S . . . , 43-year-old Psychology (formerly the Education) Building, damaged by a $90,000 early morning fire last September, is now ship-shape again, as shown by this picture. Assistant Business Manager Ray E. Green Jr. said university crews had to reconstruct much of the top floor and roof and patch plaster and tilework and do repainting in other parts of the building. Much of the damage was to expensive electronic research equipment.

Grunwald To Leave; Exodus Of FSU Teachers Feared

Distinguished Professor Joins Bell Laboratories

Ernest Grunwald, Florida University's Distinguished professor for 1960-61, has resigned professor of chemistry to accept a research position in private industry.

Grunwald, who has been on this year, will officially on the professorship Aug. 31. will join the research staff of Laboratories in Murray Hill, where he has been at work year.

tinguished scholars of the caliber of Dr. Grunwald."

CHEMISTRY AWARD

Dr. Grunwald won the Pure Chemistry award in 1950. The award has been given to such outstanding scientists as Nobel Prize-winners Drs. Linus Pauling and Glenn T. Seaborg, Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Dr. Seaborg will speak at FSU at the June Commencement exercises.

The 37-year-old scientist is a native of Wuppertal, Germany. He has been on the faculty since 1949 and in addition to teaching has done research in physical organic chemistry. The first Ph.D. degree in chemistry awarded by FSU went to one of Dr. Grunwald's students.

The Distinguished Professor of the year is chosen by the members of the faculty. In presenting the award last June Dean of Factulties Werner A. Baum cited Dr. Grunwald's active participated enthusiastically in the freshman chemistry course and has had some 400 students per year under his tutelage."

Dr. Grunwald with Dr. Russell Johnson, another FSU professor of chemistry, wrote the text, Atoms, Molecules and Chemical Change, which is used in the freshman course.

The scientist received all three of his degrees; including the Ph.D. in 1937, at the University of California in Los Angeles. He was an instructor at UCLA in 1947, worked for a year with the Portland Cement Company, and then did post-doctoral work at Columbia University prior to joining the FSU faculty.

He has received numerous fellowships and research grants, including the Chaim Weizmann Fellowship for study at the Weizmann Institute in Israel and grants from the Sloan Foundation. He has served as a visiting associate chemist at Brookhaven National Laboratory.

Higher Salaries Lure Professors To Other American Universities

By ROSA NELL WILSON
Flambeau News Editor

The long feared exodus of top Florida State University professors attracted by higher salaries elsewhere seems to be materializing.

The announcement today of the resignation of Dr. Ernest Grunwald is only one of the more serious losses of top men already definite.

If the Legislature does not appropriate funds for faculty raises on a competitive level with other universities, the administration expects the situation to be even worse in June.

"We're very much concerned in June," Dean of Faculties Werner Baum said yesterday. He predicted a flux of professors leaving "unless we can compensate our meritorious faculty members."

The real difficulty is not measured by a certain annual percentage of turnover as in the business world, the dean said. A normal turnover in the instructor rank is expected as young teachers move up to higher positions at other schools.

Not only the number but the quality and character of those involved is the real concern of the university, he said.

The loss of even one per cent of certain key personnel would be calamitous to the university, Baum declared. Yet these people are the ones most sought after by private industry and other schools.

The dean cited numerous incidents of senior faculty members who will not return next year.

A modern languages professor, Dr. Max Oppenheimer, has just been appointed head of the Russian Dept. at the State University of Iowa at a "very significant increase in salary." Dr. Baum pointed out that Russian professors are not easy to get.

In biological sciences, a zoologist, Dr. Alan J. Kohn, is leaving for the University of Wisconsin and a 55 per cent increase in salary.

CLASSICS LOSS

The resignation of Dr Francis Wolton, recently announced, will greatly weaken the Classics Dept, which he headed, the dean said. Another classics instructor, now receiving $5,000 here, has accepted another position which carries a salary of $6,800.

Dr. James Prothro, government professor who has been a visiting professor at the University of North Carolina the past year, has decided to remain there.

In the School of Education, four typical losses Dr. Baum cited were: (1) a man now making $5,000 annual salary here who will receive $8,500, (2) one going from $9,500 here to a $11,600 position, (3) one receiving $7,800 here who will receive $11,000, and (4) one now making $8,900 whose new salary will be $16,000.

In Arts and Sciences, an assistant professor whose salary here is $5,400 has accepted a position at the University of Hawaii with a 43 per cent increase in salary.

An English instructor is going from $5,100 to $6,500, an assistant professor of government from $6,000 to $7,500, the dean said.

LIVED IN HOPE

"A lot of faculty members lived in hope in the last biennium," he commented. It was known that state financial circumstances was difficult, and although the five per cent limit on raises for state employees caused some losses, quite a few remained in hope of an improvement for 1961-62.

However, there are now in a difficult position, the dean explained, knowing that if they wait until the current Legislature acts on the FSU budget, they may be tied down for another year.

The general tenor of the current legislative session—opposing new taxes—has been discouraging, he said.

While some of those leaving are going into private industry, most go to other American universities, Dean Baum said.

A study of salaries at 20 comparable universities, used by the Board of Control in estimating needed increases, showed 18 have a higher median salary for all ranks and 18 have a higher median for full professors.

Schools included in the study are Louisiana State, University of Maryland, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Minnesota, Missouri, Virginia, Illinois, Kansas, Michigan State, State University of Iowa, Ohio State, Purdue, Wisconsin, California, Oregon, Washington, Cornell and Rutgers.

CURRENT FIGURES

Figures for the current year showed a median salary for full professors of $11,106, compared to an FSU median of $8,900.

The situation has already worsened in the last two years, the dean pointed out. Two years ago the FSU median of $8,231 compared to $9,022 for the other schools studied.

Furthermore, if salary increases at these other schools follow the pattern of the last biennium, a seven and half per cent increase can be expected for the next two years.

The university administrators do not expect to be able to compete with private industry in salaries. While the differential in salaries is accepted as fact, the university setting has certain other advantages to compensate, the dean said.

"The thing we can't live with is this differential between the dean of the academic community on one hand and us on the other," he declared.

SUSGA Provides Exchange Of Ideas On Many Problems

By MARY ELLEN HARRIS
Flambeau Feature Editor

"The local student government is really the only agency which can lead its own campus. The main function of the Southern Universities Student Government Association is to provide an exchange of ideas on common problems."

This is one of the basic principles of SUSGA according to Deanna Morris, one of the three FSU SUSGA delegates.

SUSGA is holding its eighth annual conference here this week.

Registration, a business session, various panel discussions and state caucuses were held yesterday. Today's program consists of continued panel discussions and meetings. A banquet in the Student Union Room and a special performance of "Flying High" will climax the events.

The conference will end tomorrow with a final business session and a meeting of the executive council.

SUSGA was born at Emory University when Student Government leaders realized the need for an organization of Southern colleges and universities that would serve as a medium for the exchange of ideas. A constitution was drafted and ratified by the University of Alabama, Florida State University, University of Georgia, Georgia Tech, Emory University, and the University of Tennessee.

The charter members and observers from other Southern college and universities met at Emory in May, 1954, for the first annual SUSGA conference. Jack Houser of FSU was elected first president of SUSGA.

The fifth annual conference was held at FSU in April, 1958. At this time, Arthur Moore was SUSGA Chairman.

From the original six charter members with which the non-policy-making organization began eight years ago, the group has grown to a total of 25 member schools in eight states.

"Since SUSGA exists for service only and does not attempt to supervise or represent its members in any way, the organization's structure of SUSGA exists only to coordinate and plan the activities that are carried out as a service to member schools." Thus the spirit of SUSGA is stated in the official informational pamphlet

The presiding officer at annual conferences is the elected chairman. He coordinates the activities of SUSGA between conferences. He is assisted by an Executive Council. The membership of the council consists of a Vice Chairman from each state elected from the member schools of each state.

An Executive Secretary supervises the activities of the Central Office and is appointed by the Executive Council.

FSU Student Body To Vote On Honor System Tuesday

By GLENDA POWERS
Flambeau Staff Writer

Florida State University may have an academic honor system if a majority of the student body votes Tuesday to approve the constitution-al amendment passed by Student Senate.

A three-member advisory board elected by the member school attend all conferences and executive council meetings and serves in an advisory capacity.

The Amendment, which affects Article V of the Student Body Constitution, was passed almost unanimously by Student Senate the fallowing a debate which extended over four weeks and resulted in several amendments to the original proposal.

As the result of a Senate amendment to the bill, the Honor Court will continue to have jurisdiction in cases of lying and stealing. Such cases, however, are distinct from the academic honor system.

Faculty Senate also approved the bill designed to limit the honor system to academic honesty.

DEFINITE IMPROVEMENT

"I don't believe this proposal presents all the answers," said Student Body President Carl Butler. "but I do think it is a definite improvement and should be passed and tried by the Student Body."

Attorney General Roy Mathis expressed a similar opinion. "We need a more enforceable honor system. Perhaps this will provide such; it is at least worth a try," said Mathis.

Chairman of the student-faculty committee which proposed the change in the honor system, Dr. Kellogg Hunt said, "The question before the students is whether the present regulations, which clearly lack adequate student support, shall be replaced by regulations which have o chance to get student support.

"No one can guarantee that the new regulations will gain support—only the vote will tell. But if the vote is not over-whelmingly favorable to the new proposals, then the university must ask whether our present system is worth saving or, rather than a moral force."

Restricting our honor system to infractions of academic honesty only will make our honor code easier to enforce and more easily understood by the students," commented Jeanine Perlin, student senate and a member of the committee which studied the honor system.

BYRD FAVORS

"I favor the proposed amendment," said Student Body Vice President Bobby Byrd, who commented on the almost unanimous number of Senators who passed the bill.

According to the newly formulated code of academic honesty, every FSU student subscribes to uphold the highest standards of academic honesty and to report to the Student Honor Court any infractions of academic honesty which come to his attention.

Academic dishonesty, as defined in the proposal, includes referring to written information not specifically condoned by the instructor during examinations; receiving written or oral information by a fellow student during examinations; plagiarism; academic dishonesty also includes stealing, buying, or referring to old tests or examination before it has been administered or assisting any of the outlined forms of dishonesty.

A student who possesses strong evidence that an offense has been committed by others not report such evidence to the Honor Court will be considered equally guilty of the academic dishonesty.

Trial procedure will be essentially the same as it has been in the past.

NO PROCTORING

According to the bill, instructors shall not remain in the room for the purpose of proctoring the exam.

Any student found guilty of violating the honor system shall, except in exceptional cases, be suspended from the university for a semester. A student convicted a second time shall be recommended for expulsion from the University.

The final section of the bill provides for the establishment of an honor system committee, composed of an equal number of faculty members and students appointed by the president of the university.

The committee shall make a continuing study of the operation and effectiveness of the honor system, keep students and faculty members informed concerning the provisions of the honor system, and make such recommendations as it may deem appropriate.

The original proposal was introduced to the Senate by Senators Ferlita, Farnell, Keene, and Powers who were appointed last summer by Acting President Milton Carothers to serve on a committee to study the present honor system and make proposed changes. Other members of the committee were Marsuono Girard, Dr. Paul Piccard, Dr. Vernon Fox, Dr. Frank Dame, Dr. Hunt, and Miss Elizabeth Lynn.

Executive Secretary Reinhart 'Returns' To FSU With SUSGA

Herb Reinhart, Executive Secretary of SUSGA, has "returned" to Florida State University for the first time since graduation.

Reinhart, director of activities at Auburn, received his bachelor's degree from FSU in January, 1957, and his master's in January, 1960.

Strangely enough, he did not participate in student government at all, but was active as student director of Sandspur, student musical comedy group. He was also a member of the Flambeau staff and of Lambda Chi Alpha social fraternity.

Reinhart stated that FSU had "really changed" in the past few years. When he was a student, only 3500 students attended FSU and there were "four girls to every boy." Most of the male students were World War II veterans, he added.

FSU has "changed considerably scholastically" and "upgraded" to the point that it has "one of the finest reputations in the South," he added

To summarize, Reinhart said that "FSU has some big time," and that "When they go into something, they go all the way."

Student Government is basically like it was then but has improved a great deal, Reinhart said. Politics was a "big thing" when he was here, he commented, but student government did not have as much support from the administration.

Reinhart concluded that "People have done a wonderful job with this conference," when it came to cooperation and planning.

He stated that FSU, in his opinion, has one of the "prettiest college campuses" he had ever seen.

Student Senate Continues Activities Budget Debate

By TONI DiCARLO
Flambeau Staff Writer

Rousing debate characterized the Student Senate meeting Wednesday as the group went into its second discussion session on the $368,782 activities budget.

After the Smoke Signals, International Students and Choral Union were tentatively approved for $4,285, $280, and $675, respectively. the funds for the annual university picnic were cut off completely and the University Symphony was cut $100 to $200 when the senators agreed to cut the entire group's banquet.

The most heated debate of the session came when a proposal was made to abolish the individual budget for Women's Senate and bring it into the general Student Government budget.

Student Body President Carl Butler commented that this would give "additional control" over the Women's Senate, but emphasized that this move would make it easier for the group to reach into the surplus funds if they should run short at the end of the year.

DISPLEASED WITH CUT

The women didn't seem to object strenuously to this, but were displeased with the $100 cut given to their department. Butler pointed out that, if they were transferred to the regular Student Government budget the Senate would have no authority to designate how much money the women would get.

However, the legislators voted to transfer the funds and then passed two bills which "designated" $800 dollars unused of the original $70 for Women's Senate.

Women's Vice President Martha Bedell, after arguing for the additional $100 for her group, was asked by Senator President Bobby Byrd whether she was arguing for or against transferring the funds to the Student Government budget She replied, "I just want to be sure we get our money."

Sen. Gerry Dobson, debating against the increase, challenged the women's need for $250 for travel expenses.

"I do not feel that the student body as a whole can derive $250 worth of benefits from having two girls attend a meeting. I just don't think it is worth it."

"I believe that Women's Senate has the discretion to control this money," was the rebuttal of Sen. Dick Hume.

Butler addressed the lady legislators saying, "I think you're being overly jealous of something that doesn't amount to a hill of beans."

The Women's Senate funds were transferred to the Student Government budget

Byrd said that he was "very disappointed" in the way the senators were handling the budgeting. He again urged them to check with the student body presidents if they have any questions about details instead of taking time on the Senate floor.

IN OTHER ACTION

Sen John Currie yielded the floor to Jeff Poland, a former FSU student, who presented a motion from the floor. The motion was to recommend that the Southern Universities Student Government Association delegation suggest that "SUSGA declares that predominantly white and predominantly Negro southern student bodies are equally eligible for admission to SUSGA."

No action was taken on the bill since it was not presented in writing to the secretary of Senate two days before the session as is specified in the Senate rules No one moved to waive the rules and consider the motion.

BOP Chooses Anthology Editor; Backs Policy Stand

A staff member since the organization of the literary anthology three years ago, Leslie Powell was elected to head the Legend '62 by the Board of Publications today.

Powell was elected by a four vote vote, defeating Penny Diehl on the post. He was on the editorial selection board of the magazine this year and assisted editor Leslie Lowell.

The immediate editor of the Florida Flambeau, Powell has also contributed to the Summer Flambeau, Smoke Signals and Tally-Ho. Previous social studies ed- tor, the editor-elect has written poetry since 1951, when he was in high school.

In other action the board ratified a decision made in special session Friday by a majority of the board, which, however, did not constitute a quorum. The members of the board present at the special session had agreed to call the attention of the tditor of The Florida Flambeau to a violation of the board's policy of prohibiting personal attacks on individuals and to write a letter of apology to Sea. John Rawls of Marianna for the breach of policy.

APPROVE ACTION

Four absent members at the Wednesday meeting voted approval of the action with Dr. Lawrence Campbell abstaining.

Chairman of the Board Nancy Henderson reported that she had acted in good faith at the earlier session, believing that Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby could vote in the absence of a quorum. She said that she had accepted the instructions of the board and mailed the apology letter the same night.

Flambeau Editor Deanna Morris protested the action of the board, saying that she had repeatedly called for a clarification of the board's policy and that she had never been told to refrain from the discussion of personalities.

She also said that she had only indirect knowledge of conferences between Florida State University President Gordon W. Blackwell and the senator last week during which the president reportedly agreed to stop personal assaults in the paper. An earlier edition of the paper she said she had not been notified.

FOLLOWING PUBLISHING

The board's action followed the publishing of a letter to the editor criticizing Sea. Rawls for his proposal to attach a rider to a bill raising student activity fees which points to have prevented the Flambeau from receiving funds from this source

The Senator had protested attacks on members of the Legislature during the last session. He also maintained that students should not be forced to subscribe to a paper which supports views points to which the majority of the student body is opposed.

Fall Classes In Westcott?

Are classes going to be scheduled for Westcott Auditorium next semester? This is a question that has begun to be asked about the campus. From long experience with the quality of rumors at FSU, we are inclined to think there is some basis for posing the question publicly.

The campus planners are unquestionably pressed for space to house regular classes, and they are up against a real nightmare when it comes to finding classrooms that can handle very large classes.

PERHAPS IT will be necessary to utilize Westcott Auditorium as a "classroom." We hope there will be an alternative. Westcott Auditorium is the one building most in the public eye. Its condition and upkeep reflect housekeeping at FSU, and the taxpayers who come here for special events will note the condition of our one decent auditorium.

It seems a risky venture to place several hundred students in Westcott under the supervision of one instructor. Within a week every chair in the area will be plastered with the initials of every organization related to the campus. Names, numbers, drawings (lewd, as often as not) and crude phrases will appear and multiply with each class meeting. The seats will deteriorate.

THE SEATING IN Westcott Auditorium is not meant for daily use of the nature that will accompany classroom work there. The seating can be expected to be cut, ripped, torn and worn through. It won't take long either, if theater seats and such are to serve as examples.

There are no windows in Westcott Auditorium. There won't be ventilation unless the air conditioning is kept on. This is expensive. In cold weather, heating will be necessary in a volume not ordinarily called for in Westcott Auditorium.

Visiting theater groups fill the stage area with props and costumes. Such items can be replaced if damaged, but not in time to forestall the closing of a performance. A few such incidents could make it difficult for FSU to obtain the calibre of entertainment that the students have come to expect.

THE LIGHTING in Westcott, that in the center section, uses 1,000 watt bulbs that cost about $13 each. Not only are these expensive to replace, but if burned under other than normally expected conditions, they burn out the sockets and wiring, necessitating further expensive rewiring.

Westcott Auditorium is used pretty much now. It, with one or two more scattered lounges and conference rooms, make up the total of meeting places into which FSU can invite the public with a sense of pride. Let's keep it that way for as long as we can.

IF SPACE DEMANDS are such that it is absolutely necessary to use Westcott Auditorium as a "classroom," then of course, we must put it to that use, but if there is any alternative, if there are other areas that have less seating but still adequate to the need that has brought Westcott to the brink of class use, then let's use that alternative.

Academics must come first, but the cultural aspects of college life must receive some consideration too. They usually get considered . . . after everything else they come first. It isn't cultural at all to have visiting dignitaries sit in Westcott Auditorium trying to watch some performance and having their attention distracted by the nude torso scratched in the back of the seat facing them. They'll wonder just what kind of classes we are holding out here.

Barber

DEAR SOPHOMORES:

You can vote twice! Your vote can be for (1) a progressive year for our Junior Class and (2) an active year for the officers you choose.

If elected, I hope to put the office of president of the Junior Class in a place where it will be a functioning and working part of our Student Government, working for and with the Junior Class.

I HOPE TO co-ordinate, not rule our class. By having a representataive from each residence, group decisions would result, not be a one-man decision. Class decisions help stimulate stronger interest in our class functions.

My past experience; President freshman class, Chairman of Judiciary and Lobby Committee, Homecoming Committee, and Smoke Signals; I feel qualifies me for this position.

Co-ordination and co-operation will be the "pass words" for our Junior Class next year.

I will sincerely appreciate your vote of confidence.

DEAR SOPHOMORES:

My name is Lisa Bagley, and I am running for the office of Sophomore Women's Senate. To make a long story short, I have the desire to hold this office, and I feel that I am qualified. I am in such organizations as Freshman Flunkies, Sophomore Council, and others. I will appreciate your suport very much, because I am anxious to serve you.

Sincerely,

DEAR FRESHMEN:

There are two basic qualifies that an efficient senator must have: ability and genuine interest.

It has been my privilege to serve as a precinct senator. I gained valuable experience as a member of the Judicial and Rules Committee which handled so many important issues. In other phases of campus life I was veep of my pledge class, worked in Freshman Flunkies, and was tapped for Sophomore Council. My grade average is 3.6 which grants me membership in Alpha Lambda Delta. This a summary of my work at FSU this term.

More than these activities, I feel my sincere desire and interest to serve as an outstanding representative of the needs and wishes of the FSU students is the most important point of my campaign. I hope my record will vouch for my ability and, even more, convey my serious concern for intelligent worthwhile student government.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

As fellow members of the class of '64, we possess a common interest in the future of our class and a mutual concern for its success. It is our responsibility to see that our class is successful and that it reaches the goals set before it. Because I desire to work in helping our class reach its goals, I am seeking the office of SOPHOMORE CLASS PRESIDENT.

I feel that my past activtles and academic record qualify me for this position. However, I believe that the most important qualification is a sincere and conscientious desire to serve. It will be my ambition to meet the responsibilities of my position with increased class interest and participation and I will work toward a unified and informed class. With the great talent and enthusiasms of our class behind its activities, it should leave a record that will long be remembered at FSU.

DEAR SOPHOMORES:

As candidate for Junior Class Senator, I hope that I may have the privilege of representing our class in student government next year. Although I do not know each of you personally, you have kindly given your support in the past, and I want to take this opportunity to thank you for this confidence.

Last summer, I served as Sophomore Councilman, which gave me experience both in Senate and on Honor Court. This year I have worked as treasurer of our class. But now, alter my experience on Summer Council, I have become very interested in Senate and feel that it is in this capacity that I can serve you best.

Sincerely,
GENE BROWN

Riggle

DEAR SOPHOMORES:

Hi! I'd like to introduce myself to you since it's you I'd like to represent and get to know better.

I'm Janet Riggle and I'm seeking the office of Sophomore Class Senator.

I am very interested in Student Government on our campus because I enjoy working with people and for them

During high school I was activa in school affairs and also served on the Student Council four years, my senior year serving as Vice President.

Here at Florida State University I am a participating member of several organizations.

From working in student government on various committees, my interest has been further stimulated and now I am asking for your support in the coming elections because I would like the opportunity of serving you and Florida State University.

Sincerely,
JANET RIGGLE

DEAR FRESHMAN:

The increasing stature of FSU requires that our student leaders meet the challenge of serving and promoting the growth of our university. We must act decisively to emphasize the important aspects of student life, and to pick carefully the projects that will make the most lasting contributions to our school.

I am requesting your support in my campaign for Sophomore Class President because I would like to work with you in meeting the challenges we face

DURING THIS YEAR I have served on the steering group for the Student Lobby Committee, as chairman of a district lobbying committee, and as chairman of a Library Sub-Committee. My other interests and activities have included circus, Wesley Foundation, and the Alpha Council.

By co-ordinating our activities with the goals and purposes of our university as a whole will insure us of doing our part in its development. Whether or not we meet our obligations will depend upon the leadership we have. I pledge myself to devote my energies, time, and talent to serving these needs if elected class president.

Sincerely,
BILL GRANT

Marler

DEAR FRESHMEN:

As you go to the polls Tuesday, I will be seeking re-election, on the strength of your support, to senate. During the past year I have had the opportunity to serve as your Freshman Class Senator, and I would now like the opportunity to serve you again as your Sophomore Class Senator.

In Senate this past year, I served on numerous committees the largest of these being the Labor Committee and Student Services Committee

I also worked on the establishment of the Freshman Advisory council for 1962, and was responsible for the introduction and passage of several bills, among which was the bill to abolish the summer Flambeau; a bill that saved the regular Flambeau money. I also worked on the bill seeking Honor Code Changes.

In addition to Senate work, I was a member of the Freshman track team, held an office in my fraternity pledge class, and was recently tapped into Alpha council, Freshman leadership honorary.

I would sincerely like to serve my class in Senate again next year. I think I can make good use of my previous Senate experience .

I wish to serve you again; if you see fit to re-elect me.

Sincerely,
DALE MARLER

FELLOW SOPHOMORES:

This Tuesday you, the Class of 1963, will choose for the coming year your President. This job, I am sure each of you agree, should be in the hands of the most interested, best qualified, and most sincere of the candidates. In appealing for your support I implore you to examine me in the light of the above qualities.

AFTER SUCH a scrutinization of past experience and personal integrity I know the name of FULLER TRESCA will be utmost in your minds.

Most of all, I ask you to trust in me and in the future. As your class president I plan to initiate several unique programs for the betterment of our class and FSU. Two of these are regular scheduled class meetings on the open discussion plan and to make improved school spirit a project and an obligation.

Thanking you for your consideration, I remain,

Yours very truly,

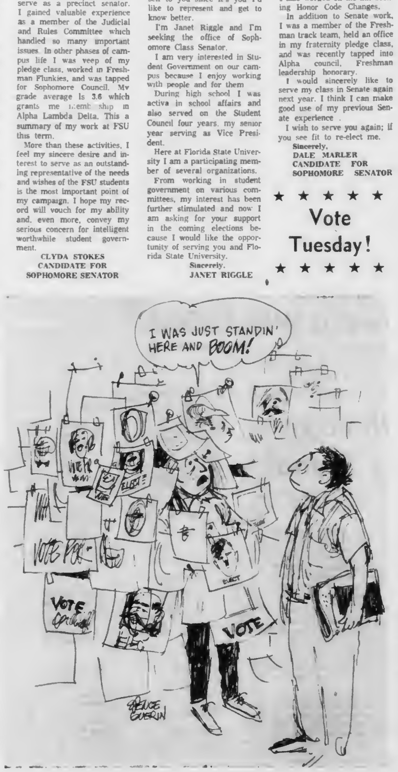
Ferlita



DEAR SOPH CLASSMATES:

It has been a pleasure to serve you as Freshman Senator and Sophomore Senator these past two years. I would appreciate your considering me for Junior Senator and giving me another opportunity to represent you.

Senate meets every Wednesday at 4:15 in Longmire. Your senators legislate bills to amend our Constitution and Statutes and resolutions to improve student services and express student opinion. Senate plays a major role in Student Government. How effective a role it plays depends on the senators. These senators are elected by you. This is why it is most important that you cast an informed vote for the candidates who have proven their ability in previous service.

I believe two years service in Senate, membership on ten Senate committees, and experience in debate qualify me to be one of your choices for Junior Senator. I hope you will Let Experience Work For You and re-elect

Letters To The Editor

'Poland Issue'

TO THE EDITOR:

In the verbal storms concerning the "Poland Issue," a more important facet has been omitted. Robert Sherman's letter to the editor fulfills this in reminding us that this is also a Poland issue. Movements concerning human values are not championed only by anthropold machinations and brain capacities, but by the very substance which each individual seeks to secure as a result of them.

The term pseudo-intellectual had a connotation which is familiar. But consider another: an Individual who is intelligent, educated and perhaps quick witted. He can out-wit (verbally, at least) his assailants, justify his cause with an historian's prowess, and overwhelm many with Joan of Arc conviction. This is the dynamic, intellectual, positive facet of the term. The other side, however, symbolizes the intellect as a tool to be used both in defense and nourishment of an ulterior want which is far stronger than the cause pursued on the surface.

When the intelligence quotient is ample and education is readily assimilated, it becomes relatively easy for a neurotic individual to separste this gift from the otherwise integral force fortifying a personal philosophy, and manipulate it as an actor mouths lines. The ramifications of this are extensive and significant in relation to the development of mankind.

The realm of name droppers has highly evolved into "well readers" and "education droppers" who become provincial sages and sometimes teachers. This makes it difficult to distinguish between superior human beings and sick, intelligent robots badly in need of an oil change. Then, in attaining a prominent position they are able to warrant ears, all kinds of ears, especially those that develop into an entourage of apperceptive, impressionable lost sheep. The results of such relationships are obvious. If a society operates simultaneously on glittering face value and a bottom plane of sickness, opposition, complacency, half-heartedness, or ambivalence it eventually crumbles.

As art is more than its medium so is man more than his brain and opposable thumb

TOM MacDONALD

Misinterperted

TO THE EDITOR:

The recent letter to the Flambeau by Phil Steeves pertaining to the Poland issue was apparently misinterpreted by a few very concerned people. One person sarcastically and without cause, tried to humiliate Steeves in a letter of opposition which was obviously uncalled for. Evidently this minority group which idealizes Poland refuses to accept the viewpoint of many fellow students, faculty members, school administrators and civil authorities.

Contrary to the implication of his opposer, Steeves letter definitely was not expressing a feeling of shame. Why should he feel ashamed to request the cessation of the unnecessary publicity of an apparent social deviant who disregards rules and regulataions?

It is about time the Poland supporters terminate their monotonous and unimpressive "adventures of Poland" reports to the student body.

Poland had his chance to prove a point, Steeves deserves the same.

ART WITTICH

At Ease

TO THE EDITOR

To put Solveig Otvos wonderings at ease: the reason for my letter of April 21, Flambeau, was not precipitated by any sense of shame. The only thing I'm ashamed of is that Poland and Steeves went to the same university

It sounds as though Solveig belongs to the rising breed of "Angry Young Americans?" Perhaps she feels dead but I can assure anyone I feel very much alive.

Now I must apologize to everyone who agrees with me on burying Jeff Poland—the issue that is. I realize the subject has been brought up again but I shall say no more about it. To me the issue is dead, the "Beats" are dead or at least sick, and I can look forward to an answer to this letter, to which there will be no reply.

PHIL STEEVES

Hollow Peace Corps

TO THE EDITOR:

As a member of the Young Peoples Socialist League, I have many criticisms of the Castro regime, ranging from criticisms of its violations of individual rights and democratic principles to its relationships with the Communist Bloc of nations. But these criticisms do not justify the subsidized attack by direct and indirect agents of American imperialism.

This armed intervention into the affairs of Cuba is merely the current example of the bankruptcy of American foreign policy. (Instead of the "peace corps" . . . and what a hollow-sounding concept that is now—we have the introduction of naked force.) Instead of attempts to present a democratic alternative in the other Latin American countries, we have this example of the bankruptcy of democracy within the Kennedy Administration.

For a long time to come, people in Latin America and people throughout the world will rightly claim: "There was no invasion supported by American funds, no training of anti-dictatorial troops on American soil, no bombs falling from American based planes while Batista was the dictator." All this points up the fact that there is no difference in the foreign policies of the "liberal" Mr. Kennedy and the "conservative" Mr. Eisenhower. It's alright (sic) if you're a dictator as long as you're our dictator.

As a socialist I condemn this invasion and the policy that supports, creates and justifies it. I demand a more democratic foreign policy for the United States. At the same time I will not allow my protest to be confused with those who are uncritical supporters of Castro.

So as to make the Socialist Party's position clear on this and other issues vital to our survival, there will be a meeting of the Young People's Socialist League (YPSL) in the Unitarian Chapel on Tuesday evening May 2nd at 8 p.m.

Track Team Faces Penn Relays

Thinclads, Netters Travel

The Florida State track and tennis teams seek wins on the road this weekend. The track team, which has completed its dual season with a 4-1 record travels to the Penn Relays, and the netters are slated to meet three foes. Mississippi State, Auburn and Alabama. The baseball and golf teams are not slated for action this weekend.

CINDERMEN EYE PENN RELAYS

Ten Florida State tracksters venture to the 67th Annual Penn Relays in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, this weekend.

The Seminoles are entered in the sprint medley relay, the mile relay, the high jump, the broad jump, the shot put, and the discus.

Quentin Till, Terry Long, Craig Johnson and Bill Davis compose the sprint medley relay team. Johnson has been high point man in three track meets this season. Davis set an FSU-Miami meet record in the 880 near the beginning of the campaign.

Tom Houston, Davis, Till, and Johnson will run the mile relay. This is the same team that set an FSU-Miami meet record this year.

High jumper from Florida State are George Smith and Steve Long, who holds the school record in this event.

Herb Kraft will perform in the broad jump. Don Ostergaard, who owns the school record in the shot put, will compete in this event and Jeff Clark will throw the discus.

Last year the Seminoles placed second in the half-mile relay in the university division and fourth in their heat of the Championship of America Division in the mile relay.

4500 athletes, representing 103 colleges, 327 secondary schools, and 13 AAU clubs, will be assembled at this track carnival. Some of the top teams are from Manhattan University, Abilene Christian, Texas, the University of Southern California, UCLA, Southern Illinois, Yale, University of Houston, Kansas, Michigan, Villanova, and Maryland.

Abilene Christian tracksters have their eyes on four relay titles—the 440, the mile, the distance medley, and the 880, which they already hold. Christian's Olympic star Earl Young will run anchor at the 440, the 880, and the mile.

Yale is the defending champion in the two mile run and the sprint medley while Michican defends the four mile and distance medley crowns.

NETTERS MEET THREE FOES

The FSU varsity Tennis team took the road for the weekend with Auburn, Mississippi State, and Alabama on slate. The Semi-noles with a 12-2 record for the season played Auburn yesterday and take on mighty Mississippi State today and Alabama tomorrow.

The Seminoles defeated the Tigers of Auburn 10 a match earlier in the season with a convincing 8-0 on the FSU courts. FSU downed Mississippi State last year in a tight 5-4 match. The Maroons' top man last year is now in the third position which indicates that they are sporting a squad with tremendous depth.

The Semmoles play Alabama tomorrow for the first time in history.

Assistant Coach Danny Holcomb said "I will be very surprised if we don't win all three matches. We may have some difficulty with the Maroons but I feel sure that we will beat them. They have several highly ranked Mexican players on their team besides several lettermen."

Rebel Bellamy, Paul Scarpa, Gorday Smith, Jamie Jamieson, Buddy McClain and Ed Fasula are those making the trip.

Frosh Baseballers Face Baby Gators

The Florida State freshman baseball team will be seeking revenge for two previous setbacks which were received last week in Gainesville at the hands of the Baby Gators when the cross-state rivals clash at Seminole Field this afternoon and Saturday.

The Baby Seminoles were scheduled to host Manatee Junior College yesterday. Danny Litwhiler was supposed to be starting pitcher for the FSU freshmen. Manatee is rated as the best junior college team in the state. Before yesterday's game the Baby Seminoles had compiled a 3-2 season record.

Slated to start on the mound for FSU are Tommy Davis in the first contest and Harold McDuffie or Marty Howell in the second game.

Leading the hitters for Florida State's freshman baseball team are Kent Skille, Woody Woodward, Paul Dirks, and Mike Passmore.

Freshman coach Pfil Hunt expressed a feeling of optimism about the outcome of the affair. The mentor stated that he believes the FSU frosh are as "good as Florida." "The first two games could've gone either way," he said, "except for mental errors."

Wrestlers Set For Tourney

Florida State has 22 men slated to enter the Jacksonville Open Tournament on Saturday.

Two teams and four independent entrnes are slated for action in the matches. The teams, which are composed of nine men each will go under the names of Florida State University and the Seminole Wrestling Club.

Many members of the squad that took first place in the Gulf Coast AAU meet over the Easter holidays will be missing from the roster.

Errull Green, Brad Monroe, Randy Treesdell, and Bob Nelums are among those who were on the Gulf Coast team. Many of the current members of the squad have been preparing for the intramural wrestling events, which are to be held soon.

A ROBE BY ANY OTHER NAME

As Commencement Day draws near, the question on everyone's lips is: "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors?" Everybody—but everybody—is asking it. I mean I haven't been able to walk ten feet on any campus in America without somebody grabs my elbow and says, "How did the different disciplines come to be marked by academic robes with hoods of different colors, hey?"

This, I must say, is not the usual question asked by collegians who grab my elbow. Usually they say, "Hey, Shorty, got a Marlboro?" And this is right and proper. After all, are they not collegians, and, therefore, the nation's leaders in intelligence and discernment? And do not intelligence and discernment demand the tastiest in tobacco flavor and smoking pleasure? And does not Marlboro deliver a flavor that is uniquely mellow, a selectrate filter that is easy drawing, a pack that is soft, a box that is hard? You know it!

But I digress. Back to the colored hoods of academic robes. A doctor of philosophy wears blue, a doctor of medicine wears green, a master of arts wears white, a doctor of humanities wears crimson, a master of library science wears lemon yellow. Why? Why, for example, should a master of library science wear lemon yellow?

Well sir, to answer this vexing question, we must go back to March 29, 1844. On that date the first public library in the United States was established by Ulric Sigafoos. All of Mr. Sigafoos's neighbors were of course wildly grateful—all, that is, except Wess Todhunter.

Mr. Todhunter had hated Mr. Sigafoos since 1822 when both men had wooed the beauteous Melanie Zitt and Melanie had chosen Mr. Sigafoos because she was mad for dancing and Mr. Sigafoos knew all the latest steps, like the Missouri Compromise Mambo, the Shay's Rebellion Schottische, and the James K. Polk Polka, while Mr. Todhunter, alas, could not dance at all owing to a wound he had received at the Battle of New Orleans. (He was struck by a falling praline.)

Consumed with jealousy at the success of Mr. Sigafoos's library, Mr. Todhunter resolved to open a competing library. This he did, but he lured not a single patron away from Mr. Sigafoos. "What has Mr. Sigafoos got that I haven't got?" Mr. Todhunter kept asking himself, and finally the answer came to him: books.

So Mr. Todhunter stocked his library with lots of dandy books and soon he was doing more business than he hadn't even. But Mr. Sigafoos struck back. To regain his clientele, he began serving tea free of charge at his library every afternoon. Thereupon, Mr. Todhunter, not to be outdone, began serving tea with sugar. Thereupon, Mr. Sigafoos began serving tea with sugar and cream. Thereupon, Mr. Todhunter began serving tea with sugar and cream and lemon.

This, of course, clinched the victory for Mr. Todhunter because he had the only lemon tree in town—in fact, in the entire state of North Dakota—and since that day lemon yellow has of course been the color on the academic robes of library science.

(Incidentally, the defeated Mr. Sigafoos packed up his library and moved to California where, alas, he failed once more. There were, to be sure, plenty of lemons to serve with his tea, but, alas, there was no cream because the cow was not introduced to California until 1821 by John Wayne.)

Gates To Be Soloist In Concerto Tonight

The University Symphony, conducted by Robert Sedore, will present a concert tonight with John Gates as solo pianist for Prokofieff's Concerto No. 3 for piano and orchestra.

The concert, ending the season for the performing group of 75 members, will be at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. There is no admission charge.

The program will open with Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C minor. The Symphony, composed in 1805, became very popular during World War II because of its "victory theme" in which the music corresponds to the telegraph code of "V" for victory.

Gates, a doctoral candidate, who is a piano student of Carlisle Floyd, will be soloist for the next number, the Prokofieff Concerto No. 3. The selection, in three movements, is one of the most widely known of Prokofieff's concertos.

Gates, before coming to FSU in 1959, studied with Oxan Marsh in Indianapolis and Nadia Boulanger and Robert Casadesus in France.

He has appeared in recitals in America, France and Germany and as soloist with the Indianapolis Symphony, the Indianapolis Philharmonic and Butler University Symphony Orchestras.

His awards include the Philips Memorial Award in piano, received in 1955, and the National Scholastic Competition Award. His previous degrees are from Butler University, Indianapolis, Ind. (Bachelor of Music, Master of Music); and American Conservatory, Fontainebleau, France (diploma, 1948).

THREE NEW MEMBERS . . . compare notes after learning they have been elected members of Phi Beta Kappa honor society by the Alpha of Florida chapter at Florida State University. They are Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, who was made an honorary member, and students Johnny McNeil and Marina Jane Wood Yancey.

motion to waive the rules of procedure and consider the bill as on its second reading was defeated. The vote was 14-13, but a two-thirds vote was required for a waiver of rules.

Several senators expressed the belief that this would re-place the 18 names on the ballot, but a spokesman for the attorney general's office said that this was not true unless the bill were made retroactive.

Senate President Bobby Byrd cast his vote against the rules waiver when the vote was believed to be tied, but an official count showed that this vote was not needed.

COURT DEBATE

During the extended debate before Honor Court Men's Vice President Marion Clark, speaking for the appeal group, labeled the expense estimate "a meaningless piece of paper." "The declaration of candidacy puts you on the ballot; the expense estimate takes you off," Clark said, arguing that this "disqualification" was not the intent of the Constitution.

"We had no choice in this case," Secretary of Elections J. P. Jones declared. The statutes clearly instruct the Elections Committee in cases of failure to turn in the estimate by the time designated by the committee to remove the candidate's name from the ballot. In other cases the punishment is left up to the committee or fines are set forth, he said.

Although there are conflicting passages on the deadline date in the statutes, the committee is empowered to establish deadlines, Butler said. Also when a candidate signs his declaration he certifies that he has read the mimeographed rules and intends to abide by them, he countered.

"Again you have to assume that your candidacy has some responsibility in running for office," he added.

The Honor Court decision said that the court rejected "the appeal on the grounds that there was no violation of the Constitution or the statutes" and " . . . on the grounds that the Secretary of Elections did not act contrary to the intent of aforementioned Constitution and statutes."

Disqualified candidates are: Patricia Ann Buerke and Sally Street, Junior Court; Douglass French, Frances Ratterree, Betsey Boote, Patricia Milton, Judiciary; Kent Wood, Senior Class president; Ernest Brown, Senior Men's Senate; Beverly Anne Calvert, Junior Class social chairman; Barbara Hornbeck, Junior Class treasurer; Sandra Shipman and Sandra Hancock, bath for Junior Class secretary; Barbara Cox, Ann De Hall, and Peggy Neil, sophomore social chairman; Susan Brookbank, Sophomore Class treasurer; and Mike Tremor, Sophomore Men's Senate.

LUCKY STRIKE PRESENTS:
DEAR DR. FROOD:
DR. FROOD'S THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: A little learning can be a dangerous thing—especially in a multiple-choice exam.

DEAR DR. FROOD: I have been training our college mascot, a goat. Ha has learned how to open a pack of Luckies, take out a cigarette, light up and smoke. Do you think I can get him on a TV show?
Animal Husbandry Major

DEAR ANIMAL: I'm afraid not. To make TV nowadays, you've got to have an act that's really different. After all, there are millions of Lucky smokers.

DEAR DR. FROOD: I have calculated that if the population explosion continues at its present rate, there will be a person for every square foot of earth by the year 2088. What do you think of that?
Statistics Major

DEAR STATISTICS: Well, one thing's sure, that will finish off the hula-hoopers—once and for all.

DEAR DR. FROOD: I am a full professor—and yet I stay awake nights worrying about my ability to teach today's bright young college students. They ask questions I can't answer. They write essays I don't understand. They use complicated words that I've never heard before. How can I possibly hope to win the respect of students who are more learned than I am?
Professor

DEAR PROFESSOR: I always maintain that nothing impresses a troublesome student like the sharp slap of a ruler across his outstretched palm.

DEAR DR. FROOD: You can tell your readers for me that college is a waste of time. My friends who didn't go to college are making good money now. And me, with my new diploma? I'm making peanuts!
Angry Grad

DEAR ANGRY: Yes, but how many of your friends can do what you can do—instantly satisfy that overpowering craving for a peanut.

DEAR DR. FROOD: Could you give a word of advice to a poor girl who, after four years at college, has failed to get herself invited on a single date?
Miss Miserable

DEAR MISS: Mask?

THE RECRUITERS ARE COMING! THE RECRUITERS ARE COMING! And here's Frood to tell you just how to handle them: These representatives of big business are, on the whole, alert fellows. They may be aware that college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular. Let them know that you know what's up—offer them a Lucky, then tap your cranium knowingly. Remember—today's Lucky smoker could be tomorrow's Chairman of the Board.

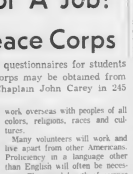
V. S. Pitzer of the University of California where Dr. Kasha received his PhD in 1945, said recently that the FSU scientist continued to make a number of outstanding contributions in the field of electronic spectra of organic substances. I believe that Dr. Kasha's work in this extremely complex hum among the top 10 or 10 individuals in the world in the field of electronic molecular spectroscopy."

COLLEGE WORK



A 46-year-old chemist began college training at the University of Michigan, where he received his bachelor's degree with honors and honors in chemistry. From then until 1945 he was a graduate student at the University of California.

In 1944 he taught beginning chemistry at the California undergraduate training programs and from 1944 to March, 1947, he served as a research chemist on the working for the Manhattan District atomic bomb project.

During the war Dr. Kasha was a research associate at the University of California.

In 1949 he was awarded an Atomic Energy Commission postdoctorate fellowship for study in the Physics Dept. of the University of Chicago, working with Robert S. Mulliken. In 1950 he was awarded a Guggenheim Memorial Fellowship and lectured in England, doing research at the University of Manchester.

Since coming to FSU in 1951 he has participated frequently in international conferences on molecular spectroscopy. Several years ago he received the $50,000 Unrestricted Venture Grant of the American Chemical Society's Petroleum Research Fund in recognition of some of his basic research

SUSGA To Hold Next Meet In Clemson, South Carolina

Clemson College, Clemson, S. C., was chosen as the site for next year's Southern Universities Student Government Association convention when the organization met at Florida State University last week.

Nearly 200 delegates, consultants and advisors attended the three day meeting at FSU. Thirty-two of the 33 member aschools sent representatives with Jacksonville University the only member school not being represented. Students from eight non-member schools also attended the convention.

Two major changes in the SUSGA by-laws were made during the meet: one permitting schools to send unlimited delegations instead of five-member delegations; the other requiring unanimous approval of member schools in a slate for admission of new schools.

FSU lost the bid for state membership for the first time in three years with the chairmanship and SUSGA vice-chairmanship going to a student from Florida Southern, Sunny Overton.

The University of Florida, Florida Southern and FSU all made nominations for the post. FSU's nominee was Lyman Fletcher. The University of Tampa, the only school which did not run a candidate, cast its vote for the U of F candidate. FSU then changed its vote, causing a tie vote and throwing the election to the executive council which settled on the Southern candidate.

FSU was fortunate in having the opportunity to favorably impress so many students from 40 different schools with our campus and student body, our Circus and all the things that make up this school of which we should be proud," Student Body President Carl Butler commented following the convention.

Senior Recital

Frank Cooper, a piano student of John Boda, will present his Senior recital at 8:15 p.m. Saturday, in Opperman Music Hall.

The program will include sonatas by Mozart and Griffes, and selections from Ravel and Debussy.

Biophysics Dept. Gets New Building

By PATTY PACHLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Construction of a building to house the FSU Institute of Molecular Biophysics will probably begin early June, and be completed in the early part of August, 1962, according to Chester Craft, assistant architect to the Board of Control.

The architectural staff of the Board of Control has given a favorable recommendation to the Board of Control on the awarding of the construction contract based on bids submitted by construction companies.

The Board of Commissioners of State Institutions, composed of the Governor and his six cabinet members, must approve awarding of the construction contract.

The Board of Commissioners is scheduled to meet today and it is anticipated that the award of the contract for construction of the entire building will be made, said Craft.

LOW BID

Apparent low bidder for the contract is the Cluter Construction Corp. of Miami Springs, with a bid of $891,400.

The building, which is to be located in the area just south of the Nuclear Research Bldg. and just west of the Education Bldg., will be brick and concrete masonry with a basement, either three or four additional floors, and total floor space between 33,000 and 40,000 square feet.

A grant of $475,000 was received from the U.S. Public Health Service last summer and matched with a like amount of money from FSU to provide funds for construction and equipping of the building.

In addition to the institute some chemistry and biology facilities will be housed in the building, according to Dr. Leland Shuttor, head of the Dept. of Biological Sciences, who negotiated with the Public Health Service for the grant.

AEC GRANT

The Institute of Molecular Biophysics was established last spring when the Atomic Energy Commission granted approximately $3 million to FSU over a seven year period, for research program in molecular biophysics.

This field of research includes several sciences, principally chemistry and biology, in what scientists describe as "The application of physical theories and methods to the study of biological problems on a molecular level."

The research program will include work on molecular structure and energetics, especially of the large complex molecules such as those of protein, the principal constituent of living things, and on the effects of radiation on genetic material and on cell division.

The first allocation of funds provided by the AEC amounted to $100,000 and has been used to purchase instruments for the research program. The purchases included an analytical centrifuge, an electron paramagnetic resonance spectrometer, and an automatic sterilizer.

Dr. Michael Kasha, chairman of the chemistry dept. and director of the institute, said experiments recently completed by scientists working under the program show how radiation energy entering a giant nucleic acid molecule migrates to the molecule's weakest part to do its damage.

During the past three months 14 scientists have visited FSU in connection with the institute. The experts in various fields of molecular research have brought FSU researchers in detailed contact with progress in the rapidly developing fields.

26 Spectacular Acts

The Show's About To Start; Tonight Under The Big Top

By SHARON GAUSE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Twenty-six spectacular acts will be icorporated into the FSU "Flying High" Circus, making its initial performances in the Home Show beginning today and running through Saturday.

One hundred and thirteen FSU students compose the troops which will perform before students as well as many parents and relatives who will be visiting the university for the annual Family Weekend.

Six FSU seniors will make their final appearance with the home show of the Circus this week as they perform under a real "Big Top" for the first time.

Four-year veteran members of the 113-member troupe are Peg Hanna, Phil Williamson, and Betty Freeman. Finching three years with circus and graduating this year are Brick Mason, JoAnn Helms, and Arti Moxon.

TICKETS LEFT

Only a few scattered reserved seats are available for Friday and Saturday night performances, and ticket offices report that general admissions are going fast.

Reserved tickets and general admission are still available for week night performances. General admission prices are $.50 for student and $1.25 for adults. Reserved tickets for students and adults are $.75 and $1.50 respectively.

A big tent, being rented for the occasion from Sarasota Circus and Bailey Circus, gives rain insurance to all, and seats approximately 3,000 spectators. Coach Jack Haskin reports that all members of the troupe are very happy with the advent of the tent for these performances. The only problem it presents, he says, is the headaches with rigging for the show.

A CBS television crew is now working at the circus lot in preparation for the televising of "Flying High" for the program Sports Spectacular, to be aired May 18. Crewmen will be filming for this show during Tuesday and Wednesday night performances.

As for the influence of the filming on the show itself, Coach Haskin reports that it may slow it up a little, but will not affect the overall continuity of the program.

SERVICE TROPHY

A special part of the show tonight and Saturday night will be the presentation of a trophy to the member of the troupe who has given the most service to the circus itself.

The trophy will be presented by Crockett Farnell, president of Kappa Alpha Order, in honor of Gil Aldridge who was a member of the Circus troupe during his four years at FSU. He was later killed when his jet plane was shot down during the Korean conflict.

The recipient of the award is elected by all Circus members on occasion from next year's experience as part of the troupe.

"Sawdust and Spangles" is the overall theme of this year's circus weekend. Decorations will soon go up all over campus in keeping with the theme and entrances will be awarded for the most outstanding of these decorations.

Other events planned for Family Weekend are: The University Singers Concert Friday night in Westcott Auditorium, and a picnic at the FSU Reservation Saturday at which entertainment will be supplied by Pershing Rifles, Angel Flight, Tarpon Club and circus clowns.

Senior Class To Hold Vote

Seniors will go to the polls today to elect permanent Senior Class officers and the outstanding senior man and woman.

The permanent president and vice-president will be elected from nominees Bernie Abbott, John Beranek, Rebet Bellamy, Carl Butler, Vic Halbach, Wally Keene and Roy Mathis.

The person receiving the highest number of votes will be declared the permanent president and the one receiving the second highest number will be the permanent vice president.

The permanent secretary and treasurer will be elected in the same manner from nominees Martha Bedell, Judy (Smith) Davis, Rita Garnett, Terri Jones, Judy McMillan, Linda Reams and Barbara Youmans.

Candidates for most outstanding senior man and woman have been nominated by a committee headed by Junior Class President Jack Ascherl.

Nominated for most outstanding senior man are Ascherl, Carl Butler, Curt Genders, Vic Halbach, Roy Mathis, Jack Ryder and Bud Whitehead.

The nominees for most outstanding woman are Martha Bedell, Mary-Jane Bone, Terri Jones, Deanna Morris, Glenda Powers, Linda Reams and Barbara Youmans.

The most outstanding senior man and woman will be announced May 20 at the Spring Formal, which is given by the other classes in honor of the seniors. A gift will be presented to the most outstanding senior man and woman.

THE TRAPEZE TRIO . . . in an unusual hand balancing feat is made up of Ivan Williams, Ted Stewart, and Steve Frasier. They will perform under the big top when the Flying High Circus of FSU presents its annual show May 3-6.

Mrs. Blackwell Invites All To A Garden Party Sunday

A garden party will be held at the home of President and Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell Sunday from 3:30 to 6 p.m.

The party is being given for all Florida State University students. Their husbands and wives are invited. Bus service will be provided all afternoon for those who wish to attend. The busses will make a loop from the Student Center to Westcott Auditorium.

Assisting the hostess, Mrs. Blackwell, will be several student organizations. These include old and new cabinet members, Gold Key, Garnet Key, Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity, Sophomore Council, and class officers.

Faculty members assisting the hostess will include deans, assistant deans and class sponsors.

Both the yard and the president's home will be open to students. In case of rain the party will be postponed until May 14.

The party is being given because there was no inauguration party in March when Dr. Blackwell became FSU's President.

Madrigal, Oratorio Singers To Present Recital Tonight

The Madrigal Singers and the Oratorio Singers, both directed by Walter James of the music faculty, will present a recital at Florida State University tonight.

The program by the two small groups of specialized singers, will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The program is open to the public. There are 11 students in the Madrigal Singers and the Oratorio Singers are made up of a seven-member class studying oratorio literature in the School of Music.

The Madrigal Singers will sing two di Lasso numbers, two selections by Arcadelt, Dowland's "Come heavy sleep," "All creatures now are merry minded" by Bennet, "O grief, even on the bud" and "Dainty, fine, sweet nymph" both by Morley.

The Oratorio Singers will perform four arias, or ensemble numbers, from the works of Bach, Handel and from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." Robin Smith will be organist.

The two groups will join in the performance of the last number on the program, selected from Haydn's "The Creation."

Members of the Madrigal Singers are Miles Williams, Martha Kinney, Barbara [illegible], Miriam Williams, Theresa Ward, Elizabeth MacGillivray, Donald Maxwell, Fred Harrison, Richard Welton and Robert Therrell.

Members of the Oratorio Singers include Sallie McSwain, Robin Smith, Michael Cohen, Fred Harrison, Judy NeSmith, Douglas Therrell and Richard Welton.

Transfers

All transfer students from junior colleges who entered Florida State University last semester as juniors are requested to attend a meeting Thursday in 320 Geology Bldg. from 4 to 5 p.m.

The subject of the meeting will be a study of junior college transfer students being conducted by the Center for the Study of Higher Education from the University of California at Berkley. FSU is one of 40 schools selected for the study.

Court Supports Statutes

By denying the appeal of the 18 legally disqualified candidates, Honor Court has demonstrated to those who would like to have it otherwise, that rules are made to be enforced.

IT IS INDEED A disgrace when the incoming attorney general can support the request that the student body Constitution and statutes be interpreted to allow an illegal action. This is the one person who will be most concerned with the interpretations of the Constitution next year, and this is one of the persons who requested that the regulations, clearly stated, be ignored because precedent has ignored them. From this action, are we to understand that next year's attorney general will interpret this document as it benefits himself or his friends?

The Honor Court decision said that the court rejected "the appeal on the grounds that there was no violation of the Constitution or the statutes" and ". . . on the grounds that the secretary of elections did not act contrary to the intent of the aforementioned Constitution and statutes."

ALL CANDIDATES, when filing for candidacy, certify, in effect, that they have read the mimeographed rules and plan to abide by them when they affix their signature to the document. Those who seek election, do so on the premise that they and their supporters consider them to be responsible and capable personalities. By their failure to turn in an expense estimate, they can have no other restriction than that provided for specifically in the statutes. Their appeal had no basis other than that of a pressure group attempting to gain favorable legislation at the expense of legality.

We commend the secretary of elections on his stand and his actions on this incident. It is too bad that the new attorney general does not see fit to be as ethical.

We Wear Blinders Again

Student Senate was responsible for publicizing the academic honor system to the students at Florida State University. Today, students are voting on that proposed system. They will be voting blind on a system of which they as a student body are virtually ignorant.

There has been time to inform the student populace of the ideas behind the system. There has time to educate the voters as to the implications of the proposal so that they could make an intelligent selection, but this has not been done. Instead, there has been a strong Senate backing of the proposal with a minimum of explanation to the student body of the grounds on which this support is based.

THERE HAVE BEEN reports that the new system, if adopted, will cover the field of academic honesty only, and then the conflicting announcement that stealing and lying will be tried by the Honor Court. There have been further amendments of the original proposal, but how many students are even aware that there have been amendments?

The honor system on this campus has suffered greatly because the majority of the student body, faculty and administration has never really known enough about it to make it effective. It has failed because the lack of understanding of its principles and the lack of adherence to its rules has not made it an intrinsic part of the academic life of each individual.

YET, TODAY, THE student body is being asked to accept a new academic honor code—one which is apparently offered in all best intentions, but one of which we know very little. If the students accept this honor code, they will be expected to be governed by it. How can they be, if they do not understand it?

An academic honor system may look quite good down in writing. It may be a good public relations factor for our administrators and student leaders to inform others that FSU has a workable honor code. But if there is no further education of the mass of the students as to the implications and objectives of this code, then the code might remain forever theoretically and ideally workable while realistically a farce.

Let's Get Serious

Not All Favor Revised Code

By GERRY DOBSON

Have you seen the little cards which say "Vote Yes for the Academic Honor Code?" Did you know that you paid for them regardless of whether you favor the new Code or not? They were purchased with Student Activity money.

THE QUESTION ARISES if It is a proper function of Student Government to campaign in this manner using money contributed by all students and not just those favoring the revised Code.

According to Carl Butler, Student Body President, it is a "legitimate function of the Honor Committee to promote the Honor System. The Committee feels that these revisions are essential to a successful Honor System."

FURTHERMORE, BUTLER points out that if the unanimous approval of those who provide Student Activity money was required, Student Government and the administration would not be able to provide for services to the student body, for few programs are favored by all students.

But a question must be raised: is it a "service" of Student Government to take sides on an issue to be voted on by the student body? It definitely is a function of the Honor Committee to publicize the revisions in the Honor Code, but does it have such a lack of faith in the judgment of the students of FSU that it must actively campaign for one side of the issue and use the students' money to do it?

IN ADDITION one may question the Honor Committee's judgment in deciding that these revisions are essential. Many believe that they are not only unessential, but they will actually do harm to our efforts to promote academic honor, while meting out far punishment to those found guilty of academic dishonesty.

First of all, under the New Honor Code, the penalties are harsher. Suspension from school is virtually assured upon conviction but nonetheless the same system of "trial" with no opportunity to meet or cross examine the accuser is in effect. If people question the fairness of Honor Court "trials" now, how will they feel when much harsher penalties are in effect?

Stealing, a "non-campus crime" is still under the new Honor System, within the jurisdiction of the Honor Court. Should the guilt or innocence of a person accused of larceny be tried in a civil court? Are not the constitutional guarantees more secure in a civil court than under Honor Court?

THE NEW HONOR Code completely overlooks or chooses to ignore the main reason our honor system has failed . . . that the students have failed to honor its provisions. If the revisions don't correct the problem, how can we consider them essential?

Finally, if passed, our new Honor Code will silence criticism of the manner in which offenses are handled here at FSU. The stock answer to criticism will be: "Why we just completely revised it and corrected the faults."

STUDENTS SHOULD consider carefully the new Code. If they feel it solves the problem, they should vote "yes". If however, they feel it does not solve, but merely slightly changes the nature of our difficulties, they should consider voting "no" and holding out for a workable code, the opinions of the Honor Committee not withstanding.

There Can Be No Doubting

By H. RICHARD BLIEDEN

In the current struggle, there can be no doubting. Either we believe in ourselves and in our cherished hopes of a free society with equal opportunity, or we as a nation shall perish. But I firmly believe that we will be victorious in this ideological struggle for the world. It all depends upon the strength of our conviction—a person's belief in a certain idea will be the greatest if at one time in his life he has believed the opposite. Only by a nurtured and careful study of all sides of an argument is it possible for an individual in a free environment to come to a lasting and firm belief.

IT IS TRUE that an individual raised in a controlled environment can be distorted into a particular mode of belief. But if he never receives a long exposure to a free environment, he will eventually begin to think for himself and rectify the warping of his old environment. Thus, the Sino-Soviet society is inherently an unstable group, trying to harness the individual by incentive motivation and thereby sowing the seeds of its own destruction. As a result, there is no reason to expect Communist ideology to replace our concept of the individual in the long run.

In a short term (perhaps for a century) it is quite possible that the world will be engulfed by the terrors of Communism. This can be successfully avoided only if we increase our military stature and actively participate in the ideological war. The latter action is the only effective means of crippling the world of Communism and its controlled environment.

PERHAPS ONE OF the most confusing aspects of a free society is the dichotomy of such a society, bearing a militant and admittedly narrow attitude, entered into a death struggle for existence. Only by temporarily imposing restrictions can a democracy expect to successfully defend the ideals it cherishes. In this sense war poses a great threat to democracy after the event as well as before, even if it has successfully defended itself. The return of normal governing procedures must be as painstakingly planned as any military operation if the society expects to continue to raise mature and independent minds. For this reason also, a democracy which must wage war for a long period of time suffers from the peril of becoming just another armed dictatorial camp itself. We must keep this idea firmly in mind when preparing for the long struggle with Communism. In particular, we must emphasize the virtues of a free society when instructing our youth. It may be some time before they succeed in the battle we have begun, and they must not forget the ideals for which we entered the struggle.

TODAY OUR WAY of life is under vicious attack from determined forces without. In spite of its broad foundations even our society is far from impervious to such an attack. At such a time, it is essential that every member demonstrate his faith in our society, in spite of its many imperfections, by making a complete commitment toward its defense. Let us all waste no time in converting these ideas into action.

All Equal, But Some More So

TO THE EDITOR:

At the recent Board of Publications meeting Flambeau editor Deanna Morris stated that she had repeatedly called for clarification of the board's policy concerning attacks on individuals.

I am happy to clarify this policy for the editor's benefit. Students and former students may be freely attacked on the basis of their personalities; they may be called such names as "social deviant," "Beat," and "neurotic." State senators and representatives and other influential persons may not be attacked, criticized, questioned, or otherwise called to account for their recommendations, proposals (legislative or otherwise) or suggestions.

Could it be that, as In Animal Farm, all are equal but some are more equal than others?

Drama Review

'The Wise In Heart'

By TONI PERRY

It is a matter of some concern to me that the authors ascribed universality of plot in Inherit The Wind was obscured by the overwhelming topicality of the question. However, the failure of most audiences to give heed to the authors' intimation that the story could happen anywhere at any time by no means weakens the play in its dramatic content. If we lack the proper sophistication to envision Brady and Drummond as a current reiteration of the classical antagonists, the play remains undeniably sufficient in itself as at least a grinding clash of philosophical viewpoint in Dayton, Tennessee, 1925.

FROM THE VIEWPOINT of the history of drama, Inherit The Wind is somewhat of a nonsequitur in that the intentional destruction of classic aesthetic distance, precipitated by the placement of the jury in the audience, and the authors' general apparent desire to assimilate audience with cast, can be interpreted as a violation of a most fundamental rule. That symbolic bridge creates a highly unique problem of direction particularly for Richard Fallon a most firm devotee of the concept of aesthetic distance. It seemed apparent that Fallon's intention was to reinterpret the jury as an utterly separate entity, and at no time allow it to impede our view of the dramatic picture.

I have the critical privilege of hailing the talents of a fine actor, the welcome arrival of two others, and the most suiddenly and gratifying appearance of a fourth. I speak of Sammy Kilman whose conception of Matthew Harrison Brady was very much in accordance with his ability as established in Juno And The Paycock. His portrayal embodied very nicely the necessary qualities of the bluff, self-assured yet strangely childlike politician, and his sincere and restrained approach to the role was commendable.

IT WAS MOST gratifying to experience the fine performances of Sam Baker as Henry Drummond and Robin Oakey-Brown as E. K. Hornbeck who rather luxuriantly redeemed themselves for relatively undistinguished previous parts. Baker, who demonstrated a most acute dramatic timing, was highly effective as he portrayed a very much less ponderous Drummond than seems to be customary. I found his "Golden Dancer" speech to be feelingly and beautifully done and certainly an outstanding point in a piece of work. Robin Brown deftly secured [illegible] through the role of [illegible] Hornbeck, the stage servant. H. L. Mencken. His creation of the cocksure sophist-phrase-turning journalist, self-styled human crank and fine characterization, complete with clacking false solent cigarette and [illegible] wit.

I welcome the fine talents of Jimmy Rayfield in the role of the persecuted saint whose finely conceived sensitive playing of a cognitively difficult role was not hampered by great physical and facial histrionics which is a trap [illegible] by many actors with much to say and few lines with which to say it.

I FEEL THAT the casting of Rachel Brown, played by Joann Gresham, was a bit too young and also that the success of the love motif was due largely to the genius of Rayfield. Although Miss Gresham's work was considerably [illegible] ing in maturity and depth, lack, however a certain [illegible] promising quality of [illegible] and involvement.

With the exception of [illegible] conducting the prayer meeting which was gripping [illegible] ed, it seemed also that the role of the Rev. Jeremiah Brown, played by Bob Hahn, was a bit young for delineation. I find him guilty of unnecessary overstatement in the first degree.

THE CONCEPT MOST fatal to the success of Inherit The Wind was not [illegible] the problem, but to designate possible methods of solution in the direction of Kilman and Baker. The degree of differentiation displayed by Kilman and Baker as the atheists seemed always to be clearly delineated.

Perhaps the most difficult single job from the point of view of interpretation was at least the character to be lightly conceived, is the disgusting son of the character of [illegible] Hornbeck displayed by Ralph Oakey. This character is far too abruptly, Kilman likes it, admirable job of [illegible] highly impossible task under tering slowly.

Questions Dog Care

TO THE EDITOR:

There was an interesting article in the Flambeau about the dogs on the Conrads building roof.

I evidently made a mistake by reporting this episode in accordance with the article "Dogs Go Coed Here For and Serve Double Purpose."

When I was waiting for a friend in front of Conrads, I heard a dog howling. Being a great love for animals, I was very curious as to the trouble this dog was having, and this same time my friend got out of class, and together we went up to the roof. There were quite a few dogs on the roof in wire cages. All of these but around five were in very poor condition. In fact one in particular was so bad off that it couldn't get up, couldn't walk, couldn't hit their heads or stand very long. They didn't move much. In one cage there was a dog that had just given birth to around six pups the day before or last evening. These in such poor condition that she couldn't possibly feed them, and she seemed to be begging us for help. Upon returning later, I found one of the pups lying on the ground dead. A Negro custodian was cleaning the cages by spraying the occupants throughout. This spraying included two opposums that were in very cramped quarters and the water sprayed forcefully in the animals' faces and against them didn't help their condition I'm sure. It also may be of interest to know that a faculty member removed the mother dog and her three pups the next morning. One of them died though; it was bleeding from the mouth.

If these animals were sick it seems all the more reason that there should be some care taken with them. For what is the use of a sick, nearly starved dog to find out how a person will react, or a reacting?

It is true that the dogs could go back and forth from one cage to another. But only the little sickly ones, and it wouldn't help them, for the big fairly good looking dogs (yet still thin) were distributed each to a cage. It was quite a sadistic riot to watch them during feeding time. And this caused "the same normal scraps and fights with each other" producing those [illegible] painful cries I had [illegible]

The food was a dry [illegible] There water was green [illegible] noted food in two cages. [illegible] was enough in one of the [illegible] for the one big dog [illegible] knocked the little thing [illegible] down that [illegible] he [illegible] it tried to get some. [illegible] The mother's cage had [illegible] other food, but no water [illegible] notice.

I have had dogs of my [illegible] and am affiliated with a [illegible] veterinarian. I've seen [illegible] sick dogs, and I know [illegible] of these were sickly [illegible] as these poor dogs. [illegible] this was the main condition objected to.

I have a few questions [illegible] were not answered in [illegible] article.

1.) I seemed to recognize a couple of the dogs from around the campus in the cages (Could they have been captured off the pound? If so, I didn't know the dog pound picked up [illegible] other food, but no water [illegible]

2.) I have been informed the fact that cats and dogs are purchased by your department. Are these specific chosen animals, or no questions asked type?

3.) Why was the door to the roof locked and only allowed [illegible] left in the cages the day [illegible] this incident?

DON GRIFFITH

Write Home!

TO THE EDITOR:

It appears to me that a [illegible] many typewriters in the [illegible] beau office have been [illegible] turning out information [illegible] what's going on in the [illegible] lature and the exodus [illegible] teachers from FSU. An informed student body is a [illegible] derful. But what about an informed voting population? I am sure that legislators will not pay much attention to rumblings among the ranks of those who do not vote. If we don't we, as students, pass the information about the [illegible] tary problems of our university along to our parents. If enough rumbling is heard among the ranks of those who do vote, perhaps some legislators will fear for next election day and take another look at FSU.

The Davis Brothers

The name of Davis will stand out like a beer sign n church steeple when the history of Florida State ersity baseball is written. There will most likely wo of them in the all-time record book.

Frank and Tommy Davis form the greatest brother duo ever ce a citadel out of the scarred pile of red soil dumped in the ge of the FSU baseball pasture. Individually, either of them probably rank with the best.

Brother Frank has already reached that distinction The ace hurler from Miami joined the Seminole circle of diamond s last year when he became the most successful pitcher in State's past in terms of victories won.

Davis passed the 16 game mark last year when he defeated Miami Hurricanes to give him a 8-3 slate for the 1961 campaign ke a victory record set by Tom Garcia who won 15 games ng a four year span. Garcia played during the era when NCAA wed an athlete to compete in varsity play during his freshyear.

Davis record was compiled over a two year span as he posted 1 strikeouts two years in succession. This year he has been ly adding to that total.

During the 1961 season, the elder brother has notched five ories against only one setback which places him second to Daniel in total games won.

Others Post Standout ERA's

Five victories is the only place where a Davis places second ds wads the teams varsity hurlers with a 2.25 earned run averhe figure that is the best indication of a pitchers prowess ho also thrown in more games (12) and completed more innthan any other Indian moundsman

Second run average is the department in which brother Tommy also. The freshman pitcher has not given up an earned in 20 successive innings.

Yeah I could do as well as he has," says Frank.

Tommy is definitely my best pitcher. He's got a lot of potential for future and throws well. His earned run average is spectafor a freshman pitcher or any one else."

The younger Davis' career has been almost bizarre Tommy e as a hitter at Gulf Coast Junior College and won the ll of five innings the JC nine threw in the towel after having brothers bombed.

In his next outing, Davis halted the Florida Gators without run earned run but lost the contest on two unearned markers.

Throwing against the Gators again, Davis picked up his second win by shutting out the Florida Frosh again.

Product Of Baseball Lineage

The Davis' are the product of a baseball lineage. Every one the family is interested in the game and the Davis men have grown it all their lives.

Frank and Tommy first learned the game from their father, was a catcher with the professional baseball team in Little York. Their older brother was a catcher during his younger days. Tommy was— and is still—a pitcher, and Frank played both ous positions.

"I started off as a catcher," says Frank, "But I broke several my fingers and shifted positions. One time when I was out with broken finger, I tried pitching. I struck out 14 batters and I've been pitching ever since."

Tommy has been pitching since he was nine years old. He began his career in the Little League throwing against batters who were close to 12. The younger Davis did alright however, making the All-Star squad at that age.

By nine, Tommy was better than the 12-year-olds in the league, his brother relates. "During his career of pitching in the Little League, the Pony League, and the post-Pony League, he went to three World Series."

Both the Davis' had outstanding high school career's. They both made the Miami All-City team two years in succession. Frank has made the American League All-Star team which toured the Americas competing with outstanding amateur squads during his high school days. Since he has spent the summer playing semi-pro nines.

Pitching Is Cooperative Affair

The Davis' view pitching a sa cooperative affair. They advise each other on the art.

"I've given him a few tips of course," says Frank. "But before my older day against Florida' I hadn't seen him pitch since high school. In fact, I didn't even see him pitch then.

"But we used to talk about pitching at Christmas and I'd tell him how to do things."

Tommy has given Frank quite a bit of good advice also The younger brother showed him how to throw a curve and Frank added the style into his repertoire. However, he still has yet to master it as well as his freshman brother.

"He showed me how to throw the curve, but I still can't do it as well as he can. I wish I could."

Both of them make good use of the curve ball, being predominately control pitchers without a lot of blazing speed. The curve ball mastered by the younger brother has helped Frank strike out 185 batters while walking only 47 in 240 innings pitched.

The control and the curve ball has paid off for both of them. Frank has already pointed the pitching elites populated by such stars as Max Long, Tony Avitable, Frank Slusser, and Tom Garcia Tommy should join him shortly.

"In this tournament there will be no pressure on the boys and Capital City Country Club but this alone should give them a their greens are slightly faster, better chance," added the golf mentor.

An example of the calibre of players that FSU is sending to the tournament is that in the two year is 15-3 which is the best warm-up last Friday the players year that the Seminoles have ever shot a total of 15 under par had in golf. The losses were two

Tommy Davis, mound whiz for the freshman tribe, eased through his 27 consecutive inning without yielding an earned run in the first game. He also contributed to his win by smashing two sizzles Mike Passmore was the most impressive Seminole at the plate with a double and two singles in four trips.

Harold McDuffie was credited with the loss on Saturday. His season mark is even at 1-1. The Baby Seminoles took a licking in the overall series mark with Florida's frosh this year by dropping three while pulling out a lone victory.

Top Seminole Cindermen Complete In Penn Relays

By VICKI WARDEN AND PAM BRAY

The Seminole tracksters competed in the 67th Annual Penn Relays in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, this past Friday and Saturday. 100 colleges, 327 secondary schools, and 15 AAU clubs were represented by 4500 athletes.

Villanova University, upsetting favored Abilene Christian in the 880-yard run and winning the 400-yard shuttle hurdles and the mile event, received top honors. The victory in the mile event was the seventh straight for the Main Line Wildcats in the Penn Relays, the nation's oldest and largest track carnival.

Florida State University guided by Coach Mike Long who led the Seminoles in their seventh straight winning season this spring with a 4-1 dual record, entered a 10-man track contingent in the mile relay, the sprint medley relay, and four field events.

In Friday's round of events, Herb Kraft, who has tied the school broad jump record at 23'3", placed 13th in his division. Jeff Clark placed 16th in the discus and Terry Long took sixth in the 440-yard low hurdles.

High-jumper George Smith captured a second place in Saturday's performance. Steve Long, owner of the high jump school record, entered in a three-way tie for third place in his specialty.

Team captain Don Ostergaard, another school record holder, took sixth in the shot.

The sprint medley relay team, compresed of Quentin Till, Craig Johnson, Terry Long and Bill Davis, came in third in their division. Johnson, being a three-time high point man this season, is one of the outstanding members of the tribe. Long almost tied the school record in the low hurdles in the FSU-LSU meet.

Mile relayers Tom Houston, Johnson, Davis, and Till took a second place. All these events were performed in divisions.

The Florida AAU meet will be held this Saturday in Gainesville. Last year the meet was held in Tallahassee, and the home team racked up a total of 80½ points to the runner-up University of Florida's 20½.

Dear Dr. Frood: I've been reading a great deal about automated teaching devices. How long will it be before they come up with machines to replace professors?
Professor

DEAR PROFESSOR: Just as soon as they get one that can rap the knuckles of a sleeping student, give humiliating answers to foolish questions and spring surprise tests whenever it happens to be in a bad mood.

Dear Dr. Frood: My problem is fat, stubby fingers. As a result, I am exceedingly awkward with my hands. My manual dexterity is so poor, in fact, that I can't even get a Lucky pack open. What can I do?
Fingers

DEAR FINGERS: Simply atrap ordinary sewing needles along both of your index fingers. Now cup the Lucky pack in your hands, grasp the little red tab in your teeth, and yank. Next, place the pack on a flat surface and secure it between two unabridged dictionaries. Then, with the right-hand needle, carefully, carefully carve a one-inch-square opening at the top right-hand corner. Finally, place the points of the needles firmly against the sides of a Lucky and lift. That's all there is to it. A word of warning though: Try to be careful when shaking hands.

Dear Dr. Frood: In the four years I've been at this college I've done some pretty horrible things. I am guilty, for instance, of [redacted] into and around the home of Professor [redacted] I'm also ashamed of [redacted] the Board of Regents, and completely [redacted] the campus police-man's [redacted] But the worst thing I did was [redacted] after hiding all night in the [redacted] Can I, in good conscience, even accept a diploma from dear old [redacted]

DEAR [redacted]: You can it you send $500 in unmarked bills to Dr. Frood, Box 2990, Grand Central Station, New York 17, N. Y. If you don't, I'll print your letter without the little black lines.

Dear Dr. Frood: Don't you think it's wrong for a boy and girl to marry while they're still in school?
Soc. Major

DEAR SOC.: Yes, they should at least wait until recess.

Where Do All The Flowers Come From?

By MARY ELLEN HARRIS
Flambeau Feature Editor

The little wheelbarrows trundle across campus, bearing their cheerful burden of freshly-cut flowers in a myriad of colors.

Students pause to sniff and admire. Miraculously, the residence halls and various meeting places on campus are filled with colorful and artistic arrangements. Just as miraculously, the little wheelbarrows disappear.

Their "hiding" place? The Florida State University Garden and Greenhouse.

According to Henry C. Martin, horticulturist and grounds supt., landscaping and maintenance is the "primary function" of which the University Gardeo is only a part. The Garden is used as a work area and as a place to grow flowers Shrubs and larger greenery are grown at the nursery located at the University Dairy.

The flowers grown in the Garden are for strict campus use only, and are used to decorate residence halls, meeting places, and for special functions, said Martin.

Plants grown at the Garden are those adapted to this particular climate. "This is a very good climatic zone for plant material," added Martin. He remarked that "nothing fancy" was grown in the garden

Martin stressed that the function of the Garden was secondary to that of maintenance of the 300 acres for which he and his crew are responsible. The crew, consisting of 40 members, landscapes and maintains all the parks, greens, residence halls, athletic fields, tennis courts, and important buildings on campus

The Garden also serves as an attractive and restful view for the residents of Dorman and Florida halls. It covers the area behind the two halls to the tennis courts and to South Woodward st

Varying with the season, assorted flowers and plants appear in neatly ordered and marked rows and beds, filling the Garden area and the greenhouse.

AN EMPTY GREENHOUSE . . . and rows of snapdragons are part of the view from Dorman hall.

A TROPICAL ATMOSPHERE . . . right on campus is found among the potted plants at University Garden.

3500 Are Expected In Summer Session

An expected 3,500 students will begin registration for the Summer Session June 17, according to Dr. Murray W. Kenna, registrar.

There will be no pre-registration this year for the summer classes, explained Dr. Kenna, because several difficulties have arisen in the system.

Classes will begin Tuesday June 20, after registration is completed Monday.

Application blanks for the summer session will be mailed early in May to all students currently attending Florida State University.

After one year at FSU during which no major changes were made in registration, Dr. Kenna plans to begin improvements which will increase the efficiency of the process.

Pre-registration will be cut down and possibly abolished due to the multiplicity of changes which occur when students register several weeks before classes open During the Spring semester 11,000 changes were made in class schedules.

Students registering for the Fall semester will probably have fewer cards to fill out, he said. Dr Kenna explained that a drastic cut will be made in the number of cards to save time for students and the registrar's office.

Students will also need an admission card to get into a class. Operating under this system students will not be able to drop a class for several weeks before realizing their mistake, he said.

"Registration is a necessary evil," Dr. Kenna said. But when his plans get under way he expects a more efficient registration system

Dr. Kenna is from Mississippi Southern in June he will have completed his first year as registrar at FSU.

FSU Students Set Record In Bed-Pushing?

Three Florida State University students, carrying the current bed-pushing fad, set a world's record this weekend for floating a bed down a river

They know it's a world's record, said spokesman Richard Derby, junior forestry major it's never been done by anyone before

With him on the 32-40 mile jaunt down the Suwannee River were Frank Forno and Dave Burnsed, Reid Hall residents.

The trio floated on a big double bed set on gallon drums from Mayo to Branford, spending Saturday night on the river.

Numerous stories of college students claiming records for pushing a bed along a highway have appeared recently in newspapers and magazines. The FSU students decided to try a river instead of a highway.

Leaving at 3 p.m. Saturday, they floated down the Suwannee and reached Branford at about 4 p.m Sunday.

Their biggest trouble, Derby said, was moving against the current when they wanted to put in to shore for the night—they took about five hours to reach the river bank and finally had to tear off parts of the raft to paddle with

It was fun, he commented, but they don't intend to try it again

Petition Is Started Here

Backers of a change in women's rules to permit women students 21 and over to live off-campus are circulating a petition for a referendum

Sponsored by the Southern Students Initiative Committee, the petition demands a student body referendum within the next three weeks on the proposed change.

The proposal is that "The Women's Senate shall recommend to the administration that women students 21 and over to be allowed to live off-campus with parental consent

The student body constitution provides that 200 students signing a petition may force a referendum on an issue, and that the results are binding on student government if 25 per cent of eligible students vote.

Coordinated by Roland W Roy Eves, the Southern Students Initiative Committee is "an informal group of FSU students who seek to take the initiative in bringing important issues directly to the student body," a spokesman said

Petitions may be returned to Eves at 632 W Pensacola St.

All parents are invited to participate in campus tours, which will begin tomorrow morning. The first tour will leave from Bryan Hall and will end at the Phi Delta Theta House for entertainment in the form of a side show. This tour will terminate at Westcott.

A second tour will begin at 10 a.m. leaving from the Student Center and will also include the side show with a campus tour.

Tickets are available at Longmire registration area, Westcott Ticket office and at the Reservation desk, for the picnic to be held noon tomorrow at the Reservation. Entertainment is planned following the picnic lunch.

Featured will be Pershing Rifles, Angel Flight, Tarpon Club, Ski Club, Circus Clowns, and an exhibition by Curt Genders, National NCAA Diving Champion.

Circus, under the big top, is the final event of the day. The "Flying High" troupe will be running two shows tomorrow night. At that time awards for outstanding campus decorations will be presented to the best sorority, fraternity, men's dorm and women's dorm. An award will also be given to that residence having the largest guest attendance.

All reserved tickets for circus for tonight and tomorrow night were sold out early this week. A few general admission tickets are still available and can be obtained at either the Westcott Ticket office or the athletic ticket office in Tully Gym.

1410-966 Vote Ratifies Honor System

Lying, Stealing Not Honor Offenses But Will Be Tried By Honor Court

The drive for revisions in the Honor System was climaxed Tuesday when the new Academic Honor System and Code was ratified by a 1,410 to 966 student vote.

Under the revised system lying and stealing will no longer be honor offenses, but will still be tried by the Honor Court which will also act as a supreme appeal court.

The revisions define academic dishonesty and make suspension for cheating almost mandatory.

Recommendations for revisions in the system were drawn-up by a faculty committee and passed with a few amendments by Student Senate.

It will probably be next Fall before the approved revisions in the system can be activated, Student Body President Carl Butler said.

In coming Chief Justice of Honor Court Dan Walbolt expressed approval of the passage of the bill but added he regretted that so many students had voted against the revisions. He said he hoped that still further refinements of the system could be made next year.

Three other Constitutional amendments also were approved by the student body president the power to remove any office in the executive department that he has appointed, passed 1,580 to 751; bill 13, changing the date of runoff elections to the Friday following the Tuesday primary passed, 1,433 to 793; bill 14, making supervisor of Traffic Court, Judiciary or Honor Court acceptable as a pre-requisite for a controller for Court justice of Honor Court, passed 1,709 to 536.

Senator McGee Talks At FCCH Conference

Sen. Gale W. McGee of Wyoming was the principal speaker at the Florida Citizenship Clearing House statewide Conference held at Florida State University Monday through Wednesday.

Over 100 student members of political unions and clubs at 19 colleges and universities in Florida studied "The Florida Legislative Process" and observed a session of the Florida Legislature.

A Democrat, Sen. McGee, defeated a Republican who never before had lost an election to win the Wyoming senatorship in 1958.

Before entering politics he taught high school and later college history as a professor of American history and chairman of the Institute of International Affairs at the University of Wyoming.

Circuit Judge Hugh Taylor spoke at a luncheon in the Suwannee Room on "The Rule of the Law."

Panels on lobbying, legislative staff services, two party politics in Florida and political unions completed the three day program.

Other speakers and panel participants were Dr. John Swanson, of the State Budget Commission staff; Dr. Ernest Means, Judicial Council Staff, David Kerns, Legislative Reference Bureau; Tom Henderson, Statutory Revision Dept.; Ralph Datillio, president of the FSU Political Union; State Reps. James T. Russell and Robert Mann, State Democratic Chairman James Milligan, State Republican Chairman Basil Lavrne, and Drs. Harmon Zeigler, Paul Piccard, Malcolm Parsons and Elston Roady of FSU.

All You Can Eat

A spaghetti dinner will be given by the Hotel and Restaurant Management Dept. Saturday in the Suwannee room.

Serving will be from 4:30 to 9 p.m. The meal will consist of a salad and all the spaghetti and garlic bread one can eat. The price is $1 per person.

The purpose of the meal is to raise funds for the annual trip to Chicago to the national hotel and restaurant convention May 22-26.

The trip will be taken by the 16 seniors in the Hotel and Restaurant Management Dept.

The students will maintain a booth at the convention displaying a large banner advertising the Florida State University.

Opera Guild Will Present 'The Marriage Of Figaro'

The cast for the forthcoming production of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro by the Opera Guild, May 19 and 20, has been announced by director Richard Fabrizio.

Lizette Keene will sung the role of Figaro, a valet to Count Almaviva. The role of the count will be sung by Thomas Teague, with Glenn Glenn and Margaret Rice portraying in the role of the countess.

Figaro's fiancee, Susanna, will be played by Patty Sue McCarty alternating with Sallie MacSwain. Ethel Donaldson and Bobbie Dalton will take the role of Cherubino, the Count's page, on alternate nights.

Others in the cast are Sharon McAllister, Marcellina; Walter Richards, Dr. Bartolo; Griffin S. Griffin, Basilio; Richard Winchell, Antonio; Judy NeSmith, Barbarina; James Haygood, Don Curzio.

SURPRISE REGISTERS . . . on the face of the young page Cherubino, played by Bobbye Davies as Count Almaviva, played by Thomas Teague discovers him hiding in a chair. The action occurs in THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO, to be performed by the University Opera Guild at FSU May 19 and 20. The countess' maid, Susanna, played by Sallie MacSwain is whose room the incident occurs, is horrified while the countess' gouging old music master, Basilio, played by Griffin S. Griffin, is amused.

Dorms Will Be Dedicated

Dedication ceremonies will be held tomorrow for West Hall, to be re-named Smith Hall, and the former Senior Hall, now known as DeGraff.

Coinciding with Family Weekend, the ceremonies are open to the public.

The co-educational graduate dorm will be dedicated at 10 a.m to the memory of the late Dr. Mark H. DeGraff, by FSU President Emeritus Doak S. Campbell.

The 11-story West Hall, men's dormitory, is to be re-named for the late Dr. Elmer Riggs Smith, head of the Mathematics Dept. for 29 years. Dr. Ralph Eyman, dean emeritus of the School of Education, will speak at the 10:30 a.m. ceremony.

NAMED LAST SPRING

The men's dorm, built eight years ago, has been unofficially known as West Hall since that time. The Board of Control voted last Spring to name it in honor of Dr. Smith but students have continued to use the old name.

The graduate dorm, built in 1950, housed undergraduates until this year.

Dr. Smith, who was also assistant coach of the 1906 football team here, received his undergraduate training at Vanderbilt University and taught in Tennessee, Arkansas and Alabama before coming here in 1903. He retired in 1942.

Dr. DeGraff received his Ph.D. from the State University of Iowa in 1925 and joined the staff of Florida State College for Women as a professor of education the same year. He later headed the Test Service and remained on the faculty until his death in 1957.

'Closed For The Duration'

If your mind goes back as far as the days of World War II, you'll remember the "Closed For The Duration" signs that dotted many localities in the nation.

"Closed For The Duration" is the attitude that is proper and good for any student arriving at FSU for a four year tenure. The moment you walk through that well known front gate, past the splashing fountain, the most healthy thing that you can do is pin that "Closed For The Duration" sign on your mind. Otherwise, you will find yourself in opposition with the views and ideas of people who are powerful and/or popular.

HERE AT FSU, IT is dangerous and foolish to challenge the modes of the hour, or of the administration. Somebody is forever out scouting with the old tape-measure, just hoping to find a new body to measure for a cross.

The "ideal" student, for his own good, will ignore everything that goes on beyond the gates of Westcott. Fortunately, we have a predominantly ideal student body.

In most universities, the ideal is to create a free atmosphere in which students may think, act and be independent. A university is considered as a place for academic growth as well as personal maturation. Here at FSU, we give lip service to this ideal. If asked, the answer is "Yes, we are free to say whatever we wish," when in reality, it must be carefully diluted so that we do not injure the University's public relations.

THERE IS NO OBVIOUS ban on thought or expression. There is no organized agency to censor, but if a less than cautious student should dare to forget this item, he will find himself smacked up against the brick wall of the higher-ups. There is no rule against what he has said, but he is made to see the unfavorable light in which he has placed the university. The fact that the student might have been right never enters the picture. What does is the impression that others—mainly the legislators and politicians—will have of our university.

As a state university, we are indebted to these men for our very means of existence. They buy our buildings, our grounds our administrators. From their actions, they indicate that they would also like to buy our professors and our minds. We want to think that they will never have enough ready cash to do this, but at FSU, this is questionable.

In order to play it safe, we had better fold up our ideas, tuck them back into our minds and flash the "Closed For The Duration" signs.

Coma Will Be Lost In 1965

B LESLIE POWELL

The time: 1965. The place: West Campus, FSU. Enter Coma: her Samurai sword rattling in cadence with the motions of the nervous samba she executes along the sidewalk.

"My the old place has changed," Coma said to herself. "The sidewalks are in lovely pastel shades and all imprinted with the names of immortals. Let's see now . . . who's made the grade at FSU's Grauman's Chinese Student Center. Um, Arnold Greenfield, Linda Reams, Carl Butler, Ben Sharp, Buck Hiles . . . goodness gracious, the names are getting closer together along here. Let's see, now, there's Nellie Brewbarf, Bucky Canon, Virginia Delavan, . . . oops! there's a little plot off to itself."

WALKING OVER TO the lonesome plot, Coma read. "Molly Kelly, Roy Mathis, Myra Morris, Alexis Demas. No comment though, not even a little sign to say why these are separate." Walking back to the sidewalk, Coma kept walking, reading more names. The names were getting much closer. "Charlotte Goodman, Joyce Combs, MaryAnneSunday Joel McNeil Arthur Godfrey Ferris Wheel MarcJvlivs JackieMathis BobbyByrdMarionClarkMygnon Champion Patty Pachler Oscar Wilde SigmaToe BenedictArnold GracieFeldsTheo . . . ," great scott," Coma sighed, "this list is endless." And then the truth came home to her. A neat little sign said: "You are about to enter Smith Hall, Male Residence. If you aren't interested in names, enter at your own risk. If you wish to see more of our celebrated student names imprinted in concrete, we have paved Landis green and that space is rapidly filling up.

"Smith Hall," Coma yelled. "I don't know no Smith Hall?" Where am I? Can't be the wrong campus . . . I think." She checked her bus ticket stub. It said Tallahassee in unmistageable block letters.

"I guess I'd better go check ya old landmarks. See if the old baseball mound is still actually a camouflsged pillbox complete with cannon."

AFTER CHECKING ON the aforementioned item, Coma searched out Westcott pool, the science building, the loose stone on the Social Welfare walk, strategic bushes and trees and a number of old friends grown to various chairs.

"Well, I guess it's just the same old story of naming buildings long after they've acquired identities. Nobody ever refers to Women's gym as anything but Women's gym and it's been named for years and years. It don't matter much nohow. It just confuses freshmen who are assigned to Smith Hall and get met with blank looks by everyone they ask for directions. I can see it now. Some little guy who's never been away from home before is out asking passersby for Smith Hall. They'll say 'Smith, Who', and then each will say 'but I don't know no Smith Hall, why don't you check the registrar's office?' The poor guy will, but the registrar's office will, after a frantic search, say for the thousandth time that day, 'but there is no Smith Hall listed in our files,' and the little guy will suffer a nervous breakdown and go home and get married and forget that he forgot to tell the passersby and the registrar's office that the Smith Hall he was searching for actually was a building.

EIGHTEEN YEARS LATER his son will come to FSU and be directed to Smith hall and each passerby he asks 'Where is Smith Hall' will retort, 'Smith Hall? Never heard of him. Why don't you ask the registrar's office?' The registrar's office will search its files, call the housing office, call the campus police, and eventually, after the little fella flips, call the fire department to bring a ladder and get the about to be ex-student down off the light globe. And why all the confusion? It would be much simpler to tag the building by the chosen name: put that name on the face of the building and then everybody will go on referring to the re-named building by the title by which it is already known. The students will never notice the difference.

Scholarships For Faculty?

TO THE EDITOR:

Flambeau's headlines of Friday, April 28, pointed out what I consider to be the most vital issue of this (or any other) year. The resignation of Dr Ernest Grunwald, and the possibility of other teachers leaving FSU, have certainly brought this issue into light, perhaps a little late, but not too late to prevent other good people from leaving.

INDUSTRIES AND other institutions are not prone to go after the "second best," obviously. To quote Dean Werner Baum, "The loss of even one per cent of certain key personnel would be calamitous to the university." So, if the state legislature cannot get the money, (which seems to be the problem), and we are "state supported," how in the land of states' rights can we do it?

Fund raising campaigns seem to be very successful. Maybe the Student Body of this school which aspires to greatness should provide a scholarship fund for the faculty! Certainly this would serve a much more useful purpose than any other secular cause that I can recall, (including residing in jail until the going gets rough!)

IN ALL SERIOUSNESS, I invite your comments, for lack of an official place at present, to me, at Box 792, FSU. There is a chance that if nothing else, we can come up with several good suggestions. Perhaps some type of meeting would be in order before the end of the semester. If the students' efforts can influence the retention of one good faculty member, our time and energy will have been well spent.

Elections Are Meaningless

TO THE EDITOR:

Last Tuesday marked again the closing scenes of FSU's recurrent student elections. I trust we may look forward to a few months of peace before the halls, walls, treees, bushes, buildings, cars, sidewalks, windows and any other convenient sessile or mobile objects animal, vegetable, or mineral are again adorned with a multitude of large and small posters bearing the likenesses of some purported worthy seeking public election to a student government post. These seemingly symbolic and meaningless elections are not only a drain on student time, money and patience, but are also a ridiculous attempt on the part of university leaders to accustom students to the so called "democratic way of life." Any one wishing to witness a perfectly humorous satire of democracy in action need venture no farther than our campus during the few weeks preceeding the election day.

I SAY ELECTIONS that are seemingly symbolic and meaningless because there does not seem to be any real power vested in our student "government." A nod from the deans here and there can send crashing down almost any of student senate's recommended changes. The posters themselves reveal nothing really informative about a person's qualifications, and the stereotyped letters that appear in the Flambeau are nothing by which to really judge a person's special merits. The reason for this is, perhaps, that there really are no special merits. One person is just about the same as another, and it really doesn't matter who wins.

The new academic honor code is another example of election foolishness. The vast majority of the student body remains practically ignorant of just what the new code represents, but they were still asked to vote on it.

I THINK A great improvement could be rendered in our election system once we realize its inherent meaningless, and the foolish waste of time and energy that is involved. A very few should be allowed to run and each with a different and definite platform and ideas. In this way the student body could familiarize itself with a person and his ideas and not allow his or her vote to be determined by the girl with the cutest face or the boy with the best looking build.

Also in this way students could indeed become much better acquainted with how a democracy operates and the principles involved in intelligent voting.

The present system of random picking on a ballot covered with strange names and offices is inherently bad and wasteful, but such has been the case with elections and electors ab origine.

Coach Denies Baseball Quote

TO THE EDITOR:

The article of May 2 by the Flambeau sports editor brings to mind that the privilege of quoting from others should receive special emphasis in that this privilege has been grossly abused by at least one individual in a supposedly responsible position.

In essence, the quotation explicitly stated that a particular freshman baseball player was definitely the best pitcher on the team. Whether or not the individual in question is definitely the best is not in question here. The question at hand is whether or not the editor received permission for this quotation. Inasmuch as the acquaintance of the editor has been made this past September, and that meeting was the last time that he was seen, it is hardly possible that he could have received permission for this quotation. Thus, the chosen words for the quotation were extrapolated from a discussion with someone else and credited to the improper authority, or the entire work was merely a figment of the editor's imagination, selected in desperation by one who has suddenly realized that it would be advantageous from a personal standpoint if he would finally hop aboard the baseball gravy train which somehow had managed to roll along all season with no boosts or comments from his influential column.

UNDOUBTEDLY, the editor is one who has not enjoyed the harmony experienced by perfect teamwork in any group sport. If he had been a part of such a group, he would have realized that his false quotation was one which no hard-working and sincere coach would ponder making even for a brief moment. There is nothing any more detrimental to the morale of a group and the individuals of this group than to state that one individual is the finest of them all. Inwardly, most athletes are fine competitors or deeply feel that they are as good in their specialty as the next man. To openly tell them that they are not as good as another is a slap in the face, thereby destroying the individual and months of work utilized in molding the group into a unified team.

If the editor had asked for a statement for this article, one would have been given gladly. However, the statement would, in effect, have been made in a complimentary manner to the individual player involved. Such a statement would have read that the player was one of the many fine prospects to play baseball at FSU during the past few years, and that he should render valuable service to the varsity next year. There is nothing detrimental to the other members of the team in such a statement.

This recent quotation was, therefore, a flagrant and inexcusable violation of the principles to which an editor should and must be given in his work. The offense is no less severe than one in which a student deliberately indulges in plagiarizing the work of another, especially since the individual knows fully the nature of his offense and the consequences to be suffered. If the individual enjoying such a position of public confidence as that of an editor can not conform to acceptable principles in his work, the office should be vacated. Too many people are subject to injury by those who willfully and knowingly use their positions to their own personal advantage.

Guest Column

The 'African Year'

By VIRGINIA DELAVAN

EDITOR'S NOTE: This column, the first of two, will deal with problems facing West Africa. Tuesday, specific recommendations for policy will be outlined.

G. Mennen Williams, undersecretary of state for African affairs, predicts that 1960 will be remembered as the "African year."

By the end of that year, he notes, 27 African countries had achieved their independence and one fourth the membership of the United Nations was African. In 1957 only nine had been independent.

THESE NEW nations, to varying degrees, are all confronted with disease, poverty and illiteracy perhaps unmatched anywhere else in the world.

Last week I attended the U.S. Naval Academy's first Conference on Foreign Affairs. The delegates — more than 100 students from American colleges and universities—spent four days thrashing out the problems of Africa and the Near East.

There wasn't much time for socializing, as we sat in round table sessions for seven hours daily. At night, in general sessions, we heard speakers representing the great interest groups which influence foreign policy: the State Department, the military, business, the Congress and the press.

MY ROUND TABLE dealt with West Africa, probably the fastest - changing area on the continent. The flux of political life in West Africa was underscored on the second day of the conference when Sierra Leone, a former British dependency, celebrated its independence.

Our problem in formulating policy for the "Western bulge" was compounded by the conference planners. Along with the relatively homogeneous grouping of the former French West Equatorial Africa, the coastal British - tutored countries, and Liberia, independent since 1847, they had included Angola and the Congo.

To any generalizations about West Africa, we were forced to add "except the Congo and Angola." The shortsightedness of Belgium and Portugal and the resulting chaos tends to obscure the pattern of peaceful evolution unfolding in West Africa.

IN THE WHOLE of Africa, a continent four times the size of the United States, live 220 million people speaking between 800 and 1,000 languages. Only 50 percent of Africa's newborn children can expect to live one year and 90 percent of the people are illiterate.

Actor Criticizes Review

TO THE EDITOR:

It is a shame that some one who obviously knows so little about theatre in general and Inherit the Wind in particular was chosen to criticize the performance presented last week. After wading through the swamp of multisylabic verbiage in the first two paragraphs I realized that Mr. Perry hadn't the foggiest notion of what he was talking about. As a bit actor who worked with the play for over a month, I would like to clarify a few things.

CONTRARY TO Mr. Perry's beliefs, the authors of the play made no provision for the jury and the rest of the townspeople to violate the tradition of aesthetic distance. Putting the jury in with the audience was director Fallon's idea and if it rubbed against the middle class notion of what theatre should be, more power to him. For Inherit the Wind was not meant to be a period piece in which all the action takes place in a little box so the audience could divorce themselves entirely from what ever implications the play has and say [...] the lobby "My, my, is th[...] the way things were back [...] those days?"

Unfortunately theatre goe[...] do not want to be troubled o[...] have seeds of discontent sow[...] in their minds. To defen[...] themselves they insist on limi[...] ing space which invariably lim[...] its time and as Thornton Wilde[...] says, the characters are a[...] dead before the action starts. Ryder, Teammates Compete In Dallas AAU Meet Today

By SAM McCALL
Flambeau Sports Writer

National NCAA tumbling champion Jack Ryder is competing in the National AAU Gymnastics Championships in Dallas, Texas today and tomorrow.

Bill Beavers, Ray Schaefer and Joe Taylor are also competing for FSU.

Ryder will be facing the same competition that he did four years at the NCAA championships in Champaign, Illinois. Marshall of Navy who was beaten by Ryder in the finals of the nationals by a mere .2 will be competing as will Tom Osterkamp of Michigan who took third in the tumbling event.

At the National NCAA meet, Ryder was tied with Osterland for preliminaries for second place with Marshall. Following these two preliminaries Ryder injured a serious knee injury in the compulsive qualifying event. He went against medical advice and continued in the other competition finals and helped a near perfect 9.0 performance which gave him the edge over Marshall.

Ryder will be competing in both trampoline and tumbling competition.

Bill Beavers who failed to qualify in the NCAA competition will be participating in the free exercise, side - horse and possibly the all-around events.

Beavers holds many regional, state and local AAU championship titles. Among these are the Florida AAU All - around champion, Mardi Gras All - around champion, the SIGL All - around and free - exercise champion plus the Georgia AAU All - around, free - exercise, side - horse, and parallel bars titles. He has been among the top contenders for the National free - exercise championship for several years.

Freshman Ray Schaefer will compete in free-exercise, parallel bars and side - horse events. Joe Taylor, former national champion in the still-rings event, will be competing in this category and possibly the side-horse competition.

Coach Joe Gusic who accompanied the group said "I expect Jack to duplicate his final performance at the Nationals and possibly better it. I feel sure that FSU is certain to gain another national title through him this week-end. Bill Beavers has mended rather well from several minor injuries and could very well add another feather to our cap.

"I expect a good showing from Schaefer even though this is his first time in national competition. Incidentally the funds for this trip came from general funds of the University and not the Athletic Department or Gymkana."

Also from FSU will be Tumbling Tot Director Bob May and two of his top tumblers and trampolinists, Kitty Grubbs and Sharon Lawson.

Kitty Grubbs swept the novice, junior and senior women's division on the recent Florida AAU and Sharon Lawson took all the second places behind her. The tots and their director were invited to give several exhibitions for the NAAU meet.

Wrestlers Cop Second Trophy

Florida State's Wrestling Club copped the Jacksonville Y.M.C.A. Amateur Wrestling Tournament held in the Jacksonville YMCA. Top amateur wrestlers from Florida and Georgia competed in the tournament which was conducted under NCAA rules and AAU regulations.

Florida State's team entry scored 35 team points to win the second team trophy in the multi - tournaments.

In addition to the team trophy four FSU grapplers returned with individual trophies and one copped the outstanding Wrestler award. Bold Berringer, Florida State 157 lbs. entry, won the outstanding wrestler award and individual champions were Bob Walker, 123 lbs., Orval Greene, 130 lbs., Brad Turner, 137 lbs. and Budd Berringer, 167 lbs.

Florida State's tennis team: (l-r) kneeling, Ed Fasula, Don Loop, Paul Scarpa, Gordy Smith; standing, Jamie Jamelson, Buddy McClain, Don Monk, Rebel Bellamy.

In Last Home Baseball Stand

Tribe Hosts Ga. Southern

By BILL VERIGAN
Assistant Sports Editor

Florida State's baseball team will be seeking two more scalps to add to its collection when it meets the Georgia Southern nine, already a two-time loser to the Seminoles this season, in the last scheduled home event on Monday and Tuesday.

In his previous meetings of the two foes this season Georgia Southern was downed by the tribe twice, 6-4 and 9-1. Tribe batters punched out 23 hits to back up the pitching of Jim Daniel and Frank Davis. These two hurlers are the only pitchers who have definitely been setting their last action in Florida State's white and garnet uniforms since they both have senior status on the baseball team.

Davis is the owner of the school strikeout record, and has been the leading FSU hurler by pitching in 12 games and yielding an earned run average of only 2.40, the best of any starter.

Daniels is Florida State's most victorious pitcher for the campaign with six wins and one loss for an .857 percentage. He has struck out 31 batters to lead in the department this season.

DULL LEADS

Two infielders, an outfielder, and a relief pitcher will also be making their last home appearances at FSU. The infielders, Jack Dull and Doug Walker, have been regular performers for Coach Litwhiler all season. Dull has the team's leading batting average at .363 and is a top candidate for All-American second base honors. Walker has been the regular first baseman for Florida and is currently hitting at a .341 clip.

Outfielder Neil Martin is also a top batter for the Seminoles with a .336 average. Jerry Turner, a relief pitcher with a 1-1 season mark, may be seeing his last action at Seminole Field.

Martin, Walker, and Dull have been the leading batsmen for FSU all season. Dull leads his teammates in seven departments, runs, hits, doubles, home runs, total bases, runs batted in, and batting average. Martin has gained more walks than anyone on the team, and Walker has smashed six triples, a Florida State record.

The tribe is currently ranked in the number eight spot nationally by Collegiate Baseball newspaper, and is solidly favored by that publication to not only get an NAA bid but to go all the way to the College World Series.

Cindermen Go To AAU Meet

The Florida AAU track meet convenes this Saturday in Gainesville with three teams vying for the state championship — Florida State, Miami, and The University of Florida. Other scattered entries will also be present.

Florida State copped the meet last year in Tallahassee for its third consecutive Florida AAU track championship. The Seminoles racked up a total of 65½ points to runner - up Florida's 38¾.

Outstanding Seminoles performing in that meet were Bill Welch and Don Ostergaard Welch, then a sophomore, set an FSU mark in the 120 hurdles. Don Ostergaard added almost two inches to the previous AAU record in the shot putt with a heave of 59-5¾. Ostergaard has bettered the mark in several performances this season.

The tribe will enter 15 events. Heavies scoring will probably be made in the shot putt, the high jump, the mile relay, the low hurdles, the broad jump, the 100 and the 440.

Freshman tracksters will also compete in the meet. In last year's meet, the FSU team took an early lead, but lost it to the University of Florida.

Coach Mike Long says, "If the boys are as anxious to win as I am, they will win."

Apology Due

Coach Pill Hunt deserves an apology for the misquotation appearing in last week's sports column. The coach says that he does not wish to single out one individual from his team as the column stated but rather to emphasize that many players, including Tommy Davis, have the potential to end the varsity next year. He feels that singling out an individual is bad for team morale.

The quotation was not meant maliciously but only to point up the recognized ability of the individual. However we retract this statement apologetically.

Mighty Miami Invades FSU Net Courts Today

The mighty Hurricanes of Miami, sporting an 88 consecutive win streak, invade the Seminole tennis courts tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. to do battle with the Tribe netters.

The 'Canes sporting several nationally - ranked players in both singles and doubles defeated the Tribe earlier in the season on the Miami home courts, 7 - 2. The 'Canes coached by internationally famous Dale Lewis have played brilliantly under his tutelage and have not lost a single match since his coming.

John Sheppard, captain and number one man, is nationally-ranked and has been in the top spot for the Hurricanes for two years. John Karabasz, the number two man, is a former Junior Davis Cup member, is presently number one in Florida, and also holds a national ranking.

Roger McCormick in the third slot is presently undefeated for the season and also holds a national rank. Hugh Quinn holds down the fourth position as well as a national ranking higher than his teammates.

Bob Bossong, most valuable player for the 'Canes last year, was carrying a 48 game win streak into the FSU game earlier in the season but Gordy Smith broke it in a three - set match.

Jay Kovler a Miami product has only been playing tennis for four years but is an excellent player and considered a superior doubles man.

The Seminoles dropped their third match of the season to Florida in a tight 6-3 battle in Gainesville. FSU took three singles matches but went cold in the doubles and lost all three. Paul Scarpa soundly trounced nationally - ranked Bill Tym with a 6-1, 6-0 in the number two spot and lost a hard fought 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, Scarpa - Fasula to Hay - Surloff 6-4, 6-4. McClain - Jamieson to Cullinane - Shaya 6-3, 6-4.

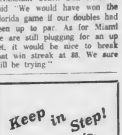
Assistant Coach Dan Holcomb said "We would have won the Florida game if our doubles had been up to par. As for Miami we are still plugging for an upset, it would be nice to break that win streak at 88. We sure will be trying."

Results of the match are as follows:

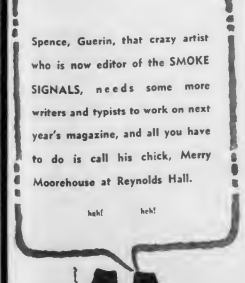
Bellamy-Smith to Shaffer-Tym 6-2, 4-6, 6-3. Scarpa - Fasula to Hay - Surloff 6-4, 6-4. McClain - Jamieson to Cullinane - Shaya 6-3, 6-4.

Budd McClain avenged a previous loss to Mike Cullinane 6-2, 6-4. Jamie Jamieson trimmed Fred Shaya with a convincing 6-2, 6-2.

In the number on singles event Rebel Bellamy took his third loss of the season, and his second from nationally - ranked Jim Shaffer in a hard fought 6-2, 9-7 battle.



Regionally - ranked Morrill Hay of Florida got revenge for Gordy Smith's previous upset in Tallahassee and broke Smith's consecutive win streak of 16, as he defeated him 9-7, 6-3. Ed Fasula lost his singles to Art Surloff 6-3, 6-4.



In the doubles FSU could not get started and lost as follows: Bellamy-Smith to Shaffer-Tym 6-2, 4-6, 6-3. Scarpa - Fasula to Hay - Surloff 6-4, 6-4. McClain - Jamieson to Cullinane - Shaya 6-3, 6-4.

Kilenyi Student Is Named Winner

A second piano student of Florida State University Prof. Edward Kilenyi has been declared national winner in contests for students and young artists conducted every two years by the National Federation of Music Clubs.

William Alton has won the NFMC award as best pianist in the contest for Young Artists. Acting Dean Owen Sellers of the School of Music said. He will receive $1,000 in prize money and the opportunity to give a recital in New York's Town Hall and play with major orchestras.

Recently another Kilenyi student, 19-year-old sophomore Ruth Anne Rich, was given the award in the nationwide contest for students.

Miss Rich presently is studying under Kilenyi and Alton studied with him for five years, getting his master's degree here in 1960. He is presently on the faculty of Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

In the contest for students there is one national award for all musicians, in the young artists contest, there are separate awards for piano, strings and voice.

"This is the first time to my knowledge that two students of the same teacher have won these distinguished national awards in the same year," said Sellers in making the announcement.

Kilenyi, who has taught piano on the faculty here since 1953, is himself a well known concert pianist. A native of Philadelphia, Kilenyi is the son of a musician and teacher who counted George Gershwin among his pupils. At 11 the son went to Budapest at the invitation of the late Ernst von Dohnanyi, who supervised his musical education.

Dohnanyi took him on a concert tour and Kilenyi became known widely in European music halls before returning to his native U.S., where he has given numerous recitals and has played with the New York Philharmonic, Philadelphia Symphony and Minneapolis Symphony, among others.

In Opperman

Tushingham To Give University Lecture

"Samarkand and Isfahan" will be the subject of Dr. A. D. Tushingham in a University Lecture Series at 8:15 tonight in Opperman Music Hall.

Dr. Tushingham is the head of the Art and Archeology Division of the Royal Ontario Museum and has served as director of the American School of Oriental Research when the excavations were made of the Dead Sea Scroll caves.

In his address tonight, Dr. Tushingham will describe directions and sites in Central Asia and Iran that he visited last summer following attendance at the International Congress of Orientalists in Moscow. His lecture will be illustrated by colored slides.

Dr. Gulnar Bosch, head of the FSU Art Dept. who also attended the meeting in Moscow, reports that these photographs are some of the few to come out of that area in recent years, since the Russians are doing all the excavating there now.

The meeting in Moscow was the first time that the sites and excavations had been opened up to anyone from the West. Dr. Tushingham went on an extended picture-taking tour under escort by Russian archaeologists.

A native Canadian and graduate of the University of Toronto, Dr. Tushingham received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago and has been either director or assistant director in excavations at New Testament Jericho, Old Testament Jericho, Dhiban (Transjordan) and the Dead Sea Scroll caves.

He has been active in planning, supporting and collaborating on expeditions in Jordan, Iraq and British Honduras. He is an elected fellow of the Society of Antiquaries and is now a member of the University of Toronto faculty.

Activity Sheets

Activity record sheets for all women day students may be picked up in the Director's office in Longmire. These sheets should be completed and returned by 5 p.m. Thursday to that office.

The record sheets will be used as a source of information in recommending students for employment and by all tapping organizations in selecting their members.

Smoke Signals

The Spring edition of Smoke Signals, featuring the "Spring feature girls," will be distributed tomorrow.

Ellen Wiggins, Francine Millsaver and Margaret Lawrence are the three featured co-eds.

Students may receive their copy of Smoke Signals upon presentation of their I.D. cards or they may be purchased for $.25 per copy.

The Smoke Signals will contain a pictorial feature depicting the activities of the busy schedule of the student body president.

Only two short stories will appear in this issue, said Editor Bill McLemore, because of the poor quality of some of the stories submitted.

The authors of both short stories are juniors. They are Sharon Downing and Don Dugi.

Spence Guerin, who has been selected as next year's editor of the Smoke Signals, produced the cover for the issue.

Humor is dominant in the issue, which contains many jokes and cartoons.

Time For Pennies

Attention all penny-savers—the semi-annual Penny-A-Minute Night sponsored by Mortar Board is to be held Friday.

All co-eds may stay out until 1:30 a.m. that night at the price of one cent per extra minute after the regular closing hours of 12:30.

To take advantage of this privilege co-eds must sing up before leaving their dorm or sorority house that night. The proceeds from Penny-A-Minute Night usually are placed in a scholarship given by Mortar Board.

New Course Is Instituted

"Government And Science" Topic

What would have happened in 1945 if the government had spent the $2½ billion on something else instead of the atom bomb?

Questions such as this are discussed in a new course, "Government and Science," which has been introduced into the Florida State University curriculum.

This course is designed to meet the numerous questions that have arisen since World War II concerning the impact of science on government and the reciprocal effect of government on science.

Following a seminar approach, five students working with Dr. Paul J. Piccard, associate professor, have chosen five topics to study this semester.

The topics are McCarthyism and science, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, science and warfare, government and medicine—and nuclear arms testing.

Each student selected a topic for a term paper, and class discussion is centered on the research students have done on their particular topic. As Dr. Piccard put it, "The students become acquainted with all of the problems and they become 'experts' in their chosen field."

FUTURE TOPICS

While in the future topics for this course will be selected according to students' interests and background, the emphasis will continue to be placed upon the reciprocating influence of government and science on each other.

Although the course is new in the curriculum, the idea of government - science relationship is not new to discussion. Dr. Piccard said. C. P. Snow, an English writer, has recently written a book, "Science and Government." A noted political scientist has expressed his concern in a series of published lectures, "Science and Public Administration."

The issue is a very real one, according to Dr. Piecard, because science's innovations are reaching a level above society's ability to cope with these advances.

Science through discoveries such as the atomic bomb and the polio vaccine has tremendous impact on government, he declared.

Dr. Blackwell does not believe it would be wise to change to the new system until the student body and professors become more familiar with the regulations under the new system. He said that orientation of the student body and professors should take place early next fall.

Gil Aldridge Trophy

Peg Hannah Is First Coed To Receive Circus Award

Trapeze Star Peg Hannah became the first coed circus performer to win the Gil Aldridge Trophy, given annually to the four-year member contributing most to the Flying High Circus.

One of six participants in the most spectacular act of the circus, she received the award during the Home Show last week.

The first six winners of the trophy were male performers. The award, donated by Kappa Alpha Order in memory of a former circus performer, is given to a member selected by students who have been in circus more than a year.

A champion diver in high school, Miss Hannah found her basic skills applied to aerial acrobatics. She joined the circus soon after entering FSU in 1957.

Her featured act is a tumbling somersault and a half, which she performs with another coed, Dorothy Gilmore: two male flyers, Mark Garrett and Arlunn Catarzi; and two catchers, Bill Arnold and Ivan Williams.

Miss Hannah also was in two other trapeze acts and a unicycle-riding act.

A physical education major, she will receive her bachelor's degree in June and plans to teach in junior and senior high school.

This summer she and 10 other circus performers will conduct a recreational program for 10 weeks at Ida Cason Callaway Gardens, Pine Mountain, Ga.

Films of the circus are also shown on the hour-long CBS-TV Sports Spectacular program at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

PRETTY PEG HANNAH . . . smiles proudly as she receives the Gil Aldridge Trophy awarded annually to the member of the Florida State University Circus who has contributed most to the organization which this week is having its Home Show. Coach Jack Haskin, who started the Circus several years ago and is in charge of it now, congratulates her on becoming the first coed to receive the trophy, which heretofore has gone to men performers.

Wright Is Soloist Tonight

Thomas Wright, associate professor of music, will be featured soloist in a concert by the Tallahassee Symphony Assn. at 8:15 tonight in Leon High School Auditorium.

A specialist in the interpretation of Gershwin Music, the pianist will perform the "Three Preludes" and "Rhapsody in Blue" by Gershwin.

Tickets are on sale at local music stores, the Tallahassee Academy of Music and Westcott Ticket Office at $1.50 for adults, $1 for FSU students and $.75 for students through high school.

The symphony, under the direction of Ralph Rosenburg, will also perform Offenbach's Overture to Orpheus in the Underworld and Handel's Concerto Grosso in F.

Wright is widely known for his Gershwin Festival concerts in which he performs all the major piano works of Gershwin in one evening. This will be his only presentation of Gershwin in the area this year.

Before coming to Tallahassee, he was featured on several weekly television shows has appeared with leading symphony orchestras and did musical work with the motion picture industry in Hollywood.

He is director of radio and television instruction at FSU and is host of a weekly series, Music Hall, which features the Music School faculty and students.

Tally-Ho

A meeting of Tally-Ho staff members to plan delivery of the yearbook will be held at 5 p.m. Thursday in the Tally-Ho office, Editor Harriet L'Engle announced.

For Cuba: The Kookaburra

Hee Hee Hee Haw. Our suggestion for a suitable emblem for the "New" Cuba is the Kookaburra, with appropriate apologies to Australia, the home of that innocent creature.

Our reasons for suggesting the Kookaburra are contained in its physical makeup. Characteristics of the "Kookie Burro" that might be most fitting to the standards of Fidelity Castro are its rather unusual bray which incorporates the most renowned feature of the hyena, and the stripes on the Kookaburra's hide, somewhat similar to those of the Zebra.

THIS MELANGE OF physical attributes seems particularly fitting when applied to the Castro menage. All these things take on a symbolic significance when superimposed on the broad face of the bearded one's playpen.

The stripes could easily come to mean the thousands of men and women rounded up and imprisoned by the Cuban Communists. The mad braying would be familiar to people around the world. That hyena like quality would be pathetic if it didn't have the hollow sound of empty words that have traveled a long, long way . . . as far, say, as from the Kremlin walls. The hysterical heehaw echoing around the Caribbean incorporates the lunacy of the hyena with the volume of the jackass.

HI-FI-CASTRO FINDS this handy combination most useful in his interrogation of the prisoners from the abortive effort to liberate Cuba from the Castro estate.

Undoubtedly he received his recent Russian Peace Prize as an equivalent to the Oscar. Nobody has given a better performance on the international stage in quite a long time. We are a little confused though: we hitherto have been under the impression that only live actors received histrionic awards. Mortimer Snerd never got an Oscar.

The giggle could be a monumental marker to the cupidity of the Soviets as they gave their latest puppet the "Peace" award. Now the question to be answered is just which piece was the award given for? The biggest piece of Cuba, or the first piece of the Western Hemisphere?

POOR FIDEL. He hasn't realized yet that once Khrushchev and his board of directors take over the company, they'll get all the pieces and all the prizes. Chances are pretty good that when Fido has served his usefulness that he'll be left without even so much as a pretty ribbon for his pride and joy.

Blinders are the hazard of every wild mule snared by those who wish to domesticate and use him. We think Fidel sat up and begged for blinders, and we think he got them.

Circus Proves Its Ability

THE MEMBERS OF THE circus under the big top for the first time, has provided some of the best entertainment and good public relations that FSU has enjoyed for quite a while.

THE MEMBERS OF THE circus troupe are to be highly commended on their splendid performance. They are also to be praised for the abundance of spirit and ability that they have demonstrated. For a student group to perform in such a professional manner in itself is an unusual occurence on the FSU campus. Other organizations would do well to adopt some of the high standards of excellence that the circus members have set for themselves. After all, circus is as much an extracurricular activity as student government, the court system, publications or dormitory work.

Apparently, the members of Flying High have learned that they will get out of circus exactly what they put into it. We hope that this spirited and capable group will continue to work toward the excellence that it has shown. It seems to have set for itself, and that it will serve as a positive stimulant to other organizations to improve their own effectiveness.

Classroom 'Police' Bow In

By LESLIE POWELL

In the 1930 depression days, the Hearst newspaper syndicate sent reporters into various colleges to enroll as students, go into the classrooms and bull, discreetly of course. Instructors into saying something that could be construed as un-American.

Nothing much came of this except that the professors turned the tables and proceeded to interview the reporters. As far as I know, nothing the reporters said to the profs was ever printed or even worth printing.

NOW A PRIVATE investigating agency is claiming to have planted agents in the classrooms of a number of colleges in order to nip sociopolitic what it terms "controversial" professors. This agency, according to the Cowles Magazines, Inc. Newsletter, has actually contacted several college presidents advising them that a number of other schools are using their employees and find that the practice is both "beneficial and informative."

The joy of the operation is in the fact that the "students" employed by the professional snooper group attend classes, report to the agency, which in turn analyzes and reports to the administration of the client university. Sooner or later some university with a bit of grit left in his craw is going to ask what makes the agency evaluation valid? And is the agency prepared to replace such instructors who take jobs in colleges removed from those employing classroom spies . . . Innocent professors who are controversial, but can't continue to teach or be associated with institution that feels it must police the classroom.

The "troublemaking" professors, according to the agency "invariably" turn up in Philosophy, Psychology, English, Literature, Biology, History, Government, Journalism, Speech, Drama and Religion classrooms. Apparently the founders of the agency in question either never knew or have forgotten that the departments so named are by the very nature of their studies, controversial departments.

I can't see why any institution supposedly out to offer an education to students, would be interested in spending money on classroom spies deducted in nothing but another dollar at the price of someone's reputation. If colleges find it necessary to police the classrooms and pay for it, then let them employ students, who need part time work. One thing for sure, only the most popular, the most noodle-headed, the lax and the lazy would retain their jobs. And at that, the students would be just as capable of a valid judgment of what was "controversial" as any hokum Sherlock who punches a timeclock with a very thin veneer of patriotic zeal.

THIS IS ONE of the most disgusting bits of hucksterring that ever loitered into the stacks. If the universities of this country are so weak in every respect that they have to stoop to outhouse tactics in regard to a professor's lecture in the classroom, then we'd better just close the existing institutions under and start over.

Not only does this extraordinary detective service offer to keep an undergraduate eye on the professors, but it will keep an eye out for trouble among the kitchen help and the janitors. It seems that for a fee its employees will do anything and associate with anybody. You know darn well such upstanding, outstanding, well trained, literate, smart and tasteful persons as undoubtedly are employed by this perversion of democracy ordinarily wouldn't be caught dead fraternizing with all us poor slobs who like to imagine that this is still a free country. They happen to know, with reason, that freedom is on the way out. Apparently, like the deacon's "one hoss shay," it'll just fall apart one day, all at once, due to extensive internal wear and tear.

'I Protest' Says Guest

TO THE EDITOR:

If attended a party Saturday evening (April 29) made up of approximately the same students and faculty with whom I have spent my leisure time during the past three years as a student at FSU. Some of these people hold more or less social views, some more liberal, and some even relatively radical.

MOST OF U.S. rather than comprising a well-defined group, tend towards individualism in our personal attitudes—steering clear of overt or our opinions distorted by generalized expressions and impressions inherent in group identification.

This rather ungroup-like group, composed of undergraduate students, graduate students, and some faculty, with many nationalities represented usually gravitates—in part—to a different location about once a week for a social function. Over the course of these parties, it is my experience of gathering with these people, the most serious difficulty I have had to overcome is the apparent reluctance to come to suggest that the music might be a little quieter. Moreover among the people with conception of a student party I think this is a rather clean record.

SATURDAY EVENING, however, an officer came to our door with the intention of advising us that the music was too loud. But when he noticed that there were some Florida A&M students present he decided it was worthy of notifying his lieutenant.

I was standing on the porch with another student when the lieutenant arrived. He walked to the door, looked into the well-lighted home, turned and said, "Get hold of Dean Loucks and Brewer and ask if they want to see a bunch of nigers and white people mixed up together."

It is admirable for the lieutenant to be so intellectually orientated that he wished to talk over with a university dean, what he considered a very unique social phenomenon a man conversing with another man who was not the same color.

I AM AFRAID, however, that the lieutenant was not motivated by a desire for enlightenment. He seemed to actually think that the Dean should tell mature American men and women, as well as many very puzzled foreign students, that the Tallahassee Police Force must determine whether or not a person can be your friend or come into your home.

I am from the south and have many friends who are segregationists but the lieutenant is the first man I have ever met who apparently thinks the determination of whom you can have in your home lies within the realm of police authority.

NO MAN IN HIS right mind, whether segregationist, integrationist, or indifferent, could endorse the action of a police lieutenant who, under poorly veiled legal pretexts, comes into a family's home and orders their presence out. This was done with a policeman circling the house so that everyone was herded through one door and made to present their identification cards.

Lieutenant, I work hard, work every day, pay taxes, and obey the law. As far as your job is concerned, citizens owe you nothing more than your salary—you owe the citizenry nothing more than your protection. Don't police my social conscience.

I have interest in and respect for your personal opinions, as well as your choice of friends. Your zealous concern with mine, while flattering, seems somewhat excessive. You should bear in mind that, in this country, my opinions and choice of friends are not police business.

'I Apologize' Says Host

TO MY FRIENDS AND FELLOW INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS.

I want to thank all of my friends from the various nations of the world who attended the party held in my home Saturday night, April 29.

BUT I APOLOGIZE to you for being unable to bid you goodnight as a host should.

I also wish to apologize to you for the intrusion of Lt. Billie Bennet of the Tallahassee Police Dept. and Dean Loucks of Florida State University, whose presence resulted in you being held prisoner in my home. I wish to impress upon you, especially you students, who are visiting this nation, that the detainment without charges was not legal by the laws of our nation. The search of my home by Officer Stallworth was also illegal and violated the American Constitution. The fact that these actions occurred does not make them legal, but makes them even more reprehensible.

THE FACT THAT students of all nationalities and colors are welcome in my home evidently aroused these men to their extra-legal actions. The fact that no charges were made is proof enough that our courts will not support segregation in the home, or in the mind.

I hope that you will forgive Lt. Bennet and Dean Loucks for their part in this unfortunate affair. They are merely actors in a passion play which will continue for a few more years before the actors bow off stage—sans encore.

Your Friend,
BILL TROTTS

Chief Justice Chides Critic

I have a policy that I will never debate with critics. However, Mr. Baer's interesting letter on the Honor Court aroused quite a bit of curiosity in me.

First, I wondered who he was and where he received his information. I am assuming Mr. Baer does not accept heresay as truth!

Second I was concerned how Mr. Baer concluded that the accused violator of our Honor System is not informed that he acts as his own defense (Student Body Statutes,) or that the court has ever denied the defendant the right to present witnesses in his behalf.

Third, where did Mr. Baer find evidence that Honor Court has ever expelled anyone? The court's highest penalty is suspension where the student may re-apply to the University, and is used only on proven thieves and habitual violators!

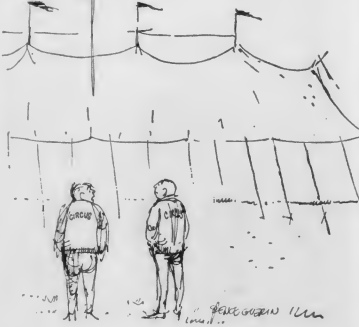
Flathmann Desires To 'Serve'



FELLOW FRESHMEN:

Today you will be selecting those whom you wish to serve your class for the coming year. It is your responsibility to elect the students who will make the caliber of decisions that will not only keep FSU on top, but will continue to push her ahead. It is my sole desire to serve you as Sophomore Class Secretary. In order for any person to serve successfully in student government, he must possess the ability, take the initiative, and have the will to work.

Since ability is gained through experience, I sincerely hope you will take into account my following qualifications: Secretary of High School organizations, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Student Senate Relations Committee, and the Dean's List. My interest also include Jr. Panhellenic Association, Village Vamps, Sophomore Council, Freshman Flunkies, and the Circus.

Thank you for your consideration and confidence as shown in last Tuesday's elections. You can rest assured that if given the opportunity, I will work so that my actions may always serve to justify the confidence placed in me.

Very Sincerely,

What We Want For West Africa

By VIRGINIA DELAVAN

Editor's Note: This is the second of two columns on West Africa. Miss Delavan draws on her experience as a delegate to the Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference last month in making the following recommendations for U. S. policy in West Africa.

"What we want for Africa," President Kennedy has said, "is what Africans want for themselves."

My round table group tailored its recommendations for West Africa to Mr. Kennedy's philosophy.

The element of national interest in foreign policy cannot be denied, of course. But we believed that our own best interests can only be served by directing aid to the self-determined needs and desires of West Africa.

THE UNITED STATES did not have—or need — a policy toward West Africa until the advent of the independence movement in this decade. Our allies, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Portugal, were in control both politically and monetarily.

An exception was Liberia, which was established in the name of the American Colonial Society in 1822, by an American Negro freedman. Liberia has remained close to the United States since its declared independence of the Society in 1847.

"Although Liberia's dependence on the United States and American business has diminished, more than half her external trade is still carried on with the U. S. In 1950 the two countries concluded a general agreement on technical assistance.

LIBERIA IS THE only black African country which has signed a defense agreement with the U. S. Sierra Leone, which achieved independence on April 27, has expressed a desire to sign an agreement with Great Britain.

It is significant that these two countries are the only ones which anticipate formal military commitments to the West—or East. The heritage of Western domination has left West Africa culturally and philosophically attuned to the West. But, with the two exceptions noted, West Africa is firmly committed to neutrality, or as Ghana's Nkrumah has phrased it, "positive neutralism."

This means that West African nations do not want involvement in an arms race and believe that alliance with either camp would compromise their independence. Representatives of both the Ghanaian and Liberian embassies told our round table that West Africa hopes to use its influence to mediate cold war tensions.

SEN. FRANK CHURCH, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declared that: "Genuine neutrals can be a useful balance wheel in world becomes more and more polarized."

Africans are naturally preoccupied with their own tribal problems: disease, agricultural narrowness, lack of education, tribalism, rudimentary transportation and communications systems, and the language barriers.

With these factors in mind, what should our role in West Africa be?

I will quote recommendations from our round-table discussions. These considerations were the core of our discussion. We should not impose our will on Africa. (2) We, as an anti-privileged nation, have a obligation to give and when it is needed; (3) We should reinforce our own traditional freedom which have made African independence movements.

POLITICAL POLICY

"The United States respects the integrity of all independent West African countries and their right to choose their own forms of government."

Our group recognized the absence of a boundary between West Africa for true democratic government. Government by the governed—majority man rule— will be a reality only until this foundation is laid. Even then, democracy is not to know it may not be adaptable to the African environment.

"The United States supports wholeheartedly the United Nations effort in the Congo to establish a government representative of all factions free from the domination of any foreign power."

This recommendation is already given support to a policy which the United States has professed since the early days of the U. N. operation in the Congo—unqualified support for U. N. measures.

"The United States urges that the colonial powers promote their remaining territories for self-government as soon as possible. This country will adopt a program designed to ease the difficult transition of metropolitan-colonial relationships. Portugal ensuing of the independence of Angola."

PORTUGAL'S SALAZAR unilaterally declared Angola independence for Angola. But Salazar is not the sole entity in control of Portugal's policy. The African diplomats who spoke to us expressed dissatisfaction that our speeches and votes in the U. N. regarding Angola have implemented such a rationale.

Recognizing the desire of Africans for information about the United States and hoping to counteract misleading propaganda (especially the U. S. racial issue) we recommended that "The U. S. I. A. should expand its operations in West Africa in the following ways:

(1) Improve the quality of the American films distributed; (2) Make available more literature in the major languages of the area; (3) Emphasize the steady improvement of America's race relations; (4) Accelerate completion and consider expansion of the Voice of America Station in West Africa (Liberia.)"

Tribe Thinclads Grab Fla. AAU Title

The Florida State Seminole tracksters captured their fourth consecutive State AAU championship Saturday in Gainesville.

This meet saw one record tied and five broken, two by the hustling tribe members.

The Seminoles, winning six events, racked up 54½ points. Miami finished second with 42 points. Other scores were the Atlanta Striders, 26; Florida, 17; and the Tallahassee Athletic Club, one. Florida State had previously appeared in dual meets with Miami and with Florida, winning both by wide margins—102-29 for the FSU-Miami meet and 104 1-3 - 30 1-3 for the Florida meet.

TILL SHINES

Chief Seminole for the day was Quentin Till one of four double winners. His wins were taken in the 440 with a 48.1 timing and a member of the mile relay team. He also tied for first in the 220 with a 21.4 clocking.

Joining Till in the mile relay event were Tom Houston, Craig Johnson, and Bill Davis. This quadruplet set a new time of 3:19.6. Johnson has been high point man in several meets this season.

Team captain Don Ostergaard topped his own Florida AAU record in the shot putt with a heave of 51-7¾. Ostergaard also holds the school record for this same event at the 54-5½ notch

LONG WINS

Winning the low hurdles on the curve with a time of 23.6 was Seminole Terry Long, the holder of several meet, school, and track records. Terry's best performance this season and any previous season was in the FSU-Florida meet in which he established new meet, school, and FSU track records in the 220 low hurdles.

Other winners for Florida State were Dave Ellis in the high hurdles (15.0) and Herb Krall in the broad jump (23'4"). Krall has tied the school broad jump record of 23-3½ twice this season.

George Smith, who placed second to unattached Henry Wadsworth in the high jump, set a new school record at the 6-6 mark. This record was previously held by the older Long brother, Steve. Steve tied for third in this same event with Tom Bourne of the Tallahassee Athletic Club.

DAVIS PLACES

Bill Davis, who set a new FSU-Miami meet record in his specialty, and Jack Brocksmith were second and third respectively in the 880.

Craig Johnson came in fourth in the 220. Jeff Clark was third in the discus, and Kent Mills, owner of the Florida State school record in the two mile run, finished third in his event.

No Rivalry Exists

Dead and buried is a bill which might have killed Florida State University athletic program if it had been passed.

The Turlington Bill, a measure introduced by Rep. Ralph Turlington of Alachua County, would have used money provided for state scholarships by the Race Track Fund as matching money for National Defense Education Act loans.

These particular loans are provided by the federal government to college students but the Act demands that the institution receiving the loans must match federal money with their own cash. The funds of these scholarships are aimed at helping future scientists and engineers.

There is no error arose in press about the relative value of college athletics versus college academics with state newspapers coming out strongly in favor of the latter. Charles Miner, of Hendry County, made an unfortunate remark about the state needing more "jack" and which was understatingly scoffed at by the press. The error did nothing but perpetrate a misconception.

The choice was clearly between academics and athletics in which case few would advocate that sports replace studies. This would thoroughly incongruous with the basic aims of higher education but was not the question.

There was already in the funds of the university enough funds through the NDEA loans. "The President assured me," said Bursar Director Vaughn Mancha, "there was enough money in the fund of the university to assure us of having the matching money. It came to a choice of how the universities money was going to be used, we'd agree that the money should go to academics first." However, if the bill had passed, money from the race track fund would have had to be certified that it was being used as matching money. This would have taken the entire sum of money out of the athletic budget and given them nothing with which to operate while the funds were available to take care of the matching.

Athletics Put In Bad Light

Mancha feels that even though no money was taken away that action were hurt.

"It makes me feel badly that people are blaming football as though it were in competition with academics. It's not. People think that we are taking away money for academics but we are not. We are awarding financial aid to people who have particular talent in one area. It's just like the band. They give aid to those who are good in that.

"We are not ashamed of giving financial aid but it's a shame that people speak of "aid to athletics" with such a bad connotation. We're not athletes in a bad light."

Mancha feels that some people in the academic world are afraid to anything in the curriculum which is not liberal arts. Some of these people point out with disgust that at Florida State "nothing get credit for clowning." Too these are the people who don't look at the whole picture and see that these subjects do not have academics but supplement them.

It is unfortunate that rivalries between athletics and academics have to be stirred when no such rivalry exists.

Cane Netters Swamp FSU Winning 9-0

The Hurricanes of Miami invaded the FSU varsity courts Saturday and extended their consecutive win streak to 89 as they handed the Seminoles a 9-0 defeat.

The loss to the Canes was the worst for FSU in two seasons. Earlier in the season Miami stopped the Tribe netters 7-2. This is the fourth defeat of the season for the Seminoles.

In the singles, Rebel Bellamy lost to nationally-ranked John Skogstad 6-3, 6-4. Paul Scarpa lost a hard-fought three-set match to nationally-ranked John Garabasz 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. Gordy Smith lost his third of the season as nationally-ranked Roger McCormick downed him 6-3, 6-1. Jamie Jamieson in the four spot lost to nationally-ranked Hugh Quinn 6-2 6-1. Buddy McClain dropped his fifth position match to Bob Bossong 6-2, 6-2, and Ed Fasula lost to Jay Kovler 7-5, 6-1.

In the doubles matches the FSU netters played "their best of the season" according to Assistant Coach Dan Holcomb. Bellamy-Smith went thirty-two games in two sets before losing to Skogstad-McCormick 10-8, 8-6. Scarpa-Fasula played thirty-nine games in three sets before being defeated by Karabasz-Bossong 6-4, 1-6, 12-10. McClain-Jamieson lost to Kovler-Quinn 6-3, 6-2.

The Seminoles netters now stand 15-4 for the season. They wind up the '61 season this week when they take on the Maroons of Mississippi State and the Tars of Rollins. The match with the Maroons is at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

FSU Shut Out In National Gym Meet

The FSU Gymnastics contingent failed to place in the NAAU Gymnastics meet in Dallas last week end.

The Japanese Olympic Gymnastics team who won the Olympics competed in the meet and took all places one through six in the preliminaries in the international events to edge out American competitors for the final round.

Southern Illinois sporting two former FSU gymnasts was one of the few American teams to put anyone in the finals. Due to the ineligibility of the Japanese team to win the team title Southern Illinois took the team championship.

FSU's chances were hurt badly before they left for the meet when Jack Ryder, national tumbling champion, was ordered not to compete by his doctor. He was advised that strenuous activity could result in permanent damage to his wrists and unlike previous times Ryder obeyed and did not participate in the meet.

Bill Beevers, Ray Schaefer and Joe Taylor competed in the preliminaries but were eliminated by the Japanese from entry into the finals. According to Coach Joe Gusic the boys did real well and could have been in the finals except for the meet-sweeping Japanese competitors.

The Gymkana squad will compete with FSU Gymnastic Team Alumni this Saturday night at Tully Gymnasium.

Baseball Seminoles Close Successful Season Today

By BILL VERGAN
Assistant Sports Editor

The Florida State baseball team, which has been idle for more than two weeks, finishes its successful 1961 season against the Georgia Southern Eagles today.

The game, the second of a two-game series, will start at 3:30 p.m.

The FSU nine bounced the Eagles twice earlier in the season to take a 20-3 margin in the over-all series between the two teams. The double header resulted in scores of 6-4 and 8-1.

Expected starting pitcher in yesterday's contest was Jim Daniel, and Frank Davis or Ray McShane are slated to see mound action today.

The Seminoles are the number eight team nationally, the best position of any nine east of the Mississippi River. Sporting an outstanding 19-5 record, the club is virtually guaranteed a berth in the regional NCAA playoffs at Gastonia, North Carolina next month. FSU has landed the at-large invitation for four of the last five years and managed to go all the way to the College World Series one year.

Baseball Coach Dusty Litwhiler does not credit his team's impressive showing to any particular brilliant star and relies heavily on team spirit and team play to crop victories." Litwhiler claims that "balance is the trademark of this team" and readily praises the players as the best group he has coached during his stint at Florida State.

The Seminoles have not found a team that they couldn't beat as they have knocked off every one of their opponents at least once. The tribe has posted wins against Georgia, Auburn, Navy, Duke, North Carolina, Florida, Western Michigan, Florida Southern, and Miami.

Six seniors, Jerry Turner, Nell Martin, Jim Daniel, Frank Davis, Doug Walker, and Jack Dull, will be seen for the last time at Seminole Field. These men have been sparkplugs for the Seminole baseball team during their college careers.

Dull has been singled out as "the best second baseman I've seen in college baseball, according to Litwhiler. After 24 games this season, Dull leads his teammates in runs (24), hits (33), doubles (5), home runs (4), total bases (50), runs-batted-in (22), and batting average (.363).

Daniel, Davis, and Turner have accounted for 12 wins and three losses among them as pitchers. Daniel is FSU's leading winner on the mound with a 6-1 record and has the most strikeouts with 51. Davis holds the career strikeout record for the Seminoles and has the lowest earned run average of any starter at 2.49. Turner, who has seen action mainly in a relief role this years, owns a 3-1 record.

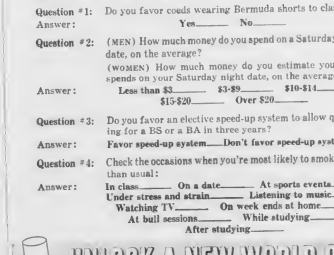
You're needed...just as your father and grandfather were. It's an obligation that a lot of qualified college men have to meet...that of serving your country, when and where you are needed.

And the Air Force needs college-trained men as officers. This is caused by the rapidly expanding technology that goes with hypersonic air and space flight. Your four years of college have equipped you to handle complex jobs. You have the potential to profit from advanced training...then put it to work.

There are several ways to become an officer.



First there is Air Force ROTC. Another program, relatively new, is Officer Training School. Here the Air Force commissions certain college graduates, both men and women, after three months' training. The navigator training program enables you to win a flying rating and a commission. And, of course, there's the Air Force Academy.

An Air Force officer's starting salary averages out to about what you could expect as a civilian. First there's your base pay. Then add on such things as tax-free rations and quarters allowances, free medical and dental care, retirement provisions, perhaps flight pay, and 30 days' vacation per year. It comes to an attractive figure. One thing more. As an officer, you will become eligible for the Air Force Institute of Technology. While on active duty many officers will win graduate degrees at Air Force expense.

Why not contact your local Air Force Recruiter. Or write to Officer Career Information, Dept. SC15, Box 7608, Washington 4, D.C., if you want further information about the navigator training or Officer Training School programs.

Senate Lauds Old Officers

Bobby Byrd

Marianna Girtman

In the closing minutes of the 1960 - 61 Senate, Ken Vansenderp, president-elect, took the chair to direct the passage of a resolution commending the outgoing Senate President Bobby Byrd for "a job well done."

When Byrd protested his ovation, claiming, "Marianna helped me," van Assenderp cut short the applause so that the next resolution, one commending Marianna Girtman, outgoing Secretary of Senate, could be read.

After both resolutions had been read, the applause given, and Byrd and Miss Girtman had left, Sen. Chet Addair rose to point out that in their enthusiasm the senators had forgotten to vote on the measures.

Both resolutions were then passed unanimously.

Senate cleaned house Wednesday as the 1960-61 student legislature held its last session of the year.

Final committee reports were read, summarized or submitted in writing as the odds and ends were wrapped up for the final records.

Several resolutions, including the one for opening classroom buildings at night and the proposed changing of the physical education grade system were tabled for reconsideration by next year's Senate.

Sen. Mygon Champion was the lone dissenter when Senate approved the appropriation of $13,000 per year for a swimming pool. She stated her objection to what she called "the exorbitant amount" of money to be spent on the pool.

After 20 minutes of discussion on whether or not to waive the rules to consider the motion as on the second reading and therefore eligible for passage, Senate finally passed an act which states that "All funds unappropriated or unspent remaining from the University Activities at the end of each fiscal year, shall be deposited over to the Surplus Funds Commission to be deposited in a account called University Activities Reserve."

In regard to this bill, Sen. Champion commented, "Senate should have learned a lesson from last year about passing legislation in a hurry at the end of its session."

A resolution was also passed to request that the surplus funds from the 1960 - 61 University Activities budget, which are now under the jurisdiction of the Board of Students be turned over to the Surplus Funds Commission as they will be in the future.

The bill to delete the preliminary expense estimates from the requirements for candidates was passed. The bill was introduced before the May 2 election but the Senate voted down a request to waive the rules of procedure in order to pass the measure prior to the election.

Then in a special session of Honor Court men's vice president Marion Clark asked the court to move Secretary of Elections J. P. Jones's decision to remove from the ballot 18 candidates who failed to turn in the preliminary expense estimates on time. The court upheld the secretary's action.

The passage of the bill, according to Sen. Thurman Talley, may cause the Senate to "lose face," but he added that he was supporting the bill.

The consensus of the student legislators seemed to be that, since the preliminary expense estimate is not binding on the candidates in any way, and since the final expense account would still be required, there was no real need for the controversial piece of paper.

The Senate appropriations committee voted Florida State University an increase of $815,000 over the budget commission recommendation this week while the House group considered making faculty raises contingent on adoption of the trimester plan.

The Senate group approved budgets for state universities Monday but had not yet submitted its recommendations to the full Senate.

The $815,000 increase, bringing the total FSU budget to $19,339,- 000 is still short of the original amount requested by FSU and the Board of Control. President Gordon Blackwell said.

However, he was very hopeful that the House appropriations committee would agree with the Senate group, he added.

The sum above the budget commission proposal would allow about $625,000 more for faculty salaries, $64,000 more for maintenance, and $100,000 more for operating capital outlay, the president said.

HODGES' PLEA

The Senate committee, headed by Leon County Sen. Wilson Carraway, overrode recommendations in spite of a plea by Senate President Randolph Hodges to operate without new taxes.

Hodges urged the committee to keep within the $750 million revenue from current taxes estimated by Comptroller Ray E. Green.

Sen. Carraway reportedly said the group was drafting a bill to meet the minimum needs of state government, regardless of whether it was within estimates of revenues from existing taxes.

The committee approved $28.07 million for the University of Florida, an increase of $820,000 over the budget commission recommendation.

Florida A & M was voted $6,- 687,000, an increase of $102,000 and the University of South Florida $6,795,000, a raise of $750,- 000.

Meanwhile the House appropriations committee, headed by Rep. J. J. Griffin, was discussing making sharply increased work loads a condition for faculty pay raises.

Salary increases averaging 12 per cent might be granted on condition that the universities in stall the trimester system or year-round instruction by fall, 1962, the chairman said

Rep. Griffin said this would mean greater productivity by university teaching staffs and help meet the growing demand from students for higher education.

A Board of Control study of the trimester plan is expected to be completed by January, according to Dr. Myron Blee, educational and research officer.

While the system might be more economical in the long-run, it would definitely require a larger appropriation for the next biennium, Dr. Blee said.

"This isn't an opportunity to save money but to make the money we are using serve more people," he commented. By keeping the universities operating year-round, the state would be able to educate more students without expanding the present institutions or building new ones.

THREE FULL TERMS

The trimester plan would mean running three full terms a year about equal to the current regular semester, instead of two full semesters and a short summer session.

A sample schedule, Dr. Blee said, would be first term, Sept. 5 to Dec. 22; second, Jan. 4 to mid-April; third, April 23-Aug. 10. Each section would run 75-78 school days with short holidays at Christmas and in spring and a longer holiday in late summer.

The third trimester might be partially composed of half - sections, the summer half scheduled to fill the place of summer school for public school teachers.

Unresolved questions in the study include time needed for exam schedules, pre-registration, and record keeping, Dr. Blee said.

The system would not necessarily mean that all students would go three terms each year nor that all professors would teach year-round, he explained.

A student could drop out for one semester at any time and return the next term, but instead of the majority taking a vacation in summer, some might prefer to stay out another term.

BIG QUESTION

The big question, Dr. Blee felt, is whether students would want to go year-round — meaning they could receive a bachelor's degree in two and two-thirds years. This would have an advantage especially for professions requiring long periods of study such as medicine, law, and college teaching. "We think we have an increased desire in students to accelerate their programs," he commented.

While students would not be expected to go year-round, the growing number of students demanding admission to college much supply pressure in that direction, he said

The problem of how students would fund up under such an intensive program has not yet been carefully studied, Dr. Blee said.

Another unsettled question is compensation of faculty members, since they might be teaching every term, he added.

Although the trimester plan anticipates an increased appropriation for operation with 10-15 years the extent of savings from reduced expansion might off-set the increase, he said.

The BOC study was begun with the decision — whether to go on the trimester plan or stay with the old system — intended to apply in the 1962-64 biennium.

The new system is in use at the University of Pittsburgh, but has not operated long enough to determine its real effects, Dr. Blee commented.

Figaro' Tickets Will Go On Sale Today

Tickets for the May 19 and 20 Opera Guild performances of The Marriage of [illegible] will go on sale today at Westcott ticket office.

Tickets for students are $.75 [illegible] an activity book coupon; [illegible] tickets are $1.25. The lower [illegible] have been set to introduce [illegible] comers to the Mozart opera. [illegible] Director Richard Collins said.

The opera will be presented in [illegible] both nights at 8:15 in [illegible] Auditorium.

The eternal triangle is the central theme of the opera.

The triangle consists of Susanna and Figaro, two servants of the Count, who wish to get married, and the Count who has his eye on Susanna does everything in his power to prevent the marriage. Naturally, the Countess is anxious for Susanna to get married so the Count will quit chasing her. The result is a royal battle of wits between the Counters, Susanna, Figaro, and the Count.

According to Collins, "There is more action in this comedy than in any other opera I have directed."

Figaro, the central figure of the story, is played by Lonne Keene, a graduate student, who has performed other opera roles including Marcello in La Boheme and Guglielmo in Cosi fan Tutte. The Count, Figaro's rival is played by Thomas Teague.

Susanna, Figaro's lover, is played by Patty Sue McCarty. Friday, and Sally McSwain, Saturday night.

Miss McCarty, also a graduate student, played Polly in the Beggar's Opera; Musetta in La Boheme; and she shared another double casting with Miss Mc Swain as Despina in Cosi fan Tutte.

Two other parts in the opera are doubly cast. Cherubino will be played by Bobbie Davies on Friday, and Ethel Donaldson on Saturday. The Countess will be Margaret Rice, Friday, and Carolyn Glenn, Saturday.

The tradition of double casting usually qualified performers originated in the Metropolitan Opera, Collins said. It is an added [illegible] from an university since it gives more students opera experience.

Speaker Discusses Islamic Civilization

By PATTY PACHLER
Flambeau Staff Writer

The history of the Islamic civilization and the development of its architecture was outlined by Dr. A. D. Tushingham, head of the Royal Ontario Museum Division of Art and Archaeology, in an illustrated lecture on archaeological sites in Central Asia and Iran Tuesday.

Colored slides of preserved buildings in Samarkand and Isfahan, taken by the archaeologist on a trip following attendance at the International Congress of Orientalists in Moscow last summer, were used to illustrate the distinctive features of Islamic art.

The speaker was sponsored by the University Lecture Series.

Islamic art developed in two ways, said Dr. Tushingham. In the west building was influenced by the Greco-Roman architecture as found in the Byzantine tradition. The square minaret and round dome are characteristic of Western Islamic art, continued Dr. Tushingham.

In the east the Persian tradition developed. Brick was used instead of wood and stone for construction of the buildings. Cylindrical minarets, great portals,

Number Of Highlights Set For June Graduates

By ROLAND WILKINSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

A number of events highlight the next few weeks left for students who expect to graduate June 3, including the Spring Formal, Class Night, president's reception and the conferring of degrees.

"Sayonara" will be the theme of the annual Spring Formal honoring graduating semors. Couples will dance to the music of the Tex Beneke Orchestra from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m., May 20, in Tully Gym.

Beneke took over the Glenn Miller Orchestra upon Miller's death. His hits include "The Chattanooga Choo-choo."

The theme "Sayonara", meaning goodbye in Japanese, is a farewell for the departing seniors.

All graduating seniors will receive invitations to the dance, which is free to them. Underclassmen will be charged $2 per couple. Tickets go on sale in Wescott Monday.

OUTSTANDING SENIORS

The outstanding senior man and woman will be announced at the dance and will be presented a plaque.

Jack Ascherl, president of the Junior Class, is in charge of dance arrangements. The Junior Class will handle all publicity, invitations, and organizational work.

Numbered invitatoions will be mailed to all underclassmen Those receiving "lucky" numbers will be admitted free. Lucky numbers are 25, 74, 190, 244, 570, 700, 902, 1210 1328, and 2000.

Anyone receiving an invitation with one of these numbers on it must turn it in at the Social Director Marie Williams' affice in the Tex Beneke Orchestra from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m., May 20, in Tully Gym.

Class Night will take place in Westcott, May 23, at 7:30 p.m.

GAVEL EXCHANGE

The Senior Class president will present the gavel to the Junior Class president during this program.

Another highlight is the announcement of permanent officers for the class of 1961.

The reading of the class history and the exchange of mortar boards will complete the program.

Senior cadets in Reserve Officer Training Corps will receive their commissions as second lieutenants at 10:30 a.m., June 2, in Opperman Music Hall.

Rehearsal for the graduation ceremony will be held at 1:30 p.m. on graduation day, June 3.

President and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell have planned a reception from 3 until 4:30 the same afternoon. The reception is for all seniors and their families and will be held at the president's home.

Degrees will be awarded to approximately 1,000 students at the graduation ceremony at 7:30 p.m. June 3 at Doak Campbell Stadium.

Discover New Method

FSU Scientists Separate Isotopes

Florida State University scientists have announced the discovery of a method of separating isotopes of carbon by ion-exchange—a method which could extend the effectiveness of radiocarbon dating to 100,000 years.

The idea for using the ion-exchange process to separate carbon isotopes occurred to Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, professor of chemistry and physics, while he was on leave at the Institute for Theoretical Physics at Copenhagen in 1955 - 56.

On returning to FSU he sought the advice and help of fellow faculty members and students, including Dr. Charles Mann, assistant professor of chemistry, who has developed some refined techniques in ion - exchange.

They formed a research team with graduate student Charles Davidson. Results of their work are being reported in the May issue of the Journal of the American Chemical Society.

One of the beauties of the new process, they say, is that it is so simple; but a drawback, so far as carbon - 14 dating is concerned, is that vast quantities of the material to be dated are needed if the process is to be carried back much farther than is now possible.

DATES, TOMBS, BIBLES

Carbon - 14 dating, developed by Nobel prize - winner Willard Libby, has been used to date the tombs of the Pharaohs, ancient Indian sandals, margins of old Bibles and many archaeological specimens. With the techniques Libby developed it is possible to go back 30,000 to 45,000 years.

The new process can extend this to 100,000, but Dr. Sheline said one thousand times the quantity of the material needed for the Libby process will be necessary. Quantity may not be a problem when the dating involves such materials as peat beds.

Carbon - 14 is useful in dating because all living things accumulate it during their lifetime and after their death the Carbon-14 begins to decay at a predictable speed.

Plants take the Carbon - 14 in the form of carbon dioxide, which is changed to sugars and starches, and animals obtain it by eating the plants.

Carbon - 14 has been used to date the retreat of the ice cap some 11,000 years ago but when the age of the material is too great there is so little Carbon-14 present that even the most sensitive detectors techniques are not sensitive enough to reveal the age.

LESSER QUANTITIES

The new technique has the virtue of being able to retrieve lesser quantities of the Carbon-14 and concentrate it for measurement. Another application is the separation of Carbon - 13, a rare isotope which has special uses in studying molecular structure.

The scientists now are working to refine procedures and make them more quantitative.

THIS RESEARCH TEAM . . . at FSU has come up with a discovery which could extend the effectiveness of radio-carbon dating to 100,000 years. The researchers have found a method of separating isotopes of carbon by ion-exchange, using ion exchange column and fraction collector shown in background. From left are Charles Davidson, a graduate student, Dr. Raymond K. Sheline, professor of chemistry and physics; and Dr. Charles Mann, assistant professor of chemistry.

Dr Sheline, a member of the faculty since 1951, spent three years at the institute, which is operated by Nils and Aage Bohr, well known atomic scientists.

Dr. Mann who came to FSU in 1958 from the University of Texas, has been interested in ion-exchange processes and electrochemistry in the broad field of analytical chemistry

Davidson came here in the fall of 1959 after getting a bachelor's degree at The Citadel in Charleston, S. C. where he studied under a former Sheline student, Dr. Joseph Wilkinson.

Square Cornered Body Will Arrive

An eight-pound baby with square corners will be delivered today.

It will be delivered Tuesday, too. So will its 3,709 twin sisters.

At present, the babies are "incubating" in an antiseptic, tile room on the third floor, Longmire.

According to accurate sources, the delivery will be premature by the first "early" delivery in seven years.

According to further reliable sources, the new arrival will be christened "Tally-Ho". So will its sisters. The family name will be 1961.

Featuring 16 pages of full color and full color on the covers for the first time, reserved copies can be obtained on third floor, Longmire, Monday from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Student ID cards are the only necessary "birth certificates" to obtain reserved copies.

Extra copies will be announced for sale after May 22. No copies will be sold Monday or Tuesday.

The annual will contain a report on academic research and a feature on Dr. Ernest Grunwald, Florida State University's Distinguished Professor for 1960-61. Dr. Grunwald will vacate his position Aug. 31 to join the research staff of Bell Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J.

Cissi Mansour, 1961 Tally-Ho Queen, and her court will also be featured.

The Tally-Ho staff consists of Harriet L'Engle, editor; Linda Hall, managing editor; Beryl Miller, associate editor of photography, and Teal Guinand, associate editor and staff supervisor.

The 416-page annual was partially produced in the University Press Lab and in the Student Publications Lab.

It's Not Too Late To Act

The proposed academic honor code which was recently accepted by a 1410 to 966 vote of the student body will not be any more effective than the present system unless the students are made vividly aware of its goals, its limitations, and its advantages.

IT IS NOT TOO late to publicize accurately and thoroughly the academic honor code. Without sufficient publicity, the tenets of this proposed code will remain merely the recorded dictates of a small committee of faculty members and students, far removed from the rest of the student body.

A committee composed of members of the student body, faculty and administration should be set up to thoroughly study the best methods of publicizing this code and should be granted full authority to take whatever steps necessary to do so without having to go through such intermediary groups as the student senate.

Newspaper coverage can present the text of the code to the student body, but it can do very little to bring its objectives to each student personally. In order to become a vital part of academic life at FSU, the code must be brought vividly to the student body. It has been previously suggested to members of the Student Senate appointed honor committee that one method of sponsoring this code would be to hold forums in the residence halls. This is one of the best ways for reaching a great number of students. Yet, nothing was done.

A FORUM, conducted by outstanding campus leaders and members of the faculty, will enable a student to get both viewpoints on the code as well as to ask questions and raise protests. This will provide a personal relationship between the students and the honor code, which the present system lacks.

There are faculty members who question the motives of student leaders in pushing the code through as just another amendment to the student constitution. If this had been just another political football, we feel certain that it would have received much more publicity, and that many more students would actually know what it was about.

MEMBERS OF THE FACULTY contend that they have taken this new code seriously. This is a tremendous advantage to the system in itself, for the faculty are the controlable element in the academic picture. They are here longer than the four years that students put in. They are in a position to continue this academic concept of honor as each new class enters.

An honor system will not become a part of student life immediately. There must be a concentrated effort on the part of both faculty and student leaders to make this code work. It is not impossible, but it will require a great deal of hard work—more perhaps than some are willing to put in.

Reflections

Coma Joins The 'Mortals'

By LESLIE POWELL

Coma opened the Soda Shop door and swam inside, her neat size twelve flippers working energetically. She swam over to the counter, burbled "Hey. Theo, gimme a coke.

"Say" she asked, "what's the matter in here anyhow already?"

"WELL, BACK in the days of Osceola when Longmire was under construction, someone drove a nail into a water pipe. Since it sealed the hole, they just left it until now, and it has rusted out. That's where all the water is coming from."

"Oh," Coma said, making a grab for her wig, which was floating away on the tide, "that explains it. There probably wasn't enough money to hire builders so the faculty was doing the work. Professors aren't always so handy with hammers. Now if they'd been working with shovels," she added admiringly, "they'd have been able to erect a rival to the Parthenon."

In response to the puzzled look she received, Coma said he was of explanation. You know how good-part professors get with shovels. They have to shovel their way through the halls in the classrooms, then have to shovel red tape and sometimes take parttime jobs shoveling the real McCoy to make ends meet."

SHE PADDLED AWAY, lost in boggling among the many poor fish trying to keep the lettuce between the two floating halves of their hamburger buns.

"Hey, Coma," someone gurgled, "What are you doing down in this neighborhood anyway? I thought you had given up people for good."

"That's true," Coma replied, "only now and then I paint a navel on and come mingle with the mortals."

Then she noticed that her Madras bathing attire, modestly cut along lines specified by the inquisition, was bleeding. "Respigi, where art thou?" Coma wailed. "Think what you could be doing with the pains and fountains of FSU. Think of great music that catches the color of bleeding Madras and Olympian gods and goddesses, but footballers lolling among water-soaked tomatoes."

"AND THINK, SENATE wants money for a swimming pool and here we are overwhelmed with water."

Finishing her coke, Coma released her grip on the cup and watched it float away, and the door, enroute to enriching the coffee engulfing the A-Building and vicinity.

Joining friends at a nearby table, firmly anchored with the body of one who had drawn the short straw, Coma settled into an amiable waste of time, swapping worthless information.

"Coma," Nellie Brewbarf said, slapping at a school of minnows on maneuvers in her coffee cup, "when are you having another party?"

"CAN'T DO IT Nellie," Coma said, "if the music gets loud someone may call the law and then the gendarmes will swoop down and confiscate my SCUBA equipment. That'd mean I couldn't join all my chitlins' blossom friends in the Soda Shoppe under water, and I should pine quite away and become deceased out of lonesomeness. I just couldn't stand it. Why any day now I'm going to rediscover the furniture all in the human body, and I shall be famous and go away somewhere where I can do research and feel free not to go about falling into open swimming pools."

And she was out door by the rear of a new deluge descending from the ceiling. Somebody evidently had pulled a handle and Senate was on its way down.

Guest Column

An Economy Policy

By VIRVINIA DELAVAN

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following eight paragraphs are the concluding paragraphs of Miss Delavan's column in the May 5 issue of the Flambeau. They were cut at press time for space reasons.

Economically, there is a current trend toward regional cooperation in West Africa. Within the last three weeks an Afro-Malagasy conference of former French colonies has been formed. Liberia's President Tubman has also advanced a plan for an "associated States of Africa" for West African development.

With this in mind, we suggested establishment by the U. S. of an Economic Commission, in which other nations would be invited to participate. This commission would channel loans and grants to a regional organization.

This would supplement unilateral and U. N.-administered aid, which we believed should be increased. Only one-fourth the Western aid to all of Africa is given by the United States; the rest of the current $500 million total comes from Great Britain and France.

"In addition, the United States should encourage private capital investment by means of appropriate fiscal policies and promote a better understanding of the practices of American business," our resolution said.

Secretary G. Mennen Williams also stressed the need for "civic-minded private enterprise" in Africa. He declared that as American business has become more conscious of its social responsibilities the danger of domination and exploitation has been eradicated.

The emphasis of our recommendations for aid was put, properly laid on economic, as distinct from military. While believing that this country cannot refuse defense facilities if they are requested, we hoped to avoid the fruitless folly of large - scale military build-up.

West Africa does not intend to be made a pawn in the Cold War struggle. It wishes to be free to get aid from whatever source it is offered. If the Western nations will not satisfy the legitimate requests of Africa; Africans will turn to communists for this aid.

If we hope for the long-range independence of Africa, our mandate is clear.

"Don't Push — There's Plenty For All Of You"

Reaction To Intervention

TO THE EDITOR:

As a friend of Bill Trotts and a guest at his party of April 29th I want to congratulate him on his letter to the Flambeau. I am a naturalized American and have lived in this country for the past fifteen years. But I still remember, as most European students should, the war days of police raids, identification cards and passports, lists of names at the Gestapo and the local politicians who worked with them.

IT IS LUCKY for me that I have seen other parts of America, or else the action by the Tallahassee police would make me doubt the judge who told me nine years ago that I am free in this country and do not need any denunciation card. But to the newcomer this action must surely bring doubts to his mind along with images of Gestapo and police state terror. Despite what we say about democracy the memory of this little incident will loom larger than any amount of high sounding words we may direct at him. Words are fine, but cheap.

THE WHOLE THING could be covered up simply by saying that the party was noisy and disturbing the peace. But we all know that the root of the matter lies deeper — the right of a Negro to be human. To hide this is to be false to others and to ourselves; no problem is solved by hiding it, though we often, like cowards, hide behind the most convenient rationalization. This is the surest way to kill democracy. We will then replace thinking with the gospel handed down by authority or by the local or national sacred cow and continue with our prejudices under the guise of property.

I hope the foreign students realize that the fact that in some areas of this country prejudice is using the power of the state and democratic system to satisfy its own ends does not mean that it is a standard democratic practice respected in this country and to be emulated in theirs. On the contrary, it is something that must be fought against at every opportunity. This sort of perversion can happen in any country, and we have no reason to think that we are so good as to be immune. We are not perfect. An organization can be no more democratic than its members.

IT IS EASY to remember the big incidents, the police actions and the like. But in our judgement of America we are quite unfair if we forget those who express the real spirit of democracy. Despite evidence to the contrary, the police, the legislators the governors, the judges, here and elsewhere in our country, are the servants of the people. At no time are they in office to rule us. That they forget their proper places is an error which perverts democracy; but as long as there are people with the courage to oppose them at such moments democracy will remain alive. Bill Trotts is one of those who is fighting for democracy, and he is not alone.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Don't Ever Have Another'

AN OPEN LETTER TO MR. BILL TROTTS:

I would like to take this opportunity to console you and your guests who recently had your civil liberties so rudely infringed upon by local police and university administration. This was surely a most unfortunate and embarrassing incident for you, to say the least. Your right to entertain friends of your choice in your own home is unquestionable.

However, in view of local customs and practices, there is always the chance that you may find yourself in an embarrassing situation when you attempt to hold mixed social functions with white and Negro persons attending. This is extremely regrettable and is also no doubt to the gross ignorance of many of those southern people. But you are being threatened. In the light of this evidence possibly you should try to make the best of it until you can escape to the great progressive North where you will most certainly be happier.

I hope that in the future you will want to take all precautions to protect yourself, your fine Negro friends, and the international Club members any undue embarrassment.

If you are merely seeking publicity, or if you are trying to break a certain former FSU student's record for distasteful undesirable controversy at FSU, holding parties with Florida A&M students will surely accomplish your goal. However, if you hold the ability of yourself and your friends to be of any value whatsoever, please don't ever have another one of those parties in the South.

What Is The Dean's Duty?

TO THE EDITOR:

As a guest of Mr. Trotts' International Party Saturday night and as a neighbor and fellow student I would like to confirm his account of the actions both of Dean Loucks and of Lt. Bennett.

I was appalled and ashamed to see an administration official being identified with the peripheries of the Tallahassee Police Department in the round and eyes of students from other schools and countries. One such student was moved to inform his embassy of the predicament he was in.

WHAT PUZZLES ME most about this affair is why Dean Loucks chose to side with the Police Department. It was my understanding up until now that the Dean's primary responsibility was towards the students of this school and secondarily toward eradicating the bigotries of the city. Does maintaining friendly relations with city officials come before defending a student's right to invite into his home fellow students whose color differs from his own?

Although the impression created by the actions of our school and city officials cannot be erased completely it can be alleviated to some extent not only by an apology from Mr. Trotts but also by one from these responsible for creating an image of America that no amount of foreign aid or democratic platitudes can correct.

SUSGA Sec. Thanks FSU

TO THE EDITOR:

I would appreciate it, if you would use this in your letters to the editor column since I feel sure that many faculty staff, and students at FSU deserve many, many thanks from SUSGA for helping it make our conference the tremendous success it was.

I FEEL SURE that there are students on some 42 southern college campuses today who will long remember the wonderful FSU hospitality. Everyone was most cordial and cooperated to the fullest in making the conference a reality.

I certainly want to congratulate FSU and its Faculty, Administration, and student body on behalf of the entire Southern Universities Student Government Association for truly making our 8th annual conference "The greatest meeting of student leaders in the south."

'FSU Constitution Isn't Amended . . .'

TO THE EDITOR:

I was quite surprised to read that the proposed amendment concerning the honor system was ratified by 1410 votes in favor of the revision, which is sixteen per cent of the students at FSU.

I assert that the Constitution of the Student Body of Florida State University has not been constitutionally amended.

ACCORDING TO Article I, Section 2 of the copy of the Constitution which I received from Carl Butler, room 214, Longmire, the Student Body is composed of "All undergraduate students," numbering 7,508 this semester. However, according to Article 1, Section 3, "all students, including graduate students (numbering 1,254 this semester) . . . shall be entitled to vote in the special and general elections. . . ."

Article XII states that "Amendments to this constitution . . . shall become part of this constitution upon ratification (or ratification) by a majority of the votes cast in a special election during the Regular Session, providing that at least twenty-five per cent of the Student Body votes in said election."

THERE WERE, according to the Flambeau, 1410 votes for the amendment, 966 votes against the amendment, totaling 2,376 votes cast on the issue. There were more than 3,200 ballots cast in the election. No record was kept of the number of undergraduates (members of the student body) who voted on the issue, nor of the number of graduate students (not members of student body) who voted on the issue.

Thus if we assume the requirement ". . . at least twenty - five per cent of the student Body votes in said election, "must be satisfied by 1,800 votes, then the 2,376 total, then it is impossible to determine whether the requirement is satisfied without knowing the number of undergraduates (the student body) who voted on the issue.

BUT IF WE ASSUME the requirement is to be satisfied by the more than 3,200 ballots cast during the election, then there is difficulty in calling 1,410 a majority of more than 3,200.

Finally, and most important, the constitution clearly calls for a special election, in Article XII. The election Tuesday was provided for in the constitution after the words "Class Elections" The term "Special Election" is mentioned one other time in the constitution, in a section quoted above, and is not defined. Upon referring to Webster, I find no way that last Tuesday's election could be called a "Special Election."

I personally am strongly in favor of having an effective honor system at Florida State University, but am very much opposed to having an ineffective honor system. I am very strongly opposed to having the constitution unconstitutionally amended in regard to constitutional matters.

Tone Of Flambeau Has Lost Its Zest

TO THE EDITOR:

In your zeal to exercise academic freedom the tone of the Flambeau has lost its zest.

The Flambeau in essence is a very ridiculed newspaper among professional publishers. It is noted for its extremely high editorialism. This automatically excludes its claim to being objective as far as publication goes. Extreme liberalism places one in the camp of the "left-wingers, pinks, and punks." This is as damaging an image labeled a "reactionary." Both are dirty words even if you exclude pinks and punks.

THE OBJECT OF this letter is to strongly criticize the recent editorial policies of the paper in which he pokes fun at the Florida Un-American Activities Committee.

The Supreme Court in the United States has handed down 28 decisions creating a favorable climate for Communist conspiracy to operate. The Communists can't break through to the adult generation, so they work on the young people. The House Un-American Activities Committee is one of the last bulwarks our Country has remaining to expose their evil work. The Soviet Agents must be clamping their hands in glee to know that the FSU Flambeau is going right up the garden path with the most efficient brainwashing procedure in history.

WHY DID YOU SUPPOSE the Birch Society was formed? Do you think well known National patriotic groups being made a target? It came into being to help awaken our sleeping countrymen to the dangers they face, and to help protect and defend our Constitution and our American way of life.

There are many organizations who will subsidize bright, young college students if they will attend the seminars and youth camps in Russia and the satellite countries behind the Iron Curtain. In order to escape such boring organizations as the House Committee on Un-American activities and other American Americans, who not pack up your crest, and your nylon underwear and join up with the pack" They don't bother with investigating Mother Russia. In order to please the powers that be, you merely disappear. No more old-fuddy-duddy ideals.

WHAT YOU YOUNG people needed about the 6th grade teacher's pet history teacher. In fact, you needed another kind of schooling other than what you apparently received. Or did you take on a light shade of pink at Florida State University?

MARTHA L. McKINNEY

EDITOR'S NOTE — No, we don't think National patriotic groups being made targets. We don't enjoy it either. There are also many organizations and individuals who would subsidize the emancipation of student minds; we don't like all we see in the world, but we do not have the answers to be sweet and annatural. We deny the repeated, irresponsible charges and references to "pink" and "brainwashing." Nor are we able to see what path will be the most efficient brainwashing procedure in history.

Dull's Story: Hit, Field And Respect

By BILL VERIGAN
Assistant Sports Editor

Three talents, hitting power, defensive ability, and leadership, combine to make a top notch ball player. Jack Dull, second baseman for the Florida State baseball team, is an outstanding example of one who has these attributes—plus the desire to become a major league ball player.

Dull's hitting record speaks for itself. He has been leading in almost every column in batting during the entire season, including runs, hits, doubles, home runs, total bases, runs batted in, and batting average.

As a junior he batted in 37 runs to set a new school record and put out a record-tying performance by smashing six home runs in a single season.

Several professional scouts have admired Dull's prowess at the plate and more than one has approached him about the possibility of signing him for their clubs. In Athens, Georgia during a game against the Georgia Bulldogs one scout was overheard to say, "I know at least one player on the field that would make a big leaguer." The man he was referring to was Dull.

The six-foot, 185-pounder has expressed a desire to become a professional, but he has no idea which club will finally land him.

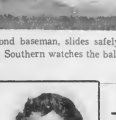
His defensive ability cannot be overlooked either. Coach Danny Litwhiler praised Dull as being "the best second baseman I've seen in college baseball." "He gets a good jump on the ball and has an excellent arm as good an arm as you find in baseball," Litwhiler hastened to add.

The big senior has been instrumental in 20 double plays this season to pull off a new double play record of 25. He also has a fielding average of .937.

During high school Dull played second base at Leon in Tallahassee and made the All-Northeastern Conference team several years. He played high school ball for four years.

During his freshman season he played shortstop and alternated between short, third, and left field during the past two years. The native of Clermont, Florida feels that he is best suited to second or shortstop, however. Litwhiler believes that second base is a natural position for Dull and admits that he should have moved him there sooner.

Dull also has an ample amount of the leadership quality needed for any really outstanding athlete. He carries the title of co-captain of the Seminole diamond men, and his teammates readily admit his fine ability. "Most important," commented Litwhiler, "he's got the right attitude." "He's not a holler guy, but he picks the team up when its down and is a real gentleman."



Other players also express their admiration for their co-captain. "I don't know anybody who has anything against him," said Litwhiler.

In the past Dull's ability has carried him a long way and many believe that it will be sufficient to take him all the way to a major league berth.

Athletic Hall Of Fame

It is ironical that simultaneously with the recent scandal of the alleged athletics versus academics conspiracy that four of the five male students named to Florida State's Hall of Fame were athletes.

The critic would probably contend that this was a representative case of misplaced values. Except that these individuals were elected the highest student honor this university can bestow, not on the basis of athletic contribution but on the basis of overall excellence.

And once again the popular but fictional illusion that all athletes are animals has holes shot in it.

On the roster of Hall of Fame members are Carl Butler, a swimmer; Rebel Bellamy, a tennis player; But Whitehead, a football player, and Jack Ryder, a gymnast.

Not Half Of Contribution

This is not the half of the contributions these men have made to Florida State University.

But Whitehead has been one of Florida State's most outstanding players over the long run. Whitehead was the leading ground gainer on this year's varsity grid team and has lettered for three years in football. His senior year, Whitehead was team captain. He also played varsity basketball for two years copping a total of four varsity letters.

Whitehead is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Gold Key, Pan Hellenic Council, and is a member of the Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship Association and Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges.

Besides being the National Collegiate Athletic Association's champion tumbler, Jack Ryder has been a senator, an Men's Judiciary, Gold Key, Sports Editor of the Tally Ho, WFSU-TV producer, Who's Who, Vice- President of his fraternity, and Sammy Seminole.

Rebel Bellamy, captain of the tennis team and winner of four varsity net letters, has been Vice-President of the Senior class, Gold Key, Omicron Delta Kappa, an Honor Court Justice, Union Council, President of his fraternity, and in Who's Who.

The least athletic of the lot of active athletes is the most active of the lot—Carl Butler.

Butler is a swimmer, but that is insignificant beside being Student Body President, Student Body Vice-President, President of his fraternity, Vice-President of the BSU, a Senator who was the most valuable legislator twice, chairman of three committees, Treasure Bureau, Arnold Air Society, a two year letterman, Omicron Delta Kappa, Gold Key, Phi Eta Sigma, and Who's Who. In his spare time, Butler has maintained over a three point average academically.

Well Rounded People

"I feel that all four of the athletes were certainly outstanding in their athletic field as well as on campus," said Jack Ascherl, chairman of the Hall of Fame selections committee.

"We try to pick well rounded people for the Hall of Fame," Ascherl explained.

The "animal" description looks puny next to the combined accomplishments of these four individuals.

Because they were athletes did not necessarily mean that they had the traits necessary for accomplishments of this sort, but certainly helped.

"We feel that athletics is a good test of leadership abilities, working together, and that kind of thing," commented Ascherl.

Here again is a case where athletics did not supplant the other areas of university or take the place of scholastics—the most important aspect of any institution of higher learning.

Rather they supplemented the individual's abilities, helped develop his leadership ability, and contributed to the high honor which each of them has received.

Tribe Sets Two Records

Hoping for the NCAA bid, the Florida State baseball team has scheduled three post season games against Moody Air Force Base this weekend at Valdosta, Georgia.

The two teams are scheduled on Friday night is the first contest and then launch into a double header on Saturday.

The Seminoles easily overpowered the Georgia Southern Eagles 17-8 in a hitters' battle on Monday. Four home runs were blasted during the game, two by FSU's Jack Dull and Bob Madison. Senior Frank Davis pitched his way to a 6-1 season mark.

The Tribe set one record by pulling off in 25th double play of the year. Walker broke his own season record for number of triples by smashing his seventh of the year.

Netmen Break FSU Record By Defeating Maroons 7-2

The Florida State tennis team set a school record Wednesday as they increased their season wins, breaking the previous season win record of 15. The Seminoles downed highly touted Mississippi State 7-2, losing only one singles match and one doubles match.

Rebel Bellamy in the top slot defeated Manuel Garcia 8-6, 7-5, to avenge a previous loss to him this season. Garcia is a former Mexican champion and is currently holding a national rank in the U. S.

Paul Scarpa went three sets before stopping Ellis Sanhueza 4-6, 6-2, 7-5. Sanhueza holds a national rank and is also a former Mexican star.

Gordy Smith also went three sets before downing Mario Lemus 6-2, 5-7, 6-3. Buddy McClain defeated Johnny McQuaig 7-5, 6-2 for McQuaig's only loss of the season.

Jamis Jamieson lost the only singles match as Frank Davis outran him 6-4, 6-3. Ed Fasula stopped Roland Livingston 6-0, 6-0.

In the doubles events Bellamy-Smith lost to Garcia-Sanhueza 6-3, 8-4 for their fourth loss of the season. Scarpa-Fasula stopped Lemus-McQuaig 6-2, 6-1. McClain-Jamieson defeated the team of Davis-Livingston in the number three doubles event 6-2, 6-3.

The FSU netters are the only team to beat the Maroons of Mississippi for the past two seasons. The Seminoles edged them last season 5-4, and downed them 6-3, 7-2 this year.

The Seminoles take on Rollins here in a dual match tomorrow at 1:30 on the varsity courts. This will end the season for the Tribe netters who now hold a 16-4 school record.

The Seminoles stopped the Tars in a match earlier in the season 8-1 to break a 12 year jinx held by the Rollins squad. The Rollins squad sports several nationally and regionally ranked players such as John Henrickson, Luis Dominquez and Mike Alegre.

Rebel Bellamy and Paul Scarpa have been selected as participants in the Charleston Invitational Tournament May 20-21 at Charleston, South Carolina. The eight players of the tournament are selected from all the Southeastern College tennis teams.

Bellamy and Scarpa are the only players who do not have national ranking. Bellamy holds a win over last year's tournament runner-up Harry Hoffman.

Bellamy has been the number one player for FSU for the past two seasons as well as team captain for both years.

Delta Zeta Works At Speech, Hearing Clinic

By MARTHA ROBERTS
Flambeau Staff Writer

It wasn't just an ordinary work party when Delta Zeta social sorority spent a recent Saturday at the Florida State University Speech and Hearing Clinic scrubbing walls and woodwork, making a play table and rearranging the waiting room.

The national philanthropic project of Delta Zeta is speech and hearing. In keeping with that project the DZ's at FSU are furnishing the waiting room of the Speech and Hearing Clinic and will continue to work with the clinic, helping in any way possible.

According to Dorrie Chazal, a speech and hearing major working in the clinic, magazine subscriptions were donated to the clinic by Delta Tau Delta, Kappa Alpha, Kappa Sigma, and Sigma Nu fraternities. Whereas most waiting rooms are supplied with magazines for the enjoyment of patients, the clinic previously had none.

The DZ's are working to make a pleasant and attractive waiting room at the clinic.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic at FSU serves a dual purpose, states Dr. F. G. Attanasio, supervisor of clinical practice and director of the outpatient diagnostic clinic. The non-profit University agency within the Speech Dept. operates as a service and training function.

Advanced students majoring in speech and hearing work in the clinic under direct supervision as a part of their training program primarily for public school speech correction teachers.

Headed by Dr. L. L. Schenkel, director, who is also president of the Florida Speech and Hearing Association, the clinic is open to anyone who desires help and deals mainly with communicative disorders. Whereas most speech and hearing disorders.

Ski Club Entertains Families At Show During Circus Weekend

The parents and students present at the Family Week end festivities at the Reservation last Saturday were probably well aware by the end of the afternoon of a relatively obscure organization among the numerous student groups on campus.

This group offered its members and talents to present a show of feats and skills usually connected with Cypress Gardens.

The group? The Tallahassee Ski Club.

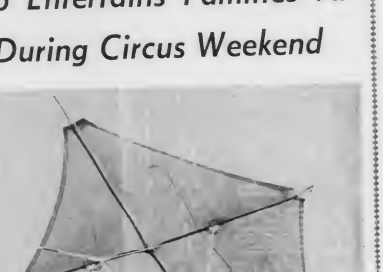
FLEDGLING GROUP

Formed last July and consisting of about 30 members, the fledgling group is already affiliated with the American Water Ski Association and planning several activities for the future.

Meetings are held at the Lafayette Community Center on the first Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p. m. At these meetings, past and present shows are discussed and plans for future shows are made. The club is presently planning to sponsor a tournament next fall at Lake Bradford.

TALLAHASSEE

Most of the members are from Tallahassee, said President Gene Brown, but there is "room for other people" he added.



About half of the members are girls, remarked Brown.

The group practices every Saturday, using the ski jump on Lake Talquin when possible.

As a group, the ski club is able to participate in the sport more often and to obtain advantages single enthusiasts might not have. Presently, the group is planning to buy a boat of their own.

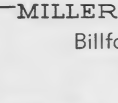
COMPETITION

The group consists of several skiers with experience in competition and shows.

"THE DARING YOUNG MAN ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE" . . . is really Gene Brown participating in the show the Tallahassee Ski Club presented at the Reservation during Family Weekend.

Last summer, the group presented five shows. The show at the Reservation last weekend was the major project this year. The members hope to present other programs this summer.

Several members have participated in and hope to participate in AWSA-sponsored regional tournaments.



Brown stressed the importance of new members in the group and suggested that any interested persons attend the meetings at the Lafayette Community Center.

and domes supported by aquenches are characteristic of this tradition, said Dr. Tushingham.

ORNAMENTATION SECONDARY

True to the highest ideals of architecture, commented Dr. Tushingham, the ornamentation of the buildings remained secondary. to the early buildings the bricks were layed in different ways to form the designs. Carved plaster and bricks also ornamented the structures.

About 1100, A. D. glazed brick work entered into the designs. continued Dr. Tushingham. With glazed brick the ornamentation was restricted to geometrical forms.

Soon the artists were cutting up the glazed bricks and tiles to make inlaid and tile mosaics for the ornamentation With these techniques more complex designs could be made. be said.

The bulb domes found in India developed from the domes of the Persian tradition. Ornamation continued to grow with mosaics also being made out of mirror fragments.

Today the repair of ancient buildings and the new construction reflects the past influences, said Dr. Tushingham Although the form remains functional, tile is used for ornamentation, he continued.

Dr. Tushingham indicated that Western architects could take a hint from Islamic tradtion and add colored tile to the stark functionality of modern buildings.

Dr. Kellogg Is Author Of New Book

Porpoises and Sonar is the title of a new book by Dr. Winthrop N. Kellogg, professor of experimental psychology at FSU.

Representing the culmination of a nine-year program of scientific research—all conducted since he came to FSU, the book tells how the author and his associates discovered and analyzed the remarkable process of underwater echoing with ears' used by the dolphin or porpoise.

The research work, which was pioneered by the FSU scientist, has been supported and sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Office of Naval Research. The work required the conducting of many underwater experiments, and the study of wild porpoises in the Gulf of Mexico as well as captive animals. Navy researchers are now examining the porpoise sonar system as a means of finding out how to improve the detection of enemy vessels by United States submarines.

The book, Porpoises and Sonar also goes into such questions as the intelligence of porpoises; whether these animals can actually rescue human swimmers; the myths of riding porpoises like a horse, and the depths to which they dive.

Here...

you'll find a Faith to live by...

It's quiet inside. Quiet with the peace of centuries, for this is God's House.

Within these walls, the worries which loomed so large outside become less fearsome... for the first time perhaps you see them in their true perspective. If this alone were the reward of Faith, it would be enough. But there is more.

Faith is a source of strength, a reservoir of power that helps you meet the needs of every day. By worshiping with your family each week at your Church or Synagogue, you're giving them a measure of security no amount of money could buy. The Faith to hope... to grow... to live by.

Find the strength for your life...

Worship together this week

The Rev. Philip W. R. Russell, noted Anglican priest from the South African Republic, is scheduled to speak tonight at 8 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall on the topic "South Africa: Its Problems and Its Possibilities." Members of the student body and faculty are invited to attend.

Rev. Russell, vicar of All Saints Church, Ladysmith in the Diocese of Natal, South Africa, is visiting the Florida State University campus today and tomorrow under the sponsorship of the Chapel of the Resurrection Bunge Hall and Canterbury House.

Rev. Russell has distinguished himself in many areas of Anglican Church work and in the mission in South Africa. He is a veteran of World War II and served in East and North Africa and in Italy. For his service to the British government, Rev. Russell was awarded the Member of the Order of the British Empire.

SG Pledges To Help Problems Of FSU

The full cooperation of the Student Government in solving the problems confronted by Florida State University was pledged by Bobby Byrd in his first speech as student body president at the Student Government Banquet Thursday.

Highlight of the banquet was the presentation of the outstanding senator award to Mygnon Haygood.

This is the second consecutive year that the award has been given to Miss Champion and ends a three year career as a senator.

Next year she assumes the responsibilities of women's vice-president.

The outstanding senator award was initiated three years ago by the Student Government and the only other recipient of the award has been Carl Butler.

Byrd praised this year's Student Government and its accomplishments.

"The complete revision of our Honor System can work only if it has the support of all students. Student Government must set the tone for this support, he said Byrd spoke of the recent Student Government incorporation.

Student Enterprises, Inc., and emphasized that it has opened a new field of potential accomplishment.

The possibility of a university tutoring service, which he hopes will raise the educational standards of FSU, was suggested by Byrd.

He also hopes to see a more reasonable textbook purchasing system established next year.

He went on to mention that the social regulations and standards of FSU should be evaluated in order to decide if the present policies "which were carried over from P. S. C. W. are to continue in existence.

In closing Byrd said: "I pledge full cooperation and support in any endeavor that will help to encourage steps toward a better Florida State University."

Dr. Milton Carothers, a main speaker at the banquet, spoke on "The Responsibilities of the Student Government."

He pointed out that Student Government officials should be tolerant and take their responsibilities seriously.

Carl Butler, outgoing student body president, evaluated the present Student Government.

Butler spoke of the 600 per cent increase in the budget, the new Honor System, student enterprises and Curriculum Evaluation Council.

The fulfillment of this year's potentialities can only come in the future," said Butler.

SB Tryouts Set Today

Tryouts for the 1961-62 Speaker's Bureau are being held today, tomorrow and Thursday from 2 to 5 p. m. in the fourth floor conference room, Longmire.

All returning freshmen, sophomores, and juniors are eligible to try out.

The Speaker's Bureau is a service organization whose members serve as public relations agents for FSU. It sends speakers to address high schools, junior colleges and civic clubs throughout the state on behalf of FSU. The Speaker's Bureau also guides many of the student tours that are conducted here on campus.

Dana Ball Wins Guest 'Mademoiselle' Editorship

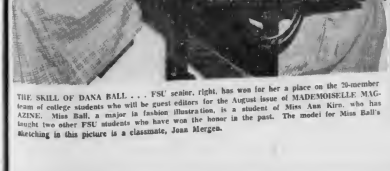
Dana Ball, Florida State University art student, has been selected as one of the 20 College Board guest editors of Mademoiselle Magazine for its August issue.

Miss Ball is the third student from FSU majoring in fashion illustration to win a guest editorship of the magazine. She will go to New York June 1 to work for a month in the editorial offices with a salary and with her expenses paid.

INSTRUCTOR

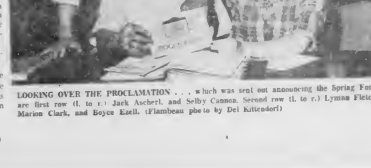
Miss Ann Kirn of the Art Dept., Miss Ball's major professor, was also the instructor of Margaret McLean, now Mrs. William Neblett and a fashion illustrator at Bullocks in Los Angeles, who won a guest editorship in 1956. Miss Kirn also taught Joe Ethel Sewell, now Mrs David Kendall and art director in the FSU Office of Publications, who won an editorship in 1958.

Miss Ball is a senior and a member of Chi Omega social sorority. She has served on several student government committees.



ALPHABET BOOK

Miss Ball submitted several sketches of two girls modeling appropriate clothes for various occasions as one of her projects. The other project consisted of a college alphabet book concerning things she liked about college.



Although she took Saturday art lessons while in junior high school, Miss Ball had no art training other than that she received at FSU.

The other 19 college women selected for the editorial posts are from various fields of English, journalism, merchandising, fashion design, business and art. All guest editors will be assigned to appropriate departments and in addition will have an opportunity to meet leaders in their various fields.

Another FSU student, Claire Frieburger, has been asked to submit her art work in a separate contest. The two winners of this contest will illustrate the winning stories of a fiction contest. Miss Frieburger was asked to supply her originals on the basis of slides and photographs of her work submitted to the judges.

THE SKILL OF DANA BALL . . . FSU senior, right, has won for her a place on the 20-member team of college students who will be guest editors for the August issue of MADEMOISELLE MAGAZINE. Miss Ball, a major in fashion illustration, is a student of Miss Ann Kirn, who has taught two other FSU students who have won the honor in the past. The model for Miss Ball's sketching in this picture is a classmate, Joan Mergen.

President Bryd's Challenge

Student Body President Bobby Byrd is faced with an awesome task in trying to fill the shoes of outgoing Student Government chief, Carl Butler. His predecessor has a large sized pair.

RARELY IN THE history of Florida State University has a student body president personally represented so many fields of campus endeavor. Rarely has a president had so much personal contact with so many areas of student activity.

Butler has been a one-man panorama of the student body. He has been a legislator, and was voted the most valuable member of the Senate. He has been an athlete, and lettered twice in swimming. He has been a scholar, and maintained a scholastic average above the Dean's list requirement during his college career.

BUTLER HAS ALSO been active in religious affairs, as vice-president of his student religious house; military, as an officer in ROTC; and Greek life, as president of his fraternity.

This constitutes a considerable realm of activity and it may not be equaled by any student ever. This realm has made him aware of many needs from different areas of the University.

EACH AREA HAS probably contributed in some way to his progressive administration, which has originated ideas like the Curriculum Evaluation Council, the Student Enterprise Corporation, and the Student Merchants Association and has been such projects of lasting value as the new student union and the swimming pool.

Byrd faces a stout challenge in his effort to carry on the progress of the Butler administration as he has pledged to do. The new president has not had the experience with as many student activities as did his predecessor nor does he have the sheer personal ability that Butler possesses. Byrd will be the first to admit this.

HIS PLAN FOR getting the same work done is to have specialists who are familiar with each area of the University work with that sector and keep him advised on that particular area. It is a commendably honest attempt to get the most good from the most talent.

But it will require the whole of Byrd's organizational ability to keep the system running smoothly without any areas being neglected. It will require the new president to have undivided loyalty to the University which he serves above all else. And it will demand the same objective, unpartisan leadership that has characterized the outgoing administration.

BYRD HAS SHOWN he has the fortitude to battle the administration in the interest of the student body and the courage to invade any aspect of the University in working for the students.

Now he must prove that he can keep an overall perspective through his system of specialists and not fall prey to special interest groups. At the same time, he must make progress comparable to that which FSU has become accustomed to this year.

This is Bobby Byrd's big challenge.

Bloodletting Or Lifesaving?

Students at Florida State University might do well to sit up and take heed of the activities of some of their fellow students at other American universities.

When Paul Ort, in a letter to the editor of the Flambeau a few weeks ago, suggested that FSU students start some kind of fund to augment the meager faculty salaries, the recommendation was greeted so coolly that not one letter was received in reply containing an opinion of the subject. Perhaps some students have contacted him personally. We hope so.

If students feel that such a plan is unprecedented or impossible, they should read an article which appeared on the front page of the May 15 Tampa Tribune. The Tribune reported that students of Michigan Tech, Houghton, Michigan, were "prepared to shed blood for their alma mater and education." The article went on to explain that the students have organized "operation bloodletting," a program to sell their blood to blood banks in order to help pay the faculty salaries.

These are students who are showing that they are truly interested in the quality of the education they receive and are looking beyond the prestige involved in acquiring a diploma. Perhaps if students in Florida would organize a similar project, residents of the state would realize that we are not the empty headed, carefree youngsters that many consider us to be.

It may be that, if we as students show an active interest and make an honest effort to insure the quality of our teachers by helping to pay them better salaries, other citizens and legislators would follow the example by trying to help us keep them from leaving us for higher paying jobs.

Advent Of The Reins-Takers

This is the time of year (school year) when the president - elect, editors-elect, ad infinitum, are going into office for the first time on the edge of the semester "reins taking" operations.

FOR THE NEXT few weeks these duly elected and appointed officers will be getting in a little in-office practice before the advent of summer session and the down to business fall semester.

We hope they like it. We hope they now see that they have taken responsibilities and duties that will keep them busy and we hope they will see why the people who occupied those offices previously sometimes appeared in public with vexed expressions.

WE ARE ANXIOUS to see how the new officers, who as non-office holding students were as quick as the rest of us to criticize, will react to being the targets for the coming school year. It is going to be most interesting to see relatively carefree students adapting themselves to the idea that no matter what they do or how they do it, there will be a faction of great displeasure. Loud, vocal displeasure at that.

These last few weeks as the spring semester draws to its close will be busy weeks for all of us, but for those taking office it is going to be doubly so.

Guest Column

Poses Query: 'Why Fight'

By H. RICHARD BLIEDEN

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is part one of Mr Blieden's paper "Why Fight?" Due to the unusual length, the column will be continued in the Friday issue of the Flambeau.)

In the previous discussion I outlined the need for a long range plan of action in dealing with the Communist threat to our free society. This presupposed the reader's belief in our system and his willingness to protect it at all costs.

Unfortunately, this assumption cannot be applied to every American. In discussing this subject with a number of people recently, I encountered considerable opposition to the idea of preparing for action. When I questioned them at greater length, I began to understand the reasons for this opposition. First of all, I am happy to say that none of them were Communists. They were for the most part honest and sincere individuals who were obeying the law of inertia rather than the force of their own moral convictions.

IT IS NOT my purpose to investigate the source of these convictions. This is a very personal question to be answered by each individual. Let me just point out that this internal direction is certainly there If you have not heard it, it is time that you began to ask some important questions of yourself. Certainly there are many questions to be posed. But to me the two most important ones are:

"In what do I believe?"

"What is the purpose of my life?"

I am firmly convinced that in spite of a wide diversity of faiths and nationalities which our society encompasses and in spite of its many shortcomings, our democracy provides a common ground for the greatest multiplicity of answers to these questions. For the basic tenet of our democracy is that every man possesses the right and the duty to answer these questions for himself. That the ultimate direction of our democracy must be determined by the truth which the individual finds within himself. That by searching for this truth and by communicating it with others, he can make a positive contribution toward making ours a more just and a more perfect society. That this society is perfect only to the degree that the individual within this society is perfect within himself.

THUS, WHEN the foundation of this free environment within which all these diverse ideas can exist is under attack, each concept within this structure suffers. The only way we can preserve our sacred right to disagree and argue with our fellow man is to temporarily forget our minor disagreements and join hands in shoring up this free structure of ours. Perhaps Jimmy Hoffa and Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, for example, would find such cooperation strange at first, but in the end they would find much more in common than they had ever suspected.

"But if our democracy is such a stronghold of free thought, why can we not include Communism within our society and still remain at we are?"

COMMUNISM IS MORE than an individual belief, it is a totally different environment dedicated to the idea that the above questions have only one answer and that every man is wrong unless he fully agrees. The perfect individual within the Communistic society is one who perfectly reflects the social environment into which he is placed. In our way of thinking the true member of a Communistic society is not an individual but a warped human being. By supporting such a philosophy or by neglecting to check its spread, we are actively seeking the removal of our own self-determination and the ability to answer questions in our own fashion. Few of us know the meaning of restricted speech, fewer still the terror of restricted thought. Such an existence would have all the discomforts of death, but none of its advantages.

Some of the less profound, but more frequent questions that have arisen also have very simple answers in light of the above remarks.

"OUR NATION is getting soft! How can we hold back a group of fanatics like the Communists?"

Perhaps some members of our society have suffered from too rich and luxurious a life, but there is no reason for inaction on our part. Start with yourself—get in good mental, spiritual and physical shape so that you can act and think decisively. History plays no favorites. Only that group whose people are most sincerely convinced and best prepared to support their convictions will win out in the story.

"Other nations who were closer to the suffering in previous wars do not want to get involved again Perhaps if you had their knowledge you would not be so hasty"

IT HAS BEEN my experience to the contrary that the persons who fought and suffered the greatest are most cognizant of their freedom and most eager to defend it. Nonetheless, we need not await their judgment. Let us set the example by acting in accord with our basic beliefs. The sincerity and truth of our actions will have a positive effect on them. This will not only include our allies but also the uncommitted nations.

Try to withdraw your senses from the confusing influence of the propaganda storm about us. Find the voice within that makes you the individual you are. Then you will understand that the defense of our free society is imperative.

The Legend Wants More Frosh, Sophs

By LESLIE POWELL

As a freshman I was notoriously hard of hearing. And that included hearing what I had in the Flambeau. I am still dreamer enough to hope that the new crop of Freshmen and the mellowing class of Sophomores will be more inclined to hear a plea when it crops up.

WE, MYSELF and my editorial staff, are beginning to get under way with preparations for the next edition of the Florida State Literary Anthology, The Legend of A prime aim, second only to that of soliciting the best campus-written material, is to interest and encourage Freshmen and Sophomores to join The Legend staff. Any FSU student who is interested in creative writing or in publications in general will be a welcome addition to the staff.

Three years ago The Legend (then called Anthology) began as a result of interest and initiative on the part of a handful of students, particularly on the part of the first editor, Mark Anslin. It was no-budget, no-backing, no-nothing but a strong desire to see this university have a literary magazine of some description. Since that time The Legend has been included in the budget for publication as a supplement to Smoke Signals.

SINCE THAT FIRST issue, editors Evan Bergman and Leslie Lowell have engaged in numerous activities designed to strengthen and keep The Legend alive. One of those activities has been to attract students whose interests were of value to The Legend, so that there would be a core of interested, trained and able students available to The Legend.

Those who wish to submit material to The Legend can do so by addressing it to: The Editor, The Legend, Room 211, Longmire Building, Campus Mail.

We are interested in reading your short stories, your poetry and your essays. The earlier your contribution comes in, the more thorough reading it will get, and the more time there is to send it back to you if the selections committee feels there is only a minor flaw that you can correct ahead of the November deadline.

Better yet, bring your contribution to the office and join the Legend's staff.

Makes A Plea For Rights

TO THE EDITOR:

After reading the letters to the editor in Tuesday's Flambeau, concerning the recent raid on Trott's house, I was stimulated to again take pen in hand and to again make a plea for the rights of the free individual.

It is upon individual rights and freedoms that our American democracy is based. And it is upon these freedoms and rights that we attempt to sell the American way of life to the peoples of the world. Our counterpart, the Russians, also have a sales story of freedoms, rights and equality. But with the Russian story, it is the equality that is emphasized. True, this may be a false equality, but it stands very appealing to the downtrodden and uneducated. It is therefore the job of the American people to uphold our freedoms, rights and equalities in the face of the world if we are to preserve our democracy and way of life.

I DO NOT ADVOCATE that we force freedom and equality on the people of America for the sake of the American sales story or for any other reason I do not mean to infer that we should force a man to serve a Negro, or to a man to have any one does not desire as his guest. Nevertheless I that if a merchant serve a Negro, or a Washes to entertain a Ne his home, he does should have the right so without fear of pol vasion, public disgrace general embarrassment.

Every student like that took place at Bu home is another page Russian sales story log for the spreading Communism. I time the South awo to wake up. It was b to have a few black in the white homes and than to have all our children the Red schools.

She's Appalled

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to join the students who have expressed their shock and embarrassment concerning the intervention at Bill Trott's party by Tallahassee police and Dean Loucks.

I, too, am appalled that these Powers That Be, as it were, thought it upon themselves to police the personal lives of local citizens, resulting in counterdemonstration of the basic tenets of our country's society.

I am appalled, also, but not so shocked at the despicable action of "those police" by Donald Hendriek in his recent "Open Letter to Bill Trott's." I, too am a southerner although I am somewhat reluctant to tag myself "ignorant" as Mr. Hendrick regards himself (or is it possible that Mr. Hendrick was being sarcastic and the term was meant to have an antonymous connotation?) At any rate, I feel that being a Southerner does not give us the right to harrass others and outlaw their actions merely because they do not have the same friends or same relatives that we have. Being a Southerner, unfortunately, often has been the excuse for many of us to rationalize our way of being intelligently tolerant.

TO THE EDITOR:

MR. ARNETT ASAS asks if I know that the defendant is told that he must act in his own defense. I had the most of the accused are incapable of performing this task because of the able prosecution in the Honor Court. I also know that a defendant may call witnesses, but I don't think that he could do a good job of presenting evidence no matter how many witnesses he presented.

There, I apparently used the wrong word in this part of my argument. I used "expell" instead of "suspend." The point of this part of my argument is that the punishments are often too harsh for the crime.

I make common cause them for the shameful inserted into Smoke Signals. To allow the grotesque distortion in this cartoon to pass booked is to countenance erosion of religious for any group. By what does the artist and editors of Smoke Signals sume to so insult the Christian Organization? If it is not under the guise of the freedom of the press, the courts have already ruled otherwise) or because of ignorance and dom. This shameful cartoon humorous only of the most antecedents that promote are humorous. If the swastika branded a synagogue as an aftermath were funny, I withdraw my rebuke. Athlete Of The Year

After taking a look at the list of outstanding athletes which filled the rosters of this year's Seminole teams, the Flambeau sports staff was inclined to scuttle the whole idea of awarding a single Athlete of Year award, and break down and present awards to several of the more capable participants.

But tradition finally overcame impulse and eight nominees were selected for the award, including Rebel Bellamy, Jack Dull, Dave Fedor, Downing Gray, Buck Hiles, Jack Ryder, Quentin Till, and Bud Whitehead.

Selection for the honor depends upon more than the tangible aspects of skill. In order to be nominated an athlete should also display the qualities of good sportsmanship and leadership. The selection hinges upon what the man has contributed to the team as a whole as much as upon what he has contributed in his single specialty. Teamwork is as important in molding a true athlete and cannot be overlooked in choosing the number one athlete in each sport.

Bellamy, representing the tennis team, has played first position for the majority of the season and has compiled a 16-5 record. In the category of leadership he has been team captain for two years, and teamwork is apparent from his double mark of 17-4. By consistently downing nationally ranked opponents he has made a valuable contribution to the netters' overall record.

Dull, a prominent candidate for All-American second baseman honors, has run away with Florida State's batting honors of the baseball team. By leading in seven departments, the senior co-captain overshadowed his teammates' efforts at the plate. He wound up the regular season with 97 at-bats, 27 runs, 38 hits, six doubles, five home runs, 30 total bases, and 26 runs batted-in.

Fedor Leads Cagers Twice

Lanky Fedor grabbed the basketball nomination for the second year in a row. The 6-6 junior was rated among the top ten in the nation on his rebounding ability and easily copped an All-American honorable mention.

The tough forward brought down 336 rebounds in his 24 games. He dropped in 185 field goals for a sizzling 50.7 percent and bucketed 86.7 percent of his free throw attempts for 86 points, averaging 19 points per game. Fedor stretched the number of contests he has notched double figures to 19.

Gray capped his senior year for the Seminoles with team leading performances in most of the team's dual meets. His total came to 12 wins against four setbacks for the year.

The linkster was also a tough contender in three tournaments, the Florida Intercollegiate, the All-American Tournament, and the Southern Intercollegiate Tournament.

Copping swimming honors was Hiles, who rewrote the record books time and again during the course of the campaign. In taking the nomination Hiles had to beat out National Collegiate Athletic Association diving champion Curt Genders.

The senior co-captain has been listed as an All-American for two years. During the NCAA meet he placed tenth in the 200-yard butterfly event.

Ryder Tops Tumbling Artists

National Collegiate tumbling champion Jack Ryder took top athlete honors in the gymnastics category. Ryder, a senior, led his team to the 13 spot nationally in the national tourney. His selection is his second in a row. His record numbered five wins against one loss.

Till narrowly won the track selection over teammates Don Ostergaard and Steve Long. The junior runner has been a consistent performer for the Seminoles all season when the heat was on. His performance in the 220, the 440, and mile relay helped his team more than once during the course of the season.

Whitehead, senior halfback on the grid team, was voted Most Valuable Player by his teammates; therefore, his selection should come as no surprise. Whitehead led his team in four departments during the campaign. He was the top rusher for 293 yards and an average carry of 3.6 yards. His 23 pass receptions added to his total of 53, a school career record. In punting and kickoff returns the halfback also led his teammates.

Joe Gusic, Gymkana Coach, who coordinated the meet said "I was very pleased with the meet in its entirety and am anticipating holding it again next year."

Gymkana and the Gymnastics Honorary sponsored the meet as well as the weekend, the banquet and the outing to Wakulla Springs Sunday.

Tribe Beats Moody Baseballers Twice

Anticipating a National Collegiate Athletic Association district three at-large berth, Florida State played two contests against the Moody Air Force Base nine over the weekend. The Tribe took both contests to make their season record stand at 22-5.

Jim Daniel went nine innings on the mound for the Tribe before being replaced by Jack Ross in the tenth inning. Daniel was unofficially the winner of the 6-2 affair.

In the second game the Seminoles won 6-5 in 11 innings. Ray McShane, starting pitcher for FSU, went nine innings before being relieved by Frank Davis. McShane fanned 13 men before being relieved. Jack Dull, leading Florida State batter, went three for five in the second game of the double header. He drove in the tying run in the ninth and pushed across the winning run in the tenth.

Although the games count on the official win-loss record, the players do not get credit for their individual performances.

Semnoles, the number six team in the nation according to Collegiate Baseball, are rated as the best team east of the Mississippi River. FSU has nearly clinched the NCAA bid for the fifth time in six years.

Teams ranked above the Florida State nine include the University of Southern California, Fresno, Arizona, Oklahoma State and Texas. The Tribe has not been out of the top ten ratings during the entire season.

During the season the Seminoles compiled an over-all .308 batting average with 278 hits as compared to a .238 opponnitn batting average. The Tribe scored 196 runs against 128.

Tars Upset Netters In Final Contest

The FSU varsity tennis squad was upset in a match Saturday by the Tars of Rollins 6-3. Earlier in the season FSU had stopped the Tars to break a twelve-year winning streak 8-1 at Rollins.

FSU won only two singles matches and one doubles match to take their fifth loss of the year. Rebel Bellamy, in the number one spot, stopped nationally ranked Luis Dominquez 6-1, 6-1, to wind up his collegiate career. Jamie Jameson took his sixth place match.

Bellamy and Gordy Smith won the number one doubles to add the only other win to FSU's meager score.

Buddy McClain also finished his collegiate career as he was defeated in both his singles and doubles matches.

With 45 entrants, the intramural wrestling championships came off without an injury last week. In team standing the KA's led the way behind first place winners Dunlap and Price.

The second and third placers were the Phi Delts and SAE's. Taking first for PDT were Bunn and Rodger, while Gandy and Monroe took first for the SAE's.

This was the best participation in four years for the grappling event. The intramural department credited the participation to Burd Berringer who has started a wrestling team at Florida State since joining the faculty.

Other winners were Greene, DeCola, and Margrotty. Greene and DeCola are DC's, and Margrotty is a PKT.

The opera was first performed May Day, 1786, in the Burg Theater, Vienna, said Richard Collins, director. It was performed in English as early as 1824, and will be performed in English at FSU.

Written by Mozart, the opera is the second of a trio of comedies by Beaumarchais, the first was used by Rossini for The Barber of Seville.

Women Over 21 Allowed Off-Campus Residences

In Response To Senate Recommendation The New Policy Will Go Into Effect In The Fall

By JOYCELYN WARD
Flambeau Staff Writer

Beginning in the Fall Florida State University women students over 21 will be allowed to live off-campus.

Dean of Women Katherine Warren, announced that the dean of students office instituted this policy in response to the recent resolution passed by the Student Senate recommending that 21 year old women be allowed to live off-campus, both as a part of their privileges and to help alleviate the upper class women's housing problem.

Miss Warren said the deans granted this resolution because they felt that women of that age had the right to live off campus if they so wished, but they expect the resolution to produce "no material difference in the conditions in residence halls."

APPLICATIONS

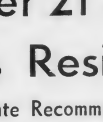
Applications for off-campus housing should be made to the office of the dean of women in order to have her application approved the student must meet the following qualifications.

She must be 21 before the opening of the Fall semester and may not have signed a contract for housing in university residence halls.

She must have a satisfactory citizenship record with the dean's office and she must have a 2 overall grade average. The deans felt that from several studies it has been proven that students in off-campus housing do not do as well academically as dormitory students. Therefore, students wishing to room off-campus must prove their academic ability.

Finally she must have written permission from her parents.

CLEARED AND APPROVED



After the application is approved of the dean of women's office her proposed housing must be cleared and approved by the housing office to insure adequate facilities at reasonable rates.

Of course special circumstances in individual cases may warrant special action, Miss Warren said.

It is difficult to estimate the number of students who will apply for off-campus housing in the Fall, but Miss Warren did say that this semester at least 12 women had applied for permission to live off-campus.

As the situation stands now the housing problem has no immediate solution. It started when 225 Kelly Cannon, Mygnon Champion, Jane Finchum, Scarlett Pogue, Debbie Ricketts and Bobby Sybrett.

Four sophomore tappees are Karen Edgar, Lou Rich, Nancy Sindon and Shannon Talbert.

Katherine Warren

Added to this more freshmen than ever have applied to FSU Miss Edith McCollum, Director of Housing said that applications for freshmen housing have been turned down since April 28. Even the waiting list now contains 216 names.

The university can house 2,942 women students At present there are approximately 3,700 applications in and only 600 students are expected to drop out over the Summer.

Miss McCollum said that any relief this new resolution can provide will help, but allowing 21 year old women to live off-campus will not solve the housing problem

Garnet Key Taps Coeds

Thirteen girl's were tapped for Garnet Key, women's leadership honorary Monday night

Juniors tapped are Sandy Asher, Carol Avera, Ann Brennan, Kelly Cannon, Mygnon Champion, Jane Finchum, Scarlett Pogue, Debbie Ricketts and Bobby Sybrett.

Four sophomore tappees are Karen Edgar, Lou Rich, Nancy Sindon and Shannon Talbert.

Flambeau Salaries Changed

BOP Holds Final Meeting And Makes Several Changes

By TONI DI CARLO
Asst. Associate Editor

Several changes in matters pertaining to publications were made Wednesday at the Board of Publications held its final meeting of the year.

One of the moves changed the salaries of four Flambeau staff members for next year, decreasing the pay of the managing editor and the news editor in order to increase the amounts given to the associate editor and the feature editor. Both of the students whose salaries will be cut were present and approved the move.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING

Another motion passed which will increase the rates charged for national advertising in the Flambeau from $1.12 per inch to $1.26 The board had originally agreed to increase it to $1.40, but revised the rate after receiving advice from their national advertising agent in Chicago.

The board also approved a "publications publication" to be distributed during Orientation Week for recruiting purposes.

Outgoing chairman of the board, Nancy Henderson, submitted 11 recommendations for next year's board. Among these were suggestions to replace interning members while they are gone, and that the quorum be changed to constitute a majority of the voting members, including at least one voting faculty member.

She also recommended that three absences should warrant the immediate replacement of members.

REPLACEMENTS

A replacement for a non-student would be appointed by the president of the university, while the student body president would appoint the replacement for a student

The board had a considerable amount of trouble this year in conducting business because of the lack of a quorum.

Miss Henderson also suggested that the status of the literary anthology, The Legend, be clarified and that the editor of this publication receive the same salary as the editor of the Smoke Signals receives for one issue.

She urged continued lobbying in an attempt to obtain approval from the Legislature for out-of-state printing for the Tally-Ho.

The final suggestions were for a "closer unity" of the board and for greater understanding between the members of the board and the editors of the publications.

EDITORS FEEL FREE

The out-going chairman reminded the old and new members present at the meeting that "as long as all staff members and editors feel free to present their problem to the Board of Student Publications without fear of embarrassment, ridicule, or apparent indifference," FSU publications would continue to rate All-American and the students will receive satisfaction in the materials for which they pay in their activities fees.

A letter was read from Sen. Rawls in reply to the letter sent to him by the board in April apologizing for a letter to the editor concerning hum which was printed in the Flambeau.

Sen. Rawls stated that "it certainly was not necessary to apologize" for the letter but thanked the board and sent his best wishes to the student paper.

2 Students, Coed Hurt

Violence Provoked By 'Hunger Strike' Signs

Two male Florida State University students were beaten and a coed was struck in the face with a fist from a moving car Tuesday. The separate but related incidents occurred in the 600 block of West Pensacola Street near the FSU campus.

Pat DeSercey and Michael Gallagher sustained cuts and bruises from unidentified persons as the climax to the removal of several signs reading "Support Hunger Strike For Equality." The students had posted the signs in support of the hunger strike started May 7, by former FSU student Jefferson Poland.

The signs had been removed on several occasions by persons identified by DeSercey as students from a local high school. The same persons are believed to have administered the beatings in which two other FSU men, Ormond Ortves and Bill Trotts, were roughed up.

The coed, Mary Ellen Fisher, said she was struck in the stomach by "a tin of floor wax" thrown from a moving car as she was talking with the students who erected the signs. This occurred about 9:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Police are identified as one of those which had been cruising the area earlier in the afternoon.

Although no action has been taken, Lt. Gordon W. Blackwell, Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby and the Tallahassee police were informed of the incident. Dr. Oglesby went to the area and spoke with the students and wives involved.

They were "fine, sincere young people with fine ideals, and really enjoyed talking with them," the dean commented. He added that he "did not want students to be the object of violence"

President Blackwell said he knew nothing of the incident and decined to comment.

New Senate Takes Action

The newly-elected student Senate approved the Florida State University Affiliate of the American Finance Association; as a campus organization in their first meeting Wednesday.

Approval of the Finance Association was recommended by Marion Clark, new Attorney General, who described the association as primarily for those students majoring in finance. He also said that the organization would provide field trips, special projects, and talks presented by business and financial leaders.

Following welcomes by van Ausdenen, Men's Vice President Carl Kuttler, and Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, van Assendenp announced the appointment of Sens. Nancy Sindon, Clyda Stokes, and Gene Brown to the Board of Directors for Student Enterprises, Inc.

Faculty Senate Rejects New Honor Amendment

No action to extend recognition to the revised Academic Honor System was taken by the Faculty Senate at its Wednesday meeting, said Dr. Lewis Killian, chairman of the Senate Steering committee.

By taking no action on the amendment, the Faculty Senate has recommended that the proposed amendment not be accepted, said Bobby Byrd, student body president.

The bill has been sent to President Gordon W. Blackwell and it is now up to him to decide if the Student Body Constitution amendment shall become effective.

If the university administration approves the amendment to the Student Body Constitution, the "old" Honor System, now recognized by the faculty, will no longer be effective.

The conditional recognition of the revised honor system extended by the Faculty Senate were not met, so that a The version accepted by the Faculty Senate was amended.

b. The student government bill did not pass by the stipulated majority of 90 per cent.

AMENDMENT

The amendment to the Student Body Constitution passed Student Senate and was approved by the Student body by a vote of 1,410 to 966.

Since the Honor System changes were in the form of a Constitutional amendment, which requires only a majority vote of 25 per cent of the student body, the Student Senate had no means to require a 90 percent approval, without first revising the Constitution.

In addition to minor changes in wording which do not seem to change the sense of the honor system tentatively approved by the Faculty Senate Jan 18, a modification was made by the Student Senate to Section 6, "Penalties."

The provision, "Any student found guilty of violating the Code of Academic Honor shall be recommended for suspension from the university for a minimum of one semester," was modified by the addition of the clause, "except in extraordinary cases."

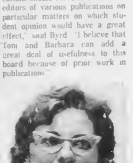
Byrd Picks BOP Members

Toni DiCarlo and Barbara Hornbeck have been appointed to the Board of Publications by Student Body President Bobby Byrd. The appointments filled the two remaining positions on the board.

Toni DiCarlo

which consists of three faculty members and three members elected by the student body.



Miss DiCarlo, a sophomore, has worked on publications for two years. She has been a staff reporter on the Florida Flambeau and has been appointed assistant associate editor of the paper for 1961-62

Miss DiCarlo has also served on a committee of the secretary of campus communication.

Miss Hornbeck, a sophomore, has edited The Statesman, the Student Government newsletter. She has also worked on the Tally-Ho staff.

Miss Hornbeck was also on the secretary of campus communication's committee

"The Board of Student Publications should serve to advise our editors of various publications on particular matters on which student opinion would have a great effect," said Byrd. "I believe that Toni and Barbara can add a great deal of usefulness to the board because of prior work in publications."

History Has Great Impact On Africa, Says Rev. Russell

History as well as racial differences have had the great impact on South African life, said Rev. W. R. Russell, an Anglican priest and missionary to South Africa in speech to university students Tuesday night.

Mr. Russell who was visiting under the sponsorship of the Society of the Resurrection-Rugby Westminster House, spoke on the overall topic, "South Africa: Its Problems and Its Possibilities."

Speaking of the many problems faced by the new Republic of South Africa, Rev. Russell reported that the African has been absorbed into the white man's economy to perform menial tasks. He said that when military forces took over industry and in the world he world was no longer after "the African is unable to govern himself."

The future of South Africa, Rev. Russell continued, will be decided by several factors including relations of three million whites to 10 million Africans, educational and housing advancements, influence of communism and the political role taken by churches.

When asked about possible war in the future for South Africa, Rev. Russell stated that he could see no actual war in the near future, but there might possibly be guerrilla warfare.

Concerning Communist influence he remarked, "there are many Communist workers there, but the Africans are cautious in their relations to Russia. He closed, saying, "Africa is ready to work in terms of co-operation and the majority of Africans are not asking for more than a fair share."

Questions To Be Answered

About 300 undergraduate and graduate students will be excused from class Tuesday at 2 p.m. to complete an extensive questionnaire on student life for the university self-study.

Participating students have received letters from President Gordon W. Blackwell requesting them to attend the meeting in Westcott. Students and Student Life Committee Chairman Dr. Donald Loucks said.

Any class absence will be excused by the personal authorization of President Blackwell. Class excuses will be given at completion of the questionnaire.

The purpose of the self-study is "to enable us to better discern our strengths and weaknesses and to enable us to get a clearer picture of the role, scope and function of this University for the next ten years," the president's letter said.

"One very important part of this self-study is to get some information about our student body. We need to know something about the background of our students, their reactions to different aspects of university life, their future plans and goals," the letter continued.

An information obtained from the questionnaires will be confidential and will be treated in the final report only in terms of percentages and groups.

The students were selected to answer the questionnaire by 10 percent random sample of the student body.

Guilt By Registration?

Approximately one half of the FSU students seeking entrance to the summer school session may be forced to spend at least one night somewhere in Tallahassee unless an agreement is reached between the housing office and the registrar's department.

APPARENTLY, THERE has been a breakdown in communications between these two offices. Registration for the summer session will start on Saturday, June 17, but according to the housing office the dormitories will not open until 9 a.m. on Sunday, the 18th.

This situation becomes completely ridiculous in view of the fact that women students, once they have registered, are under university jurisdiction and are not allowed to spend the night in a hotel or motel. Even to stay with adult friends in Tallahassee requires the approval of the residence counsellor, and the girl must sign out through the front office of her dorm or else she is guilty of judiciary offense. Surely there must be a way to keep all these girls from appearing before the university court before classes even start.

USUALLY THE DORMS are opened at least 24 hours before registration starts so the students can get a few hours of rest after their trip before fighting for their class cards. This time, students will have to wait 24 hours after registering and paying the housing fees before they can claim their rooms.

We hope that some adjustment can be made to accommodate these students, since the delay may cause a financial drain in the form of motel bills as well as an inconvenience to those returning for the summer classes. Because of the red tape involved in registering, it would probably be more practical to hasten the date of dorm opening rather than to delay registration.

However, if it is impossible to do either, we ask that the dean of women waive the rules for the nights of June 16 and 17, so women students can not be prosecuted for offenses that they have been forced by the university to commit.

Lobbyists Should Report Soon

What has been accomplished by the Florida State University Lobby Committee that swung into action at the beginning of this 1961 legislative session?

This organization was well publicized prior to its actual meetings with state lawmakers. Two hundred or more FSU students were to act as go-betweens for the needs of FSU and the willingness of our Senators and Representatives to meet those needs.

Without doubt the lobbyists have been making regular reports back to university officials concerning the issues which have been discussed and the attitudes that the men from Capitol hill have exhibited towards those issues. This is all it should be, and there is no quarrel with that.

HOWEVER, SINCE it is in the interest of each and every student at FSU to know what has been accomplished and by whom, we feel that the time is very near for our lobbyists to begin to make concrete statements for student consumption. They represented us, and we must, will and need to know to what degree and in what manner.

eration was and whether it accomplished much or little in our behalf.

Offical statements may be forthcoming from members of the administration who were working with the lobby committee. This is well and good, but it can be hoped that such statements will be bluntly honest and not neat, square, hollow phrases that are tied loosely in sparkling grammar and prose but succeed only in keeping the majority non-lobbyist students in the dark.

IT MAY BE GOOD politics to hold your cards to your vest but they have to be placed on the table sooner or later. In this particular card game every student enrolled at FSU was backing the men and women from campus who represented us downtown. We would like to know now which column the game should be credited to: won, lost or rained out.

The Violent Need Temperance

Recent incidents have exploded racial tension in Tallahassee and this can have no other result except violence, which we have already tasted.

Such violence can have no good result. The fires of racial hatred are ugly ones no matter from where they come.

It is the constitutional right of an American citizen to put up anything of his choosing on his own property as long as it abides by the laws of decency. And it is his right to be protected from violence while exercising those rights.

However, in view of the situation, we feel that both sides should use temperance in their action. We would caution those who rightly take stands for their beliefs to use temperance in their actions, and we hope that those who perpetrate the violence are apprehended and dealt with severly.

It is our hope that both sides will respect the feelings of the other and not stir up a recurrance of unwanted violence.

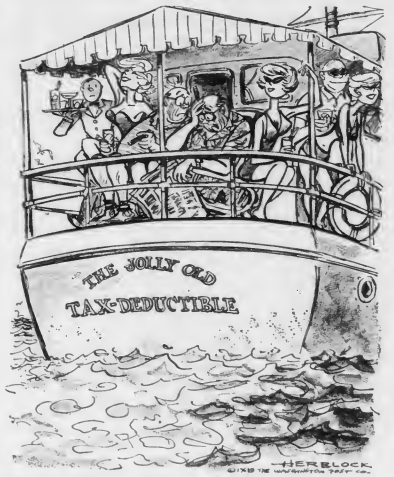
Columnist Never Had 'Modern' Advantages

By LESLIE POWELL

It must be great fun to be a bona fide juvenile delinquent. I think I must have missed something when I was in high school. Back in those dark ages we worried more about being called to fight in Korea than we did about beating up each other and anybody else that crossed our path.



NOR WOULD WE have been so quick to trespass and destroy anything that lay on private property. Maybe we didn't have the refined modern outlook and its fringe benefits of nights spent slouching around truck stops, corner drugstores, pool halls, etcetera, but it didn't take a "Posted" sign to keep us off other people's property.

One of the basic cornerstones of this nation is the right to own private property. Two rather inherent rights that accompany private ownership are respect for the other person's property and a definite freedom to defend your own. Apparently there are parents who have been so busy teaching Junior how to watch TV Week and tell the time from the channel number that they have omitted such niceties as learning to respect the ownership of others and the ideas of others, even if you don't believe as they do. These are the people who breed little buckets of paint with brushes for arms and legs. These same little buckets are those that have gone about in other cities around the world painting swastikas on synagogues, or kicking and stamping old people and youngsters to death. They are the kind of people who are most susceptible to the blandishments of such outrageous units as Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi Party.

ONE OF THE major headaches of the various branches of the US military has been the abundance of young "men" who have joned voluntarily because the police in various cities and towns around the country have advised a change of scene or have hinted at not too veiled consequences if the long hair-ed, foul mouthed, cheating, thieving nothings didn't get out of town. These precious young things spend, among them, a generous amount of their military careers behind bars. They are drunk, disorderly, steal cars, bang through plate glass windows, steal, lie, sleep on guard duty, smoke in ammunition dumps and do anything else that could conceivably result in a courts martial or, in the intervention of local police in this country or another.

Where is the vaunted American optimism that is loudly proclaimed to all comers? Where are property rights? Where is respect for personal disciplines? And where are the mothers and fathers whose sons are out brawling in the streets? No doubt they're at home, snugly watching The Untouchables.

"Private Enterprise Has Been Dealt Another Blow. The Government Wants Us To Pay For This Ourselves"

Why Fight?

Communism's Great Flaw

B H. RICHARD BLIEDEN

(EDITOR'S NOTE; Mr. Blieden's column will be conclud-ed in Monday's Flambeau.)

"The Communist military might is invincible. How can you expect to overcome its force?"

This is an old fallacy. A fellow by the name of Hitler believed it and look what happened to him. Certainly times are different now and Russia is indeed a strong nation with great resources. Likewise, Communist China is not to be underestimated. But let it be clearly understood that no man and no group has special access to infinite wisdom or eternal strength. Any effort aimed at the complete enslavement of humanity under one man-conceived system is doomed to failure.

THIS DOOM IS no prejudice on my part, but rather a conclusion drawn from the actual facts of Communism. It is no secret that Communism seems to hold a particular appeal to scientifically oriented persons. And well it should, since it received its greatest inspiration from late nineteenth century science which at that time seemed to have an almost complete understanding of the world around us. Since that time many new and surprising things have been discovered which completely destroyed the previous unity of explanation. This does not come as a surprise to members of the scientific world for intelligent scientists have always recognized the limitations of the scientific method. Within its realm of application it is a marvelous tool, but outside that realm it is useless.

Thus, the disruption of the unity and completeness of the scientists' understanding of the world about him did not destroy his belief in a more fundamental and more immense unity than he himself could ever hope to comprehend. Unfortunately, not everyone understands this important distinction which the mature scientist makes. Too often the undiscriminate application of the scientific method has led to complete nonsense.

A notable example of this misapplicatoan is the reasoning that led to the ideology of Communism. For it misconstrued the apparent unity of nineteenth century science to mean that everything including humanity could be understood and unified in one crowning blow. It is certain that the unity of the universe must be reflected in humanity. But it is erroneous for one man or one group of men to try to impose their own view from above. Just as the unity of the universe is at once reflected in each elementary particle of the real world, but yet not fully comprehended from knowing it alone, so it is that one human being is the possessor of this unity of disdom, but only in the most infinitesimal amount.

IF WE CAN ignite this all important spark of truth within the people under Communist domination as well as within ourselves, we will have exposed the greatest flaw in the armor of our adversary. The Communist rulers know and fear this weakness. They know that there is less to fear from our most destructive weapons than from independent thoughts that only an individual can have. By increasing our military preparedness and pressuring our thought in a positive manner we will greatly influence the thought of people under the Communist rule. When they begin to understand that we are not weak and we are not decadent, but strong and positive, we will have succeeded in penetrating their warped environment. Then will their government be forced to recognize them as individuals. This step in itself will be a great ideological victory for our way of life. By these simple methods alone, we can confidently plan for the conquest of Communist military and ideological forces.

"Look at the many inequalities and injustices within our own society. How can we expect the rest of the world to believe the sincerity of our convictions when our domestic image is so tarnished?"

Education Most Important Government Function Of All

By EUGENE S. LAWLER
Professor of Education

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Lawler has done studies on federal aid to education for the US Government.)

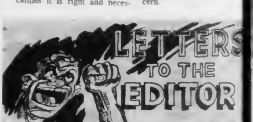
The bill before Congress to grant federal aid to public elementary and secondary education may not pass because of a strange ambivalence on the part of many federal and state legislators. They are eager for aid to build barge canals and h a r b o r improvements, for roads, for old age assistance, for airports, for hospitals, for agricultural aid, but not for education, the most important and truly governmental function of them all. The chief reason given is the fear of federal control.

THE ONLY CLEAR example of aid in recent times on a broad general basis as the present bill for federal aid in Congress is, is the aid for land grant colleges which has been in effect for almost one hundred years. There has never been any complaint of federal interference or control.

The fear of federal control seems all the more unfounded when the fact that all states leave the management of schools to their localities, despite relatively large amounts of state aid, is taken into account. Why should the federal government desire to take the management of education from the states or localities if it grants aid to the states?

ALMOST EVERY argument for state aid applies equally for federal aid. The reasoning leading to state aid starts with the proposition that all children must be educated to increase their productivity, welfare, civic capacity, and capability for democracy.



Since some communities cannot or can barely provide good educational opportunities for their children; since the state has access to more different kinds of taxes and is a better tax gatherer than the locality; since, because of the mobility of population, the future citizens of any given locality will come from many different localities it is right and necessary that the state participate in the financing of education. But each reason cited for state aid with equal or greater force for federal aid for education and federal aid for education federal government. Since any state, is concerned with the productivity, welfare, capacity, and powers of defense of its future citizens

THE STATES VARY greatly in wealth and ability to support education, and just as a state is a better tax gatherer than its localities, so is the federal government a better tax gatherer than the states, as large numbers of the wealthiest of the nation live in states cited elsewhere to serve large numbers of the citizens of the state educated in other states.

Some opposition to federal aid arises from inability to agree to go back to the local level of government. If aid is sure in this unwritten law it is that localism will not return. We may be able to retain some of the values of yesteryear-years, but it will be through intelligent governmental organization to allow each state to help itself. This has been true in economic affairs for a long time. For instance, at the end of the Civil War a protective tariff was imposed which enriched the industrial North and East at the expense of the agricultural South and West.

ONE RESULT WAS industrial practices which carried us through two world wars in spite of its injustices paid the tariff was gone. There was right to tax the imported South and the West to build up the South and East from 1870 to 1920's, it is now right to aid the prosperous North and East for the education of the children of the South, and most to tax the whole nation for the education of all children.

Each level of government should promote education the late Professor Calhoun's state sovereignty and local responsibility as a function, and a national concern."

The 'International' Party

TO THE EDITOR:

I have recently read several letters which call for an integrated or "international" party. In these letters concepts such as freedom, justice and equality are bandied about by diverse people of varied opinion.

I do not wish to, at this time, discuss the question of integration or the conduct of mutual races. However, I am quite concerned with the part Dean Loucks and the administration played in this incident. Many of the letters made in situations implying that Dean Loucks, as a representative of the university, was in collusion with the police.

This is quite an unfair attitude to take towards a man who was available, rather early in the morning, in order to intercede for certain University students' acts. Dean Loucks was extending University protection to students engaged in a non-university activity. Speaking to the police in behalf of the students, it is probability, Dean Loucks was a mitigative factor upon the police action which resulted. While letters have come from denouncing his action, no mention, aside from that of one, has been taken by the Dean.

I do not mean to justify or condemn the police action, but I make easy comment on principles involved by the city and following incidents. I do wish to have expressed my feeling that the only action thus far taken by the university was for the protection of benefit of its students.

Bill Trotts Be Praised . . .

TO THE EDITOR:

Mr. Bill Trotts is to be praised for the International races organized by him at his home, because the success of Peace Corps can be viewed only when the Americans are associating themselves with Asians and Africans, not only abroad, but also here in the USA

In my opinion, the participation of Mr. Bill Trotts contributes to the creation of a local atmosphere of better understanding between men belonging to different nations and different races.

13th Day Of Hunger Strike

TO THE EDITOR:

This Friday is the 13th day without food for a former FSU student who is conducting a hunger strike to protest segregated lunch counters in local chain stores. He hopes to continue his strike until the local branches of Woolworth's, McCrory's, Sears, Neisner's, and Walgreen agree to desegregate.

Students and faculty who share his belief in equality should write the local managers of the five stores and make it clear to them that they will not subsidize segregation by shopping where it is practiced.

Buck Hiles Receives 'Athlete Of The Year' Award

Tribe Takes Baseball Bid

The talent-laden Florida State baseball team officially received notice from the National Collegiate Athletic Association selection committee that it had copped its fifth NCAA bid within the past six years.

The Seminoles will participate in the district three tourney which starts on June 1 in Gastonia, North Carolina. The team which defeats its opponents in the double elimination battle will then make the jaunt to Omaha Nebraska for the World Series of College Baseball, which pits the eight best teams in the country.

Since Coach Danny Littlefield took over the tribe he has led his athletes to five NCAA district bids and has gained one try at the College World Series. He describes this year's squad as "the best I've ever coached."

Litlefield added that teamwork was the basis for the team's success. He does not credit the tribe's record to a particularly outstanding pitcher or hitter but to good balance.

The diamond men have combined their talents for a winning percentage of .815 with 22 wins and five losses. Their all team batting average stands at .308 as compared to a .258 average for their opposition.

TRIBE MEETS FORT BENNING

This weekend the Florida State baseballers travel to Fort Benning, Georgia for a three-game series. The Student Brigade will furnish the action in Friday night's contest. On Saturday the tribe meets the Second Howitzer Battalion, 10th Artillery and U. S. Army Infantry Center Troop Command. Wins in these three games would break the former win record for a single season.

hurlers had an earned run average of 3.62, while the tribe batters averaged 6.01 earned runs.

The starting Seminole pitchers, Frank Davis, Ray McShane, and Jim Daniel, had total of 16 wins and three losses. Davis, who holds the school's career won-loss record, had a 6-1 mark and a 3.04 earned run average.

Daniel's record stands at 6-1 also, and he has an earned run average of 3.54. Other pitchers who contributed to the win-loss record were Frank Rebels at 2-0; Jerry Turner with a 1-1 mark and Jack Ross, whose record stood at 1-1.

The tribe is ranked as the best team east of the Mississippi River and is rated as the sixth best team in the nation. Other teams which may get invitations to the tournament include North Carolina, a 10-1 FSU victim, and LSU. Usually four teams are represented in the tourney, a Southeastern Conference school, one from the Atlantic Coast Conference, a Southern Conference entrant, and an at-large nominee.

FSU Thinclads Travel To Compete In Georgia AAU

By VICKI WARDEN and PAM BRAY

Half of the Florida State thinclads will participate in the Georgia AAU meet at Atlanta this weekend. Some of the teams that will be represented are Georgia Tech, Auburn, and the Atlanta Striders.

Tech and Auburn will enter full teams. Ron Harrison, last year's Athlete of the Year for Florida State, will run for the Atlanta Striders, an aspiring group of trackstars who put on an impressive show in the Florida AAU meet.

Track coach Mike Long, who has had an exceptional 31-5 dual meet during his seven years as head track coach, hopes that the Seminoles will "make good." The tribe had had a good season with a 4-1 record in dual meet competition and capped its fourth straight Florida AAU championship by racking up 34½ points to second place Miami's 42 points.

The Seminoles will compete in nine running events and five field events. FSU varsity entries will include Craig Johnson, Quentin Till, Jack Brocksmith, Terry Long, Dave Ellis, Herb Kraft, George Smith, Steve Long, Jeff Clark, Barry Topper, and Gene Goldena. Freshmen entered are Al Williams and Tommy Bourne.

Representing Florida State in the 440 and the 220 will be Quentin Till, one of the Flambeau's nominees for athlete of the year. Till, who runs a fast 440, is considered one of the most valuable members of the team. In the Florida AAU meet he was one of the standouts. He won the 440-yard dash decisively in 48.1 seconds, tied for first in the 220, and ran anchor on the mile relay team.

Craig Johnson, the Seminole century man, will compete in the 100 and 220 events. This season he has been a consistent runner and has been high point man in several meets.

In the highs and the lows will be Dave Ellis and Terry Long, the coach's son. Terry, who holds the school, track, and FSU Florida meet records in his specialty, the 220 low hurdles, will also be a constituent in the mile relay team.

Accompanying Terry in the mile relay will be Till, Johnson, and Jack Brocksmith. Brocksmith will also represent the tribe as a hall-miler.

Florida State's heavers Jeff Clark and Barry Topper will perform to the shot putt event. Clark will also throw the discus. He owns the FSU-Miami meet record in this event. Topper is also entered in the javelin throw.

A trio of top ranking Seminoles will execute leaps in the high jump. George Smith is the present owner of the school record which rests the bar at the 6-6 mark. This record was established at the Florida AAU meet a few weekends ago. Herb Kraft and Steve Long, who held the record prior to Smith, are the other two Seminole high jumpers.

Kraft, along with Gene Giddens, will also perform in the broad jump. He holds the FSU-Miami record in this event and has tied the school record at 23½ twice this season. This Seminole is the only tribe member who won his specialty in every dual meet this year.

Freshman Al Williams will put the shot and throw the discus, and Tommy Bourne, another freshman, will perform in the high jump.

Netters Win Tourney Bid

Rebel Bellamy and Paul Scarpa, top Florida State varsity netters, are competing in the Charleston Invitational this weekend in Charleston, South Carolina. Selected from top-ranking tennists in the South, Bellamy and Scarpa will be competing in both singles and doubles categories.

Bellamy has been number one man for FSU for the past two seasons and has compiled a singles record of 23-5 for them. He has an identical record in doubles competition with Gordy Smith, ' partner.

He has beeo the holder of several western and northwestern singles, doubles and mixed-doubles titles. He was runner-up in the Anniston Invitational last year when he played with national-ranked John Pawlesn.

Paul Scarpa, number two for the Seminole tennis team, is a transfer from a junior college in South Carolina. He is currently ranked high in the Southern Region and is considered one of the best players in South Carolina.

Competing against Bellamy and Scarpa will be six other well-known netters including Benny Yarn of Citadel, Bob Nichols of Georgia Tech (ranked 3rd in the South), and Leslie Loogshore of Clemson.

By SAM McCALL

All-American swimmer Buck Hiles was selected as the Flambeau Athlete of the Year by the Flambeau Sports Staff. Hiles was selected from eight nominees representing each intercollegiate sport at Florida State.

This is the third year that Hiles has represented the swimming team as its nominee. He was nominated in 1959 when he was a member of the All-American swimming team. Again in 1960 he was representative of the tribe tankers even though he missed All-American honors,mainly due to sickness.

Hiles was selected over nominees Rebel Bellamy, Jack Ryder, Jack Dull, Quentin Till, Bud Whitehead, Downing Gray, and Dave Fedor. Bellamy, Ryder and Fedor were nominated for their second time for the Flambeau award. All three were nominees last year.

Hiles ended his collegiate career at the NCAA Championships at Seattle, Washington in April. Here he set two school records and took sixth in the 100-yard Butterfly event and tenth in the 200-yard butterfly competition. In the 100-yard event Hiles was timed at 53.4 seconds and in the 200-yard competition he registered 2:07.3 minutes.

HILES REWRITES RECORDS

The records have been rewritten time and again since Hiles joined the swimming team in his freshman year in 1957. His record-breaking feats are too numerous for this recounting, however, the feats of this past season must be noted in part. He set a meet, pool and school record in the 200-yard medley with a timing of 2.09 in the Georgia dual meet.

At SMU where FSU took its only loss of the season Hiles broke this record with a pool and school record of 2.08 seconds. Also at this meet he set a school freestyle record with a 51.2 second time.

Against the University of Florida he set a meet and pool record in the 200-yard freestyle with a 2.08 and set a meet record in the 100-yard freestyle at 51.4 seconds.

In the Georgia Tech meet he set a pool and meet record in the 200-yard medley at 2.10. In another match with Georgia, Hiles set a pool and meet record of 2.09.

In the Georgia AAU competition Hiles set a meet record in the 200-yard medley at 2.11 and a pool record in the 200-yard butterfly event with a 2.09 and a meet record in the 100-yard butterfly at 53.4 seconds.

Hiles is the first swimmer to win this award that was initiated in 1956. Other winners have been Lee Curso for football; Frank Shuwer for baseball; Hugh Durham for basketball; and Ron Harrison for track.

Fraternity brother and teammate of Hiles, Curt Genders said "Buck always put the team ahead of personal glory. He was a very good teammate and a great morale builder. No doubt he is the best swimmer that FSU ever had."

Flambeau editor Ben Sharp says "Hiles deserves this award not only for his outstanding work during his career. He was selected because of his outstanding contributions to the team and the leadership he exhibited in this capacity."

EVERY COLLEGE STUDENT needs this book

to increase his ability to learn

An understanding of the truth contained in Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy can remove the pressure which concerns today's college student upon whom increasing demands are being made for academic excellence.

Christian Science editors fear and gives to the student the full assurance he needs in order to learn easily and to evaluate what he has learned. It teaches that God is man's Mind—his only Mind—from which emanates all the intelligence he needs, when and as he needs it.

Science and Health, the textbook of Christian Science, may be read or examined, together with the Bible, in an atmosphere of quiet and peace, at any Christian Science Reading Room. Information about Science and Health may also be obtained on campus through the

Lawrencium, Element 103

New Elements Becoming More Difficult To Discover

With the discovery of Lawrencium, element 103, has come the fact that elements are becoming increasingly more difficult to discover.

Dr. T. Sikkeland, Almon Larsh, Albert Ghiorso and Robert Latimer, responsible for the discovery of 103, work at the Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley, Cal., for the explicit purpose of seeking undiscovered elements. It is from this laboratory that the discovery of the synthetic elements since Plutonium, no. 84, has come.

FSU PROFESSOR

It was in this Radiation Laboratory that Dr. Gregory R. Choppin, associate professor of chemistry at Florida State University, worked on the discovery of elements 99 through 102.

Dr. Choppin, completing his graduate work at the University of Texas, left to work with Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg at the Radiation Laboratory in 1953. Two years were necessary for the verification of elements 99 and 100 and another two for element 101. Dr. Choppin explained that such time was required because of the minute samples of the element with which they were working.

Lawrencium, named after Ernest Lawrence, founder of the Radiation Laboratory, completes one of the series of elements in the periodic table of elements. This series, called the actinides starts with Actinium, no. 89, and ends with this newly discovered element.

Dr. Choppin pointed out that Dr. Seaborg originally proposed the new proven idea that the actinides form a series of elements similar in properties to the rare earth series. As a result of this similarity, properties of the undiscovered elements could be predicted by comparison. Consequently, an approach to discovering the new elements was facilitated.

In discovering Lawrencium, another artificially produced element, Californium 103, served as a target for nuclei of Boron atoms which recieved their energy from a linear accelerator. The newly formed atom, a combination of Boron and Californum, was then detected by radiation counters. The investigation of its chemical and physical properties was an almost impossible task since the time required for half of the atoms of the sample of Lawrencium to disintegrate was only eight seconds.

MAGNETIC PROPERTIES

Dr. Choppin and his associates are presently interested in the magnetic properties of the atomic nucleus. Their research at FSU is supplemented by sending target samples of certain elements and compounds to the Laboratory at Berkeley. At the Laboratory, the targets are bombarded by atomic particles produced by means of a linear accelerator and are then returned to FSU for study.

Dr. Sikkeland and Dr. Choppin have published a paper on an isotope of Einsteinium, element 99, one of the elements on whose discovery both chemists worked.

Dr. Choppin is presently s... the release of his new book ... mental Nuclear Chemistry" ... Prentice-Hall.

Wayne Barnes Will Head '61-'62 Cheerleading Squad

Wayne Barnes was elected head cheerleader for 1961-62 last week by the seven members of this year's squad.

Wayne Barnes

Along with the title of head cheerleader he will assume the post of undersecretary of student affairs.

Barnes graduated from Robert E Lee High School in Jacksonville. He is a sophomore and next year will be his second year on the cheering squad. He is also a member of the Marketing Club, Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising honorary; and Theta Chi social fraternity. He is majoring in advertising.

Barnes and other members of next year's cheering squad will return from their vacations early to begin practice for next year's schedule during orientation week.

Next year the new cheerleaders will be chosen before the Florida game, but will not cheer until after the game. Barnes said the cheerleading squad will expand to twelve with the addition of two boys and two girls. This expansion is being made so that the cheerleaders can better cover the field "in hopes that it will incite more school spirit."

TV Reruns To Begin Tonight

A series of half-hour programs, "Legislature '61," is being rerun over Florida State University educational television station WFSU-TV beginning tonight for the benefit of viewers who have missed one or more of them.

The programs, which have been aired weekly, have featured Governor C. Farris Bryant, legislators, state officials and representatives of the FSU Government Dept., which has planned the series.

Traffic Committee Bans On Campus Driving For All Students But Seniors

By BEN C. SHARP
Flambeau Editor

Students below the senior level will be banned from driving on campus between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday beginning in September.

This is the first of a series of traffic regulation changes recommended by the Student-Faculty Traffic Committee and approved by Dean of Students Dr. R. R. Oglesby.

Students with less than junior standing will be prohibited from having automobiles in Leon County beginning in September, 1962, and no undergraduate student will be permitted to drive on campus between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday beginning in September, 1963, because of action taken.

Dr. Oglesby stressed that his action has been under consideration for quite a while.

"This comes as a result of extensive study by the Faculty-Senate Committee," Dr. Oglesby. The administration has just approved the recommendation."

COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN

Dr. James Carr, chairman of the committee, said the reason for the rule changes was the great increase in student automobile registration.

"The percentage increase in the number of cars is greater than the increase in percentage of total enrollment," Dr. Carr stated.

"This is because of a large number of transfer students from junior colleges and the number of graduate students. The main increases have come at the upper levels of the Student Body," Carr continued.

Dr. Carr pointed out that there has been a rule preventing sophomores from having cars on the books since 1957, when the Board of Control passed the regulation. However, the rule had been held in abeyance until the problem became acute.

He estimated that there were over 6,000 cars registered on campus including faculty, staff and students.

"We're moving in the right direction," the chairman stated. "This will help solve problems in traffic control that have been increasing steadily," he added.

CAMPUS AREA

The campus is defined by the committee as the area bounded by Copeland St. on the east, Woodward St. on the west, West Jefferson St. on the south, and Palmetto to Dewey to West Call St. on the north.

Exceptions to the no automobiles in Leon County rule for cars on campus Automobiles will be registered in September and the income from this registration will be used to support the traffic program. Surplus funds obtained from this registration will go into scholarships.

Elimination of parking on West Call St. will be extended from Dewey St. to Woodward St.

Parking on Ivy Way from the north end of Longmire Bldg to Westcott will be reserved for faculty members. Four 30-minute spaces will be reserved in front of Longmire Bldg for cars of guests and other vehicles registered to operate on campus.

Carl Butler

Butler, Bedell Are Honored Seniors

The selection of Carl Butler and Martha Bedell as outstanding senior man and woman was announced Saturday night at the annual Spring Formal given in honor of the Senior Class.

Miss Bedell and Butler were elected by members of the Senior Class.

Joe Wagoner Dies Sunday

Joseph Charles Wagoner, 21, Florida State University freshman died Sunday morning in Tallahassee Memorial Hospital.

He died of injuries sustained when he was riding in the back of a motorcycle and was hit from behind by a car. Wagoner and driver of the motorcycle, Terry Clark, were traveling over the overpass on U.S. 90 when the accident occurred. They had returned to West Hall from the show when Joe left decided to go in a motel swimming pool about midnight.

The accident occurred at 12:10, a.m. and sent both students to the Tallahassee Memorial. Wagoner died at 8 a.m. Sunday morning. Clark, a freshman from Cleveland, has remained in the hospital with undetermined injuries.

Funeral services for Joe Wagoner will be held tomorrow in Miami. Joe Manover, representative from the dean of men's office will attend the funeral, taking friends of Wagoner's with him.

Wagoner graduated from Southwest High School in Miami. He was a pledge in Sigma Chi social fraternity.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward E. Martin of Miami.

Students Answer Questions For FSU Self-Study Today

It is vitally important that students who were selected to answer the student life questionnaire come to Westcott Auditorium at 3 p.m. today, said Dr. Donald Loucks, chairman of the student life committee.

The committee, a part of the university self-study group, has prepared a rather extensive questionnaire designed to show the background, ideas, future plans and goals of Florida State University students.

In order for the results of the survey to be valid, all of the selected 10 per cent of the student body have to complete the questionnaire, Dr. Loucks said.

Answers will be confidential and in no case will they be treated other than by percentages and groups. Students will not be required to sign the questionnaires, but a roll will be taken.

Any student who must miss a class in order to complete the questionnaire will be given an excused absence.

Results of the survey will be tabulated and studied as a part of the self-study effort to "get a clearer picture of the role, scope and functions of this University for the next ten years." President Gordon W. Blackwell said in the letter to the participating students.

Steel Fellowship

A new fellowship from the United States Steel Foundation is available at Florida State University for graduate study in the fields of music, child development or meteorology.

Dr. Thomas R. Lewis, acting dean of the Graduate School, said the fellowship, for the 1961-1962 school year, provides $1500 for a single student or $2100 for a married student.

Administration Approves Honor System Ammendments

Dean of Students Dr. R. R. Oglesby has announced that administrative approval has been given to the Honor System amendments which the student body passed in last election.

One portion of the proposed amendment, forbidding the faculty to stay in the room for the duration of proctoring or monitoring an examination, did not meet with administration approval since the Faculty Senate had not registered its approval.

At the last meeting of Faculty Senate a quorum was not present to take action on the amendments. And Dr. Oglesby expressed his desire to discover faculty reaction to the controversial portion of the amendment before giving his approval.

"Since the faculty hasn't had time to approve it," stated the dean of students, "we'll abide in abeyance." Action on this part of the bill should come in the Fall.

Before giving his approval to the bill Dean Oglesby consulted with several members of the student body directly concerned with the amendments, including Bobby Byrd, Ken van Assenderp, Myron Chapman, Dan Walhohl and members of Honor Court.

The amendments will go into effect in the fall. "This is the best we can do for the time being," commented Dr. Oglesby. "I hope," he added, "it'll be the beginning of a stronger and more effective honor system for both faculty and students."

Summer Activities Being Planned

By ANN CARROLL
Flambeau Staff Writer

Many leisure-time activities are planned for all students who will be on campus for the Summer Session.

Miss Marie Williams, director of Summer School activities, emphasized the importance of students getting and reading carefully the Summer Recreation Bulletin for 1961. In this booklet they will find activities, dates, times and prices.

Miss Williams, with the help of her three assistants, Norma Nell Jackson, Fred Powell and Bill Grant are coordinating the array of Summer activities.

The President's Reception for Summer School Students and faculty will be given June 29, to get the Summer activities under way.

Among the summer activities will be six book reviews held in Longmire Lounge on Wednesday afternoons at 5 p. m. The first one will be held June 21. The subject will be "Catch Court," with Dr. Griffith Pugh of the English Dept. as speaker.

Four square dances and four social dances are planned. Music for all the dances will be provided by the G-Rach band, and any facilities except the cabins.

Eight campus movies will be shown in Westcott Auditorium during the Summer. They will run two nights a week and the dates and times will be listed in the Summer Bulletin.

Three artist series are on the agenda for Summer and several plays, faculty recitals, and concerts will be given.

All students interested in participating in the trips should see Miss Williams for information and to sign up for the activities.

Miss Williams' office is located in 19 Longmire.

For sports fans, there will be basketball and bowling leagues this Summer the bowling leagues will play their games at the Parkway Bowling Alley. The bowling lanes in the men's gym will also available for student use as usual.

The Reservation will be open for students starting June 17, from 2 p. m. to 7 p. m. Tuesday through Friday, and from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. on Saturdays. The entire camp will be closed on Mondays. There is no charge for any facilities except the cabins.

Asolo Theatre Will Give 32 Shows

By ROLAND WILKERSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Asolo Theatre Comedy Group, composed of 18 students from the Florida State University and other colleges, will give at least 32 performances during its second season beginning June 11.

Five plays have been planned for the 1961 season. They are She Stoops to Conquer, by Goldsmith; The World in the Moon, by Hadyn; The Country Wife, by Wycherly; Tartuffe, by Molliere, and the Secret Marriage, by Cimarosa.

The Asolo Festival, jointly sponsored by the FSU Theatre and Opera Guild and the John and Mable Ringling Museum of Art, will run June 1 until August 16.

The first four weeks will be spent in rehearsal at FSU and terminated by the production of The World in the Moon, July 7 and 8.

MOVES TO SARASOTA

The group then moves to Sarasota for the remainder of the season where it will give six productions weekly for the five and one half weeks remaining in the season.

Judiciary Chairman

Doug French has been elected chairman of Men's Judiciary by the members of the men's court for next year.

Jamie Jamieson will serve as secretary.

At Sarasota the group will perform in the Asolo Theatre which was originally constructed in the palace of Queen Catherine Cornaro in Asolo, Italy, in 1798.

The Asolo Theatre is maintained by the State of Florida and moved in the Ringling Museum in 1951, is the only Eighteenth Century Venetian Theatre in the United States.

The Asolo, built to seat 300, has superb acoustics. Browning is thought to have been a regular spectator during his stay in Asolo, and Eleanor Duse probably acted on its stage.

DORLAG DIRECTS

Dr. Arthur H. Dorlag, associate professor of speech at FSU, will be the director of the group. Other staff members from FSU are William King, assistant director and Sam Baker, business manager.

Four FSU students will be included in the 18 member group. The students are Leland Fox, Mary Crawford, Polly Halliday and Carolyn Reeves.

Students and faculty members from nine other colleges and universities, including four from Yale, will complete the group.

Members of the festival company will participate in at least 32 performances of Seventeenth and Eighteenth Century comedies and comic operas.

The plays sample the comic theatre and afford the students rich experience in historical styles, said Dr. Dorlag.

Geology Lecturer Dr. Winters Says Educational TV Here To Stay

EDITOR'S NOTE: Flambeau stories earlier this year discussed the pros and cons of educational television courses. Other stories dealt with the use of TV in English and humanities courses. Today's story discusses use of TV for geology classes. In relation to the other courses the use of television geology lectures has been very successful.

Educational television is here to stay, said Dr. Stephen Winters, television lecturer for Geology 107.

Although he doesn't think T.V. can serve all courses equally well, Dr. Winters said Geology Dept. felt the basic course would lend itself as successfully as any course to T.V. teaching.

Probably the real advantage of using TV to teach geology is the ability to use an increased number of visual aids in illustrating points, said Dr. Winters.

NON-LAB COURSE

He pointed out that in a non-laboratory course taught in a large lecture hall it would be essentially worthless to hold up specimens to point out characteristics but on TV the specimens appear large and students can see the features being emphasized.

Fossils, maps, geologic structures, the breaking patterns of minerals and the instruments used in geologic research, which are difficult to demonstrate in a lecture hall, may also be used in a TV lecture.

Another advantage of TV, said Dr. Winters, is that the placement of the cameras enables the student's attention to be focused on the particular points the lecturer wishes to emphasize and not on the instructor's tie.

Another feature of the geology TV classes is the blending of the class in certain rooms and the presence of graduate assistants to answer questions relative to the lecture material, distribute assignments, give short quizzes and take attendance.

CLASSROOM PRESENCE

Dr. Winters said he feels it is important that someone be present in the classroom to stimulate discussion. He meets with the students twice a week to let them know what the coming lectures will be concerned with so they may do outlines before hand and be prepared of discussions following the 30-minute lectures.

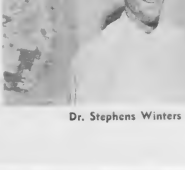
The disadvantages of education al TV are almost as important as the advantages, commented Dr. Winters. He feels "One real criticism of a taped lecture is that it loses its spon-daneous as any subject isn't static." A partial answer to this problem is the continual analysis and revision of TV courses for credit, said Dr. Winters.

For example, he said, about one - third of the geology lectures were redone for this semester. He will continue to review and re-do lectures that are not as good as they could be, he said.

Another disadvantage pointed out by Dr. Winters is mechanical failure. But even commercial networks have these, he said, and a criticism of the mechanics is not a criticism nl the use nf the medium for teaching purposes.

QUESTIONNAIRE

A questionnaire given to approximately 400 TV students last January indicated that the organization of the course is rated near very good by the students, the objectives are clearly presented, and the contribution of the class - room instructors is somewhere on the good side of average, said Dr. Winters.



Several students who have taken geology TV classes said they thoroughly enjoyed the course but felt that the graduate assistants were not familiar enough with the material to be able to explain it when questions were raised.

One student said she found the geology lectures more interesting than English 102 lectures, while another student said he would take meterology of astronomy but not English or a similar course on TV.

One student said she "hated" the TV course because there was no communication between the professor and students, thus making it impersonal.

In a mimeographed introduction to the course Dr. Winters says "TV lectures are not meant to destroy the student - professor relationship but rather use it as a technique for most satisfactorily illustrating and clarifying the subject matter.

"Generally speaking," said Dr. Winters, "there is resistance, whatever he reason, to TV teaching." However he continued, "I think at the present that at any level of teaching some TV can be extremely valuable as certain things can be developed by TV techniques."

Flambeau Editorials

The Florida Flambeau editorials represent only the views of student members of the staff. Signed columns on this page represent only the opinions of their authors. Any student may submit either editorials or columns for consideration.

An Editor's Farewell

One of the major functions of a college newspaper is to maintain an inquisitive and stimulated atmosphere in its editorial pages. It should be critical when criticism is necessary. The fact that its viewpoints are controversial, that its stated an implied philosophies are challenged proves that it is to some degree fulfilling these functions—that it is being read.

AT FSU, LOCATED in the capitol of a conservative southern state, we come in for more than our share of legislative criticism. This is not because we are so basically liberal or violent in our stands, but because we are right under the noses of the most conservative group of men in the South. Anything that does not strictly conform to North Florida standards is noticeable and attacked by the neighboring politicians.

The Flambeau has received its share of criticism from the members of the state legislature this year, along with the biennial threat to cut our budget out of existence for daring to express our views. Just because the views presented did not conform to North Florida standards, this seemed to make them wrong. We are not debating their validity; we are stating that we had a complete right to express our own philosophies. A newspaper can never get a sufficient knowledge of the opinions of its readers to mirror their thoughts. Not only is this mirror type action impossible, it is highly undesirable. The Flambeau attempts to lead opinion. It gives a fair chance to those who have differering opinions to present them.

THERE ARE TRADITIONALLY areas where the Flambeau seems to concentrate its criticism, because these areas are those which most affect student life. These areas are: student government, the administration, the faculty, the state legislature, and this year, the honor system.

Student Government

For the first time in many years, the student body had a strong president. He is strong in that he knows what he believed best for FSU and he did all in his power to achieve it.

UNFORTUNATELY, with the exception of a few cabinet members and an occasional senator, student government is still its weak popularity-seeking self. There are dedicated members of student government, but they are in the vast minority.

The student senate has been given the responsibility of managing the budgeting of all student activity funds. We hope that they do not become blinded by the glamorous aspects of the extra curricular and can allocate the funds where they are most needed.

THERE ARE ambitious students in government who are there merely because of their Greek affiliation. They really have no desire to serve FSU. They are building a name, something which happens in every aspect of life, but something of which we seem to have more than our share in our student government.

FSU needs a strong and dedicated student government to meet the needs of the growing university which it is. Student government does not have to be Mickey Mouse. The strong member can place the whole in a favorable light, but too many trivial student politicians can draw it back into the realms of justifiable criticism.

Honor System

THIS YEAR, the FSU honor system has been one of the most publicized and talked about issues in both faculty and student circles. Members of the student-faculty committee met long hours attempting to bring forth a suggestion of a system that would work on this campus, a system that would not only be fair but enforceable. The committee came up with a suggestion which was presented to the student senate where it was discussed, amended and taken for granted.

Unfortunately, the student senate did not see to it that the honor system was explained to the voting student body. The publication of little calendars with "Vote Yes for the Honor System" is not the type of interpretation that was vital to the success of such a system.

IF FSU STILL intends to maintain a type of honor system, then it will actively have to strive toward and effective communications link between the faculty, administration, student senate and student body. No student body will accept a weak unenforceable system. No student body can be held accountable for a system which it does not understand. Student government can strengthen itself and the honor system by doing a thorough job on this score next year. If could have done so this year, and it did not.

Administration

The administration faced great changes this year with the advent of a new president, and with major shifts in positions throughout the different offices. The shifts from old to new have been made with a certain degree of confusion, but not too much more than was expected.

THERE IS NOW a working university administration, supposedly working toward one goal, that of a quality education. The ideal is good, but the manner in which we are attempting to achieve this quality is debatable.

There are areas in the administration where powers are apparently confused, where jurisdiction is apparently not clearly outlined, defined or understood. When administrators themselves don't seem clear on rules or policies, students naturally lose respect not only for their offices, but for the overall aspect of administration.

We fully realize that FSU is a state institution and that it is dependent upon a state legislature for its funds, but we do not agree with some of the policies of catering to these men at the expense of what we believe is right so as not to endanger our chances to receive the full allocation that we are demanding.

WE NEED A STRONG administration. We have a strong president. He can set the trend for a strong and efficient administration by clearing up the confusion and weeding out the inefficiencies.

Faculty

We have outstanding faculty members this year, and we are losing them. We cannot hold on to the caliber educators that we need, if we can't afford to pay them salaries camparable to those that they can receive elsewhere, then we cannot expect either to hold onto them or to provide any sort of "quality" education.

OUR MONEY COMES from the state legislature. This legislature despite its economy kick, knows the problems of maintaining faculty members of high caliber. Whether it is willing to find the means to do so, will determine whether a large portion of the students in this state will receive anything like a valuable education in this university.

Greek Relations

The Greeks on this campus are, despite all their protests, no more than a social minority. They tend to overemphasize their position through over-participation and monopolizing campus offices.

THE FACT THAT they are so highly organized and encouraged to participate in campus activities makes them more prone to succeed in elections and position seeking. They are not however, the backbone of the campus. They serve their function by providing the added stimulus and social activity to an ordinary student's life, and not by attempting to win all the honors on campus.

Academics

There are general education courses that freshmen and sophomores struggle through for the required number of hours and quality points. Unfortunately, the majority of these students never venture into these fields again. It would be better to go into direct study in a major field and leave these general education courses in a recommended electives field.

THEN THERE is the area of questionable values. Do we really need a new stadium addition or a new swimming pool more than we need new facilities, increased salaries or increased dormitory space? We will have little use for a new student union if academically we cannot attract enough good students to build a strong student body.

We can take our choice and continue as we have been doing, and lessen our cbances of ever becoming not a great Southern university but a great university, or we can do something constructive about our weaker points and build up the greatness whicb so many students and faculty desire for FSU.

"Gentlemen, This Here Town Is Due For Some Changes" Guest Column

HUAC Proves Destructiv

By JEROME LEE BOXER

Many areas are in urgent need of attention and concern. Few are given their just due. Yet, if one were to be singled out as being in a dire state of neglect, no more equitable choice could be made than the civil liberty problem and its prostrate state of existence in our nation today.

To ground this condition locally, periodically this semester letters have appeared in the Flambeau favoring the existence and behavior of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. These letters, written by students, exhibit only the most unsophisticated patterns of thought and political naivete and are a social detriment to the community and the nation. It is only when these abuses become intolerable that some among us are promoted to act, often too later.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEE on Un-American Activities, in its twenty-three years of existence, has proven itself time and again to be the most undemocratically destructive organization in our entire governmental structure. Its continued existence today poses the greatest single threat to the continued existence of the freedoms expounded in the Bill of Rights and the tradition of liberty, which acts as the backbone of our entire political philosophy.

The brevity of space disallows any full-scale documented examination of the acurrilous history of this bare-pamphlagizing organ of our government. Yet, in so severe a criticism of this committee surely one instance of documented reporting should be included.

EARLIER IN THE semester, the film, "Operation Abolition," was shown in Westcott. A project of the HUAAC, its main theme was to suggest that demonstrations against the HUAAC in San Francisco in May, 1960, were Communist inspired and led. In an attempt to prove this assertion, both the narration and the way the film clips were edited deliberately distorted a number of facts.

The film was made from separate shots taken by local newspapermen, who were subpoenaed by the HUAAC and relieved of these pictures. The pictures were then run together in an order which presented the demonstration to be one of mob action and violence. TIME Weekly commented to the New York Post and eye witness to the occurrence, in an article published in had this to say, "I HUAAC rigged on San Fr city hall May 12 to the movie, Operation which pretends to inf them. That movie is and false." In the fo troduction, Committee man Francis Walter says, "You will see the core Communist agents tation and the subtle which they use to incite to violence." This cutaway was never fulfilled in At a later investigat liam Wheeler, of the Committee staff admitted there were distortions film.

EVERYWHERE ONE an eye there can be continued violation of ual rights. In spite progress in the degree freedom for all men, structive forces still few quarters remain un Yet, without the unl practice of our rights ment, we are unable to free men; we cannot fulfill our humanity.

The eye is ultimately upon oneself. At this question our position where we stand as indiv Continued reflection [illegible] with only one answer for at all sensitive to the [illegible] of man. If we are to [illegible] as men and as a nation of us must take a personal co-operative stand against restrictive demagogic groups such as the HUAC whatever level they confront be it international, national, local. Why Fight?

Is Struggle Worth The Effort?

By H. RICHARD BLEDEN

(EDITOR NOTE: This is the third and final portion of Mr. Bledeu's column, Why Fight?)

There is only one answer to this question. Each of us must actively seek out and correct the shortcomings of our own system. We must have faith in our belief in the basic ideals of our democracy and apply these ideals to shine from every facet of our daily life. This essential first step can only be realized by obtaining positive answers to the two simple questions:

"IN WHAT do I believe?" "What is the purpose of my life?"

Such activity should be a part of everyday life in a democracy. Can we honestly say we fail in this activity is most clearly evident today.

"Is the struggle worth all this effort?"

FOR ANY MAN who has thought about the value of freedom and who knows what it means to exist and to be free there can be no answer more great to pay for that life and that freedom. For those people who can only give negative answers to the two simple questions first mentioned, I suggest they look into the matter again. A negative answer to these questions is as crippling to a free society as the answer which excludes all other answers.

"Your plan may be good, but it will only result in a devastating nuclear war. How can we gain from this?"

FIRST OF ALL, the [illegible] gen and atomic weapons indeed awesome. But let [illegible] use them as an excuse [illegible] They must be used. Communists are as cognizant of [illegible] price of nuclear warfare as are. Only by constant and positive in the face of [illegible] will we have success towards eventual world peace. If we allow Communism to overrun the world, it will [illegible] many generations before the world to recover from the ravages of its basic philosophies. This is one reason why there is no real progress toward lasting peace. A firm, and direct with the [illegible] (author's phrase) nation must teach Communism that it is to endure, its members must be free.

What we ask in return is very simple. We want only a world wide peace where each individual is free to live and to act for himself. Only with such an international framework of freedom can peace exist for all of us to live as individuals, with equal opportunity.

IF WE MUST go to battle then we shall. We have waited many wars to prove our point. Let us not forget our ultimate purpose at this crucial hour. But I believe that such a struggle will never come if we are firm and sincere in our conviction. Beyond the [illegible] hours of the struggle ahead lies the golden opportunity for which we must strive.

New Year Travel Risks Lives

Lives of Florida State University students may be in grave danger if the Schedule Committee does not change the date for resuming classes after the Christmas holidays next year.

The Fall Catalogue has listed the day for resumation of scholastic endeavors as January 2, 1962, at 8 a.m. This will necessitate students driving on New Year's Day if they are to return to classes on time.

This will be very inconvenient. Students from out of state will have to leave several days before New Years to return to campus New Years Eve driving back to FSU is certainly not a thought to be relished.

More important, this could be very dangerous. Few students will be rested and ready to make the long trek back to Tallahassee the day after New Year's Eve. And few students are likely to give up New Year's Eve activities, even if they have to return to school the next day.

A horde of half-alert college students will do nothing but harm the already risky driving conditions on the national holidays. Certainly their presence will not be welcomed by the law enforcement officers of the state.

Dr. Werner Baum, chairman of the Schedule Committee, has promised to consider changing the date for returning to school. He said he did not "recall what the thinking was on this issue" at the time, but stated that objecting students may have a legitimate point.

Certainly there can not be a more legitimate point than taking steps to protect the lives of FSU students.

We strongly recommend that Baum and the Schedule Committee consider this matter thoroughly and move to rectify the situation.

They may have to juggle class days a little but this is small price to pay for protection of student lives.

The Flambeau Says Sayonara

By LESLIE POWELL

With this issue, the Flambeau bids adieu until the fall. Worse, we are saying sayonara to a number of our best. Those leaving are Rosa Nell Wilson, Patty Pachler, Patsy Guthrie, Deanna Morris, David Kam, Glenda Powers, Bonnie Perry and Jo Cocchi. To say that these people were able and dependable doesn't do them justice. Each had a job and that job and invariably did it well.

THERE MUST HAVE been capable reporters on the Flambeau before, but there haven't been any that surpass Miss Pachler, Miss Guthrie or Miss Powers for ability to turn nothing news assignments into interesting reading. Miss Wilson has been news editor for quite a spell, and like all news editors, has little to show for the ordeal but a few more grey streaks.

Miss Morris has been editor of the Flambeau this year. She's done a fine job of representing you from Mississippi to Chicago and back.

Not only are we losing people active on the paper this semester, but people who have been active in the past on practically any campus publication you'd care to name.

VIRGINIA DELAVEN, George Fry, Leslie Lowell, Harriet L. Engle, Linda Beams, Jim Pearce Shirley Coachman, Dottie Sue Linebaugh, Gail Lentz, Charlotte Goodman, Mary Etta Johnson, Dorothy Reedy, Gerry Ringer and last, but never least, the indefatigable Nancy Henderson, outgoing chairman of the Board of Publications.

Not alone are these men and women going on the big overnight, but a number of other students that are going to be missed, will leave because life at FSU was just a little more pleasant because they were here.

LIZ WEATHERLY, Darlene Compton, Beth Brown, Nancy Wicks, Martha Bedell, Penny McArthur, Frank Miceli, Lon King, Don Borgmaes, Frank Ansley, John Beranek Roy Mathis, Jack Ross, all plan to rant in style.

Some have been active in student government and other activities. Others, like John McTaggart, have been morale boosters. Joel McNeil has been guardian, conscience and all-round bracer-upper. People like Roberta Calvert have pitched in and helped fill a page when the need arose. So, for every one of these graduates I have reason to feel grateful for having known them And I think Flambeau feels the same way.

People Make Friction

By STAN CHEREN

Men never have had much luck with living together. Families have a rough enough time trying to remain cohesive and frictionless. Roommates, even the closest of friends, find themselves wishing the other would open that elevator door and step into an empty shaft. And when you really get down to it, man has a heck of a job just living with himself. To put a number of men together is inevitably asking for trouble. Just a cursory reading of any elementary sociology or history text book will substantiate this point.

WHEN PEOPLE are thrown together in large groups there is bound to be something to cause friction. The easiest type of friction - causing manifestations are to confront are those we can see and meet on equal footing. The more light surrounding the antagonist the "surer" the attacked individual feels. And to go beyond that, the more one knows about the attacker the better one feels about being able to anticipate any move the attacker may make. But with all these advantages of clear sight and insight, to face an obstacle confidently is no easy task. Ever play dodge - ball in grade school? Well, then, you have an idea of what I mean. I doubt, however, if anyone would agree to play the game in a darkened room with no idea of how many persons surrounded you or how many balls were being used.

YES, I HAVE a point to make. My point is an appeal. I appeal to everyone's mutual desire to enjoy this too short allowance of life to its fullest. And to afford everyone else the same opportunity. I appeal to you to not make the job of living any more difficult than it has already been made for us. I ask everyone to try and understand just what is going on in this fantastic world of ours. Don't run around chopping off heads before the other fellow can say his piece.

My particular crusade? I have none. Where can you apply my appeal? To any crisis that presents itself whether it be in the society of dormitory life, family relationships, civic strife and bigotry such as religious intolerance, racial bigotry or nationalism which shuts its eyes and shouts 'I'm right, I'm right' and swings the sword of narrow mindedness to all who advance.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Abridgement Of Freedom Alarms Many

TO THE EDITOR:

To many people, including the majority of the Flambeau staff, seem to be alarmed about the abridgement of the negroes' freedom. I think this matter is a good one to note for both self-proclaimed liberals and conservatives. It shows that the Negro isn't the only one who may have his freedom taken away, the Negro, when given an opportunity, would just as soon rule the White race. The following article, off the wires of the Associated Press, appeared in the May 20, 1961, Tallahassee Democrat.

The article tells of an all-white public school in Chicago whose students were going to give a minstrel show, only to have it canceled upon order of the school principal's superiors. The school principal "canceled it (the show) after his superiors advised him a minstrel show might be offensive to Negroes.

"I personally didn't see anything wrong with it," Thonson (the principal) said. The music is (Stephen) Foster's, American classics for scores of years. We changed some of the lyrics a bit. Where it said 'darkies,' for instance, I think it was changed to 'chillun'."

"The Rev. S. S. Morris, Chicago president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said, 'We feel it (such shows) helps to perpetuate a racial stereotype that misrepresents the Negro. I'm surprised such a thing was even planned in Chicago."

This is as much a suppression of freedom as any act ever committed by a segregationist. Let Bill Trotts and his kind holler their heads off, but they should examine both sides of the coin. This, integrationists, is an example of what the Negro wants and will not stop until he gets. This Negro wants to not only rewrite history, but to make the White race subservient to his race. This is something for all White people to think about. Maybe we will be the SLAVES in another 100 years!

TERRY M. WALKER

Rings Of Sincereity

TO THE EDITOR:

In regard to Dr. Israelis's letter to the editor, there seems to be a familiar ring of moral conviction which is similar to that of many foreign students who are appalled at the arrangement of human liberties practiced in this country. Due to their relative unfamiliarity with their new environment and their readiness to identify themselves with the top ranks in it, they become the innocent contingents of movements designed to rabidly rule humanity. This initiated by individuals whose sincerity is one dimensional and/or who refuse ad vinuamie philosophy with chaos. The statement "If we don't do something about this nothing will be done" waved about by many well-meaning radicals, but only by those whose beat-parties have lost their zest and who seek new escape-adventures.

The Flambeau's advice of temperance would possibly be needed, if interracial relations were not centered around Americans associating themselves with Asians and Africans in a contrived checkerboard pattern. This need in temperance assumes that these recent activities are imbued with innocent over-enthusiasm. The tenor of these "international parties", hunger strikes, etc. suggest otherwise, as partially exemplified in their blatent provocation of various antagonistic groups. People locked in a cage do not tease the holder of the key for their freedom.

The problems involving racial equality are not simple, especially those concerned with the selection and operations of tools for its achievement. Organizations have advantages in their power-in-numbers as an offensive measure, but also contain within their confines the defense of parasites, escapists, and other potential liabilities to the structure and cause. If each individual fought as so individual for equality when a more natural, unontrived Incident arose, there would perhaps be milder opposition and more fruitful results.

TOM MacDONALD

A Possible Solution?

TO THE EDITOR:

In addition to being Florida's capital city, Tallahassee boasts in FSU an outstanding university whose reputation is attested to by its large percentage of foreign and out of state graduate and undergraduate students. It is my belief, however, that a serious problem not uncommon to university towns is prevalent here in Tallahassee, and instead of merely crying "sour grapes" I offer here an idea which might serve a two-fold purpose — to bring the students and townspeople together in harmonious understanding, and by so doing to place FSU among the leaders in the academic world.

The problem to which I refer is the dicotomy of ideas extant between the University and the City. Upholding and recognizing the local customs and attitudes is often difficult for young meo and women students who are not acquainted with Tallahassee. The townspeople also, are not familiar with the needs and desires of the students, particularly in acedemic and moral aspects.

As a possible solution, I would like to see the following suggestions acted upon:

1. The formation of a University sponsored lecture and discussion group in which the townspeople would be asked to taken an active role.

2. A plan by which civic leaders could arrange for students to be welcome participants or guests at regular civic group meetings.

"Let us then, be up and doing, with a heart for any fate" — Jualina Ray Blanton.

Hunger Strike Beneficial?

TO THE EDITOR:

The notice in the Friday, May 19 Flambeau about the hunger strike approaching its second week has set me to thinking how this idea might prove beneficial to mankind, the nation, FSU students, and ex-convicts in general.

Now that the semester is approaching its bitter end, I'm sure that there are a number of you who are low on money. A hunger strike is just the thing-for you to make those few dollars last.

Young ladies are continually complaining that they weigh a few pounds too many. A few weeks of no food will leave you slim, trim, and half dead.

And those who gripe about the quality of the food service; have your revenge by joining this glorious movement.

And finally, those who never have time enough for studying: do you realize that you spend no to scenty hours per week just eating? Sign the pledge and you will have time to finish studying with time over to try to regain your health. All the energy you spend chewing; think how vitally it can be used.

The greatest benefit is that with no one eating, resturants will go bankrupt, and close, farmers will quit planting, and grocery stores, pardon me, super-markets, will close. With no remaining food, the world's population shall die off, and all problems will be solved.

President Blackwell Plays A Good Game Of Tennis

Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell may like spectator sports but he played a good game of tennis in the faculty-student tennis tournament recently.

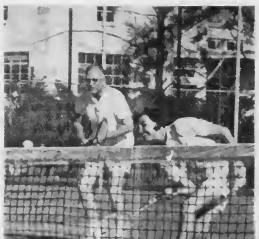
The tournament paired faculty members and graduate assistants with a student of the opposite sex. It was coordinated by Mrs. Beth Warner and Miss Virginia Dumas of the Physical Education Dept. and Dr. Robert Miller, head of the Philosophy Dept.

The purpose of the tournament is to promote better student-faculty relationships.

All students except members of the varsity tennis squad were eligible to enter the tournament. The pairs were matched by a drawing.

The first round was finished the first week of the tournament. At present the finals are being held.

Dr. Blackwell was paired with Caryl Lenahan, ranked first in the South in women's doubles. He was captain of the varsity team at Furman University for three years.



Their opponents for their first match were Sandra Livada and Jesse C. Arnold. Mrs. Livada, a secretary for the FSU News Bureau, was ranked 16 in the nation for her age group when she was 15. Her partner, a graduate student in statistics, was Oklahoma collegiate doubles champion in 1959 and played tennis for four years at Southeastern State College at Durant, Okla.

OVER-THE-NET . . . handshake with opponents Sandra Livada and Jesse C. Arnold concludes the match.

BLACKWELL SERVES . . . to his opponent in the faculty-student tennis tournament.

BLACKWELL'S PARTNER . . . Caryl Lenahan is ranked first in the South in women's doubles.

Granted Full Scholarship

Virginia Delavan Goes To World Institute

Virginia Delavan, Florida State University social science major and former editor of the Flambeau, has been granted a full scholarship to the Institute of World Affairs to be held in Twin Lakes, Conn., July 5 through August 25.

Dr. Marian Irish, head of the Government Dept., received information about the Institute and encouraged Miss Delavan to make an application. Three other FSU students have attended the Institute in previous years.

INTERNATIONAL LIVING

According to Miss Delavan, the Institute is "Not a formal educational experience as much as an experience in international living." Approximately 25 students from this country and an equal number from various foreign countries will attend the Institute said Miss Delavan.

Each national group or student exhibits folk dances, and songs and prepares meals representative of their countries she added.

The Institute owns the site at Twin Lakes and provides dormitories, various class rooms, and libraries. Professors from various northeast colleges come to speak to the Institute. In an informal relaxed atmosphere, several classes including language study are offered.

UNITED NATIONS

Trips to the United Nations and opportunities to see summer stock and other cultural activities are offered to the students.

The Institute was established during the period of the formation of the League of Nations. The first headquarters of the Institute was in Geneva, Switzerland.

Miss Delavan, a graduating senior, entered FSU as a journalism student. When the School of Journalism moved in 1959, Miss Delavan chose to remain at FSU and change her major to social science.

A member of Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary, Miss Delavan was editor of the Flambeau during the school year 1959-60.

GRADUATE WORK

Miss Delavan has received a fellowship to the University of North Carolina for graduate work in national affairs. For this reason, Miss Delavan said she had a deep "personal interest" in the Institute this summer.

Miss Delavan attended the National Advisory Foreign Affairs Convention in Annapolis, Md., this past month. She wrote a series of articles on West Africa for the Flambeau as a result of the convention.

Money Bill Is In House

An appropriations bill considerably higher in total amount but including $225,000 less for Florida State University is scheduled to hit the floor of the State House of Representatives this week.

The House bill includes $1,411,000 in funds contingent on the adoption of the tri-mester plan by the university by Fall 1962. Salary raises for faculty members for the second year of the biennium are also contingent on the adoption of the tri-mester plan.

For 1961-62

Gymnast Joe Greene Is Sammy Seminole

Joe Greene, a sophomore gymnast has been selected to be the tribe mascot, Sammy Seminole for the 1961-62 school year.

Greene majoring in physical education has been a teammate of the current "Sammy", Jack Ryder on the Varsity Gymnastic team.

Dick Gutting, former national trampoline champion from FSU started Greene in gymnastics at Southwest High in Miami where he won regional and conference titles in tumbling and trampoline.

Since coming to FSU Greene has won several championships and titles including the Georgia AAU tumbling and trampoline titles in 1960 and again in 1961, the South Florida AAU tumbling and trampoline titles in 1961, and he also placed seventh in the nation in tumbling at the National Collegiate Championships at Champaign, Ill., this past April.

Former "Sammy" Chic Cioh has also been instrumental in the development of Greene. He has aided him technically in skills, routines and showmanship which are typical of former mascots.

"I will try to live up to the abilities and showmanship of the previous 'Sammy Seminoles who have inspired me and taught me the skills which are necessary for this position. I am looking forward to working with the cheerleaders and the football team next year," Greene said.

Greene has been a member of the gymnastics team for two years as well as Gymkana and the Gymnastica honorary.

Angel Flight Elects Story

Joyce Story was elected Flight Commander of Angel Flight at the last meeting of the year.

Beverly Marchetta is the new executive officer in charge of drill; Ivylynn Frazier, secretary; Andreea Powers, treasurer; and Mary Lee Register, information Service Officer and Publications Officer.

Former Commander Sara Lee Smith was awarded the Cadet Commendation Award at the joint Army-Air Force Drill and awards presentation. All active Angels were presented the Cadet Merit Badge.

The Flambeau will lose seven valuable people.

Georgia Fry, Patsy Guthrie, Deanna Morris, Patty Pachler, Bonnie Perry, Glenda Powers and Rosa Nell Wilson will no longer have their names on the masthead or in by-lines in the Flambeau.

Between them, they covered almost every area of campus life. They wrote society news, editorials, features, news, and reviews. They edited and proofread. They served as reporters and editors and editor in chief.

They're leaving a gaping hole in the ranks of the Flambeau staff.

Lobbyists Try For Law School Here

Activities of the Florida State University Student Legislative Committee were concentrated on the Legislature and on research for a law school at FSU, said Ken van Assenderp, lobby chairman.

With financial help from the alumni, a book entitled Florida and Working Together to Meet the Challenge of 60's was published showing the various needs of FSU using graphs and charts.

Early in the Fall Semester the Lobby Steering Committee met and chose 200 students to represent all 67 counties in Florida. Captains were chosen for the 38 senatorial districts to coordinate the lobby efforts in their districts.

At a meeting with President Gordon W. Blackwell and Vice President of the Student Body Bobby Byrd, the student lobbyists were familiarized with the needs of the school.

The committee does not function as a "lobby group pressure wise," said van Assenderp, "but ties to present university needs intelligently to legislators."

Lobby members conducted tours for legislators to promote good will and to acquaint them with the needs of the campus, van Assenderp said.

"Not all results are in, but seems to have been successful meetings with legislators of Tampa, Miami, St. Petersburg and Pinellas areas," added van Assenderp.

Evidences of the lobbyists' work will be visible in the next few days when the legislature votes on FSU appropriations, the chairman claimed.

The main problem this year was that "they tried to do too much." He recommended that next year the same lobbyists continue to work, the students be educated in the lobby purpose and activities and that contacts with the legislators be made year round.

Chairman of the lobby committee next year will be Tony Clinger. Joan Gillespie will be lobby committee secretary.

Final Sharp Shootin'

An Era Of Shifting

During the year and a half that I have covered the …etic scene from this corner, Florida State University …made great strides towards athletic success in some …s, while it has forfeited ground in others.

…t has been a period of shifling to fit a pattern set down prior … entry to the University. This is a pattern which—rightly or …ly—the Athletic Committee is dedicated to following.

…t has been a period of indecision and decision. Choices have … made which will guide the future of Florida State's athletic …am after most of the men who made the decision have de…d. It has been a period of indecision, worry, and despair over …olution to the omnipresent financial woes which have beset … University's athletic endeavors from the onset. Decision-making … continue and so will the indecision until some of the decsions … off or are junked.

It has been a period of intense bickering among students, fac… and even within the athletic department over the role that …rts should properly play in the life of a university. This bick… has yet to be resolved and will burn brightly for some time …ome.

…t has been a period of growing. New opponents have been …duled; new names continually appear on the slate. Few of these … faces appear in Campbell Stadium. They never will until the …um is enlarged to major league status.

…t has been a period of cutting. Sports like gymnastics have … sacrificed to the benefit of the other sports just as the volley… team was severed from athletic department auspices.

…t has been a period of new faces in the athletic department … Bill Peterson—a church-going, sincere, dedicated head men… who is beloved by his athletes—has replaced Perry Moss—a …ed, impressive football head man, who wanted to drive slaves …d of coach football and received his players' hatred for his …e.

…t has been a period of a different administrative system. The … football coach-athletic director has been ditched, eliminating … of the prejudice in favor of footbal.

…hrilling Moments For FSU Faithful

Either despite or because of these things, the Seminoles have …buted many thrilling moments for the FSU faithful. Great … have occurred during the period.

Poor, independent FSU cindermen last year mopped up the …hty" Tigers of LSU on the Seminole track by a $78\frac{1}{2}$-$55\frac{1}{2}$ score …nd the bengals their first defeat since 1952. LSU had originally …uled FSU as a warmup for the Florida Relays but Ron Harri… upset SEC champ Ralph Fabian twice and led the tribe cin…men to a stunning upset.

The cage tribe played a remarkable basketball contest during … year's campaign but were nipped 93-91 in the closing seconds …tionally ranked Miami. But this season, the highly touted Hur… sporting the same lineup, came to Tallahassee and were …ly repelled by the steadfast tribe.

… Florida State swimming team contributed many spectacular …s as the Seminoles drowned most of their opponents by good … The University of Florida was one of the most satisfying …se victories.

The year witnessed the titanic struggle on the gridiron with the …rsity of Florida. The final tally was three to zero in favor …e Gator Bowl champions, but this did not tell the story of …ourageous game the Florida State invaders played.

An underdog by a huge margin, Florida State cagers over… the traditionally powerful Kentucky Wildcats by a 62-58 mar… to score their most satisfying basketball victory ever.

This period has seen great personal feats.

Ron Harrison, the lanky sprinter who won both the Flambeau …te of the Year award and the Liteky Memorial award, came … one tenth of a second of breaking a world record in the 220 … dash.

Frank Davis became the most victorious pitcher in FSU history …nning a total of 16 during his first two seasons. This year he … been adding to this total.

Curt Genders and Jack Ryder both won national championships … season making this FSU greatest year in personal success. …ers, the spectacular diving wonder, won the low board title …e NCAA meet and Ryder won the tumbling event at the NCAA …nastics meet.

The indelible names of FSU athletic chiefs from this era in…e men like Curt Genders, Buck Hiles, Bob Weber, Fred Pick… Tony Romeo, Bud Whitehead, Al Ulmer, Rebel Bellamy, Down… Gray, Jack Ryder, Bill Beavers, Frank Davis, Jack Dull, Bob …m, Ron Harrison, Don Ostergaard, Kent Mills, Dave Fedor, and … Swain.

…SU Must Look Ahead For Sports Aid

Though the past gives indication of the future, FSU must look …d if it wants to realize its athletic aims, without placing sports … place of false importance.

This will be a difficult task since the Florida State administra… must support athletics enough to be successful but must also …tain emphasis on academics, where it rightfully belongs.

Certain steps should be taken if this can be accomplished. The …rs and strength of the Athletic Committee should be bolstered. … group has shown a ready willingness to work diligently on … problem. The committee must never become a "yes man" for … athletic director and should exercise caution in making its …sion. The decisions should include the wishes and opinions of … student body as well as the wisdom of the faculty. The manner …which the Gymnastic hearings were conducted should serve as …model for the committee's dealings with ticklish problems.

In this mad quest for football success, the smaller sports should … be neglected. FSU has built a superior spring and winter sports …gram on desire and fine coaches and this should not be sacri… for fall glory. Students and administration alike should care… watch so that under no circumstances will these be sacrificed.

Athletes should in no cases be treated under any classification …r than what they are supposed to be—students. They should … receive either special academic favoritism or special discipli… dispensation. True, they should receive equitable tutoring if …ded since they give great amounts of time to the university, … they should have to pass their academic work to the same …nner that their contemporaries must. Likewise, they should live …der the same standards that govern any other student. Athletes …ould not reach the stage of being paid gladiators as they have … some places.

Athletic officials should never stoop to breaking rules in order … recruit players. Peterson has operated on the commendable …losophy of trying to sell the quality of the university. If this …not enough to sell the athlete, then he is not the kind of student … want anyway.

The students and faculty should give their wholehearted support … a clean, well-run, healthy athletic program. They need to de…lop a spirit that will support the squads to the hilt and encourage …em to excell in every area of athletic endeavor.

Such excellence is beneficial to the students and faculty as …th recreation and entertainment and it is beneficial to the school … a public relations feature.

The only way that a successful clean athletic program for which … is striving can be developed is for the faculty and students … support heartily and demand heartily that they be given this …pe of program.

Steps have been made towards this in the last two years, but … job is just begun. Athletic accomplishments have been encour…ing, but this not the time to rest on a smattering of accumulated …rels because these will not be retained without a renewed effort.

For it is only with renewed effort and support that Florida …te University will be able to create a healthy, properly-em…sized athletic program befitting a university which desires …ealness.

Jack Dull

Phi Delts Present Trophy

Dull Wins Liteky Award

Jack Dull was presented the second annual James Liteky Memorial Award, which is given each year by the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, at the Spring Formal last Saturday night.

Tom Schultz, Phi Delta Theta president, made the presentataion of the 40 inch trophy, "the largest on campus." The coaches of the various athletic teams on campus each select a nominee whom they consider most exemplary of the qualities of Liteky. The criteria used in selecting the nominees are leadership, scholarship, athletic ability, competitive spirit, and moral and spiritual character.

Any senior member of an intercollegiate varsity team who is not a Phi Delt is eligible to receive the trophy. After the nominees have been submitted the Phi Delts vote on who should receive the honor.

Liteky, a former Florida State basketball player and member of the track team, was drowned in Jacksonville early in 1960. His ability on the basketball court and choers, as well as his outstanding character, brought praise from all who came in contact with him.

At the time of his accident, he was coaching at Terry Parker high school at Jacksonville. Coach Bud Kennedy said, "Liteky was one of the finest ballplayers I ever coached. his accident is a tragic loss to FSU, Terry Parker, and Jacksonville."

Dull is a standout candidate for second base All-American honors on the tribe baseball team this year. He has been captain of the baseballers this season and is the Seminoles' leading hitter.

Coach Danny Litwhiler has freely doled out praise to his senior second sacker all season. As far as skill is concerned Litwhiler has said, "I don't know anyone in college baseball who can touch him."

Dull is not a "holler guy", but he is an inspiration to his teammates according to the head coach.

"He has got the right attitude and is a real gentleman," added Litwhiler.

Dull's ability has gained him the attention of several scouts from professional teams. His batting average stood at .392 at the end of regular season play.

He led his team in seven departments. In his 25 games had had 97 times at bat, 38 hits, and 27 runs. He netted six doubles and five home runs to contribute to his 59 total bases. During the course of the season he also batted in 26 runs. The husky right-hander also demonstrated his speed by stealing seven bases during the campaign.

Bellamy, Scarpa Score In Tennis Tournament

By SAM McCALL

Rebel Bellamy and Paul Scarpa took the doubles crown at the Charleston Invitational Tennis Tournament in Charleston, South Carolina, over the weekend. Scarpa was runner-up in the finals of the singles competition.

Bellamy and Scarpa playing one and two for the past season at Florida State defeated Les Longshore and Bobby Burns 6-1, 6-4 in the finals to cop the doubles title. Longshore is presently the varsity tennis coach at Clemson. Burns is ranked number one in the South Carolina ranking.

IN THE semi-finals Bellamy-Scarpa beat out Bob Nichols and Bob Hardcastle, who were seeded first, with a 6-4, 6-4 straight set win. Nichols is ranked third in the South while Hardcastle holds the Triple-A crown in Georgia.

Paul Scarpa lost to top-seeded Bob Nichols in the singles competition finals 6-2, 6-3. In the semi-finals Scarpa beat Benny Varn 6-1, 6-3. Varn from the Citadel is the Southern Conference singles champion.

Bellamy lost to Nichols in the semi-finals in a three set match 2-6, 6-1 6-4. Bellamy said "I played the best I ever have in this match." In the quarter-final Bellamy knocked off Bobby Burns 6-4, 6-2. Scarpa beat Longshore 6-1, 7-5

BELLAMY PICKED AS 'DARKHORSE'

Bellamy was snubbed by the seeding committee but was picked as the "darkhorse" entry by the Charleston Evening Post. Bellamy and Scarpa were favored by the Post and publicized extensively by it.

They were presented an inscribed silver platter as trophy for the doubles competition in the tournament.

Scarpa will participate in the Southeastern Invitational to be held in Columbus, Georgia June 2, 3 and 4th. Also Buddie McClain and Ed Fasula will be competing in this tournament.

Fasula will team up with John Powless in the doubles competition. Powless is a former tennis coach here and is presently a basketball coach at Cincinnati. He also is currently ranked 25th in the nation. Bellamy will be unable to participate due to graduation exercises.

Bellamy ended his collegiate career with a 16-5 singles record and a 17-4 doubles tally. In his last season he held a 17-3 singles record and the same in doubles. He has been captain of the tennis team for the past two seasons and is considered one of the finest tennists in the South.

Buddy McClain also ended his eligibility this season. He finished with a 14-7 in the singles department and in the doubles finished with an impressive 16-5.

Paul Scarpa is expected to fill Bellamy's number one slot next season. He had a 17-4 season standing in singles and a 16-5 in the doubles category.

Seminole Nine Meets Benning

The Florida State baseball team added two wins and one defeat to its post-season record when it took on three Fort Benning squads over the weekend.

Racking up a regular-season total of 20 wins and five defeats, the Seminoles have gone on to take four out of five exhibition games in preparation for the NCAA tournament early next month.

In the first contest the tribe smothered the opposition 6-3. Jim Daniel, senior pitching ace, had a no-hitter going until the fifth inning when Fort Benning lashed a home run.

Daniel gave up only three hits and Frank Echols, his reliever, allowed two hits.

The high point of the contest was a bases-loaded triple off the bat of Bob Madison in a five-run seventh inning explosion for the Seminoles.

Ray McShane was punched for seven hits in the second meeting, but the tribe nine belted Benning for 12 hits to win 15-2. Bob Madison and Dwight Smith led the hitting attack with three hits apiece.

Fort Benning unleased a four-run sixth inning when the tribe yielded two walks, an error, and two hits. Jack Ross struck out 11 and gave up five hits, but took the loss.

Thinclads Place In Georgia AAU Meet

By Vickie Warden
Flambeau Sports Writer

A second place was brought back to the Seminole camp when the Florida State cindermen finished three points behind first place Auburn in the annual Georgia AAU Track and Field Meet, which was held in Atlanta Saturday.

Totaling 43 points, Florida State's 11 - man contingent were followed up by the Atlanta Striders with 37 points and Georgia Tech with 27. Thirteen teams were filed in the meet.

Quentin Till, running the 440 with a time of 47.8 seconds, was the only tribe member to bring home a blue ribbon. Not one member failed to place.

Herb Kraft, jumping two inches short of Georgia Tech's Mart Harsh's winning broad jump, broke the school record in that event with a 23-5 leap. He had tied the previous record of 23-3¼ which was set in 1954 twice this season. Kraft has been the lone Seminole to win his specialty in every dual meet this season.

Seminole Terry Long, owner of several low hurdle records, finished second in the 220 and 440 hurdles and fourth in the 120 hurdles.

Steve Long, Terry's older brother and one - time owner of the school high jump record was second in this event and George Smith, the present school high jump record holder, was fourth.

In the shot putt and discus events heaver Jeff Clark placed fourth. Clark set the FSU-Miami meet record in the discus at the 153-9½ mark this year. Also in the shot putt, Barry Topper came in fifth.

Craig Johnson, one of the chiefs of the tribe, ran in second in the 220. Dave Ellis was third in the 120 hurdles and Jack Brocksmith finished fifth in the 880.

The mile relay team, a quartet composed of Terry Long, Till, Johnson, and Brocksmith, came in third.

Freshman Al Williams was fifth in the discus.

Pep Squad To Get Block

A block of the upper 616 seats on the 50 yard line is among the many new plans being made for next year's Pep Squad, a subdivision of the Rally Committee.

An attempt is being made to reserve the seats between the block and the band for married students. Fred Diulus, chairman of the Rally Committee, stated that this would be an added incentive for non - married students to join the squad.

The main purpose of the group will be to promote school spirit which, according to Diulus, "has been lacking here for some time."

Seats in the block will be sold on a "first come, first serve" basis, since there will "probably" be more squad members than there are seats. Members will not be required to buy tickets in the block for every home game.

Any member may purchase up to four tickets in the block by using his I.D. card, which the committee hopes to have stamped "Rally Committee." Any tickets not used by the squad will be made available to other students. No non - students will sit in the block except as guests of members.

Students in the block will form the card section and participate in group cheering. Anyone wishing to join may send his name, box number and student number to the Rally Committee, box 3085, campus mail.

A letter will be sent to all incoming freshmen to inform them of the group and to urge them to join. "The main appeal will be to the freshmen," Diulus said.

Diulus commented that the project has the "full support" of the coaching staff and the student body president.

Plans Have Been Made For Summer Artist Series

The Summer Artist Series will include productions by a pianist-humorist, a choral group and the presentation of a play.

The first feature of the Summer Artist Series will be Marshall Izen, who will perform June 11.

Izen is a humorist and who accompanies himself on the piano.

Also on the slate of events is a production of Dylan Thomas' play, Under the Milkwood, scheduled for July 25.

Under the Milkwood, written for the radio in 1953, soon appeared on stage and has gone through many productions.

Written for a cast of ten, the play is none of the most romantic of Thomas's works. It was originally written in poetic form but much of the script was changed when it was rewritten for the stage.

Whitney Balliett, in his New Yorker review, said, "It is an out-and-out celebration of such disgusting matters as prostitution, contemplated murder, unrequited love, drunkenness, ignorance, near-madness, illegitimacy and death."

The final feature of the series is a program by the Bondeliers, a male trio by Edmund Karlsrud, the director of the Karlsrud Chorale.

Karlsrud is a bass-baritone who specializes in oratorical singing and is a guest artist with a record of more than 800 concerts.

He is widely traveled, having presented concerts in all 50 states, Mexico and every Canadian province.

Karlsrud has organized many singing groups which include the Men of Song Quartet, Concert to Men, New York Sextet and the Karlsrud Chorale.

The production by the Bondeliers will include a variety of selections in the areas of folk songs, spirituals, art songs, opera and show tunes.

The program by the Bondeliers will be presented August 3.

Canterbury Is Accepting Applications

Applications from male students for residence in Canterbury House next fall are still being accepted. Interested persons should contact either Chaplains Harcourt E. Waller Jr. or Roger Steinhauer at Ruge Hall.

Canterbury House, a Faith and Life Community, is sponsored by the Chapel of the Resurrection and Ruge Hall. It is a unique experiment designed to rediscover on the university campus the relationship between worship and learning, and the meaning of the Christian community.

The basic requirement for applicants to Canterbury House is that they are open-minded in their approach to Christian faith. While Canterbury House is under the auspices of the Episcopal Church, applicants do not have to be Episcopalians.

Expenses per semester for students at Canterbury House include $100. for room, and their share of a low cost cooperative food plan which is available.

Rooms for the Summer Session also are available. Information may be obtained by calling 222-4053.

Burmudas Allowed

Women students attending Summer School at Florida State University will be permitted to wear Bermuda shorts and tailored slacks Monday through Friday after 4:30 p.m.

This regulation has been approved by Dean of Women Katherine Warren and will be governed by the same stipulations that apply on Saturdays in the Fall.

Major changes in the Knowledge for College, handbook for women students, passed by Women's Senate and approved by Dean Warren have been announced by Martha Bedell, this year's president of Women's Senate. Other bills are still pending Dean Warren's approval. All bills approved will go into effect next Fall.

Summer Grads

Approximately 450 Florida State University students will receive their degrees after the 1961 Summer Session.

The graduation ceremony will take place August 12, in Westcott Auditorium and will begin at 3 p.m.

Because Jone graduation is so close at hand the speaker has not yet been determined.

FSU's Distinguished Professor Is Appointed Work With UNESCO

By MARTHA ROBERTS
Flambeau Feature Writer

Florida State University's Distinguished Professor of the Year, Dr. Wiley L. Housewright, has recently been appointed by United States Secretary of State Dean Rusk to the United States National Commission for the United States Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

This appointment was conferred upon one hundred Americans distinguished in specific fields.

Housewright's selection as FSU's Distinguished Professor was announced at the June commencement by Dr. Werner A. Baum, dean of the faculties. The School of Music professor was selected for the honor by secret ballot of the faculty members.

Dean Baum commented, "As much as any other person, he has helped to build the graduate program in music education at our University into one of the most respected in the nation, and he has supervised numerous master's and doctoral theses."

EXPERT MUSICIAN

"Simultaneously, he has maintained and enlarged his status as a practicing musician by developing the Florida State University Singers into one of the most expert choral groups in his country."

The 47-year-old educator, a native of Wylie, Texas, has been on the FSU faculty since 1947. During this time he has been active not only in on-campus academic affairs, but also in advisory roles for foundations, other organizations, and the federal government. He has served on the advisory board of Ford Foundation's Program in the Humanities and the Arts and is on the advisory panel of the Department of State's International Cultural Exchange Program.

Well known in professional groups, he has served as president of the Southern Music Educators Conference and on the executive committee of the Music Educators National Conference.

Housewright received his bachelor's degree from North Texas State College at Denton in 1934. He received his master's degree from Columbia University in 1938 and his doctor of education degree from New York University in 1943.

FULBRIGHT SCHOLAR

He served as director of music for the Fort Worth public schools, director of music for the Batavia, N. Y., public schools and assistant professor of music education at the University of Texas before coming to FSU in 1955. Dr. Housewright served a summer professorship at Indiana University. On a Fulbright grant he lectured on choral literature and choral music in Japan during the 1956-57 school year.

Housewright organized the University Singers, a 71-voice group of men and women students, in 1948. In addition to giving two concerts each year on campus, the group has toured widely and has appeared over nationwide radio networks.

Dr. Housewright

UNESCO SPEAKER

This summer, Dr. and Mrs. Housewright spent three months in Europe where he delivered a paper at the UNESCO sponsored conference of the International Society of Music Education in Vienna. Music educators from all over the globe attended this conference.

During their tour, the Housewrights attended music festivals in Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Spain and Germany.

Of their interesting and enjoyable trip Housewright noted, "Although we hadn't planned it, we seemed to run into former FSU students everywhere we went."

RECOGNITION OF ARTS

Regarding his selection as FSU's Distinguished Professor, he stated, "I feel the award was recognition on the part of the faculty, placing value on music and arts in education even at a time when science is in the spotlight.

"I believe it was more of a recognition of the faculty of the School of Music than a personal recognition," he concluded.

Totols $138,600

Loan Fund Is Given To FSU

A loan fund totalling $138,600 will be available to Florida State University students by 1971 as a gift from Tallahassee businessman H. G. Blanton and his wife.

The first funds will be available for loans in 1963. The first payment to the University of $22,275 will be made then.

The Blantons have provided the funds from the sale of a tract of land in Volusia County. The fund will be called the Herman and Eva Blantoh Scholarship Fund at FSU.

Loans may be made out of this fund to students up to a maximum of $1,000 for one year or $4,000 for the entire college career. They are repayable at five per cent interest beginning six months after graduation or following termination of studies at FSU.

Deadline On Elections

Filing Set Tuesday

The deadline for filing declarations of candidacy for freshmen class officers and precinct elections is Tuesday at 5 p.m.

Declaration forms may be obtained at the main office in Longmire and may be turned in there also.

A compulsory meeting for all candidates will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday in Lambeau Auditorium. Secretary of Elections Nancy Sill will explain election and campaign procedures at the meeting.

To qualify as a candidate a freshman must have had a "C" average in high school. Upperclassmen must have a 2.0 average for the preceding semester or a 2.0 overall grade average.

Freshmen class offices include president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and chairman, two men senators and two women senators. One senator each will be elected from the following precincts Jennie Murphree, Reynolds, Bryan and Broward, Gilchrist, East Leon, West Leon, Florida, Dorman, Magnolia, Cawthon, Reddick, West and Kellum will elect two senators.

Four day student senators will be elected. Students living o f f campus or in residence halls are eligible for these posts. Two senators will also be elected to represent Dale Mabry Heights and the University Trailer Park. Two representatives will also be elected from Alumni Village.

Sorority and fraternity precincts will be represented by six senators.

Further information may be obtained from Miss Sill at 408 Longmire or the Kappa Alpha Theta House or Judy Cox at 222-2462.

Student Insurance Plan Is Available

Student Government has made available to all full time students and their dependents an Accident and Heath Insurance program at an exceedingly low price. Tom Schultz, secretary of student welfare said.

The insurance costs $13.15 for students and $29.25 for students and their wives.

This price is lower than it was last year and yet offers the same benefits, he said.

The insurance can be taken out at Tully Gym registration days and following registration at Longmire Bldg.

Due to the fact that there will be an insurance agent in this town, it will not be necessary to communicate with Daytona, as it was previously, in order to settle claims up to $250, he said. This will result in fast service, Schultz said.

An important feature distinguishing this insurance from many other insurance plans offered by universities is the fact that the plan covers the entire calendar year, rather than just the school year.

Bryant's $30 Million Plan For College Aid Approved

By ROLAND WILKINSON
Falmbeau Staff Writer

The State Cabinet Tuesday approved Governor C. Farris Bryant's $30 million plan for expansion of Florida's universities and colleges into a "space age program." Half of the money is to be raised by a bond issue.

If the program is carried through all the $15 million to be borrowed will be spent at the major state universities.

About $5.2 million would go to the new university at Boca Raton, $1.8 million for the University of South Florida, $4.6 million for the University of Florida and 2.4 million for the Florida State University. No specific use has been designated for the remainder.

PLANNED AT FSU

Among the planned projects for FSU are expansion of facilities for nuclear studies and a $1.6 million physics building.

Plans for the execution of the program are now being formulated by the state board of control and will be put into action as soon as possible. Actual construction might not begin for some time but the tempo of the building program will be stepped up greatly. New plans will be made as well as rushing present projects.

The proposal passed with only one dissenting vote which was cast by Secretary of State Tom Adams. He made no comment but placed on record his earlier formal statement condemning the plan as "government by executive fiat."

TO DEVELOP ONLY

The cabinet's action does not actually authorize issuance of the bonds but gives the board of control authority to develop the bond issue.

The $15 million for the program are to be borrowed by the state through a bond issue. Secretary of State Tom Adams spoke strongly against the plan on the basis of its constitutionality.

Adams said he agreed on the need for an expanded building program and would support "any legal methods of supplying these expansions."

"But I cannot agree with this emergency proposal to accomplish it," he said.

SOLE AUTHORITY

Adams argued that the legislature has sole authority to raise taxes and spend money and the present proposal to raise money by the executive branch—on matter how worthy a cause—was a violation of the basic precepts set forth by the founding fathers of the state.

Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner supported the plan after two reservations he held were over-ruled. His earlier reservations were whether the legislature would approve it and if the interest charges on the bonds could be justified.

Conner supported the plan after Bryant assured him of a protective support for it and said more than enough funds could be raised by the proposed charges.

Former Sen. Doyle Carlton Jr. of Wauchula agreed with Adams that the expenditure was a very dangerous precedent but said it would be less dangerous if it had the approval of legislators.

Reaction from legislators seems to be mixed. From Bradenton, Sen. Ed Price saw it as an usurpation of legislative responsibility.

Rep. Leo Jones of Bay County charged the Cabinet with violating the state constitution and declared they were actually appropriating $15 million.

Tally-Ho

Today and tomorrow are the last days for seniors to register to have their pictures taken for the TALLY-HO and for underclassmen to reserve copies at the annual.

Tables for registration and reservations are on the exit ramp from the registration area.

Senior pictures are $2, which includes reservation of a yearbook.

Underclassmen must pay $2 to reserve a book.

Summer Experiences

Students Sent Afield To Study

Ancient Creek village, once the site of a famous battle between Andrew Jackson and the Creek warriors, again became a battle field this summer when a group of student archaeologists defended the area against some quizzical cows, an army of red bugs, and a few farmers who did not appreciate their land being excavated.

The group was composed of two women students: Rebecca Rankin and Janet Turner; eight male students: Stephen Poe, Peyton Cone, John Compton Freeon, John Elton, Derrik Lawler, Richard Shenkel, Stephen Foster and David Gregory; and Dr. Charles H. Fairbanks, associate professor of anthropology and acheology.

The group is located in the Alabama National Park, about 10 miles from the small town of Dadeville. The group was looking for the exact location of the Creek village and fortification built by the Indians in the early part of the Nineteenth Century.

The famous battle occurred in March of 1814, and resulted in the death of the Creek warriors being killed. Jackson's troop suffered few casualties.

The "dig" lasted eight weeks, and the students returned home with sunburned hands, battle-sounds from the bugs and physically exhausted, said Shenkel.

They worked from 6 a.m. until 2:30 or 3 p.m. and then went to town three days a week where he analyzed the pottery, animal bones and spears we had found that day," reported Shenkel. While they did not find exactly what they were looking for, Dr. Fairbanks was pleased with the pre-Creek pottery and spears which he found, Shenkel added. The discoveries will be placed in the museum in Alabama.

Funds could be spent as we wished, and Dr. Fairbanks made no rules on us," Shenkel said. Most of the students used their time to do the required and supplementary reading for their courses. They also threw several parties and visited nearby towns. Shenkel said the residents of Dadeville were "cooperative and friendly" and two community parties were given for the group during the summer.

The students received nine hours credit for their summer experience.

A group of FSU students spent their summer interning with various law enforcement agencies in Florida.

The students included: Patricia Bakes, interning with the Miami Police Dept., Stephen Zgisch, with the Duval County Sheriff's Office, William Nettles, with the Escambia County Sheriff's Office, Jerry Hall, with the Orange County Sheriff's Office; and Fred Hamilton with the Sarasota Police Dept.

Each student has the only such program in the South, placed in various law enforcement agencies throughout the state for the summer.

The internship in law enforcement offers the senior major the opportunity to relate his classroom learning to the needs of the police field, according to James Stinchcomb, former Louisville Ky., policeman who directs the FSU law enforcement program.

Miss Bakes is the first women to serve as a law enforcement officer for the Miami police department.

Appreciation Dinner

Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell and other university officials were hosts at an appreciation dinner for the Blantons "I wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Blanton publicly for the generosity of their gift and for the interest they have shown in this program," he said.

Benefit More

"We believe that students will benefit more from loans which they eventually will pay back than they would from an outright gift for their college expenses," said the Blantons.

The first proceeds from the mortgage go to the Florida Methodist Children's Home at Enterprise, near Sanford. Out of the first three annual installments of $16,500 in principal and an additional amount of interest, it was specified that a cottage-type home be provided to be called the Herman and Eva Blanton Cottage.

Seven additional installments of the mortgage payments then will go to FSU for the student loan fund.

Fallon Announces Auditions For Theatre To Be Tuesday

Annual auditions will be Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Conradi Theatre, Richard Fallon, associate professor of theatre, has announced.

For the audition evening, students trying out should prepare a short (3-5 minute) scene or act or with someone else). Materials are available in the theatre office, 113 History Bldg., or the student may use something he has used before.

Tryouts for The Last Days of Lincoln, the first production of the season, will be Wednesday and Thursday. Scripts for the play by Mark VanDoren will be a vailable in the theatre office today.

All students are eligible for the tryouts.

The play, a joint production of the University Theatre and the Eddie Dowling Foundation, will be presented Oct. 18-25.

The play concerns Lincoln's determination to protect the South from radicals during the Civil War.

Part of the cast will be professional actors and the remainder will be students. Lincoln will be played by a professional actor, as will two other leading parts. The remainder of the cast will be made up of students. There are also five women's parts and 12 men's parts.

Some of the major parts to be filled by students are Secretary of State Stanton, General and Mrs. Grant, and some Southern friends of Lincoln.

The play, according to Fallon, is of particular significance since the South is celebrating the centennial of the Civil War. It presents a different picture of Lincoln, one that may be surprising to the people of the South, Fallon said.

Student Body Officers Reveal Plans For Action In Coming Year

Student body officers began formulating their plans for the year as Student Body President Bobby Byrd announced that he will give top priority to the Student Union and swimming pool.

Byrd considers these projects to be a "crucial stage" and said, "We will get the Student Union this year or not at all."

Byrd also gave his support to University projects such as the current drive for civil defense education of the student body.

"The Student Government will in every way possible co-operate with the university in this program and in plans for a defense shelter," he added.

"A university in a state that is growing as fast as Florida, the home of the moon shot, should take advantage of the many resources available to it from the state, the nations, and other schools," Byrd explained.

"The information booth at Weitzell was set up as a result of correspondence with other schools, and many ideas for the Student Union have been obtained from other universities," the president said.

Byrd also feels that Student Government should emphasize the academic side of university life by projects such as providing study rooms in classrooms buildings at night and establishing groups like the Curriculum Evaluation Committee which will operate this year for the first time to give student recommendations to the faculty.

Most of his work, Byrd said, will be "carrying out the work of organizations already set up for furthering education. I can guarantee one thing," he commented, "We'll be working."

Ken van Assenderp, vice president of the student body, began his work this summer as he and Marianna Girtman, secretary of state, were co-chairmen in planning Student Government's orientation activities.

Van Assenderp feels that a freshman or transfer student's introduction to Student Government and the Honor Court determines the attitude he will take. He stated, "I wish everyone would emphasize the new Honor System."

Working closely with the vice president, Honor Court Chief Justice Dan Walbolt said, "My most important plan for the first few weeks of school is the orientation of new students to the Academic Honor System."

CLASS HONOR DISCUSSION

In addition to Walbolt's initial orientation speech Monday night, speakers representing the Honor Committee will hold discussions on the Honor System with freshmen in the first period of all freshman English classes.

Walbolt and van Assenderp are working to present the same discussion to humanities classes in order to also clarify the Honor System for upperclassmen.

Former penalties for academic dishonesty were an "F" in the course and a variety of other consequences. Now the penalty for cheating and plagiarism is suspension.

SENATE TO ACT ON CHEERLEADERS

A bill will be introduced at the first Senate meeting to choose the cheerleading line-up from five boys and five girls to 10 girls and two boys.

Wayne Barnes, head cheerleader, explained, "This change is being asked for because more girls seem interested in cheerleading than boys. At tryouts, the girls always outnumber the boys considerably."

Barnes feels that increasing the size of the squad from 10 to 12 will also build school spirit at the ball games. He anticipates passage of the bill in time for the Florida game.

Senate will discuss presenting civil defense education to all university students this year.

CIVIL DEFENSE

"We should know the dangers that face Tallahassee in case of an atomic attack and how to survive these dangers," van Assenderp said.

Tentative dates for informative civil defense talks are October 4 and 5.

Carl Kuttler, men's vice president, is also working for a program of civil defense education. He hopes that details of the program can be worked out in Men's Senate.

"The Men's Senate plans to take a more active part to Student Senate this year. I hope our meetings will make the men senators more organized and familiar with the bills when they are presented," he said.

"The drinking situation will not consume the major portion of the men senators' time as I do not feel there is a drinking PROBLEM," he continued "However, it is a touchy situation about which both the Student Government and the administration are concerned."

Myrnon Champion, women's vice president, presides over the Women's Senate. She also makes up Knowledge for College. She has appointed a special assistant, Kelly Adkins, to gather information on women's rules at other schools.

Miss Champion hopes to initiate an orientation program for new senators. This would include explanation of procedures and a question and answer session in order that new senators would not have to learn everything by mere observation.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

In the Inkwell interview given to foreign students, she sees a missed opportunity both for American students and for international students.

She believes that foreign students can, if given the chance, provide Americans with a much broader insight into the cultural aspects as well as the governmental and social problems of the rest of the world.

She has suggested that each foreign student be assigned an American "buddy" who could help introduce him to the campus and to the other American students.

Linda Stearns, chairman of the university court, hopes to have the University Court work more closely with the Women's Senate in improvement and enforcement of women's rules.

"COURTS DON'T SPY"

Miss Stearns denies that judiciary uses "spies" in the dorms to en force women's rules. "There are no "spies"," she stated. "That is an old rumor that has never been anything but a rumor.

"Detection of violations may be reported to the court by residence counselors, dorm officers, any student of this university," she said.

Although the number of drinking cases doubled last year, Miss Stearns hopes to cut down on the frequency of violations by reaching the women students early this year with informative discussions and explanations of the rules emphasizing the seriousness of violations of drinking rules.

These forums conducted in the dorms by women senators, members of judiciary, and dorm counselors were used last year in the spring, but Miss Stearns feels that if FSU women are acquainted with the University Court and its function sooner, they will have more respect for it.

Above all, the court should be respected not as a court of punishment, but as a court of correction," she said.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

Columns and letters to the editor represent only the opinion of their authors.

All students are invited to submit either columns or letters for publication.

Honor: Farce Or Fact?

Last spring, the Flambeau urged students to carefully consider the possible consequences before voting for an Honor System. We urged students to vote against the honor bill unless they intended to live up to all parts of it including turning in offenders.

The student body, in a referendum, passed the new system by a vote of 1410 to 966. The Academic Honor System is now a part of the Student Body Constitution.

HOWEVER, THE VOTE MERELY put the code on the books. It still must be ratified into an active part of the University by the actions of the student body. The senators who spent so many hours working on the new system did not intend to create a dormant monster to lie on the books as a joke and a farce. It is up to the students to keep honor alive on campus.

The most important part of the system is the clause, "And I refuse to tolerate academic dishonesty on the part of another." This means, in effect, that a student who fails to report a classmate for cheating is as guilty as the cheater and is subject to the same court action.

MOST STUDENTS, WHEN asked, will assert that cheating and plagiarism are wrong, but many hesitate to admit that they would report a violation of the code.

The Academic Honor System does not apply to social regulations and dorm rules. Students are expected only to report cheating and plagiarism. Those who violate the code are thieves of academic integrity and knowledge, and under an Honor System it is the duty of every student to report such actions.

IF THE SYSTEM IS to be effective, the stigma must be removed from such words as "squealer" and "stool pigeon." Students must honestly believe that cheating is wrong and that cheating robs honest students of grades by setting high curves. They must be willing to help prevent this by reporting violations of the code to the professor or to the Honor Court.

When voters accepted the honor bill, they also accepted the responsibility of following it and helping to enforce it. Otherwise, they are ridiculing the very concept of honor.

IT IS TIME for the students of Florida State University to demonstrate their moral fiber. Will they be true to the principles they voted to adopt, or will they snicker hypocritically.

We Get To Work

This is the time of the year when grandiose statements of things to come are bandied about readily. Great pledges are made, great dreams are dreamt, and great challenges are hurled.

Since pledges must be made, we will make ours. But it will be far from grandiose. There is little grand about work, and that is what we are pledging.

We intend to work to uphold what we consider to be the tenets of good journalism.

These include writing impartial accounts of news events, placing stories according to their genuine news values, giving no undue emphasis to any group, clique, or organization, and printing all shades of student opinion in the letters to the editors without repetition of any particular sentiment.

In the latter, we wish to encourage student cooperation We can not hope to give a fair representation of student thoughts if students will not voice them for publication.

We pledge our support to the administration and student government, believing that they are both headed by honest individuals who are dedicated to their job.

However, as in the past, editorial opinion of the Flambeau is sovereign and we will be free to criticize if need be.

In short, we'll work to provide the university with a newspaper that fairly reflects the activities of the university on the news pages, but seeks to lead student opinion on the editorial page.

Without further words, we'll get to work.

Foresight Shown In CD Planning

Administration, students, and local Civil Defense leaders have shown foresight in preparing a series of lectures informing students of procedure in case of an atomic attack.

The problems are complex. Moving 9,000 students to areas of safety in a panic situation and keeping them there is a major task.

We commend these gentlemen for facing the problem now, while there is still time to work out an effective plan.

And we urge student cooperation in laying the ground work for a workable Civil Defense program.

Congratulations Due Registrar

We wish to express our congratulations and gratitude to Dr. Murray Kenna, registrar, for his improvements in the complicated registration process.

Replacing the 12 information cards with one master IBM ticket is appreciated by many former victims of writer's cramp and by the various departments, which can now get the information they need with far fewer errors.

Also, class admission cards should insure accurate class roles and eliminate the usual first-week classroom confusion.

Fraternities Should Change Rush Days

Is is unfortunate that fraternities have not yet adopted the sororities method of grade-saving.

Fraternity rush, which starts Sunday, will schedule both open houses and rush parties during the week.

These parties come at an unfortunate time of the year. No fraternity can expect to do a proper job of rushing and devote proper attention to their school work. At the beginning, fraternity men are already one week behind.

Pan-Hellenic has at least partially solved the problem by scheduled parties only on the weekend.

Interfraternity Council would do well to follow suit.

Strong Individuals Build A Strong University, Says Byrd

Editor's note: Florida State's President and Vice President addressed the freshmen in their first official speeches of the year Monday. Below is a presentation of the bulk of these speeches.

Student Needs Responsibility

By KEN VAN ASSENDERP
Student Body Vice President

If you can bear with me, I would like to make this speech somewhat of a personal testimony, what FSU means to me and what it means to you.

Being a student requires responsibility. I know—this is a trite statement; however, I must use it.

A student is a citizen in our university community. This citizenship guarantees rights and privileges to students, but it also requires duty.

BECAUSE OF THE varied backgrounds represented here, I realize that many of you know full well the extent of responsibility and now to live with it. What I want to suggest this evening is that responsibility when added to the rights and privileges of citizenship at our school, takes on a different meaning.

You are not only here to improve your mind and character, but you are here to prove that you can use your mind and character.

We realize the truth of this statement

Knowledge is knowing what to do.

Wisdom is knowing how to do it.

Virtue is getting out and doing it.

Living is LIVING. Action is vitality.

In this sense today is tomorrow; the present is the future.

Why?

Because wht you learn now and how you add to your character now is of no avail later—tomorrow, unless you use it now.

THIS IS WHY our student government—vital and necessary on campus, is so well revered elsewhere. And this is what you must help us prove to the world—for the world this day and time could well head the meaning of your life at your FSU.

As you face with us the trials and hardships of college life, as you enter campus campaigns, as you play for the gridiron favorites, as you study for and take the final exams, remember . . . what Col. Robert L. Scott said when he was a combat pilot in many a dog-fight during W.W. II.

"The sheets are screaming, the motor roaring, the enemy fighters darting and dodging, and I, in my little cockpit am scared and alone—no—not alone. God is my co-pilot!"

Letters Policy

Letters to the editor are welcomed by the Flambeau staff heartily.

We furnish believe that students should have the right and should take the opportunity to express themselves on all issues.

We will attempt to print every shade of student opinion, rather than printing a series of letters expressing the same sentiment. In cases where more than one letter is received taking the same stand, we will print the best letter on each side and recognize the other letters submitted.

Qualities we look for in letters are quality of presentation, correctness of spelling and grammar, and conciseness of thought. Only on exceptionally rare instances will we print letters of over 250 words. We reserve the right to edit letters as long as the meaning and intent remains the same.

At no time will letters containing material which is libelous or in bad taste be printed since the editor is held responsible for all material printed in the Flambeau regardless of its author.

Errors of grammar and spelling will be labeled with the word (sic) signifying that the mistake was the writers. This will apply to all letters regardless of the thoughts presented. Contributions containing an excess of errors will not be published.

By BOBBY BYRD
Student Body President

Many people will be doing this in the next few days, but I want to add a welcome from Student Government. We are glad to have you all here. Actually it is inaccurate to welcome you to FSU, for once you made the final decision to enroll in this university and were accepted as a student, in effect you became Florida State University.

A group of imposing buildings situated on a hill, a collection of professors and instructors, and a wise administration do not make a university. Only students seeking knowledge can bring to a college and its staff completion to the term university.

WE KNOW THAT no man is an island unto himself, so no one of you can ever detach himself from the being that is this university. If this institute does not attain high academic standards it is because you are not attaining high academic standards.

Sometime you may hear someone say that school spirit is not all that it could be on this campus; but the people who deplore this situation are the same ones who hesitate to cheer for the football team. These people who feel so free in their criticism of FSU do not give freely of their time and ability to lift this campus to the level of their ideals. What I am saying is simply, it is not enough to be dissatisfied with a condition; work must be exerted before there is improvement.

THERE ARE MANY avenues along which you can fulfill your responsibility to build a greater and better Florida State University. These include academic achievements, athletic competition, and a multitude of varied activities.

Tonight I want to talk to you a moment about your Student Government and your responsibility to it. As you know, our federal and state governments derive their power from the will of the people to give that power to an organization. Student Government arises from the needs of the students, but unlike a federal or state government receives its original power from the administration of the school . . . Notice the phrase "original power," for as the students support and are loyal to their government so the influence of that government on the faculty and administration will increase.

Also Student Government is like a plant in that it grows from within itself. To the degree that Student Government fulfills its obligations and responsibilities; to that degree will it receive more responsibility and thereby more power to serve the needs of students.

LET US TAKE A look at Student Government at FSU. It is divided into three branches. The first is the Judicial which is House Council, Traffic Court, University Court, and Honor Court. The second branch is the Legislative headed by the Student Body Vice President and is composed of the Student Senate which may divide into Men and Women's Senate headed respectively by the Men and Women's Vice Presidents. The third branch is the Executive headed by the Student Body President and his cabinet.

Our Student Government is better organized to serve our student body than any other school of similar size in the Southeast. We have a budget to appropriate each year approximately $360,000. Through this such activities as the cheerleaders, the Choral Union, and the student publications receive their financial support.

WE HAVE a Student Government of which we can sure you can tell that we are proud. Yet Student Government is not just a handful of people. It is each student fulfilling his responsibility, whether that responsibility is serving on a committee, running for office, or voting.

How well Student Government will function this year depends on how well each student will assume his obligation to Student Government. This is an avenue down which many of you may travel. Of course there are other activities, but the important thing is that each individual finds his own means of expression.

JUST BEFORE I came to FSU my freshman year, the man who lived next door said, " . . . When you get to FSU do not forget who you are." In a way that was a cruder form of Plato's "Know thyself." For eighteen or twenty years you have been received from family, church, school, and friends all the qualities that make you what you are. Do not forget the obligation you have toward all those people who are counting on you to do well. Do not forget who you are . . . Do not try to adopt the values of those with whom you will be associating unless those are values on which you believe. Whether you are a beatnik or Betty Coed does not matter so long as that is the individual you are and not merely what you think is expected of a college freshman.

TO BORROW from Hamlet:

"To thine own self be true, and it must follow as the night the day thou canst not then be false to any man."

By building strong individuals who are true to the qualities which are their real selves, so we will build students who will be true to academic attainments, and so we will build our Alma Mater into a great university.

Let's Get Serious

K. Moves Shells While Kennedy Huffs

By GERRY DOBSON

Once again Khrushchev has moved the shells around at lightning speed, and once again the West has picked one up, only to see that the pea wasn't there. But this time, in Berlin, the fiasco was worse than usual, this time we don't even know we've been skinned!

While Kennedy et al. are huffing and puffing that we'll never buck down, no one seems to realize that we already have. Of course we still have troops in Berlin, and its two million citizens are still free. But with only a few of our patented "still notes" in protest, we permitted the communists to gain their major objective: the border between East and West Berlin is closed

For the whole reason West Berlin was such a thorn in the side of Walter Ulbricht's assortment of murderers was that the city was the only place where people could actually compare capitalism and communism. In Berlin, as a result of four-power agreements, free access to all four zones was guaranteed to all Berliners. And since East Berlin is the "capital" of the illegally constituted German Democratic (sic) Republic, East Germans could easily compare their economic system with that in the decadent West.

THE OBVIOUS conclusions which could be drawn by the East Germans were a factor in the unrest in East Germany. The setup in Berlin was intolerable for the communists both because of the east of comparison and the ease of escape to the West. The latter had greatly injured East German industrial production by skimming off many of the skilled workers.

But now the problem is solved. Ulbricht doesn't have to worry either about comparisons or escape any more. The West has abdicated its treaty rights in Berlin as it had abdicated its rights, and the rights of millions of innocent people so many times before. The reason is obvious; he can an expression, we're yellow. So now that Khrushchev has won he can afford to be a little reasonable. Why he an old grouch when you're a winner?

But don't let this fool you . . . It was really a great moral victory for the West, as were Hungary and Tibet. Because it shows the whole world just how mean and nasty those communists really are.

But a cloud does loom on the horizon; we may be militarily the strongest, but hadn't someone better check on our supply of stiff note paper?

Anything Goes

Columnist Reviews Another Opening Of Same Old Play

By DOUG SMITH

ANOTHER OPENING OF THE SAME SHOW

The actors are back, and with quite a few additions. The show is about to start all over again. This season's show is going to be, according to advance notice, bigger and better than ever. It's a fun, fun, musical comedy.

The chorus has been rehearsing all week, learning songs, trying new costumes and new acts. The Directors, with the efficiency of an army of ants, have made sure that everyone will do what is expected of him, and nothing more. Things have been arranged so that everyone in the cast has something to do, even if it is telling the director what to say. It just wouldn't do to have some Foof with a little talent and initiative ruin the group's first act.

THE FIRST ACT introduces the main characters with the usual romantic interest. The male lead wears the mask of prince charming, and follows the chorus around uttering cliches and meaningless phrases in a soft, but authoritative voice.

The female lead is, naturally, a princess in distress, only she doesn't know it. She is too busy playing her part to think about it. Her main purpose, like that of a small, velvet-covered victorian chair, or a snuff-box, is decorative. Boy and girl get acquainted despite the tiresome monologues and production numbers.

ACT TWO IS AN improvement because there is more carefree music and dancing, as the audience has become bored with the monologues and supremely indifferent to the plot. After all, they came to be entertained.

The frenzied third act proceeds through a succession of songs, dances, fireworks, and bacchanalias which culminates in the wedding of Prince Charming and the Princess in distress. Why else should she be in the play?

The curtain falls, the lights dim, and the actors retire to prepare for yet another season.

One wonders what has become of serious drama.

No Greatness Yet

A note to freshmen:

At this point you are probably still awed by the wonders of your embryonic college career. This is as it should be.

Undoubtedly, your graduation ...eaker three months ago charged ... to "go forth into the world ... do great things." He chal... ed you vehemently to "stride ... the horizon with greatness ... embark on your voyage into ...ture."

...you are not going to do ...things the first semester of your freshmen year.

In fact, you will probably do ...ure a few things that later re... tion will reveal to be rather ridiculous and inane, though surv... you could not fit into that trite category of "foolish freshman."

However, your graduation chal... lenger uttered an unrefutable truth if he told you that the fu... ure would be marked with many decisions.

College existence is filled with a multiplicity of choices. They ...ange from selecting a proper ...ourse of study to picking a brand ...f toothpaste.

Actually, the purpose of college ...s to teach a student to think so ...hat he can make intelligent ...ecisions and decisions in later ...ife. And the time for choosing ...s upon you.

Reflect Carefully

Perhaps your wisest prerequisite to making decisions would be ...ter-reflection on the purpose of ...e stay here.

Should your purpose be to en...joy in a multitude of activities ...n order to have your name print...ed repeatedly in the Tally-ho, join every do-nothing organization ...n campus. There is certainly no ...shortage of them here.

Giving your life to your be...loved fraternity or sorority may ...lso be your aim. If so, militantly ...attend every activity and never ...ss a chance to crow! with your ...brothers and sisters.

Those are common student aims. ...ut none are the paths to true ...greatness.

Preparation for the future is a ...rugged, lengthier road. A wise stu...dent will travel with his eyes open ...for the curves are plentiful and ...the ditches on either side are ...deep.

Activities Kill

A heavy dose of the extracur...ricular more often kills a student ...than academics for outside activi...ties have a tendency to become ...self-forming.

...The "joiner" will have a dif...ficult time in the university. With ...the multitude of organizations all ...soliciting willing workers, it is ...easy to spread oneself too thin. ...The results may be disastrous.

...In the face of repeated calls to ...greatness, keeping up with aca...demics and limiting oneself to ...few activities may seem inconse...quential. But it is realistic. And ...Greatness must be built upon a ...foundation of realism.

...Greatness does not shine forth ...from the firmament. It is doing ...what has to be done, whether ...unworthy or routine, and doing ...it to the best of one's ability.

...Make your choices well. Select ...your academic and extracurricular ...tasks with realism. Get them done. ...And greatness will come soon ...enough.

Tryouts Are Next Week For Orchestra

The University Symphony Orchestra opens its 35th season this fall with auditions for membership next week. All students, faculty, staff and their families are invited to participate.

Robert Sedore, symphony director, can be contacted in studio room 309 in the Music Bldg., Monday and Tuesday, for conferences and auditions concerning membership.

The orchestra begins rehearsal Wednesday for its first concert to be performed Oct. 27. Four concerts will be performed throughout the year. All rehearsals are conducted in room 207, Music Bldg., on Mondays and Wednesdays from 12 to 12.50 p. m. and Thursday from 7.30 to 10 p. m.

Students may receive one semester hour's credit for participation, or they may audit these sessions.

Sedore is also organizing the Opera Chamber Orchestra for the two operas staged by the Music School and the musical which is a joint production of the Music School and the Speech Dept. each year.

The chamber orchestra rehearses Tuesdays and Fridays from 12 to 12.50 p. m. and may be taken by students for one half semester hour's credit. Membership is open to all students, faculty, staff and their families.

Speed Up In Registration

This semester, one IBM card is doing the job of seven to speed up the registration process, said Dr. Murray Kenna, registrar.

Registrants filled out names, classifications, addresses, religious preferences, etc. on a white cards which were duplicated 15 times, using an Azagraph transfer sheets.

Officials then punched in additional information and handled the remaining steps mechanically, said the registrar.

Students used only six cards this semester compared with 14 last year, he continued. Eventually, the university hopes to cut down the number of cards to three.

"Actually, registration this year is quite similar to last year," Dr. Kenna said. "We will make minor changes every semester to avoid drastic changes. The major changes have been the Azagraph cards, the I.D. cards, and the class admission cards."

With the new steps, officials ran an average of 300 students through the registration line.

Students should complete registration in about one hour and 10 minutes, the registrar said. "We had one hour when 500 students went through," he added.

"The big secret, of course, is for everyone to get here on time and for us to let them through according to the times on their cards—and not before."

The third major change — the orange class admission cards are to be presented to the professors of the various classes; these are the students' "ticket stubs." The registrar keeps a duplicate card, while the professors keep the originals for class records.

Criminology Department Will Expand

The addition of five new courses will enable the Criminology and Corrections Dept. at Florida State University to offer the only law enforcement and criminalistics curriculum on a four year college degree basis in the South.

This new curriculum for the fall semester leading to a four-year degree in either law enforcement or police science is described in the July issue of "The Police Chief," official publication of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The new curriculum will make it possible for a student to major in law enforcement or the joint program of chemistry and police science.

James Stinchcomb, former Louisville policeman who teaches the courses, said: "From trends apparent today, I believe that future career progress in law enforcement will depend on academic training reinforced by experience and performance. As more college trained persons rise to the top in policing, they will in turn encourage those who work with them to acquire additional schooling."

He said that Michigan State University has had a similar program for the past 20 years and many of its graduates now staff such agencies as the U.S. Secret Service; Michigan, Illinois, Pennsylvania and Indiana State Police.

The five new courses are: police organization and administration, public and private security, police programs in crime and delinquency, international crime control and counter espionage, and criminal investigation and judicial proof.

Math-Meterology Building Construction Is Completed

Construction has been completed on the new and modern Math-Meteorology Bldg. north of the Education Bldg. at a cost of $875,000 appropriated by the state.

This building will provide necessary space and facilities for research, office work and classes beginning this semester. The new building has four floors to be used jointly by the Math and Meteorology Depts. The Math Dept. will use the first and second floors, and part of the third. The Meteorology Dept. will utilize the penthouse as a weather observatory. The third and fourth floors and a portion of the basement will be used by this department also.

There are twelve class rooms in the building for regularly scheduled classes; two seminar rooms; several laboratories for meteorology; and one lab for statistics.

The most outstanding piece of equipment is the computing machine found in the basement. Dr. Seymour Hess of the Meteorology Dept. stated that one the open market the machine is valued at one and one-half million dollars, which makes this machine of greater value than the entire building and its furnishings.

To further education the IBM company has a policy of giving to selected universities a reduction in cost. Consequently Florida State University has been able to obtain this machine for approximately one-fifth of its value.

To the Math Dept. this new building will mean more room for research and office work. There are new offices replacing the old ones in which two people were crowded.

The classroom design is the most important feature for the Math Dept. State blackboards are found on three sides of each classroom. Dr. Howard F. Taylor of the Math Dept. stressed the importance of having ample room for the instructor to reach the students from every side

ONE REASON TO SUSPECT THAT DRINKING TAKES PLACE IN CAMPBELL STADIUM: ... these bottles are a few of those found after the FSU-George Washington game last year.

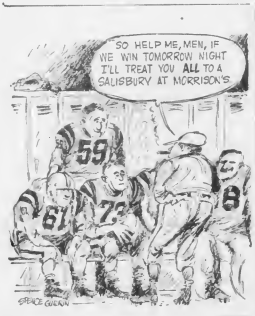
Crack-down Planned On Stadium Drinking

'Obvious Drinking Will Be Nailed—'

"There will be eyes looking for obvious drinking in the stadium during football games this year. Obvious drinking will be nailed—that is a surety." This statement was made by Men's Vice President Carl Kuttler, who has served as a committee member with several student and administrative groups studying the drinking situation on campus.

It is illegal, at FSU, to drink or possess alcoholic beverages on university property or at any university sponsored function or recreational activity.

Kuttler stated that the "former laxity" in enforcing the drinking rule was abused by many students. There was an increase in overt drinking and in drinking cases which were called before the judiciary. According to Kuttler, "Many outside pressures were brought to bear" on university officials to curb the drinking.



BOTTLES THROWN

He cited the example of bottles being thrown from the FSU stands during the FSU-University of Florida game last fall as one of the reasons for the crackdown this year.

Kuttler commented, "As I understand it, from higher sources, the fraternity men will have pressure brought against them from various sources about this drinking." Since the university has a record of which groups occupy the various parts of the stadium, it will be easy to trace the former owners of most of the bottles left in the stands, he added.

"The administration is as concerned about the actions of adults at the games as it is about students, and an understanding is being sought with the townspeople."

Penalties for students caught drinking vary with the case, but drinking while driving means automatic dismissal from the university. Anyone turned in for drinking is subject to court action.

Seminoles Meet First Grid Foe

FSU Seeks Win Against Colonials

Coach Bill Peterson's Seminoles open their 1961 campaign against a George ashington University eleven which wrapped up last year with a red hot finish r a 5-3-1 record.

After dropping three of their st four contests for a disap- inting beginning last season, e Colonials discovered the missg spark to win four and tie one their final five to make a rand exit.

Florida State, playing under Coach Peterson for the second year, is looking for an improvement over a 3-6-1 mark in 1960 against some of the toughest competition it has faced. Besides George Washington, this year's slate includes three Southeastern Conference foes, Florida, Mississippi, and Georgia, on consecutive weekends. The trihe then tackles Richmond, Virginia Tech, Kentucky, The Citadel, Mississpe Southern, and Houston.

Although Coach Peterson doesn't know exactly what to expect from the Colonials, they have been predominantly a defensive squad in fall practice scrimmages. The George Washington eleven is under the direction of Jim Camp, its third head mentor in as many years. Last week the Colonials ran up a 5-1 win over Delaware in a scrimmage.

"We are expecting a tough game, and we're going to have to be at our best," commented FSU's coach. He added that the student body's spirit would be a valuable factor in overcoming the fired up opposition.

Florida State fans can look for a wide - open passing and running attack this campaign under double quarterback threats. Eddie Feely and Ed Tranevgier. Roy Bickford will also be on hand to handle field general position in tomorrow's game. The rest of the backfield positions are not nailed down as firmly as quarterback, however.

At halfback it was necessary to find a replacement for Bud Whitehead, voted most valuable player by his teammates. Tom Hillabrand, second in net rushing and receiving only to Whitehead last season, Happy Fick, and Ken Russom are the returning lettermen. They will be backed up in the lineup by Richie Weber, a speedy sophomore, and Buddy Yarbrough, who was a red shirt last season. Marion Roberts is one of the most likely candidates to land a halfback post.

Paul Andrews, FSU's only experienced fullback, and Gene Roberts are counted upon to fill out the fullback position.

Filling the end positions has been a problem for Peterson and his a t t e n d a n t Jim Daniel, F r e d Grimes, Ed Parker, and John McConnaughay, a converted fullback, are the men who have earned letters. Hank Sytsma and John Wachtel, a pair of sopho mores are rushed upon to also carry out end chores.

Tackles and guards are abundant enough to insure a strong interior line. Tom Slicker, Jim Sims, Steve Klesius, Don Donatelli, Joe Verbinski and Mike Blazovich are all experienced tackles. Gene McDowell, John Levings, Frank DeFrancesco are the guards who have lettered. They will be assisted by Jim Wade, Jerry Bruner, and Ferrell Henry.

Bruce Darsey has been switched to center from his last year's guard position and will be helped by Larry Hood, who lettered last year. Two sophomores, Bill Dawson and Chuck Robinson, have also shown promise in this role.

Freshmen Present Picture Of Bright Athletic Future

By JIMMY CARROLL
Flambeau Sports Writer

With Florida State's athletic status going up every year, the appeal for better athletes is increased. This year's freshmen class boast of many such hopeful athletes who in the next four years will leave their mark on the university record books.

Freshman Football Coach Charlie LaPradd has the honor of having many outstanding players this year. Coach LaPradd has three outstanding quarterbacks from out - of - state. Ed Pritchett from Avondale High put at quarterback. Ed received school in Atlanta, Georgia was All-American, All-State, and AAA back of the Year. Pritchett led his team to the North Georgia Championship and also played in the Georgia All-Star Game. He played many backfield positions on high school, but was outstanding in the single wing at quarterback.

Another Georgia boy from Curio High where he was All-State Honorable Mention is Jim Massey. Steve Tenni is also competing for the quarterback position. He is from Cincinnati, Ohio and played bas football at Elder High School. It will be a tough race for the starting job at this all-important position.

Avery Summer is the big man in the backfield at the fullback post. He stands 6-2 and weighs 213 pounds. Summer hails from Adel, Georgia.

Earl Hawkins is a bright prospect at halfback. Earl is 6-5 and weighs 197 pounds. He went to high schol in Matoe Virginia where he was All-American and Most Valuable Player in the State.

In the line Steve Slay, Jack Shimbolier, and Terry Garvin have been more than adequate. Slay woh All-American, All-State, and Lineman of the Year honors, while attending Southwest High in Atlanta. Slay from his center and line - backing positions led his school to its first winning season in history.

GW Faces Roberts AND Roberts In Opener

When the George Washington Colonials enter Campbell Stadium tomorrow night they will face a talented Florida State backfield duo by the names of Gene and Marion Roberts.

Although the Roberts are not related to each other they have several things in common. Gene is a husky 205-pound sophomore who is noted for his power running, and after being held out for a season the native of High Springs, Florida, returning after being held out a season, will be the key fullback in FSU's flexible T offense.

Marion Roberts has been a top performer in practice sessions after a season with Charlie LaPradd's freshman gridders. This 185-pound Georgian is praised for his rough blocking. He has filled every backfield position during his stay at Florida State and is currently holding a halfback slot. During his freshman year he was a quarterback, and until recently he planned on being a varsity fullback.

Gene Roberts' brother, Charlie, was a player for the Seminoles' cross-state rival, the University of Florida. Coach Peterson has warned Florida State's opposition to watch out for passing, but with Gene he can also present a real threat through the middle of the line. Paul Andrews is the only returning letterman to lend Gene a hand with fullback chores, but he fills the bill adequately. Last season he carried the ball 44 times for a gain of 152 yards and snagged two passes for 9 yards.

Tom Hillabrand, Happy Fick, Ken Russom, and Jack Forehand are all back from the 1960 squad to assist Marion at halfback, but Buddy Yarbrough, last year's redshirt, Richie Weber, a speedy sophomore, and Keith Kinderman, a rough transfer, will also see plenty of action.

Coach Peterson is anticipating using the combination of Roberts and Roberts to tear up the middle of opposition lines. The missing punch of last year's Seminole eleven may be supplied by Marion's vicious blocking followed by hard-running Gene. The head coach presame way that the Roberts go." "All the boys have done a real fine job and deserve a lot of credit" added Peterson.

Boosters Stage Membership Drive

A kick - off luncheon and Open House at Doak S. Campbell Stadium, Wednesday Sept. 6, launched the 1961 Seminole Booster Club membership drive.

Coach Bill Peterson was the guest speaker at the kick-off luncheon and introduced the Semnoles at this time. Open House was held at 7:30 p. m. in Campbell Stadium to see the newly enlarged stadium, the new facilities, and watch the Seminoles scrimmage under the lights.

Yesterday, the annual Booster Blitz began under the direction of co-chairmen Bill Carraway and Louis Hill. More than 250 members canvassed the Tallahassee area, contacting business establishments as well as individuals.

Members of the Seminole Boosters Club receive special benefits such as reserved parking, ticket rights, and weekly newsletters, including important events in the athletic program at FSU.

Criminology Gains Schafer

A European criminologist and lawyer, Dr. Stephen Schafer, has joined the Florida State University's criminology and corrections faculty.

Dr. Schafer will teach courses in international crime control, treatment of juvenile delinquency and dynamics of criminal and delinquent behavior in the criminology and correction program.

Dr. Schafer, a native of Hungary, is a graduate of the University of Budapest. He and his family escaped his communist-held country just ahead of the Soviet tanks that quelled the 1956 uprising.

After leaving Hungary he went to England, where for the past two years he has taught sociology courses in the overseas program of the University of Maryland. He also served as a visiting professor of criminology in the Polytechnic of London and held a job with a market research firm.

TAUGHT AT BUDAPEST

Dr. Schafer is known in the European criminological field through his writings and lectures. He had taught at the University of Budapest for over five years when the communists moved in and took over. Early in 1951 they stopped his university lectures and his other academic activities for not following the party line.

He has had experience in many areas of his field. He qualified and was appointed barrister-at-law and judge in 1937. He was a partner in his father's law firm for 14 years. In 1946, while professor of criminology at the University of Budapest he was designated as Professor Agregat the highest academic rank in the Continental system.

He served as Hungarian representative to the Commission International Penal and Penitentiaire before the commission merged with the U. N. Also while in Hungary. Dr. Schafer conducted several research studies. One important piece of research was a sociological investigation into the background behavior of 1500 recidivist criminals. This study was ablted by Hungarian Soviet authorities.

Among the many published articles by Dr. Schafer are: "White Collar Criminality." "Drug Addiction and the Tasks of Criminology." Capital Punishment." "The Effect of War on Juvenile Delinquency." and "The Criminality of Women."

'Gort' Joins Up

Onto the pages of the Florida Flambeau today strides a new, masterful figure from the old Stone Age. His name is "Gort," and he is one and one eighth inches tall and three quarters of an inch wide.

By no means a simple Neanderthal Man, Gort will, in the coming year, display the wisdom of Solomtun, the knowledge of a university professor and the shrewdness of a Madison Avenue executive.

Gort made his certoon debut in the Purple and White, the student newspaper at Millsaps College, Jackson, Mississippi. He was created by students for students, and this is one of the main reasons for the Flambeau staff's decision to replace "Peanuts" with "Gort."

"Peanuts," said Editor Ben Sharp, "is available to students in almost any newspaper. 'Gort' is something they won't be able to find in any other publication."

Basic Studies Honors Program Expands To Benefit Superior Students

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambean Staff Writer

About 150 freshmen and sophomores will participate in the second year of the basic studies honors program, according to Dr. Laurence Chalmers, associate professor of psychology and honors program director.

"The honors system is based on the idea that superior students will get the most benefit, if they have the closest possible contact with eminent professors," said honors program director.

"RATHER THAN provide them an ordinary accelerated education. It is our belief that they should be provided a very good education during their years of college."

Underclassmen enter the honors program by recording 470 or above on the 12th grade testing program, or making at least 1,170 on the college board exam, and averaging 3.5 in high school academic subjects.

Once admitted, students must retain a 3.0 average and complete the required courses in the honors program—at least 12 semester hours a year.

DEAN OF DR. Chalmers' major concerns is overlooking any student who deserves to be in the program. For this reason, additional students will be admitted at mid-year, if they have a 3.5 average or a 3.2 average in their major field of study plus another criterion.

This fear of overlooking deserving students also led the director to say that the deadline for entering the program this semester is not closed.

"It'll be appropriate to spot some (potential honors students) and get them into the program . . . although they might not change counselors until later," he said.

Fifty-three faculty members were involved in the program. This provides one faculty member for every three students. Seven of the 53 teachers will serve specifically as advisers, each having about 20 students.

THESE SEVEN advisers are Dr. Paul Picard, Government Dept.; Dr. Charles Eddington, Biological Sciences Dept.; Mrs. Katherine Hoffman, Chemistry Dept.; Dr. Russell Reaver, English Dept.; Dr. William Rogers, History Dept. Dr. Robert Beard, Philosophy Dept.; and Dr. Grover Rogers (acting adviser), head of Engineering Science Dept.

These honors advisers and others met with all freshman honors students in a recent three-day meeting at the Lake Bradford Reservation, where students heard of the various honors classes and conferred with their counselors.

"Before the meeting," said Dr. Chalmers, "the students said their problem was what to take, afterwards, the problem was how to find time to take all that they wanted to."

"THE STUDENTS are averaging 17-18 hours a semester, although we are trying to hold them to 15," Dr. Chalmers said. "A few have been permitted to take overloads," he added.

During registration, more than two-thirds of the honors students received automatic English credit, and most passed the mathematics test, he said. "So, a lot of their work is already completed," he commented.

Honors sections are available for students in chemistry, biology, geography, government, history, psychology, English, humanities, meteorology, mathematics, philosophy, social science, sociology and geology.

Honors instructors expand their subjects beyond that which regular undergraduate courses offer.

Great experiments will be performed in biology labs in contrast to the simpler experiments in regular courses, he said.

Honor students will read extensively of ancient, medieval, and modern philosophers, instead of "zooming through Kant in two or three days."

Last year, Dr. Howard Baker "double-timed" through the basic material in the psychology text, in order to present more extensive ideas.

OTHER PROFESSORS place a lesser emphasis on the texts or use the books in a different manner than usual.

Twice a month, the honors students will assemble for an informal lecture of wide interest by an eminent professor. The topics will range from physics to the Constitution to synthetic protein to sonar and the porpoise.

This informal side of the program is also expanded to talks, conversations, etc., which the students have with the professors. In these informal conversations, students are able to absorb additional information and are given extra enthusiasm to learn.

Dr. Chalmers pointed out that the top faculty members who normally teach only upperclassmen requested working with the honors students. They enjoy working with top-notch undergraduates, he said.

The administration and honors program faculty members hope that the system will attract the better students of the Southeast to Florida State. So far, the number of students has increased by 50 percent, and sections have been added to some courses.

ENROLLMENT in classes is restricted to an average of 19 students, said the director. The honors advisers—who have been released from one-fourth of their duties—are able to work better with this smaller group.

Students who complete the basic studies honors program will be invited to enroll in the arts and sciences program, Dr. Chalmers continued. (So far, only the school of arts and sciences has an upperclass honors program.)

Hogan Selected for University PR Directorship

Patrick W. Hogan, former director of sports publicity, has been promoted to Florida State University director of public relations by President Gordon Blackwell.

He took this position Aug. 1, to replace Edward D. Whittle, who resigned nearly a year and a half ago.

Working in the division of University Relations headed by Dr. John A. Griffin, Hogan will be responsible for the news, information, and general public relations work done by this department.

The post of director of sports publicity left vacant by Hogan is now filled by Paul Hemphill, who was called in active duty by the Air National Guard unit in Birmingham, Ala., only five weeks after his appointment.

Sid LaBar, assistant director, has been named acting director to replace Hemphill.

Hogan, 29, is a native of Palm Beach, where he attended Little Rock Junior College. He received his bachelor's degree in Journalism at FSU in 1956. While still a student at the university, he served as assistant publicity director and co-appointed director of sports publicity in 1954.

Pat Hogan has rendered meritorious service to FSU in athletic programs," said President Blackwell. He added, "His standing has been his work and he has been sought by other universities and by a national organization. We are pleased to appoint Hogan to a position which will continue his services to The Florida State University and enlarge his areas of responsibilities."

Dowling Foundation

The Last Days Of Lincoln Chosen To Be First Show

By LINDA COLLIER
Flambeau Staff Writer

Three professional actors and 16 students will be in the cast of the first production by the Eddie Dowling Foundation, The Last Days of Lincoln, by Pulitzer prize winning poet Mark Vandoren.

The first performance and world premiere of this first play by VanDoren will be Oct. 18, in Conradi Theatre, with both the author and Broadway producer-director Eddie Dowling on hand. They will arrive Oct. 1. VanDoren will remain at FSU until Nov. 4.

Richard Fallon, associate director of theatre at FSU, said the play has been under option to the Theatre Guild in New York. He also announced that rehearsals will be open to the public, and that spectators will be able to note the changes VanDoren makes from the original play, as he makes them.

Book stores in Tallahassee will carry copies of the play, which has already won acclaim as a novel.

LINCOLN'S DETERMINATION

The VanDoren play, built on the theme of Lincoln's determination not to treat the South as a conquered nation, is one the three university-based productions being backed by the Dowling Foundation at a cost of about $12,000 each.

The play will tour Jacksonville, Tampa, Miami, Orlando, St. Petersburg and Hollywood, Fla., after its premiere at FSU.

Other universities participating in the Dowling plan are University of South Florida and Jacksonville University. Under this plan, new plays under option to producers in New York are tried out first in universities. In this way plays which have great merit but are not widely known are developed at a cost much lower than previously possible.

When the Dowling plan was presented at the America Educations Theatre Association Convention this summer by Fallon, it was received with much enthusiasm by other universities, including Dartmouth and the University of Michigan, who are ready to join the foundation next year.

The University of South Florida's first production will be a musical drama, A Trumpet Call, by Abel Pilcon with music by Skatch Henderson, director of the NBC Opera Company. After opening performances on Nov. 15-18, it will come to Tallahassee as a tour-play on Nov. 20. Elisa Lancaster has been signed for the play, which is based on Nathaniel Hawthorne's The Scarlet Letter.

Jacksonville University will present a new comedy, Never Wave at a Mouse, by Norwood Chamberlin, motion picture and TV writer. Charlie Ruggles will play the lead. It will be presented the weekend of April 11 and in Tallahassee on April 16.

Directors of the foundation, in addition to Dowling, are Fallon and Dr. Wayne Minnick, head of the FSU Speech Dept.

Convocation

There will be a convication for all upperclass women at 8 tonight in Westcott Auditorium.

Trimester Or Quarter?

Calendar System Decision Left For Board Of Control

The fate of the university system's calender will rest in the hands of the Board of Control members when they meet Oct. 20.

The merits of a trimester vs a quarter system will be weighed by the board members as they decide what system to switch to in order to comply with the Legislature's order to begin year-round operations by fall, 1962.

The system-wide, inter-institutional, committee on calendar will have prepared its report and recommendations by that time, according to the executive director of the board, Dr. J. Broward Culpepper.

Both the trimester and the quarter systems will be given careful consideration," he said. The decision on the recommendation to the board will probably not be announced prior to the meeting because of the limiting effect it might have on discussion, he added.

At Florida State University an ad hoc faculty committee on year-round operation, appointed by President Gordon W. Blackwell, has been studying the problem since early June.

REPORT TO FACULTY

In a report to the faculty last Monday, the committee, headed by Dr. Seymour Hess of the Meteorology Dept., recommended the adoption of the trimester plan for FSU.

The committee at the University of South Florida has recommended a modified trimester system and the University of Florida committee a quarter system.

Since the Legislature appropriated a substantial amount of money for faculty salaries to be released only if year-round operation begins there seems to be no doubt that full scale operations during the summer will be undertaken.

Under the trimester system as proposed by the committee the number of weeks of classes per mester would be reduced to 14 with daily class periods being increased to 55 minutes. This plan would allow for 15 minute breaks between classes rather than the present 12 minutes.

However, a major problem connected with this system would be the length of the Tuesday-Thursday classes. With Monday-Wednesday-Friday classes at 48 minutes now, the change would require the Tuesday-Thursday classes to jump from 75 minute sessions to 90 minute sessions. "Many regard this as excessively long," the committee reported.

FREQUENT ABSENCES

Scheduling Tuesday-Thursday-Saturday of 55 minutes each would solve this problem. "However, experience indicates that many students refuse to register for Saturday classes and those who do register are frequently absent," the report said.

The committee proposed that returning public school teachers could be accommodated under the trimester plan by a special eight-weeks summer session beginning near the middle of the summer trimester and ending on the last day of that trimester.

The approximate dates of the FSU committee would be:

Fall—Sept. 10 to Dec. 21.

Spring—Jan. 7 to April 18.

Summer—April 29 to Aug. 9.

Under the trimester system proposed by the USF committee the approximate dates would be.

Summer—July 5 to Oct. 20.

Fall—Nov. 1 to Dec. 19, and Jan. 2 to Feb. 27.

Spring—March 13 to June 22.

"The primary advantage of this calendar is that it permits June high school graduates to enter in July or in November and this may result in more even enrollments through the year," the report said.

"The drawbacks are, (a) The Christmas recess occurs in the middle of a term rather than between terms. (b) All recesses are two weeks or less in length. Thus the plan fails to provide the customary vacation period for students and faculty. This will tend to discourage students from continuing their educations during the summer (c) Most of the recesses come at a time when the public schools are in session, so they are of limited use to faculty and students who have school-age children."

One of the advantages of the FSU plan is that the Christmas recess occurs at the end of the first trimester. Another is that it allows three and one half weeks of vacation time—immediately prior to the beginning of the fall term so that families could vacation together.

Under the quarter system as proposed by the University of Florida there would be four 10-week periods of classes plus time for registration and final examination.

The approximate dates in 1962-63 would be.

Fall—Oct. 2 to Dec. 8.

Winter—Jan. 3 to March 21.

Spring—March 28 to June 13.

Summer—June 18 to Aug. 31.

With the quarter system classes may be taught three times a week for the same number of credit. "This requires rewriting all out curricula and all the course descriptions in the catalog. Not only is this task unattactive; it simply cannot be done carefully

Grad Schools Expand Here

About 1,500 students will be enrolled in graduate programs at Florida State University this fall, including students in three new graduate programs.

The accounting dept. has added a new program leading to the degree of master of accountancy. Students with a bachelor's degree will have to complete 37 hours of study for the degree, said Dean Charles A. Rotella of the School of Business. Admission requirements will be the same as for the master's degree this year for the first time in the Engineering Sciences Dept.

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE NEW MOLECULAR BIOPHYSICS Bldg. continues in the old West Hall parking lot. The new structure should be completed by August, 1962. Funds for the work are provided by FSU and the U.S. Public Health Service. (Photo by Del Kittendorf)

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

A Clean Slate

When Florida State University's Student Senate convenes tomorrow, the senators will have a new year and a clean slate with which to work.

Last year the senate was weak. Though individual senators performed creditably, even outstandingly, the body as a whole was generally ineffective. A strong chief executive spearheaded most of the progressive actions on the part of student government. A good Vice President many times had to herd the senators along so that needed actions could be taken.

Instead of taking vigorous, imaginative action, the senate meandered along while tired, redundant oratory burdened progress.

But this is another year, and another senate.

We suggest that the senate begin by:

1. Setting up a budget committee to study the uses of appropriations.

Such a committee would give the senate a check on appropriations use throughout the year and would give the senators a better perspective on the needs of the organizations when the budget is brought before them.

2. Investigating and changing the summer school govarnment.

RUMORS ABOUT the alledged mismanagement of the Summer Council have been thick Stories about misuse of student government money and many other rumors have made the rounds. A thorough investigation is called for. If these things are true, the facts should be exposed. If not, the rumors should be layed to rest.

Our readers should take fair warning. In the past, the Flambeau staff has received personal criticism at the campus watering holes because we have not chosen to view Westcott Gate as the demarcation line between two entirely separate worlds.

Our editorial page will, from time to time, reflect our opinions regarding events that take place in the city of Tallahassee, the state of Florida, the nation at large or the talked of regions of the world.

A lot of things happen on this campus. Unfortunately much that happens is not editorial material. We know that it would suit many readers if the editorial page was given over to items of interest concerning what must discreetly be called the "social life" at FSU.

LP

Officially Dry

Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby reported to the Flambeau yesterday that the drinking situation at the Saturday football game was "much improved." As a matter of fact, the situation was so much improved that the dean commented, "There weren't any complaints."

MISS KATHERINE WARREN, dean of women, and Dean of Men Donald Loucks also denied knowledge of any drinking complaints concerning the game and stated that, if anyone had been apprehended for drinking in the stadium, the deans didn't know about it.

The administration certainly has reason to be proud. Apparently, students have so much respect for the threat of a "crackdown" that they heeded the warning before anyone was even caught. This seems to indicate that students no longer indulge in the sport called "rule-breaking" and that they no longer consider officials a nebulous group of individuals whose main reason for existence is to have students pull the wool over their eyes.

IT MUST BE very encouraging for administrators to realize that their edicts will be obeyed and that their declarations are taken seriously.

Of course, there are a few dissenting cynics who still sneer at regulations which they think are unenforceable. In this category are the many spectators who noticed the distinctly alcoholic aroma of Doak S. Campbell Stadium Saturday night.

"Nature And Some Minor Officials Have Failed You"

Let's Get Serious

Scientific Hoax Of The Century

By GERRY DOBSON

Today's social scientists have received a stinging condemnation from Dr. Henry Garrett, former head of the Psychology Department at Columbia University. Dr Garrett claims that the equalitarian dogma that all racial differences are only skin deep, and that such differences which are observed are solely due to environmental factors, is best is "a sincere if misguided effort to help the Negro by ignoring or even suppressing evidence of his mental and social immaturity." The worst, claims Dr. Garrett, it is "the scientific hoax of the century."

DR. GARRETT maintains that this dogma has been "installed as a major premise not to be questioned" in many college departments of anthropology, psychology and genetics, and that those students who question it jeopardize their careers by speaking out.

According to Dr. Garrett, the "best recent survey of the comparative standing of American Negroes and American whites" may be found in the Testing of Negro Intelligence, by Dr. Audrey M. Shuey. The book covers 44 years of tests and analyses some 240 studies.

JUST ABOUT EVERY type of comparison is reviewed. The findings, in brief, are as follows: 1. The IQ's of American Negroes are from 15 to 20 points, on the average, below those of American whites. 2. Negro overlap of white median IQ's ranges from 10 to 25%. Equality would acquire 50%.

3. About six times as many white as Negro children fall into the "gifted child" category. 4. About six times as many Negroes as whites fall in the below 70 IQ category (the feeble-minded group.

5. NEGRO-WHITE differences in mean-test score occur in all kinds of mental tests, but the Negro lag is greatest in the tests of an abstract nature, that is, tests involving reasoning, deduction and comprehension. These are the functions called for in education above the lowest levels.

6. Differences between Negro and white children increase with chronological age the gap in performance being largest at high school and college level. Negro and equalitarian differences in favor of whites appear even when economic factors have been equated.

Dr. Garrett goes on to say that the power and the lack of tolerance of those who espouse the equalitarian dogma is shown by the fact that no university prenahs to which the book was sumitted would publish it; publication was finally effected at a small southern publishing house, Bell Publishing Company, of Lynchburg, Va.

THIS BOOK IS in the FSU library, but it is interesting to note that it was placed there by a faculty member as a personal gift, rather than by the University. In addition, it is not used as a reference work to any appreciable extent. Although it has been at the library for over three years, it has been read by comparatively few persons.

One might furthermore suppose that if the book were a standard reference work, more than one copy would be available in the library.

IT SEEMS UNREASONABLE that if such an honest difference of opinion exists in psychology, that it should not be allowed to flourish, especially in the light of all the oft - repeated pontifications about free exchange of ideas and intellectual ferment.

A professor teaching introductory social science, when asked about the book during the discussion of relative Negro-white intelligence, dismissed it as being biased, and then darkly hinted that the same was true of the publishing company.

The Newsmagazines Revisited

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

(Editor's note: Mr. Sanchez will further air his views on the newsmagazines in a continuation of this column in the Friday issue of the Flambeau.)

More than a year has passed since Ben Bagdikian wrote his penetrating analysis of America's so-called newsmagazines in The New Republic and the newspapers of the North American Newspaper Alliance. During that time several important changes have taken place which warrant a re-examination of the subject.

Probably the most important new development in the field was the change in ownership and management at Newsweek, which is now in Washington Postel- wri s , the capable' hands of the Washington Post. The effects of the change in ownership are still being felt, but already there are obvious differences in the magazine's personality As late as November, 1960, Newsweek was actually outdooing Time in conservative zeal. For example, in reporting of the court ruling in the long and bitter Kohler strike, a ruling regarded as a smashing defeat for the company but containing a light slap on the wrists for certain practices by individual members of the UAW, Time's coverage made the outcome seem rather like a tie between labor and management. With Newsweek's version, the reader would be led to think the case a victory for the company. In the presidential campaign, however, neither magazine could conceal its enthusiasm for Richard Nixon. Press Secretary Herb Klein's complaints of news coverage "unfair to Nixon" certainly did not apply to the were said to "reflect a shocking series of setbacks." Kennedy's performance was contrasted with his pursuers in a manner which somehow never occurred during the entire Eisenhower administration.

Reflections

A Tourist's Tallahassee

By LESLIE POWELL

Greetings, suckers.

Welcome to FSU, original home of the middy blouse and the last stronghold of prohibitions.

THERE HAVE been some changes made, but they are hardly noticeable. Firstly, the Flambeau staff has been issued press cards in a number of delectable flavors. This was done to enable us to swallow our most incriminating piece of identification in case the local police catch us running redlights or jay walking. My own press card is raspberry ripple. I know, because already I've nibbled the corners. We don't have the B flavors of Howard Johnson's, but if the staff grows with recruits, the Flambeau may boast the sickest collection of wallets in the world.

We have standards here at FSU. Ladies only smoke while seated. That's because "it doesn't look nice" for a coed to walk about with a cigarette dangling from her jowls. Further, you must not stir your coffee with your finger, molest the squirrels or pick the pretty wild flowers that grow so abundantly about the campus seasonly.

YOU MUST KNOW that the fair city of Tallahassee is the capital of Florida. There isn't much to do here but stare at the lovely old oaks, and steady staring is recommended because these oaks are going the way rapidly to something called progress that replaces oak with gasoline pumps and old homes with grease racks. Used car lots are a popular mode of landscaping in Tally too. It is rumored that to make FSU self-supporting, Landis Green will be converted into a used car lot and the library converted to edticiency apartments.

Among the scenic wonders of Tallahassee, you will enjoy seeing, mostly because they are hard to overlook, the First Baptist Bank and Tallahassee Federal Church (the pastor wears his G-Man badge on special days and communicates with the flock by two-way radio.)

IF YOU SIGHT some local clad soul shuffling along the streets ringing a bell and chanting "unclean, unclean," just step aside respectfully and let it pass in peace. It possibly is a duly elected member of officialdom

Having been accused of contributing to the congestion of the Soda Shop in the past, I warn all the newcomers and tourists: Stay away from Longmire. The building has been condemned out above the pulpit), the parking lot and lawns are mined, mad squirrels lurk everywhere spreading plague and contamination. And only music majors, editors, building mad bombers from physics seminars, and a handful of deans gather there. Everybody else goes to the Stupid Center, the better to enjoy the jook boxes. You can hear them up here of course, but it just isn't the same somehow as being in the same room with them.

Hats Off To Talent

By ABBY MITCHELL

Hats off to the new talent displayed last Thursday night in the Freshman Talent Show. It was well organized and arranged with an all - needless college audience in mind.

I WAS PLEASED to see the large number of freshmen eager to perform, but since auditions are held for this program, the coordinating committee has the power of selection and ought to exercise it. The show was most entertaining yes, but one's power to enjoy was hindered by a too lengthy program.

However, this I will say, I have never before attended a student sponsored show in attended program so well received. The college audience is an ogre and has the capacity of rudeness to the point of cruelty. I cannot commend highly enthusiastic approval of this program to the sincere talent of both performers and MC.

A WORD ABOUT Jim Vaughan, Master of Ceremonies. Appalled at first by his undisguised Tallahassee cant, I was later to share in the positive audience response to his wellkicking, if frequently raunchy, humor.

There are few, if any, souls brave enough to face a college audience with selections from Rigoletto and a talent for the classical piano. Such a one is Doug Kerley. If he is a rebel attempting to bring culture to FSU, I admire him. If he is only a nervous freshman eager to grow and improve, I commend his obvious talent.

ANOTHER ORIGINAL soul is Miss Pat Ammann. I'll admit a few snickers traveled about the auditorium when that versatile bamboo curtain rose on Miss Ammann in slinky black with an unmistakable slide trombone grasped firmly in her hand. The too-well-versed audience were smug, and our well-intentioned men weren't too sure. But sweeter tones from a trombone I have not heard. Miss Ammann captured and held the audience throughout her sparkling rendition of "Jabberwocky" calling forth resounding applause from the audience.

Spice and flashes of red were added to the show by Edna Moore, Landa Dunlap, and Gerry Thompson. These three Misses made use of exciting and appropriate costumes in their acts to the definite approval of the collegians.

Miss Moore in layers of long white fringe ever violent red roared her way through the Charleston, reproduced flying in all directions and the over active fringe swinging wildly Miss Dunlap achieved that ever popular nine year old look to the tune of red checks. The delightful Edna was given a new charm by Landa's effortless acrobatics and impish grin Petite, poised Miss Thompson sang her way Song" with acceptable personality intimating to me that a year or two may find her performing comic opera with style.

PANTOMINING to records is the lazy man's talent, but Miss Linda Merlin, pre-med student came through with the funniest act of that kind I have ever seen. Her choice of record was original ta say the least, and her grimaces convulsing.

Miss Sandy Gay came forth resplendent in nightgown and blanket to give us her zany and often uproarious version that favorite bedtime tale "Prunderella and the Dance."

Seminoles Squeeze By Colonials In Opener

Injuries Of Roberts, Grimes Hamper Tribe For Future Contests; Feely Leads Tribe

Sparked by a team effort, the Florida State Seminoles slid past the tougher-than-expected George Washington Colonials this past weekend 15-7.

Although the Seminoles copped their opener, they were plagued by injuries which will probably hamper future action. The biggest loss was Gene Roberts who suffered a knee injury. The husky fullback will probably be out the remainder of the season.

Another member of the squad who was injured in the fray was Fred Grimes, a rough defensive end. Grimes, who broke two bones in his hand, is not being counted upon to start in the FSIU of F contest.

Coach Peterson said that he was well pleased with the tribe's play in Saturday night's battle even though he did note some changes that would have to be made. "Although there were some gaping holes in our defense at times," Peterson stated, "they stopped George Washington when the going got tough."

The coach also praised the squad in its great effort.

The Seminoles, coming into the second half with a 6-0 lead, were stunned when Dick Drummond reeled off an 82-yard touchdown on the second half kickoff. With Warren Corbin adding the extra point the Seminoles fell behind 7-6.

With Feely in at quarterback the Seminoles went to the Colonials' 14 yard line where Doug Messer kicked a 21-yard field goal. Feely's hard running and fancy passing put the Seminoles ahead to stay. In the opening minutes of the fourth quarter Feely guided the Chiefs to the final touchdown of the evening and went over himself on a quarterback sneak.

The rest of the game was in the hands of FSU's defensive specialists, the Renegades. The band of Renegades thwarted drives by the Colonials on the three yard line twice. Fred Grimes, one of FSU's best defensive ends, knocked a pass out of Frank Pazzaglia's hand on one of the crucial plays deep in Seminole territory. The other clutch defensive play came in the waning moments of the game when Steve Klemus, Ray Bickford, and Grimes stopped Charley Read short of the needed yardage on a fourth and one situation.

Three fumbles were costly to the Colonials during the contest. One fumble led to an FSU drive which carried the tribe to the George Washington nine yard line. The next time the Colonials' fumble led the way to a drive which ended deep in Colonial territory before the tribe ran out of gas. A third GWU fumble thwarted a Colonial drive just before they hit paydirt in the second half to keep the tribe ahead.

Eddie Feely led the FSU ground attack with 58 yards in 12 attempts, but right behind him was the hard running fullback, Paul Andrews with 56 yards in 11 attempts. Jim Daniel's pass catching accounted for 43 yards on three aerials.

Feely also passed nine times and connected on six for 66 yards. Trancygler did not fair as well, but completed two out of seven for 30 yards.

Intramurals Plan Organizing Meet

The intramural athletic office announced that any organization wishing to participate in this year's intramural program should send a representative to an organizational meeting in room 214 in Tully Gym at 4 pm on Thursday.

The purpose of the meeting is to organize the year's activities and arrange a calendar of events. The meeting is for all fraternities, independent organizations and dormitory groups.

Basketball is the first scheduled event on the intramural slate and is supposed to begin in the near future.

Spring Sports Start Practice Sessions

Tennis, golf, and baseball have started or will soon start fall practice in preparation for the coming spring season.

Coach Lieblter's baseball team took the field already to begin conditioning for the season ahead. Last year's baseballers were ranked sixth in the nation drew a bid to the National Collegiate Athletic Association's regional tournament in Gastonia, North Carolina and rated a 22-5 record.

Many regulars from last year should see action in the coming events. These include Gary Elliott, George Ferguson, Doug French, Bob Madison, Hal Mangan, Kyle Spitzer, Buddy Teagle, Dwight Smith, Jimmy White and Roger Zimmerman. Returning pitchers include Phil Bondank, Charlie Krausche, Ray McShane, Keith Pitchford, Jack Ross, and John Tucker.

The tennis team will take on its opponents with a host of regulars from last year's squad, including Ed Fasula, Jamie Jamesson, Don Loop, Paul Serpa, and Gordy Smith.

A new coach, Eddie Cabbon, takes over the netters for the coming schedule. Previous to his appointment as head tennis coach Cubbon was Director of Development of Intercollegiate Athletics. will be looking for an improvement over last season's proverment over last season's outstanding 15-3 mark a new school record.

Thus year's returnees include Manny Nerdome, Harry Davis, Ray Daley, Bryan Bergeron, Chuck Keating, Roger Kennedy, Bob Kurvin, Dick Bass, Dick Shulman, Mike Stuffer, Pete Philo, and Doug Davis.

FSU-U of F Ticket Sales Begin Today

Tickets for the Florida State—University of Florida football game to be played on September 30 at Gainesville will go on sale today in the athletic ticket office in Tully Gym.

The price of the tickets for FSU students will be one dollar, and dade tickets will have to be purchased for the regular price of four dollars.

Students will have to sign an IBM sheet before they can secure the tickets.

The APO Travel Service is sponsoring a bus to Gainesville.

The bus leaves FSU Saturday morning, remains in Gainesville for the game and the dance following the game, and returns to FSU at midnight of the same day.

Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, has approved this trip for University coeds.

Round trip expense is $6. For reservations call the APO office at Ext. 3336 or see a representative in 413 Longmire Bldg.

in the time available," the committee reported.

FIVE CLASSES

The alternative would be to schedule classes for five meetings a week, as the committee at U of F has recommended.

"We have rejected this alternative primarily because we feel it is very important educationally to allow enough time between class meetings for reading, study, problem solving, writing, and the development of mature understanding. This system puts education on a production-line basis. Unfortunately, the development of intellectual, cultural, and professional powers is quite different from the production of automobiles," the FSU committee countered.

The FSU committee also suggested a "hybrid" plan would consist of two semesters plus a summer session extended from eight to 12 weeks.

The schedule for this system would be:

Fall—Sept. 11 to Jan. 26.
Spring—Jan. 29 to June 1.
Summer—June 11 to Aug. 31.

However, the committee felt that this program would not increase year-round attendance by the majority of students, "because it invites students merely to continue their present attendance habits." "This is especially likely because year-round students would have much less vacation time that is presently available." the report concluded.

I. D. Cards

Student identification cards, encased in plastic covers, will be distributed in about 10 days, according to Dr. Murray Krauss, registrar.

The exact time and place of distribution will be announced in the Flambeau, the registrar said. He added that the company which is manufacturing the cards said they would be delivered within five days of registration.

ONCE MORE, UNTO THE BREACH

With this installment I begin my eighth year of writing columns for the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, so fine a bunch of men as you would meet in a month of Sundays—loyal, true, robust, windswept, forthright, tattooed—in short, precisely the kind of men you would expect them to be if you were familiar with the cigarettes they make—and I hope you are—for Marlboro, like its makers, is loyal, true, robust, windswept, forthright, tattooed.

There is, however, one important difference between Marlboro and its makers. Marlboro has a filter and the makers do not—except of course for Windswept T. Sigafoos, Vice President in charge of Media Research. Mr. Sigafoos does have a filter. I don't mean that Mr. Sigafoos personally has a filter. What I mean is that he has a filter in his swimming pool at his home in Fairbanks, Alaska. You might think that Fairbanks is rather an odd place for Mr. Sigafoos to live, being such a long distance from the Marlboro home office in New York City. But it should be pointed out that Mr. Sigafoos is not required to be at work until 10 A.M.

"What true robust windswept forthright tattooed...

But I digress. This column, I say, will take up questions of burning interest to the academic world—like "Should French conversation classes be conducted in English?" and "Should students be allowed to attend first hour classes in pajamas and robes?" and "Can a student of 18 find happiness with an economics professor of 90?"

Because many of you are new to college, especially freshmen, perhaps it would be well in this opening column to start with campus fundamentals. What, for example, does "Alma Mater" mean? Well, sir, "Alma Mater" is Latin for "send money".

What does "Dean" mean? Well, sir, "Dean" is Latin for "don't get caught".

What does "dormitory" mean? Well, sir, "dormitory" is Latin for "bed of pain".

Next, let us discuss student-teacher relationships. In college the keynote of the relationship between student and teacher is informality. When you meet a teacher on campus, you need not salute. Simply tug your forelock. If you are bald and have no forelock, a low curtsey will suffice. In no circumstance should you polish a teacher's car or sponge and press his suit. It is, however, permissible to worm his dog.

With the President of the University, of course, your relationship will be a bit more formal. When you encounter the President, fling yourself prone on the sidewalk and sing loudly:

"Prexy is wise
Prexy is true
Prexy has eyes
Of Lake Lucerne blue."

As you can see, the President of the University is called "Prexy". Similarly, Deans are called "Dinis". Professors are called "Proxie". Housemothers are called "Hostie Mostie". Students are called "Amoebae".

This uncensored, free-wheeling column will be brought to you throughout the school year by the makers of Marlboro and Marlboro's partner in pleasure, the new, unfiltered, king-size Philip Morris Commander. If unfiltered cigarettes are your choice, try a Commander. You'll be welcome aboard.

Over $368,000

Summer's Months Yield Varied Grants For FSU

Over $368,000 in grants has been received by Florida State University the summer.

Dr. Earl Frieden, professor of chemistry at FSU, received the largest grant of $204,000 from the Cancer Division of the United States Public Health Service for a seven-year study of bio-chemical changes during amphibian metamorphosis.

The grant will be used to continue research on the chemical changes that occur in the cells of tadpoles during their transformation into frogs.

The Psychology Dept. announced a grant of $56,604 from the United States Health Education and Welfare Dept. for a three-year study of the effect of heat stimuli on behavioral and nerve responses. Dr. D. R. Kenshalo, principal investigator on the grant, said that one possible application of the research is in the field of environmental temperature tolerance such as might be a factor involved in man's survival in space.

HEALTH SERVICE

The Public Health Service allocated a grant of $41,400 to Dr. DeLos F. DeTar, professor of chemistry and in the Institute of Molecular Biophysics, for research on laboratory - produced compounds that are analogous in many respects to proteins.

Dr. DeTar is working on the synthesis of new types of peptide polymers, which are large molecules made up of long chains of smaller molecules. The scientist's reason for studying these peptide polymers is to learn more about the chemical basis of life.

Two continuation grants totaling $17,750 have been received from the Public Health Service's National Advisory Council on Cancer to Dr. Harry M. Walborsky of the Chemistry Dept. One grant of $11,555 will be used by the FSU chemist to continue a study of cyclopropane derivatives, which are used as anesthetics. The other grant of $6,195 will be for continued study of microbiological activities of flourinated amino acids.

RADIATION RESEARCH

The Atomic Energy Commission approved the renewal of a $15,000 per year contract for Dr. Ronald C. Rustad's research on radiation-induced delay in cell division, conducted at the Marine Biological Laboratory in Massachusetts this summer.

The School of Nursing received a continuation grant of $7,560 for psychiatric nursing studies from the National Advisory Mental Health Council of the Health, Education, and Welfare Dept.

FSU is one of eight southeastern universities selected for a grant and fellowship by the United States Steel Foundation. The $7,200 grant may be used for science and technology, the social sciences and the humanities. Ronald K. Hadlock, a graduate student in meteorology received the $4,200 fellowship.

STATISTICS

Dr. Ralph Bradley, head of the Statistics Dept., received a continuation grant of $7,000 from the Office of Naval Research for the development of statistical methods of research.

Dr. Ernst Thonnard, university physician and professor, received a grant of $5,700 in additional funds from the Public Health Service's National Heart Institute for continuation of a study of the effects of ovarian hormones on basophilic leucocytes, the tumors of all normal white blood cells.

Austin J. MacInnis, a doctoral student in the Biological Sciences Dept., has been awarded a Public Health Service Pre-doctoral Fellowship of $3,264 by the National Institute of Health. MacInnis will use the fellowship for research on the chemical attraction of a larval stage of blood flukes to the snail.

Film Club Tickets On Sale For '61-62

Tickets for the Florida State University Film Club's 1961-62 season are now on sale at Westcott Ticket Office.

Season tickets are being sold for $3. There will be no single admissions. All performances will be in Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m.

The General Extension Division of Florida, in cooperation with the Florida Film Classics Council, sponsors the Film Classics League at FSU.

These film series are offered as an educational program to stimulate cultural appreciation of the best foreign and American films of the past, as well as recent productions not readily accessible to the general public.

An integral part of the program is documentaries and short subjects of particular merit.

The FSU Film Club opens the 1961-1962 season on Oct. 2 with The Crucible, a French film dealing with the Salem, Massachusetts witch trials.

The other classics on the schedule include Don Quixote, Spanish, 1960; Under the Black Mask, Czech, 1941; Undes the Black Mask, Congoles, 1958; The Confessions of Felix Kruil, German, 1957; On The Twelfth Day, British, 1955; The Secret, British, 1955; Aparajito, Indian, 1955; Eugene Onegin, Russian, 1958; Crime and Punishment, French, 1957; The Mistress, Japanese, 1958.

Gold of Naples, Italian, 1955; The Spanish Riding School, Austrian, 1957; Beauty and the Devil, French, 1949; Date With Diane, American, 1956; One Summer of Happiness, Swedish, 1951; The Threepenny Opera, German, 1931; Christmas Slippers, Russian, 1940; and The Green Man, British, 1941.

Rally Group Mounts Drive

A new drive is under way at FSU to boost team morale and school spirit during the coming football season.

The FSU Pep Squad is two years old and is organized under the Rally Committee, a part of Student Government.

Its function is to form a cheering block and card section for FSU football games, its duties to take part in the big opening season Pep Rally and the Gator Bait Rally before the University of Florida game; its selling fifty-yard line seats at all FSU home football games.

Squad members' I.D. cards will be stamped with Pep Squad or Rally Committee. The stamped I.D. will enable students to purchase up to four tickets in the fifty-yard line block. These tickets will go to Pep Squad members only and will be sold on a first come, first served basis.

There will be an organized card section and block for the Pep Squad. Also on the agenda is a scheduled pep rally before the FSU-U. of F. game and a tentatively scheduled street dance on the Thursday night before the Gator game.

Honors Program . . . .

The two honors programs have distinct purposes: the underclass studies emphasizes breadth of knowledge, while the upperclass program stresses depth.

To become eligible to enter the upperclass program, students must have a 3.2 grade average in their freshman and sophomore years, a 3.5 average in their major field of study, and 3.0 overall average.

Occasionally, faculty members will recognize outstanding students who are being overlooked and recommend that they be admitted to the program. These students comprise less than five percent of the upperclass honors students.

UPPERCLASSMEN must sign up for six to 12 semester hours of additional credit in some field of creative study, said Dr. Chalmers.

This study would include a seminar in the junior year for a history student and a research program in the senior year, or a junior-year independent laboratory study in natural sciences and a senior-year laboratory research, or independent work along some main theme in the art field.

About 50 upperclassmen will complete the six hour minimum this year. Then, they must also take a special written or oral examination.

Dr. Chalmers expected no great increase at mid-year in the number of upperclass honors students. Two-thirds of the students are seniors and will graduate this year; the only increase would come if exceptional students changed to the school of arts and sciences and entered the program.

DR. CHALMERS mentioned two problems on which the honors program committee would have to act.

One, upperclassmen want to participate in the informal lectures which the basic studies students enjoy. He said he felt the committee would approve this.

Two, officials need to establish some requirements for transfers and graduates from the state junior colleges. There are several potential honors students in this group, he said.

Date Set For Caps And Gowns

Graduating seniors must order their caps and gowns by Sept. 20 in order to have them for Sophomore-Senior Investiture on Oct. 17. Orders may be placed at the University Book Store on any week day.

Flying High Rerun

Tallahassee television station WCTV (channel six) will carry a rerun of the Florida University's student circus, "Flying High" Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

This 60-minute TV Program was televised in the spring during the circus home show and will come to TV audiences through the CBS Sports Spectacular.

Fall Fashion Show

Fashion incorporated will present a show of campus fashions Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the large lounge of Longmire.

"C" Average Required

State Heightens Admission Level

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

Admission requirements to the state universities have been raised by the State Board of Education, upon the recommendations of the State Board of Control, the system-wide committee on admissions, and the committee on admissions for the university system.

Students who have graduated from Florida secondary schools must present a satisfactory high school record ("C" average in all academic subjects) and attain scores among the top 40 percent of the Florida seniors on the state-wide twelfth grade testing program.

Students who meet these requirements would be given priority in admissions and in housing assignments over students with lower grades, the board ruled.

EXCEPTIONS NOTED

However, the universities may admit students who have registered satisfactory grades on equivalent tests or students who show superior academic achievement and ability. These students must have "B" averages in all academic high school work.

The board said the universities may even admit students who recorded grades below the top 40 percent, but above the lower 60 percent, on the state test, provided they can be expected to do successful work in the institutions.

Students who fall within the lowest 40 percent will not be admitted unless a faculty committee judges that they should be given a chance to do college work.

Graduates from non-accredited Florida secondary schools must meet the same requirements as students from accredited schools and also meet the approval of a faculty committee.

Non-Florida students can enter the state universities if they are in the upper 40 percent of their high school classes, if they present test scores equal to Florida students, and if they have the recommendations of their high school principals or superintendents.

MAY BE WAIVED

However, any one of the requirements for non-Florida students may be waived provided a faculty committee feels the students would have successful college careers.

The Board of Education also delcied the special reference to community junior colleges, which the board adopted in June.

The revision stated that students who are not eligible to enter the state universities as freshmen may become eligible as transfer students when they qualify for admission to the junior class.

Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby said the new regulations were in effect this semester. However, he added, since FSU had already admitted all the students it could, the rullings actually would not be in operation until next summer.

The new restrictions are part of a move to screen out unqualified students in anticipation of a doubled enrollment by 1970.

Senate Will Check Summer SG Rumors

By TONI DICARLO
Asst. Assoc. Editor

Rumors about mismanagement in the Summer Student Government of 1961 were among the reasons for Student Senate's forming a special committee Wednesday to investigate the rumors and to recommend changes in the organization of Summer Government.

Other reasons for forming the committee were the fact that the present summer system designates one group to act as executive, judicial and legislative branches of government, and the fact that a change to a quarter or trimester system will necessitate some change in the summer organization.

Senate unanimously granted the committee the right to subpoena witnesses who are otherwise unwilling to testify.

Student Body Vice President Jim van Loenen, presiding officer of Senate, Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, and Men's Vice President Carl Kuhl presented their suggested rules of procedure to the 14 students who will constitute the Senate special precinct senators are elected.

Methods for improving attendance at Senate meetings were among the suggestions made by the three executives. The legislators passed the resolution, and thereby made any senator who missed more than five meetings subject to impeachment.

Senior men's senators Joedy Smith and Fred Dislus opposed a section of the new rules which calls for attendance records of seniors to be submitted to the Flambeau for publication.

Dislus stated, "the responsibility is to ourselves," and voted against offering these records for publication.

"The constituents have a right to know whether or not their elected representatives are attending meetings," was the reply by Miss Champion.

Senate voted down the amendment to strike the "publication" clause by vote of 14 to four.

They also agreed to excuse absences "for academic reasons only," such as a test scheduled during a meeting.

A third resolution passed at the group's first meeting authorizes a special budgetary committee to study and recommend improvements of Senate's budgetary procedure.

The committee will include at least three senators and two faculty members from a university department concerned with budgetary procedures.

Some Coeds Forced To Live Off Campus

Will The Housing Problem Grow Worse On This Campus?

Increase In Student Body Shown By Housing Shortage

By SHARON GAUSE
Asst. New Editor

Two hundred and twenty-eight Florida State University women students have found it necessary to take off campus housing this year, reports Miss Edith McCullom, housing director.

This is almost twice as many students as were forced to find off-campus housing last year

Nine thousand, two hundred and seven students are now enrolled in the university with between 500 and 800 additional students expected to enroll by Monday, reports Dr. Murray Kenna, registrar.

The total is 605 ahead of registration at the same time a year ago and compared with final registration of 9,019 in 1961.

Late registration will continue through next Monday, Dr. Kenna said, and several hundred students probably will push final registration to somewhere between 9,700 and 10,000.

STUDENT BODY QUADRUPLED

FSU's student body has more than quadrupled in the last 20 years. In 1940 there were 1,964 students, in 1945 there were 2,446, in 1950 there were 6,399, and in 1955 there were 8,442.

Of the new total, FSU housing, at present, accomodates 4,682 students. Ten women's dormitories house 2,370 students. Greek organizations hold 1,155 of the overall, 573 in fraternity houses and 582 in sorority houses. Smith and Kellum halls have facilities for 1,140 men.

Additional room this year for undergraduate women is supplied through the use of the Cockerell House, which was used last year for graduate women. This furnished quarters for 20 women and is being used by students on special scholarship, under the direction of Dr. Merle Stone, dean of the School of Education.

Ten more places were opened as a result of an addition to the Pi Beta Phi House this year.

TEMPORARY HOUSING

Of the three-tiered loads students are now living in temporary housing on campus. These students were placed in this housing on the basis of the time of their application.

An example of the type of housing termed "temporary" is exhibited in Cawthon recreation room. This accommodates 40 women students. The party room adjacent to the recreation room has been converted to a dorm room. Students preferred this situation to finding housing off campus because of transportation problems as well as cost.

This type of "temporary" housing is by no means new to FSU. Students have been living in converted lounges, recreation rooms and party rooms for many years. As to the effect of such a situation on grades, the general consensus shows no radical variation, according to Miss McCullom. Time consumed in traveling to and from school when living off campus seems to have been just as great a handicap, she added.

MOVING OF STUDENTS

A portion of these students will be moved as a result of withdrawals. However, many of these students will be living in such conditions until the end of this semester, she said.

Housing officials hope that the overload problem will be almost totally alleviated for the second semester through "natural attrition" of the year' graduates and still more withdrawals.

All women students under 21 now living off campus, must move on campus second semester. This, of course, does not include those women classified as day students.

All women living off campus this semester were required to submit a permission slip signed by parents on which they agreed to assume the responsibility for their daughter's safety and welfare.

If this were approved, the housing office in turn gave that student a written permission signed by the Director of Housing and required for registration. These actions were taken in order to remove responsibility from the university, which is not equipped with sufficient staff to check into each off-campus student's housing.

HOUSING CONTRACT

Various steps have been taken in hopes of alleviating the problem. The housing contract, which has been recently initiated, is a protection for both the housing office and the student. This contract requires that the housing office receive payment in full by Aug. 1 or the student loses his housing reservation and forfeits his $10 bond.

Previous to this system, students had used their dorm reservation as a type of "safety valve" or "jumping off place" to provide a place to stay until off-campus housing could be found. This left housing officials, weeks after the beginning of a semester, adjusting housing and moving people in and out. A student now is bound to his contract, thus eliminating much red tape.

NEW DORMITORY

During the last session of the state legislature, a request was made for housing appropriations for a men's and a women's dormitory. The men's dormitory request has been approved and is now on a list for appropriations for state universities.

As to when students can expect this new dormitory, Miss McCullom reports, "We are hopeful that we will get another men's dormitory in the next two years."

Last Lecture

Dr. Daisy Parker, associate professor of government, will be the first speaker for this year's Last Lecture Series, sponsored by Mortar Board.

The purpose of the Last Lecture Series, as explained by Barbara Syfrett, member of the senior women's honorary, is to give outstanding professors a chance to present their views on their field both subjectively and objectively. They speak as if it is the last lecture they will ever give; hence the name of the series. The lectures are free and open to the public.

Dr. Parker will speak in Opperman Music Hall at 8 p.m. on Oct. 5.

Other last lectures will be given by Richard Fallon of the Speech Dept., Nov. 30, and by Dr. George Lemon of the History Dept., Feb. 8. The final Last Lecture of the year will be on April 5. The speaker has not yet been chosen.

CD Courses Begin

Civil Defense survival classes will begin Monday and continue through Oct. 2 in 102, Education Bldg. These classes will be open to all students, faculty, and staff, and will be held from 4 to 5:45 p. m.

FSU's educational elevision station WFSU-TV launched a five-week civil defense course yesterday evening. These survival programs will be presented every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at 8 p.m. They will be for university students and townspeople alike, and will be conducted by Jim Alexander, civil defense consultant to FSU.

Eleven buildings on campus have been designated as Class C shelters. Altogether they will house between 10,000 and 11,000 persons; or approximately the entire population of the campus, according to William H. Watson, safety coordinator.

These shelter areas are the ground, 6th, 7th, and 8th floors of Kellum and Smith halls; the vaults of the Nuclear Science Building; the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th floors of Landis Hall; the ground floor of the Library; the basement of Tully Gymnasium; the ground, 1st and 2nd floors of Longmire Bldg.; the Faculty Club in the Suwannee Room of Hall Bldg.; the 5th floor of Florida and Dorman Halls; and the basement of the Graduate Bldg.

In the event of nuclear attack the signal to go to shelter areas will be a siren or intermittent ringing of class bells. The shelters have been approved by a consulting engineer, and all will be stocked with radiation monitor equipment and emergency survival kits.

Literature, civil defense equipment, and an emergency survival kit will soon be on display in the library. Campus maps showing the locations of all the Civil Defense shelters will be given to the students.

Governor C. Farris Bryant has stated that in case of war, Tallahassee is not considered a target area. Therefore, if the students and faculty will take time to learn the simple procedures of civil defense, everyone should be safe from the danger of fallout, according to Bryant.

Alumni Village Improvement

A loan of $1,486,000 from the Housing and Home Finance Agency was approved on May 30 for additional housing for married students.

Bids have been opened on the construction of 186 more apartment units in Florida State University's Alumni Village. The 186 units are in addition to 288 apartment units, one and two-bedroom type, already in use there.

Apparent low bidder among the ten firms bidding was Winchester Construction Company of Tallahassee. Winchester Corporation's base bid for the 186 units was $1,410,000.

Award of the contract will not be made for a few days yet according to Robert P. Owens, administrative assistant in the Board of Control Architect's office. Construction will begin as soon as possible after the award, he said.

Dean Stresses Social Ethics

Three social standards were emphasized by Dean of Women Katherine Warren Tuesday night at the Upperclass Women's Convocation.

Miss Warren discussed standards concerning drinking, dress and visiting in men's rooms or apartments. "Young people do not respect rules when they know they're for their own welfare," she stressed.

She reminded women students that those under 21 years may not drink any alcoholic beverage and that no such beverages may be brought on the university campus or served at university sponsored activities.

The rule prohibiting women students from visiting in men's apartments was also emphasized. Miss Warren also explained the regulations pertaining to campus dress for women, emphasising the rule against the wearing of shorts with the exception of Saturdays. "There is a time and place for everything", she said concerning the burmuda rules. She feels that the wearing of shorts results in the lowering of restraint which controls conduct.

Dean Warren

She continued, pointing out that the enforcement of all standards begins with the student. Rules should be obeyed, she added, "due to confidence in our leaders who are concerned for our welfare."

She concluded her address, saying, "Only through, and by you can our university continue to maintain it's standard of excellency and it's representation remains solely in your hands."

Bobby Byrd, student body president, spoke at the convocation on the role of women at FSU.

Also speaking that evening were Dan Walbolt, chief justice of Honor Court, speaking on the academic honor system, and Mygnon Champion, women's vice president, on the idea of bringing international students into campus activities and developing genuine international relationships.

Hodgson Worked On 'Queue'

Anyone who has ever waited in the seemingly block-long lines at registration or outside the campus cafeteria should be glad to hear about the work of Dr. Vincent Hodgson, a new member of the FSU faculty.

A group of statisticians, including Dr. Hodgson, is working on the mathematical principals of the waiting line, or "queue" as the British call it.

Dr. Hodgson pointed out that a "queue" does not necessarily consist of a group of people waiting in line. It can be automobiles waiting to be repaired or telephone lines getting the busy signal.

Practical application of the "queueing" (line waiting) theories are seen in industry and traffic control.

Dr. Hodgson, a native of Accrington, England, joined the FSU staff as an assistant professor of statistics this month. He received his doctorate in the summer from the London School of Economics and Political Science.

Dr. Hodgson

The new professor is a fellow of the Royal Statistical Society, and from 1957-1960 he held a United Nations Award of Education state studentship.

Angel Flight

Angel Flight resumed its regular activities Tuesday in preparation for a drill to be held in Westcott Thursday. Eleven Angels will perform for the freshman Air Force ROTC Cadets.

All sophomore women with an over all grade average of at least 2.5 are reminded of rush to be held in October. The FLAMBEAU will contain further details at a later date.

Kilenyi Plays Harpsicord On Sept. 29

The first faculty recital at Florida State University this season will be by Edward Kilenyi next Friday night, Sept. 29, and the opening address will be performed on the harpsichord.

The recital by Kilenyi, professor of piano at FSU, will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall and is free and open to the public.

The harpsichord, seldom used forerunner of the piano, will be used by the pianist for the performance of two preludes and fugues by Bach and two sonatas by Scarlatti.

Two Brahms numbers, "Rhapsody in G minor" and "Intermezzo in A-flat major," will be played. He will play "Capriccio in F minor," and the first of Beethoven works by Dohnanyi, and "Sonata in B-flat minor" by Chopin.

The second half of the recital will include six preludes by Debussy, "Evening in the Szekely Country" by Bartok, and "Hungarian Rhapsody No 15" "Rakocty March" by Lisst.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

More About Books

A Legislative Investigating Committee begins probing the University of Florida today. The lawmakers suspect UF of perhaps harboring "un-American" persons on its faculty.

Legally, the Legislature has the right to investigate any state supported university. Yet, if an investigation has to be, why not let it go through the Board of Control, which is responsible for the university system. The gentlemen on the Board of Control are familiar with the universities and the inner workings of a given campus.

THIS TOO-EAGER prowling into the territory of the professional academician and the invasion of the last of the citadels of supposedly free thought and free expression is, at best, a shabby business.

The current investigation, according to an editorial in the Orlando Sentinel, is requested by Rep. George Stallings, Jr., of Jacksonville. Rep. Stallings allegedly said that several letters recently published on The Sentinels's editorial page gave him the facts he needs for protesting to the governor, Board of Control and State Department of Education.

THE LETTERS in question, from two ladies who took summer instruction at UF, protested the use of Max Lerner's book, America as a Civilization. One of the letter writers charged that she was hocked and outraged by the immoral, un-Godly, leftist flavor of the teaching she received in her summer course.

Not having taken the course or courses nor having used the textbook, we have no method of judging the justice of the charges made by the ladies. However, we suggest that putting both the South and the nation into a realistic focus might well reveal numerous areas deserving of criticism.

IN FACT, it is the duty of a university to familiarize students with the shortcomings of their society so that they will be better equipped to recognize and tackle acknowledged problems in post-student life.

All too often citizens, thinking they are living up to the American "ideal," have rejected totally any criticism of the nation or state as being un-American. That, of course, is not necessarily true, for only through honest criticism can improvement come.

We think that two letters from two persons enrolled only for summer work (not more than nine hours and probably less) are not sufficient basis for an investigation of this nature. However, if the investigation is to be, then we wonder why it is not accomplished through the Board of Control. B C S

Senate Bares Teeth

Student Senate seems to have learned a valuable lesson from its previous ineffectiveness and is taking steps to eliminate one of the major legislative problems. The group has at last, put some teeth into its attendance rules to insure that they at least have a legal quorum to conduct business.

Formerly, some elected representatives have regarded Senate meetings as undesirable gatherings which they condescended to drop in on once in a while. Several student leaders, determined to eliminate these wholesale absences, introduced a new set of rules and procedures to the Senate Wednesday.

Student Body Vice-President Ken van Assenderp and the men's and women's vice-presidents, Carl Kuttler and Mygnon Champion, suggested that all official meetings of Student Senate, Men's Senate, Women's Senate and the committees of these groups be made to compulsory by adding a means of enforcing attendance.

The proposal, passed unanimously by the group, reemphasized a prior ruling that any senator who missed five or more meetings during a semester will "have the adternative of he signing or shall have impeachment proceedings brought against him." An absence from Men's or Women's Senate equals an absence from Student Senate and committee meetings tquals one half Senate meeting. Leaving early or tardiness also constitutes one half absence.

In remanding that students perform the duties to which they were elected, Senate is issuing a warning to those who are now seeking posts in that body. No more occasional chairwarmers will be allowed in room 210 Longmire. Anyone who hapes to gain publicity and popularity by running for Senate should make sure he recognizes the responsibilities involved in the job and is aware of the fact that this year's officers have no intention of cluttering up the Senate Room with dead weight.

We hope that this new strictness, plus a large number of candidaes for senatorial seaes, indicaes an increased sense of responsibility in student government. Election to a group that budgets approximately $375,000 each vear is not a matter to be taken lightly, and it is encouraging to find evidence that others share this opinion. T D

Full Time Angel

Apparently Florida State University has at least one full time guardian angel who does nothing but protect us from one another. This assumption is based on the fact that there have been no serious traffic accidents on this campus in a long, long time. That is remarkable when you consider the innumerable violations of every traffic regulation so far posted by the university.

SPEED: The maximum speed limit on all streets unless otherwise posted is 20 mph. Yet, Call street speeders are among the worst in town.

Pedestrians are supposed to use the crosswalks. They, supposedly, have the right of way. However, it doesn't work quite like it was planned. The pedestrian that takes his right of way seriously may suffer breakage.

DRIVERS ARE supposed to approach crosswalks with caution. Their idea of caution, generally, is to speed up enough to cow pedestrians into staying on the curbing.

THE GRUMBLING of those students recently deprived of the privilege of driving their cars on campus evokes no sympathy. If anything, the university might consider cutting the number of on-campus drivers further.

Fortunately there haven't been any serious traffic accidents on campus, but we are pushing our luck unless there is a stern crackdown on violations of campus traffic regulations. Accidents can't be avoided forever. Even guardian angels get tired and take a day off. LP

Reflections

An FSU Primer, 1961

By LESLIE POWELL

See the happy people. The happy people are smiling. They are smiling because in another three hours they will be out of dropped-and-add lines. Some are smiling with fatigue. These last mentioned do not know they are smiling. And they are too tired to care.

THE HAPPY PEOPLE are dropping and adding. They are dropping and adding courses primarily. Sometimes they drop cigarettes or class cards or shreds of clothing. Some of the happy people just drop. Period.

The happy people shuffle along. They shuffle merrily in and out of lines. They get lost in the cloverleaf traffic pattern of human bodies. They ask each other happy questions: "We are supposed to be in line alphabetically by course and sec*tion*?" Or, (1 true Freshmeo have to take Fallout 102?" another happy smiling person asks.

THE HAPPY PEOPLE smart and spit and cough. They step on other people's happy corns. They wrestle the lady wranglers from the registrar's office. The ladies from the Westcott team almost always win. The happy people never give up. They bike uphill and downdale and seek out many men of the last word. They wrestle those men of the last word: deans, counselors, instructors. They wrestle schedules and working hours. The more amorous take the crowded opportunity to wrestle each other.

Happy coeds eye football players. Happy football players eye smiling coeds. They make happy talk. "See the pretty drop and add lines," they say. "See the pretty ladies with the pretty red pencils. The pretty pencils make red lines. We like pretty red marks on our pretty drop slips."

SOMETIMES the pretty ladies with the pretty pencils that make pretty red lines don't feel so good. Then they say in sweet voices: "You haven't gotten your department head's handprint on this drop slip. You are a naughty student. Now you must go see your pretty counselor. Get his happy signature. He will be happy to see you again. Tell your happy counselor he must sign this pretty drop slip or I am going to close up shop and go over and punch hum in his schmucky nose."

The happy people storm into the auditorium. They trickle out one by one every quarter hour. Then the happy people find parking tickets. They pay smiling policemen pretty dollar bills. The pretty policemen say to each other: "Look, look A happy offender of the law!" Then the happy smiling people march to the Student Center bookstall. The happy clerks smile and ask "Are you sure T. S. Eliot writes poetry?"

WITH THE HAPPY the pretty books are and their pretty dollars all gone into a happy cash register, the happy people go lean against lampposts and walls. They are happy in trying to remember their names. Passersby see their dazed faces and glazed eyes and say unkind things. Passersby say to each other: "Psst, did you see that one's face: he's on dope."

Soon the happy semester will be on its merry way. There is no turning back. There's nothing left for bus fare home. The happy university is busily managing fees paid in. It prefers to keep the fees. To give them back upsets the happy bookkeeping. Bookkeeping is the only happy word in the English language. It has three sets of double letters all strung together just like a math problem where you add the alphabet and other unsavory things. Bookkeeping brings to mind the cost of higher education and the happy people think on it and smile again. See the happy people. They smile happy smiles. Sometimes the happy people mutter, "I wish I was dead."

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

(EDITORS NOTE: The first half of this column appeared in the Tuesday, September 19, issue of the Flambeau.)

Not confined to the "National Affairs" section of the magazine, Time's invective spilled over into such unexpected quarters as "Science" and "Entertainment." The remarkable thing about the world, as reconstructed for us by Time, is that things have progressed from a state of complete lassitude last November to the brink of disaster now, all because Mr. Kennedy, who reportedly inherited no problems from the previous administration.

IN VIEW OF TIME'S attitudes on political matters, it is indeed ironic that it is regarded throughout the South as a left-wing periodical. This judgement is probably based solely on Time's coverage of racial issues which, in analyzing complex sociological problems, is about as devastatingly witty—and about as unidirective—as the magazine's book and movie reviews. Be that as it may, the Southern reactionaries cannot forgive Time's attitudes on the issue of desegregation. Fortunately for them, they have a ready made champion standing by—the U.S. News & World Report.

Rewarded as the only national magazine with a pro-Southern bias, U.S. News & World Report has gone along its prosperous way during the past year, basking in the support of big-business advertisers. As always, its bias is the most subtle — and dangerous—of the "big three" newsmagazines. To the casual reader, the magazine appears to give "equal time" to the pro and con arguments on various issues. It is, of course, impossible to measure the effectiveness of an argument in terms of column inches or layout space. In what really counts, the ideas expressed, U.S. News & World Report subtly undermines the argument of the side which opposes the magazine's ultra-conservative point of view. In many reports, however, even these pretenses of impartiality are laid aside. The magazine feels no compulsion whatsoever to report labor issues fairly.

In the matter of segregation, the magazine cloaks its support of "the peculiar institution" in terms of States' Rights vs. the Onrushing Power of Washington." It further presents the Southern bias through such means as its distorted reports on the effects of school desegregation in the District of Columbia, and its emphasis in African coverage on black terrorist acivities or native government failures.

But these characteristics have long been in evidence at USN&WR, and the only noticeable change which has occurred during the past year is that David Lawrence's "off-again on-again" romance with the Supreme Court is "on-again" in the wake of recent decisions reflecting the conservative majority under Frankfurter.

THERE IS ONE other major change which deserves mention in this rather superficial survey of the newsmagazine scene. It is the emergence of The Reporter as a magazine rivaling its bigger brothers in influence. Now ten years of age, Max Ascoli's bi-weekly claims a circulation approaching a quarter of a million But the significant thing about The Reporter is not how many subscribers it has, but who its subscribers are.

Influential Americans from the President and Congress on down have both read and contributed to this periodical which tries to report the news in depth and in language befitting an intelligent, erudite audience. The success of this early foe of McCarthyism is heartening enough to liberals that most will forgive the magazine's occasional lapses of judgment on "cold-war" issues, where the magazine follows what at sometimes called "the hard line."

ALTHOUGH IT is probably too early to reach any firm conclusions, there are indications that the newsmagazine situation has brightened somewhat during the past year. For one thing, the American people demonstrated last November a healthy independence of the combined bias of the three leading newsmagazines. With the increasing coverage of current affairs by other media, the public does not have to rely strictly upon the magazines and newspapers for its information.

Within the magazine field itself, however, there is some cause for optimism. The Washington Post, new owner of Newsweek, has a well-deserved reputation as a great liberal newspaper. It will be interesting to see whether or not Newsweek follows through with early changes to become the first liberal newsmagazine on the mass market. Further, if this occurs, it will be interesting to see what effect the change in editorial policy have upon the magazine's advertising revenues.

MEANWHILE, the emergence of The Reporter also gives liberals some cause for optimism. Although its function and appeal are not the same as "the big three," it is proving that there is a wider audience than had previously been thought for and intelligently-written, erudite newsmagazine.

In spite of the possibility for restrained optimism in view of the growth of The Reporter and the changes at Newsweek, both Time and U.S. News & World Report go along their merry way, with circulation and advertising prospering. They, along with the majority of the nation's newspapers, make it imperative that the readers continue to have the precious alternatives offered by a free press—the journals of opinion such as The Progressive, The Nation, and even the rightist National Review. As long as these journals exist, there will be some rvm—some small measure of restraint—upon the use of power, and opinion free from the economic pressures of big business and big labor, or the political pressures of big government. It would be a sad day for our nation if it were otherwise.

Letters

Professor Long Refrained

TO THE EDITOR:

I have always refrained from writing letters to the editor of the Flambeau, but I feel compelled to comment on Gerry Dobson's column, "Semilla: Seed of the Century." I certainly have no objection to his reviewing Dr. Shuey's thesis in his column, but I do object to his impugning the integrity of a majority of social scientists and of a portion of the FSU faculty.

Shuey, Henry Garrett, and Howard McGurk speak for a small minority of psychologists who argue that the results of intelligence testing prove the existence of racial differences in intelligence." By their own admission, these three disagree with the great majority of their professional colleagues. But it is they who are attempting to stifle honest inquiry and free discussion by branding scientists who disagree with them as "brainwashers" motivated by "an egalitarian bias." There can be no free exchange of ideas without mutual respect for the integrity and sincerity of the discussants.

Furthermore, these writers set up a "straw man" when they say that most social scientists preach that races are equal in intelligence. The most widely accepted theory now is that: (1) no test has been devised which actually measures the biologically inherited capacity to learn; (2) it is impossible to control all the environmental factors which influence learning and test performance, thereby making impossible a perfectly controlled comparision between groups; and (3) "races" are so poorly defined for scientific purposes that the samples used in research so small, that comparisons of average tests scores provide no definite answer to the question, "Are races equal in intelligence?" Nathaniel Shuey may disagree with whom she disagrees have the answer to this question.

I dispute Mr. Dobson's implication that the Flambeau was unwilling to purchase one or more copies of Shuey's book. I also feel perfectly safe in saying that if he would enroll in appropriate courses in educational research and testing, anthropology, psychology and sociology he would find professors willing and competent to discuss Shuey's and Garrett's theories with him. Not only would he not be penalized for expressing his own opinions in a courteous and coin - polemic fashion, but he would come out of these courses highly qualified to evaluate the literature in this field.

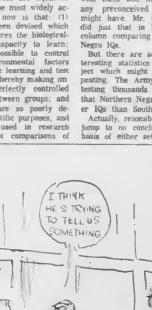
How Typical Though

TO THE EDITOR:

Statistics are a wonderful thing, especially when they concern IQs. It's easy to play around with them and make them fit any preconceived notions you might have. Mr. Gerry Dobson did just that in his Flambeau column comparing "white" and Negro IQs.

But there are some other interesting statistics on this subject which might be worth repeating. The Army found, after testing thousands of inductees, that Northern Negroes had higher IQs than Southern "whites." Actually, reasonable persons will jump to no conclusions on the basis of either set of statistics.



Both tend to prove that psychologists have not yet devised tests which eliminate environment as a factor and measure pure "native ability" — that is, IQ. Most psychologists recognize this, that Dr. Garrett (Mr. Dobson's "authority") did not prove. I've had something to do with the fact that no large reputable publisher would handle his book any more than a medical publisher would print the book of a well-known quack. How typical though, of the almost paranoie lunatic fringe of rightwingers to imagine a great conspiracy to supress their ideas.

Murphree Ode

Some good, upright, hardworking upperclassmao coed who understandably prefers to remain anonymous (we know the name but shun't divulge it . . . the original is signed, as all material published in the Flambeau must be: has written and passed oo to us the following ditty:

They'll tell you about those savage upperclassmen,
And about the things they do on Landis Green.
They'll tell you how they ruin the freshman girls' young innocence.
And how they pick your Jennie Murphree rose quite clean.
Oh, the kisses that you give to your boyfriend,
Are petals from the fairest flower that grows.
"Why don't you save a little something for marriage.
In memory of your dear Jennie Murphree rose?"

ANONYMOUS

Sharp Ben Schafer And Academic Freedom

A heavy jowled, pudgy man with a thick Hungarian accent praised Florida State University in a solemn, sincere manner.

"I feel myself at home," he said quietly. "I'm not commenting the people of Tallahassee; I'm only saying the truth when I say that men are not only kind but very helpful."

The man is Dr. Stephen Schafer, one of the world's outstanding criminologists and a new addition to the FSU faculty.

He was sitting in his small new office in the shabby School of Welfare chatting about his new position. A naked light bulb hung over his head; a battered desk was before him; paint was chipping off the wall in one corner. He didn't seem to mind.

"I'm not even complaining against the weather," he remarked, in a keen wit piercing his serious tones.

"In England they talk hours about the weather. It is a little annoying.

"After my experiences, I don't think the weather is one of the big things of life." He chuckled gently with this thought.

Little Worry

A man who has lived under a communist regime worries little about weather, naked light bulbs, or peeling paint.

The professor taught most of his life behind the Iron Curtain. He fell on Hungary after World War II. He learned that Communism means teaching straight from the books, inserting no personal opinion about the subject. He felt the straight jacket of the Soviets and parroted verbatim what was printed by the state. He was used a non-responsive slave. If the Hungarian student does not speak up as his FSU counterpart can.

And he taught, such as it was, in Hungarian schools until 1951. Then one day the communists suggested that he resign.

"I was getting too many letters from books from the United States," he said with a slight chuckle. The communists figured he was not barnstorming this properly.

"The day they asked me to resign I knew what that meant. I knew that if I didn't leave there would be serious consequences and I would go to prison.

"In Hungary everybody knows two languages. They have a second language. You have to know that they (the communists) mean.

"The rest of the world should remember what Winston Churchill said: that behind the Iron Curtain there are only a few people allowed but when one is allowed you must do it."

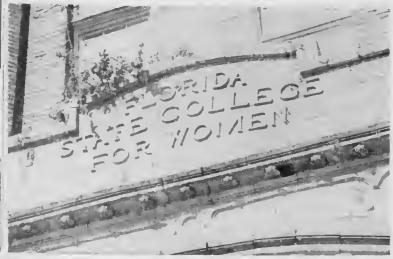
Bombs Burst

Hungarians get fed up with this double rule in 1917 and bombs burst in the streets. Long contained tempers flared violently, and revolution was at hand.

Russian tanks rumbled over dreams of freedom of millions of Hungarians, but Dr. Schafer was gone. During the period of chaos, he appeared in the Iron Curtain and the criminologist, his family, including his 86-year-old grandfather, who was the senior lawyer in his native land, slipped to freedom.

Two hundred thousand people, mainly workers and academic leaders, fled to freedom during this period. "They were longing for their freedom the most," Schafer asserted.

It is natural that these academicians sought freedom at the risk of death. For freedom meant keenness.



"If you have your work, life is happy," says Schafer, now a happy man. "Here I use accepted facts but I also give my opinions. In this I accept both."

These Americans who would have all students ... swallow their own form of propaganda should meet Dr. Schafer. Those who fear freedom of thought and professional expression in the name of anti-communism would benefit from his story.

For this is a man, quiet and courageous, who faced the communist power and would not be intimidated.

He represents those intellectuals who stand as a bulwark against entrapment of freedom by any group. This is the type of man that the spineless Americans are prone to trust with college students.

'Coed Asks Is This The Beginning Of New Official Policies?'

"Is this the beginning of new official policies?" asked one Florida State University coed as she watched the last visible vestiges of Florida State College for Women disappear under the blows of a chisel from the facade of Westcott Bldg.

The sign of times gone by was removed Wednesday by workmen who buffed the panel and covered it with waterproof cement. Almost forgotten but not gone the six-inch high letters were uncovered by other workmen last April when the ivy that had hidden the sign was removed in order to do some waterproofing.

At that time University officials did not plan to remove the letters. Since it was a part of the cast stone arch above the door it was believed at first that the lettering could not be removed. In this case the lettering would not have been hidden from view for three or four years until the ivy grew back.

In the years immediately after 1947 when the school became coeducational women still far outnumbered men on campus and perhaps the school was still more of a "women's college" than a university.

It seems appropriate that today, as the school becomes known as a university, that it shed the cast stone vestiges of its days as a "women's college."

THOSE SIX-INCH HIGH LETTERS in concrete, "Florida State College For Women"came off the facade of Florida State University's Westcott Building today. The name of FSU before 1947 was exposed some months ago when the ivy on the administration building was cut back. Officials said the panel, buffed and covered with cement waterproofing will be left blank.

Miss Frank Made Foreign Pupil Advisor

Nearly 90 foreign students on both undergraduate and graduate levels have enrolled in Florida State University this year, according to the Foreign Student Advisor's Office.

Miss Elke Frank, Foreign Student Advisor, said that many sections of the world are represented. About one-third of the foreign students are from the Far East, mainly Japan, China, and India. Approximately 30 of the students are from European countries, the remaining students are from the two American continents.

Over two-thirds of the students are enrolled in the Graduate School. Many of these students are on the faculty either teaching or doing research work. The principal area of interest, according to Miss Frank, is in the fields of the natural sciences.

The foreign student does a remarkable job in adjusting to campus life at FSU, Miss Frank said. The most common complaints concern the lack of kitchen facilities in the dorms where the foreign student may, on occasion, prepare native dishes. Another complaint centers around the fact that the University has no international student house where students of all nationalities, including North Americans, may live.

The Foreign Student Advisor's Office serves a double purpose. Working out of the Student Welfare Office, Miss Frank's primary objective is to help the foreign student adjust to life on the campus. Serving as an agent of the United States Immigration Service, Miss Frank acts as a liaison between the foreign student and the Federal Government.

Miss Frank, a graduate of FSU, is considered well qualified for her position. She was graduated with honors in 1957 and took her Master's two years later in the field of political science. While at FSU, Miss Frank was president of the International Club. She was also recipient of the Federation of Women's Clubs scholarship. Last year, Miss Frank was on the faculty of Harvard University, where she began work on her Doctorate in international affairs.

Meteorologist Helps Seed Hurricane Esther

CHARTING THE PATH OF HURRICANE ESTHER IS FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY meteorologist, Dr. Charles L. Jordan. The meteorologist is especially interested in the hurricane because he participated in a weather bureau project to seed the hurricane with silver iodide in an effort to turn the storm. He reported that there was no marked change in the path of the storm following the seeding.

Florida State University meteorologist Charles L. Jordan began his fall classes three days late this fall—he was out on a mission seeding hurricane Esther.

Dr. Jordan, of the FSU Meteorology Dept. was on one of the six planes which caught up with Esther about 400 miles Northeast of Puerto Rico last Saturday and Sunday and blew silver iodide smoke into her eye to see what effect it would have on winds, temperature fields and water content.

Dr. Jordan flew on the Navy radar plane, one of five planes of various types that kept track data as a Navy A3D jet dispensed the silver iodide smoke which has the effect of changing water to ice. He said that there was no marked change in track of the storm which is now off the New England coast.

The planes flew missions of about ten hours on both days. Weather planes operated from San Juan and the Navy planes from Roosevelt Roads Naval Station.

Five FSU Meteorology Dept. graduates now flight meteorologists with the U. S. Weather Bureau made the flight also, Dr. Jordan said. They are: R. Cecil Gentry, director of the National Hurricane Research project and an FSU doctoral student 1960-61; I. E. R. Richardson who received his bachelor's degree June 1958. Harlin Davis, graduate student 1959-60; R.D. Decker, B.S. in June 1961—all with the Miami Weather Bureau's National Hurricane Research project. M. R. Ahrens, who received B.S. in June 1960, now with the Tampa weather bureau, was also on the flight.

Earlier in the hurricane season Dr. N. E. LaSeur of the FSU Meteorology Dept. and graduate students Edward J. Zipser and Robert S. Hawkins flew into Carla in connection with research contracts with U.S. Weather Bureau and U.S. Navy.

FSU Lost And Found

The lost and found department is maintained in the office of Miss Jane Adams, director of Longmire Bldg.

Anyone finding a lost article anywhere on campus should send it to this office immediately with detailed information as to when and where the article was found, Miss Adams said.

If the article has identification on it the owner will be notified; if not, lost articles will be filed in the office. Students or faculty wishing to claim lost articles should come to 107 Longmire between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Students are urged to check frequently and fill out a request card for a lost article. If the article should come to the office later, the owner will be notified.

Articles turned in during the summer and the first week of the fall semester include: one notebook, two bracelets, two men's jackets, one woman's jacket, one trenchcoat, one pair of prescription glasses, one pair woman's gloves, a key, necklace, three fountain pens, six ladies raincoats, three men's raincoats, three women's sweaters, two men's sweaters, one woman's scarf, 13 women's umbrellas, one man's watch, one ladies nylon slip and one pair of men's shoes.

Alpha Phi's Break Ground

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the proposed Alpha Phi chapter house were Sept. 14. The house will be located on Call Street next door to Sigma Nu fraternity. Winchester Construction Company is expected to start excavation this week for completion by early spring.

The three story building, designed by Prentiss Huddleston and Assoc., will be roughly 15,300 square feet in size and will house 44 girls with dining facilities for 80.

Completely air conditioned, the structure will combine a modified New Orleans exterior with furnishings in French Provincial style. The house will feature a first floor balcony overlooking a private patio opening from a large recreation room on the basement level.

A paved driveway and parking facilities are also planned. Construction cost alone is estimated at $173,000.

Alpha Phi sorority was established on this campus May 16, 1959. The sorority was founded at Syracuse University in 1872 as the third oldest Greek letter sorority in the United States. Since then, chapters have been established on 78 campuses, including several in Canada.

Alpha Phi was the first woman's fraternity to build and occupy a chapter house, the first to have a visiting delegate, the first to have a $50,000 endowment fund, and the first to publish a history of their first fifty years in existence. In 1902, Alpha Phi called the first inter - sorority conference which became the National Panhellenic Conference in 1945.

Who Killed Freshman Games?

Who killed the Florida State-University of Florida freshman football clashes? This remains one of the great mysteries of the current football campaign, and more conflicting eye witness accounts are flying around about the demise of the series than can be found in a Perry Mason thriller.

Last year was supposedly the first game in a long string between FSU and UofF, but after taking a 36-11 walloping at the hands of the Baby Seminoles the Baby Gators seemed to take an entirely different outlook on the situation. The contract, which was never actually written down and was in verbal form, was supposed to guarantee a game played in Tallahassee each year through the 1964 season. Plans are in the discussion stage for the Seminole-Gator varsity contests to be played at Tallahassee and Gainesville on alternate years or in neutral Jacksonville by 1964.

After talking to Ray Graves, University of Florida coach, over a coke. After talking to Ray Graves, University of Florida coach over a sweetened tea, and finally over a beer, the agreement was purely one-sided or at least that he denied any knowledge of its existence. "If there was any agreement," said Graves, "I don't know anything about it." The Florida coach stated that his freshman schedule was filled with three teams, the maximum number allowed by the Southeastern Conference. Vaughn Mancha, Florida State athletic director, had asked Graves if something couldn't be arranged with Bernie Moore, the SEC chairman, Graves assured Mancha that he would make every effort to change the SEC's rule. But he didn't make any effort.

Graves also stated over the phone, "I wish we could play five games a season and have two games with FSU, one here and one in Tallahassee." But he didn't try too hard to schedule five games with FSU, not at all. That was by Graves' own admission.

When asked if the lopsided score of last year's FSU-UofF freshman game affected his decision, Graves replied, "No, that's definitely not true."

Even the possibility of playing the Baby Gators next year is in doubt according to the Florida coach. There has not been a signed contract and a full schedule may again conflict with the contest. During the interview Graves said he wanted to play Miami and Florida State on alternate years, but this year is Miami's turn. If this is true shouldn't the Baby Seminoles get a crack at the Baby Gators next season? Florida State had better hurry and get Coach Graves' signature on the dotted line or the rush of coaches clamoring to play the UofF freshman may again leave the Seminoles standing out in the cold

Graves

Mancha

Apparently the University of Florida believes that the best way to keep a winning team is simply to ignore anyone who could be considered a serious competitor. As long as this attitude exists the Gainesville camp the tribe will have to be careful not to call the mighty Gators in too many contests or the Seminoles will have to look for another rival.

Actually the students of FSU can consider the actions of Coach Graves as a compliment. This is quite a change in attitude for our in-state rival. Only a few years ago they would not play the lowly Seminoles because the tribe was so outclassed that they would not consider them a rival. Now suddenly the situation is reversed and the Gators will not play the Seminoles because Florida finds itself outclassed.

Bill Peterson

COACH BILL PETERSON checks over a play before FSU takes the field.

By BILL VERIGAN
Flambeau Sports Editor

A football coach's life entails a great deal more than directing the activities of his team on the football field. Besides the publicized events, such as effigy hanging and going into contortions trying to help a player across the goal from the sidelines, a coach must recruit, make speeches to alumni and various clubs, direct all team activities, help collect funds, greet distinguished visitors to the university, and grant interviews.

All these activities are in addition to his main job of coaching his team to wins. Perhaps the single most important item in college football today is recruiting since a coach cannot create a winning team from a group of men who simply are not athletes.

Last year the Seminoles secured some of the nation's most sought players in all sports through a comprehensive recruiting campaign that stretched all the way to Montana. A persuasive personality is a prime requisite for a coach on a recruiting mission. Since all colleges are bound by NCAA rules to follow certain ethics in gathering new players the main legal difference is personality.

While Coach Peterson was at LSU, Paul Dietzel credited him with obtaining many of the players which elevated the Bengals into the national rankings.

MONEY MAKES TEAMS

No matter how brilliantly a coach's personality may shine, however, there is no substitute for money in building a successful athletic program. One of Bill Peterson's most time-consuming jobs is raising funds to bolster his grid teams.

He raises funds through numerous personal contacts with alumni, one of the most important elements in building a football squad, and friends of the university.

The energy devoted to the various communications media, such as radio, television, and press interviews, is also a strain on a coach's rigid schedule and tense nerves. Every day Coach Peterson can count on having his schedule interrupted several times by inquiring reporters, many of whom got back to their typewriters to criticize he man who has given his time.

Each Sunday after the ordeal on the football field Coach Peterson must go on a local television show to build good relations with the people of the Tallahassee area. Although he must take bad with the good, in the end the team and Florida State will benefit from his interviews.

PRACTICE IS PART

Each afternoon Coach Peterson and his assistants must direct the team in on-the-field practices, but this is only a fraction of the coaching job. Many more hours must be spent over the drawing boards in outlining what may well be the winning formula. A key play must be found to take up the slack from the loss of an injured player, or a remedy must be found for a weak defense.

When Billy Graham spoke at Tallahassee one of the men on the rostrum was Bill Peterson. This instance shows one of the more noted personalities that Coach Peterson welcomed to be university, but every week there are personalities to greet that are not as famous.

All of these details go into molding a football coach, and each one must be practiced every day.

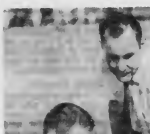
ROBERTS, GRIMES GET 'OKAY'

Florida State's football team received the news this week that although Gene Roberts, main offensive fullback threat, will not be in the lineup against the Florida Gators next weekend, he will probably be able to go against Ole Miss the following weekend.

Roberts, who received his injury in the George Washington contest, was checked over by a specialist before a decision was made by Coach Bill Peterson. The rugged power runner, considered the key to FSU's offense, suffered a severe knee strain while attempting to make a turn around Colonial defenders. It was his first curry of the 1961 season.

Roberts was the man expected to be able to cave in the opposition lines and his absence will probably call for some change in plans. During the George Washington game Roberts was replaced by Paul Andrews, who gained a runnerup position in the Back of the Week poll.

Marcus Roberts has been called in to handle the fullback spot against the Gators, and Keith Kinderman was moved up to take the left halfback duties.



Fred Grimes, a standout defensive end, has been working out with the Seminoles with a heavy cast patching up a broken wrist. Rules prevent a player from entering the game with a cast which could be injurous to the other team, and Grimes is scheduled to carry the cast around for three weeks. Earlier in the week Grimes was not expected to play against the Gators, but plans may be changed.

Other players in the aches and pains department set the George Washington game will be ready for the U of F tilt. These include Ferrell Henry and Happy Fick. Fick will be playing mainly on defense for the tribe. Henry had an infected foot but is expected to see action in next Saturday's tilt.

Bill Dawson, a sophomore end, has his cheek injured in Monday's practice and will not be counted on to participate in the Gator game. He was checked over by a doctor yesterday. Larry Brinkley, a sophomore halfback, injured his foot but will probably be on hand against Florida.

Some changes are going to appear against U of F according to the coaches because of the injury of Roberts, but what those are will be kept under wraps until the Seminoles take the field.

Poll Names Andrews, Donatelli

Feely Gets 'Back Of Week' Honors

Eddie Feely, Florida State's 160-pound field general, gained "Back of the Week" honors for his performance in Last Saturday's tilt against the George Washington Colonials. The Florida Sportswriters Association's choice for the award was announced Wednesday.

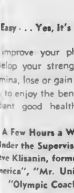
Feely passed for 66 yards by completing six of his nine tosses and rushed for 53 yards in 12 carries to help FSU defeat the Colonials 15-7.

The little field general was one of the tribe's main offensive threats last season as a sophomore. During 1960 he completed 38 percent of his passes and was third in net rushing with 171 yards.

Fullback Paul Andrews, the Seminoles' rushing leader, was a runnerup in the sportswriters' poll for "Back of the Week." Andrews led the tribe on the ground by smashing for 59 yards. The other runnerup for "Back of the Week" was George Mira, Miami quarterback. Mira completed 9 out of 19 passes for 142 yards and rushed for 40 yards.

Larry Wilson, Miami end, was designated "Lineman of the Week"; and was followed in the voting by Don Donatelli, a tackle for the Seminoles.

Andrews and Donatelli are both senior members of the squad. During the George Washington game Andrews had to take over full-time fullback duties after Gene Roberts' early injury.



Donatelli is on the starting lineup for his third year and is considered one of the tribe's toughest linemen. Last season he was benched part of the time by injuries.

Florida State and the Hurricanes were the only two Florida schools to see action last weekend. Florida State downed George Washington while Miami was meeting defeat at the hands of Pittsburgh. This weekend is an open date for FSU, preparing for battle against the Florida Gators Sept. 30.

Career Cues

"Cure for job boredom: I made my favorite pastime my career!"

Richard Bertram, President
Bertram Yacht Co., Division of Naufec Corp.

"When you stop to think what percent of our total waking hours is spent bread-winning, you realize how tragic it is for any man to work at an occupation he doesn't enjoy. Besides frittering away life, it reduces chances of success to just about zero. I know . . . because it almost happened to me!

After college, I did what I thought was expected of me and joined a solid, Manhattan-based insurance firm. I soon found office routine wasn't for me. I lived only for lunch hour when I could walk to the Battery and mentally sail with the ships that stood out in the Narrows . . . and for the summer weekends when I could go sailing. Fortunately, the company I worked for is one of the leading insurers of yachts and after two years I was transferred to their Yacht Underwriting Department. Enjoyment and interest in my work improved immediately 100%.

After World War II, I started my own yacht brokerage firm and yacht insurance agency in Miami, combining my marine insurance background with an even closer relationship with boats.

My only problem ever since has been a feeling of guilt that my work was too easy. I love boats and boating people. That affection has paid me rewards way beyond the financial security it has also provided.

The moral's obvious. You have an odds-on chance for success and happiness working at what you enjoy most — what comes naturally! And if it's not just frivolous, your life's work could well be what you now consider just a pastime. It's certainly worth thinking about, anyway!"

And to make any time pass more enjoyably...

FSU Takes $784,000 NASA Grant

The possibility of life in outer space will be just one of many basic research questions to be explored by Florida State University scientists under an initial grant of $784,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The grant, the largest made so far by the year-and-a-half-old College of Life Science Programs, is expected to be expanded to $2,252,000 over the next three years.

Three or four major faculty members as well as other research personnel will be obtained under the grant, which will be used to establish an Institute for Space Bioscience at FSU. Other similar programs are under way at the University of California at Berkeley and Stanford University.

APPROVED BY BOARD

Acceptance of the grant was approved by the Board of Control, meeting in Gainesville Friday. The initial funds are designated for use over a three-year period, however, according to an understanding with NASA officials, the same amount of support will be provided annually, beginning with the second year.

All of the initial funds will not be spent immediately, but rather a large portion of the grant will be set aside to insure support of new faculty for a period of years beyond their initial appointment. Establishment and operation of the Institute will require no salaries from state funds.

The Institute will be headed by biochemist Dr. Sidney Fox, director of FSU's Oceanographic Institute, who is best known for his research on the origin of life and for laboratory production of mixtures resembling proteins.

RECOGNIZES RESEARCH

Receipt of the grant recognizes the research of Dr. Fox and Dr. Seymour Hess, head of the Meteorology Dept., and Dr. Charles Metz, associate director of the Oceanographic Institute.

The objective of the research at FSU, according to Dr. Fox, will be to "investigate processes involved in the origin, evolution and development of organisms under terrestrial (earth) and extra-terrestrial (space and planetary) conditions."

Among the questions on which the FSU research is expected to have some bearing are the nature of planetary atmospheres, particularly that of Mars; the possible existence of unknown forms of life in space; extinct life; primordial life; the presence and nature of organic compounds on other bodies in the solar system; and the possible effect of space and other planetary environments on the plant and animal life from the earth.

Although the research is basic it may reveal information with applied value. The FSU studies include further development of theories relating to the origin of complex organic molecules and of living matter, and further interpretation, both from the earth and from artificial satellites, of the surface environments of neighboring heavenly bodies.

COMPARATIVE STUDIES

Comparative chemical and biological studies will be emphasized as meaningful background for understanding extra-terrestrial life when it is encountered.

The Institute will bring together scientists from many areas, including biology, chemistry, meteorology and other scientists who are working on research problems relevant to space biosciences and the basic problems of space. Some of the work of the Institute may be done in connection with the Oceanographic Institute.

The funds will provide for several major faculty members as well as research associates, assistantships, visiting speakers, visiting professors, equipment, and for other expense of research.

...e establishment of the Institute ...s cited by President Gordon ...ackwell as a "further significant step in the development ... Florida State University's ...ediate instruction and research ...ctivities as well as in the de- ...velopment of Floridas' key role in the space age."

RECTUAL PROGRAM

This also gives us an opportunity to rethink the program of the Oceanographic Institute so that it may even more effectively meet the needs of the state," he added.

Meanwhile student government leaders, including Student Body Vice President Ken van Assenderp and Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, began making plans for a resolution to be introduced in Senate Wednesday, thanking the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the grant.

The resolution will also express thanks on behalf of the body to the Board of Control for giving its approval to the establishment of the new Institute.

The resolution will offer congratulations to the three faculty members whose work the grant recognizes and to the science department.

Van Assenderp said that the resolution would thank the NASA, after realizing the quality and potential of the University in spite of certain financial handicaps with which our University has been confronted."

Enrollment Climbs

Preliminary registration figures released by the Registrar's Office yesterday showed that the total number of students registered had climbed to 9,478.

At this time last year 8,907 students had been registered. The total figure was expected to top 9,500 by the time registration closed yesterday. Final figures will include about 100 men taking graduate work through Eglin Air Force Base.

Of the preliminary total, 5,083 were men and 4,393 were women. Comparative figures last year were 4,817 men to 4,090 women.

In Space Bioscience

Fox, Hess, Metz Will Form Nucleus

Three Florida State University research scientists will play major roles in the establishment of the new Institute of Space Biosciences.

The grant for the Institute recognizes research principally by Dr. Sidney Fox, director of the Oceanographic Institute, Dr. Seymour Hess, head of the Meteorology Dept.; and Dr. Charles Metz, associate director of the Oceanographic Institute. These men will form the nucleus of the research and administrative staff of the Institute.

Dr. Fox, a biochemist, will head the new Institute, to be established in the FSU Graduate School.

Dr. Fox has been researching on the origin of life and has produced by a simple laboratory process mixtures of large elaborate molecules containing all of the 18 common amino acids and resembling proteins. The simplicity of the process indicates the possibility of its occurring in many places in the universe.

He received his Ph.D. from California Institute of Technology in 1940 and came to FSU in 1955.

A study of planetary atmospheres was begun by Dr. Hess in 1948 at Lowell Observatory and he has become widely known for work on atmospheres of Jupiter, Venus, and particularly of Mars. Some of his work has been in the "blue haze" of Mars. He has served as a consultant to the Space Science Board of the National Academy of Sciences and has worked on the Mariner II project (vehicle for a Mars fly-by and landing).

Dr. Hess came to FSU in 1950, after receiving his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1949.

A zoologist, Dr. Metz has made some widely cited studies in the field of fertilization of the egg, using sea urchins and other biological forms. He has also served as a consultant of NASA and has made a study of the fertilization and cellular differentiation process under conditions of zero gravity as attained in rocket flight.

He received his Ph.D. from the California Institute of Technology in 1942 and came to FSU in 1953.

Route Suggested For G'ville Trip

By MARY ELLEN HARRIS
Flambeau Feature Editor

Next weekend, the highways between Tallahassee and Gainesville will be teeming with mechanical monsters of all descriptions during the mass exodus to Gainesville.

Thus surfeit of automobiles plus overflowing holiday spirits will constitute a definite hazard to those students driving to the game Saturday.

SUGGESTED ROUTES

Sargeant Tony Graham, Security Officer of the Florida Highway Patrol has recommended routes to Gainesville to alleviate some of the anticipated difficulties.

The first of these routes leaves Tallahassee on U.S. highway 20 to Lake City. From Lake City, the driver is recommended to take U.S. 441 via High Springs to Gainesville.

The second route to Gainesville is by way of U.S. 27 to Perry, Branford and High Springs. U.S. 441 from High Springs is again suggested for the driver.

According to Sgt. Graham, U.S. 441 is a good, four-lane highway that goes right by the campus in Gainesville and is recommended for the driver not familiar with the area.

THIRD ROUTE

The third suggested route takes U.S. 27 to Perry and U.S. 27A, U. S. 19 and U. S. 90 out of Perry to Fanning Springs at the Suwannee River. A left turn near the truck inspection station will place the driver on Florida 26 to Gainesville via Trenton and Newberry.

This third route is suggested for those who are familiar with the area, since Florida 26 winds its way through Gainesville proper before reaching the stadium.

Sgt. Graham remarked that the three routes have been checked for length and that there is less than five miles difference between the three.

DRIVERS CAUTIONED

He cautioned the drivers to get an early start and to be "extremely careful" in passing, especially on the two lane highways.

Sgt. Graham added that no extra troopers will be added to the force, but that they will have "everybody working" and that there will be a trooper for approximately every 15 to 20 miles between Tallahassee and Gainesville.

'Gator-bait' and 'Going Gator Gigglin'" will echo and re-echo across campus Thursday night when the cheerleaders and the Rally Committee stage the annual pep rally prior to the FSU-U of F football game.

The rally will begin at 9 p.m. Thursday at Landis Green, where the students will form a conga line and snake dance to the Student Center where there will be a large bonfire.

Student Body President Bobby Byrd and Coach Bill Peterson will speak to the students at the rally and the football squad will be introduced.

The cheerleaders and the Marching Chiefs will lead the rally.

Earlier in the evening the One-Up Men Society (formerly Church Key) will sponsor a reception for the freshman team and coaches and the freshman class.

The reception, open to all students, will be from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Suwannee Room.

A film of last year's freshman squad's clash with the U. of F Baby Gators will be shown.

Refreshments will be served. Dress will be semi-formal.

Following the reception the group will go on a body to the rally.

Guild Production Cast Being Filled

A husband and wife acting team, David Clarke and Nora Dunfee have been placed under contract as two of the professional leads in the forthcoming Theatre Guild production of The Last Days of Lincoln. Confirmation of the main lead, that of Lincoln, is expected this morning.

Clarke will play the part of Joshua Speed in the production, and his wife either the part of Mrs. Lincoln or Mrs. Grant. He has played on the Broadway and road production of The Visit, Abe Lincoln in Illinois and Arthur Miller's A View From the Bridge. His screen credits include The St. Louis Bank Robbery, Odds Against Tomorrow and The Set Up. He also appeared in the television production, Stakeout.

Miss Dunfee was the understudy for Lynn Fontanne in The Visit.

The students who have been assigned definite parts in the cast are Hal Poe as Wade; W. W. Calhoun as Porter; Sammy Kilman, Grant; Bruce Fisher, General Weitzel; and Sam Baker as Stanton.

Loraine Nelson will be the understudy to Miss Dunfee in the production. She will play the part of either Mrs. Lincoln or a woman, depending on the part Miss Dunfee decides to take.

Also included in the cast are Tom Woodruff, Eugene Bulsell, Harlan Shaw, eKnt Wood, Virgil Austin, Terry Rogers, Harold Mixon, Ashley Ahl, Eddie Reid, Barbara Speisman, Hedi Barmsley Svendsen, Gerald Lopez, Alen Thompson, Larry Shiller and Henry Haire.

Tallahassee To Tel Aviv By Sculling

Harry R. Blieden, doctoral student and research assistant in experimental nuclear physics, has made a splash" on lakes from Tallahassee to Tel Aviv, Israel, in recent weeks.

While the Florida State University lab laboratory, Blieden has ordered a "very promising ...ce" on a lake and given the ...ther equipment, he is recog- ...ed as one of America's top ...rs or one who is proficient in small racing boats.

MACCABIAH GAMES

A member of the United States ...ter rowing squad, Blieden recently returned to FSU from ...ael where he won two gold ...als for first-place finishes ... the sixth Maccabiah ...mes at Tel Aviv. More than ...0 athletes representing 25 na- ...s competed in the Games.

Blieden won a gold medal in ...e single sculls and teamed with ...ve Herman, former Penn- ...lvania rowing standout, for a ...d medal in the double sculls. ...ade training for the Tel Aviv ...mpetition, Blieden spent many ...rly-morning hours here this ...mmer racing his 26 foot-long ...gle scull across Lake Bradford. These three to four minute ...ns brought surprised com- ...ts from at least one slow- ...lling fisherman who reported ...d he "saw this rowboat going ... about 50 miles an hour."

CAMPBELL STADIUM

There was more to Blieden's ...ining program than rigorous ...ing. Much of his conditioning ...rk was done, which he ac- ...mplished by running up and ...wn the stands at FSU's Camp- bell Stadium. "Leg conditioning is perhaps the most important thing in rowing," commented Blieden. "You're in a sliding seat and start each stroke with the legs."

A native of Michigan City, Ind. he was a distance runner in track as a high school student. He had never seen a rowing shell until he enrolled as a freshman at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he earned a bachelor's degree in physics in 1957.

Once he had been introduced to rowing, the sport became a part of his life. As an undergraduate at MIT, he rowed in eight-oar shells and was captain of the varsity crew in 1957.

ROWING CLUB

From MIT Blieden went to the University of Washington in Seattle, where he received a master's degree in physics in 1960. In Seattle, he continued his interest by a full length over a German in rowing and was instrumental competitor. in forming a rowing club, the Lake Washington Rowing Club. This club placed 16 of the 30 men on the 1960 U. S. Olympic rowing squad.

ACCELERATOR PROGRAM

While at Washington, Blieden competed in single and double sculls races, participated in the Olympic rowing trials at Syracuse, N. Y., in 1960, where he won a berth as a small-boat alternate for the U. S rowing team.

Blieden came to FSU last September because of his interest in the Tandem Van de Graaff accelerator program.

During the 1960 Olympic rowing championships in Rome, Blieden won a single-scull exhibition race

As for his future in rowing, Blieden's academic timetable of nuclear physics will get his full attention for the next few months. He is scheduled to give a paper on the study of "Direct Relations in Light Nuclei" at a November meeting of the American Physical Society in Chicago.

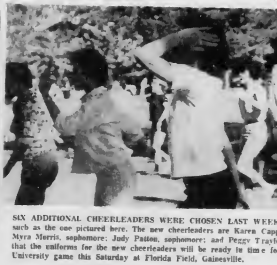
Distribution Of Photo I.D. Cards Set For Tomorrow

Photo I. D. cards will be distributed from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow in Westcott Auditorium to students who registered on or before Sept. 16.

The distribution areas will be in the order of the film number on the temporary I.D. cards. Students must turn in their temporary I.D. cards in order to receive the permanent ones.

If a student has lost the temporary card, since the new cards are cross-indexed he may still claim his I.D. card. However, a new $2.50 fee for replacement of the temporary or permanent card will be levied.



"We'd like as many students as possible to pick up their I.D. cards at that time tomorrow," said Dr. Murray Kenna, registrar. Distribution is also scheduled from 8 to 10 a.m. and from 3 to 4:30, 4:15 p.m. Thursday in Westcott Auditorium. After this period students may pick up their cards at the information desk in the Registrar's Office.

Cards for persons who registered late will be available by Oct. 16, said Dr. Kenna.

The cards are being issued for a full year, said Dr. Kenna, and will be validated during registration second semester.

"The I.D. cards are turning out very well for the first attempt to do it," he said. However, he added, "some of the pictures were pretty bad."

Cards with pictures that are blurred will be issued but the Registrar's Office "will take another picture so as to insure a recognizable photo," he said.

NASA Invests In FSU

Florida State University has been singled out by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the largest grant yet given by the Office of Life Sciences Programs.

To a university which only six days ago chiseled the six-inch proclamation of its former status as a "college for women" off the front of its administration building, a grant from a national organization of $784,000 is particularly significant.

Last week, when the offensive lettering finally came down, a co-ed quipped, "Is this the beginning of new official policies?" Her statement was more prophetic than she knew.

Since the institution became coeducational in 1947, FSU has been generally thought of as a poor spinster sister to the previously all-male school in Gainesville. Although FSU is located in the state capitol, it is U of F that has a law school. The Florida State journalism school was moved to Gainesville over violent protests of those who argued that nowhere else in the state could students observe first hand the governmental processes which constitute so much of the news.

Now, however, the shoe is on the other foot. An agency from outside of the state has not only recognized FSU's academic potential, but has made an investment in that potential which is expected to total two and one quarter million dollars within three years.

This investment is not merely a vote of confidence. It should serve as a notice to the entire state that FSU need no longer be considered inferior to its sister school. In the past, when we have claimed the title of "university," many have rentied with the "girls' school" taunt. Now we can cry all the way to the bank.

Whys Of Space Exploration

The House Committee on Science and Astronautics has answered a question that, even at this late date, a good many Americans are asking.

It goes something like this: Why are we spending all of this money on space exploration, and planning to put a man on the moon, when we need so many other things?"

A major reason, the Committee finds in a report, is that the exploration discovers "uses which our armed forces can make" of space. As well as it might be worded, that is blunt talk.

COINCIDENTALLY, two of our high military leaders said pretty much the same thing in papers delivered to the annual convention of the Air Force last week.

Gen. B. A. Schriever, chief of the Air Force systems command, said there must be an aerospace force able "to detect and counter any threat in that arena," meaning space.

And Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, chief of staff, forecast that "man will be in space, and I think there will be a military mission there also."

THERE WAS a time when there was considerable hope that nations could cooperate in space work, refuse to make a "race" of the explorations and to concentrate on peaceful purposes. But, alas! how long ago that now seems.

Which brings up another point the committee makes, with a light tone to that person its bluntness. And that is that we just have to realize what a dangerous time we are living in, accept it, and be governed accordingly.

An old pilot who wanted no part of the newfangled steamboat was told by Mark Twain, the committee recalled, that "when it's steamboat time, you steam."

The money being spent on space doesn't seem so important when the realities are embraced. This is space time, and we must explore it.

Hoover Warns Of Hysteria

It is ironical that last week J. Edgar Hoover, chief crime and communist buster in the United States, warned Americans against attacking communism in the same manner that New Englanders purged "witches" in Salem years ago.

For Mr. Hoover, hero of the screaming anticommunists, indicated its fans with his report to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

"The danger of indiscriminately alleging that someone is a Communist merely because his views on a particular issue happen to parallel the official (Communist) party line is obvious."

Hoover warned his admirers that they "would do well to recall a recent lesson from history. Both Hitler and Mussolini were against communism. However, it was by what they stood for, not against, that history has judged them."

Another of his statements is particularly applicable in this age when John Birchers and their like are screaming for the beheading of those who dare criticize any aspect of the American Society.

"The confusion which is thereby created helps the communists by diffusing the forces of their opponents."

In this age of book and classroom investigation, of overt forces designed to limit freedom of expression, and of name calling of anyone who might find that this country is not all that it might be, Hoover's words are matches in the dark.

Strong men—courageous Americans, like Mr. Hoover, must sanely guide the country in its hours of crisis. Leadership must not fall to those who hide in the corner, point a finger, and shout "unclean."

A strong America need not quake at every shadow of dissent.

'Po Albert

It looks like the University of Florida is going to follow FSU's lead for the first time in the history of the two schools. The Florida Alligator, the U of F student newspaper, reported on Sept. 22 that Bruce Bullock, student body president, is considering replacing Albert the Alligator, mascot, with a fountain.

It seems that University of Florida students last semester damaged his eye with a brick, cut his tail with a hatchet and splashed his back with paint. The Alligator stated that, after the summer vacation, "His right eye was opened, the paint no longer decorates his back, and his hatchet wound has healed."

The paper also stated, "Albert has been the victim of so much harsh treatment by students that many people throughout the state have come to Albert's defense by demanding his freedom."

Somebody should rescue Albert from these barbarians and give them something they respect—a beer keg. At least they know what to do with that.

Tribute To Dag Hammarskjold

RICHARD B. GRAY,
Assoc. Prof. of Government.

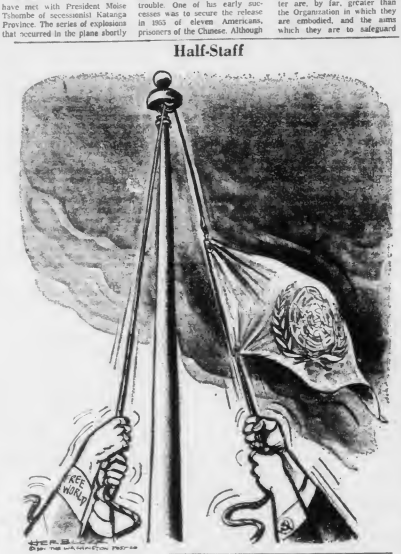
Dag Hammarskjold, the indefatigable Secretary-General of the United Nations, died in a violent plane crash last week while on a mission of peace in the Congo. Rumors of sabotage or hostile gunfire from a Katanga jet have added mystery to Hammarskjold's sudden decision against landing at Ndola in Northern Rhodesia, where he was to have met with President Moise Tshombe of the secessionist Katanga Province. The series of explosions that occurred in the plane shortly after the Secretary-General's departure from Leopoldville have led to speculation that he was the victim of a plot.

For eight years, since his unanimous election as Secretary-General in 1953 Dag Hammarskjold has traveled extensively in an effort through quiet diplomacy to eliminate serious zones of trouble. One of his early successes was to secure the release in 1955 of eleven Americans, prisoners of the Chinese. Although the Soviet Union refused him as a mediator in the Hungarian crisis in 1956, Great Britain, France, and Israel acceded to his demands for a cease-fire in their attack on Egypt in the same year. He then promptly organized the United Nations Emergency Force to keep the peace along the Egyptian-Israeli border. At this time he left no doubt as to his views on the role of the Secretary-General:

> The Principles of the Charter are, by far, greater than the Organization in which they are embodied, and the aims which they are to safeguard are holier than the policies of any single nation or people. As a servant of the Organization, the Secretary-General has the duty to maintain his usefulness by avoiding public stands on conflicts between Member Nations unless and until such an action might help to resolve the conflict. However, the discretion and impartiality thus imposed on the Secretary-General by the character of his immediate task may not degenerate into a policy of expediency. He must also be a servant of the principles of the Charter, and his aims must ultimately determine what for him is right and wrong. For that he must stand. A Secretary-General cannot serve on any other assumption than that—within the necessary limits of human frailty and honest differences of opinion—all Member Nations honor their pledge to observe all Articles of the Charter. He should also be able to assume that those organs which are charged with the task of upholding the Charter will be in the position to fulfill their task.

The bearing of which I have just said must be obvious to all without any elaboration from my side. Were the Members to consider that another view of the duties of the Secretary-General than the one here stated would better serve the interests of the Organization, it is their obvious right to act accordingly.

This forthright declaration of the Secretary-General's concept of his duties was rewarded when he was unanimously re-elected in 1957 for a second five-year term beginning in 1958. His penchant for dangerous assignments took him to Lebanon in 1958, to Southeast Asia, and to the Congo.



Soviet criticism of Hammarskjold's independent actions on behalf of peace occurred as early as 1958, but reached a high peak last year in the General Assembly when Khrushchev intemperately attacked the Secretary-General. The Soviet Premier demanded that the latter should be replaced by a three-man board (troika) consisting of a neutral, a representative of the East, and one from the West. The "tool of the colonialist" powers received a standing ovation from the neutralist nations when he calmly informed the Assembly that he would remain as Secretary-General as long as they wished.

Dag Hammarskjold was a son of Sweden's World War I Prime Minister. He was born July 29, 1905. By the time he was thirty-one he had become permanent Under-Secretary in the Ministry of Finance, and Chairman of the Board of the National Bank of Sweden, a post he held for seven years. When he was chosen head of the United Nations Secretariat in 1953, he was second-in-command of Sweden's Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

His close identification with the government of Sweden did not prevent him from seeing beyond the confines of a narrow nationalism. He was privileged to perceive, as many myopic individuals cannot, the vision of a world in which nations and peoples recognized the importance of cooperation rather than conflict. He sacrificed his life for that ideal.

The future of the United Nations will depend upon the success with which the Members decide upon a successor (or successors!). Would that the late Secretary-General's noble service in the cause of peace might be the guiding principle in that selection.

A-Tests Signal Red Flaw?

By ALLAN DERMOTT

When the Soviet Union resumed nuclear testing, the West gained a psychological and political victory. Soviet Premier Khrushchev knew this would happen when he made the decision to resume testing. Why would he have taken this step unless there was increasing pressure from the Kremlin to do so? The only answer is some worrisome weak point in the Soviet nuclear program. Khrushchev shouts about a 100-megaton H-bomb, but while Russia's strength cannot be denied, the testing shows more evidence of weakness than strength.

WHEN THE SOVIETS build something it is big. Their Sputniks were the size of "boxcars." Their rockets are so large that they can easily be spotted by a U-2 plane or reconnaissance satellite. As The Christian Science Monitor said on September 2, "Moscow may be aiming to develop missiles akin to the United States Minuteman, solid-fueled and capable of being earned rapidly practically anywhere by helicopter. For these, its heavy H-bomb may well be too big to serve as a warhead."

Another scientific opinion is that the Soviets do not have an effective, really mobile thermonuclear weapon. This could easily explain why Khrushchev was pressed into resuming testing of nuclear weapons.

IF RUSSIA IS behind in developing her nuclear weapons, why did she ever propose a test ban? The September 2, Monitor said, "The Soviets made what seemed a superb propaganda pitch in proposing a test moratorium—and did not expect the United States to take up the challenge or to hold on firmly for three long years.

"If this data be correct, it can be said that, due to former President Eisenhower and some of his scientific advisers, the United States took action which for well nigh three years kept the Soviet Union from apparently catching up with this country in thermonuclear weapons."

THE FACT THAT Moscow's bombs are putting radioactivity in the atmosphere greatly added to the psychological victory for the freedom-seeking nations. Also, because the United States is testing underground where no fallout can get in the atmosphere, an additional psychological and political victory came to the United States.

What will happen now? Will Moscow quit testing? We can be sure of one thing; if the Soviet Union stops nuclear testing, the world will soon forget it. It will all be in the past like other Soviet doings, such as the Hungarian massacre.

Lock Them Up At Night

TO THE EDITOR:

In the September 22 issue, the Flambeau reported the comments of Dean Warren at the Upperclass Women's Convocation to the effect: "She feels that the wearing of thermuda shorts results in the lowering of restraint which controls conduct." It is unfortunate that Miss Warren finds occasion for morality and conduct so simply related to the manner in which our coeds dress. The Dean of Women also reportedly stated: "that rules should be obeyed 'due to the confidence in

Writer Caps 'Bared Teeth'

TO THE EDITOR:

Your editorial, "Senate Bares Teeth" in the September 22 issue was indeed of great interest. It stated that our legislative branch has "at last put some teeth in its attendance rules." A little research would have uncovered the fact this so-called "new set of rules and procedures" actually consists of a bill passed in the spring of 1959.

The solons aren't "re-emphasizing" it—they are merely just considering its enforcement now that it has been in effect for two years.

As author of that 1959 bill I would like to say that prior to its revision it would have allowed only two absences a semester. This may be enlightening, but it seems a more obvious point would be that as the revised bill stands, a senator is allowed absence from one-third of the scheduled meetings.

In closing I would add that the only time I've witnessed a senator exhibiting anything near "bared teeth" is upon those thousands of posters on all election time.

our leaders who are concerned for our welfare and the administration feels that the exposure of the American way would in the administration is only fooling itself if it believes they will be needed when FSU is left behind. No one has the right to impose the particularly stilted standards of northern Florida or Victorian England upon the individuals who attend this university.

Perhaps the removal of the symbol of the good old days from the front of Westcott will foretell a change in these attitudes. Then we may begin to feel as much respect and confidence in our administration as they display in us.

Choose Carefully Before Pledging

A Note Before Pledging

Approximately 1,000 Florida State students have just completed one of the grulingest, cruelest institutions on any campus—rush.

It is an institution hated by both rushers and rushees. It involves miles of trudging, tiresome smiling and hand clasping, and much talk about nothing. The questions are down pat: so are the answers. But they must be parroted with a smile.

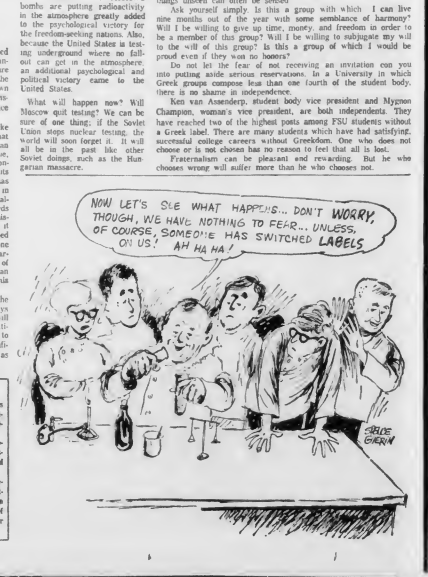
There is not time for genuine friendships to develop. There is no chance for either side to adequately pass judgment on the other. Choices are made on face value. "That guy dresses sharp," "That girl is cute" and "I like that smile." "I like the old so-and-so fraternity, they are real hell raisers." "The so-and-so's were real sweet to me."

And at the end of this phoniness, a rushee is expected to make a choice which will last a lifetime.

It is an almost impossible task. The absence of fraternalism, whether it be a sorority or fraternity, is the inner association of the members. It involves the continual day to day living in a close knit group. Personal feelings, irritations, and tempers of each member become factors. There is no way to measure these while shaking hands and smiling. During rush everything is sweetness and light.

Friendship is the core of a fraternal group and the only reason for it to exist. This can be measured by witnessing homecoming floats, intramural trophies, campus leaders, high scholastic claims, or loud parties.

If the problem of choosing a group to pledge confronts you, discount these outward claims to fame by either the chapter or the national for the moment.



Focus on the indivisable ties which bind the group. Examine the individuals closely to see if their deception is showing. Many times their true self will part in the choice than might for things unseen can often be sensed.

Ask yourself simply. Is this a group with which I can live nine months out of the year with some semblance of harmony? Will I be willing to give up time, money, and freedom in order to be a member of this group? Will I be willing to subjugate my will to the will of this group? Is this a group of which I would be proud even if they won no honors?

To one left the fear of not receiving an invitation can you into putting aside certain reservations. In a University in which Greek groups compose less than one fourth of the student body, there is no shame in independence.

Ken van Assenderp, student body vice president and Mygnon Champion, woman's vice president, are both independents. They have reached two of the highest posts among FSU students without a Greek label. There are many students which have had satisfying, successful college careers without Greekdom. One who does not choose or is not chosen has no reason to feel that all is lost.

Fraternalism can be pleasant and rewarding. But he who chooses wrong will suffer more than he who chooses not.

Seminoles Work Behind Closed Doors

The Seminoles have been working behind closed doors in preparation for their coming contest against the University of Florida Gators next Saturday. On Saturday the entire coaching staff and first team quarterbacks Eddie Feely and Ed Trancygier flew to Gainesville to observe the Gators in action.

Defense has been stressed in the drills, and a few new offensive plays may also appear in the intra-state rivalry. Buddy Bell Peterson did not single out any particular individuals but said that the offense showed up well.

LIBERTORE LEADS GATORS

While the tribe took a rest before its struggle with Florida, the Gators were downing the Clemson Tigers 21-17 under the leadership of Larry Libertore. Libertore was not expected to be up to par because he had injured his ankle a few days before the contest, but he provided the necessary spark to lead his team to a season opening win.

The little 138-pound Gator quarterback also pulled a couple of long passes out of his bag of tricks. Lindy Infante, a husky halfback provided the scoring punch and was credited with all three Gator touchdowns.

University of Florida Coach Ray Graves, who observed the Seminoles in action against the George Washington Colonials, predicted a tight contest between the two schools. "George Washington," he added, "moved the ball better than we thought they would against Florida State."

Other Florida State opponents also fared well over the weekend. George Washington, FSU's first opponent of the season, broke the Citadel's back 17-13. The Citadel will meet the tribe later in the year. Ole Miss, Mississippi Southern and Houston, all future Seminole opponents, posted wins over Arkansas, Arlington State, and Texas A and M, respectively.

Future Seminole opponents coming out on the short end of the scoring were Kentucky against Miami, VPI against Villanova, Georgia opposing Alabama, and Richmond facing Army.

Saturday's meeting will find the Seminoles trying to take their first football win against the Gators. Past years resulted in three tribe defeats, 21-7, 18-8, and 3-0. Last season's Gators had the best record in the history of the school with a 9-2 mark. Coach Ray Graves in his first year at UF also led his team to second place in the Southeastern Conference and to a Gator Bowl bid at Jacksonville.

The tribe was riddled with injuries in its season opener against George Washington University, but most of the Seminoles, except Gene Roberts and Fred Grimes, are supposed to see action against the Gators.

Today Ends Ticket Sales

Today is the last day for students to buy their tickets for the Florida State-University of Florida football game in Gainesville on Saturday.

Any full time university student may purchase one ticket for $1 and one date ticket for $4. The tickets will be on sale from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the Athletic Ticket Office in Tully Gymnasium.

"We have always been able to seat all the students who wanted to attend, and we will probably be able to this year," said the ticket office. Tickets for the FSU-Georgia Bulldog game are also on sale.

Decade Changes FSU's Stadium

By BILL VERIGAN
Flambeau Sports Editor

Florida State University football fans were given the honor of inaugurating a new section of 5,000 seats in Doak S. Campbell Stadium during the Seminole-George Washington contest on September 16. The newly opened pressbox, in use for the first time, also added a striking touch to the occasion with its four brightly glowing tiers. The new additions are a part of a long Campbell stadium history, which goes all the way back to 1950.

Although this is the only major change that Campbell Stadium has seen since late 1950, it may be a harbinger of future gridiron battles. Back in the embryonic stages when FSU was trying to hold its own against such football powers as Stetson, Cumberland, Troy State, and Jacksonville State, the Seminoles were using the facilities of Centennial Field.

NEW, NAMELESS STADIUM

On May 28, 1950 actual construction was begun on a new, but nameless, stadium which was to cost $250,000. $200,000 was raised by the sale of revenue bonds from the stadium's income, and $50,000 came from the sale of reserved seats in the stadium which were good for five years.

In the summer of 1960 the Board of Control saw fit to name the stadium after President Doak S. Campbell, who took the initiative in raising funds and arousing public interest in the idea of a stadium. At the 1950 homecoming game the official dedication ceremony took place.

The year 1950 was a turning point for Seminole rooters in more than one way since this not only marked the only undefeated, untied season in the history of Florida State, but also saw the completion of Doak S. Campbell Stadium. Although FSU had not yet graduated to the class of big time football, a new stadium slowly emerged as the setting for the first home football contest of the year when the Seminoles defeated the Randolph-Macon Yellow Jackets.

To facilitate the temporary lighting it was necessary for the dormitories to do without electricity during the first game. This step also guaranteed excellent student body attendance. The university engineer had suggested that the girls wear slacks to the game to prevent too many casualties from clambering over the uncompleted east stands, but this idea was vetoed by the dormitory authorities.

IMPRESSIVE PRESSBOX

The pressbox has four decks. The first of these called the President's Box, has plush seating for 90 persons and a lobby. The next deck houses two coaches and radio and television broadcasters. The third floor is reserved for newspaper writers. TV and movie cameras occupy the top story. The pressbox also has an elevator and heating.

Long ramps, leading up to the new section, have also been constructed. There are outlets for Western Union and snack bars in the pressbox. A small section also serves as an office to run off the official game statistics for the newsmen.

The new addition to Doak S. Campbell Stadium is another step in the direction of big time football at Florida State, but even more improvements are necessary admits Vaughn Mancha, FSU athletic director. The athletic department went into debt to create the new seating, but Mancha hopes to erect more seating facilities in the future. "Now is the time to build, and it's a shame that we can't afford more," commented the athletic director.

Golf Tryouts Set Wednesday

A meeting of all prospective members of the golf team will be held in room 214 in Tully Gymnasium at 4 p.m. tomorrow according to Coach Bill Odenal, varsity golf coach.

Fall practice sessions will be discussed at the meeting.

Last year's golf team racked up the best record in the school's history, and a good turnout is expected to be on hand for the meeting.

'Murals Set Cage Games

The Intramural Athletic Department announced that basketball will begin next Monday for all Dorm-Independent organizations. Fraternities start cage activities on Tuesday.

Intramural Director Keith Pitchford said that any dorm or independent group that wishes to enter any sports should contact the intramural office immediately. "At last week's meeting," said Pitchford, "there were quite a few dormitory and independent organizations present, but I believe there are more that would like to participate."

Coming activities on the schedule of events are tennis, swimming, golf, and horseshoes.

THE GIRL I LEFT BEHIND ME

It happens every day. A young man goes off to college, leaving his home town sweetheart with vows of eternal love, and then he finds that he has outgrown her. What, in such cases, is the honorable thing to do?

Well sir, you can do what Rock Sigafoos did.

When Rock left Cut and Shoot, Tex., he said to his sweetheart, a simple country lass named Tess d' Urbeville, "My dear, though I am far away in college, I will love you always. I will never look at another girl. If I do, may my eyeballs parch and wither, may my viscera writhe like adders, may the moths get my new tweed jacket."

Then he clutched Tess to his bosom and planted a final kiss upon her fragrant young skull and went away, meaning with all his heart to be faithful.

But on the very first day of college he met a cool named Fats Morgana, a girl of such sophistication, such poise, such savoir-faire as Rock had never beheld. She spoke knowingly of Franz Kafka, she hummed Mozart, she smoked Marlboros.

"You can hit me in the stomach if you like."

Now, Rock didn't know Franz Kafka from Pancho Villa, or Mozart from James K. Polk, but Marlboros he knew full well. He knew that anyone who smoked Marlboros was modern and advanced and as studded with brains as a ham with cloves. Good sense tells you that you can't beat Marlboro's exclusive selectrate filter, and you never could beat Marlboro's fine flavor. This Rock knew.

So all day he followed Fats around campus and listened to her talk about Franz Kafka and Mozart in the evening he went back to the dormitory and found this letter from his home town sweetheart Tess:

Dear Rock,

U exits had a keen time yesterday. We went down to the pond and caught some frogs. I caught the most of anybody. Then we skinned them and had lots of eating stuff like that. Well, I must close now because I got to watermelon the fence

Your friend,
Tess

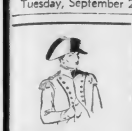
P.S.—I can do my Hula Hoop 5,000 times.

Well sir, Rock thought about Tess and then he thought about Fats and then a great sadness fell upon him. Suddenly he knew he had outgrown young, innocent Tess; his heart now belonged to smart, sophisticated Fats.

Rock, being above all things honorable, returned forthwith to his home town and walked up to Tess and looked her in the eye and said manfully, "I do not love you any more. I love a girl named Fats Morgana. You can hit me in the stomach with all your might if you like."

"That's okay, hey," said Tess amiably. "I don't love you neither. I found a new beau."

"What is his name?" asked Rock.



"Franz Kafka," said Tess.

"A splendid fellow," said Rock and shook Tess's hand, and they have remained good friends to this day. In fact, Rock and Fats often double-date with Franz and Tess and have heaps of fun. Franz can do the Hula Hoop 8,000 times.

Gators, Seminoles Clash In Gainesville Tomorrow

LARRY LIBEROTORE, U Of F

Lethal Larry Libertore and elusive Eddie Feely drive their respective football vehicles towards the state's most heated gridiron collision in Florida Field tomorrow.

Feely pilots the underdog Florida State Seminoles as they attempt to do what no FSU eleven has done since 1901—knock off the Florida Gators.

It promises to be a rough task for the tribe.

The Gators kicked off the 1961 campaign with an impressive 21-17 victory over the tough Clemson Tigers.

The most impressive demonstration of the afternoon was Libertore's passing and running. The 138-pound Miami junior pitched for 95 yards on three tosses. One of these was good for the Gator's initial touchdown.

Libertore picked up 66 yards in 11 carries, using his bread-and-butter quarterback option play for most of the yardage.

Another Miamian, Lindy Infante, is a prominent prong in the Gator attack. The junior halfback scored all three UF touchdowns. Infante snagged a Libertore missile for the first score, and scored the second two on short runs.

Libertore set up the last two Gator tallys with a 25 yard run to the 8 and a 43 yard pass to Bob Hoover just short of the Clemson goal.

Hoover, another halfback, racked up the most total yardage next to Libertore. The Jacksonville junior Fallout' Nucleomitaphobia Is It Justified?

By JOHN M. JERKE
Flambeau Feature Writer
EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Jerke, a student in the Physics Dept., has agreed to present a series on the dangers and difficulties connected with nuclear fall-out. The FLAMBEAU feels that in the face of resumed nuclear testing, such a series is particularly pertinent. This is the first of three articles.

Nucleomitaphoba — presently one of man's most prevalent fears — has been officially recognized by the American Medical Association. This phobia of atomic energy and all its works has been generally known long before the Association's decision. Certainly the ruthless of atomic energy can weigh its destructive possibilities but at present it poses a threat to drastically change man's environment and himself.

A. Gib DeBusk of the FSU Biology Department has been quick to point out the effects of nuclear fallout on man and at the same time to create a concept of the complete extinction of man or the production of inferior creatures. Therefore, of the results imposed by a thermo-nuclear war, those affecting a living man are among the most important.

METABOLISM

Following such a nuclear war man can expect to receive radiation dosages which he would ordinarily acquire over a 30 year period. In addition to destroying many of living tissue, this radiation on strike at the cell's basic process — metabolism. For here the poison can cause the cell to divide in a fashion necessary for survival.

Dr. DeBusk stressed that it would be so much a question of new pathogenic diseases arising these surviving cells but rather an accumulative effect. The cell would mutate and such cells would then be communicated from one generation to another.

It is certain that some organisms existing will be affected by this increased radiation level due to what degree still remains to be known, however, as long as the change is slow, the living organism can adapt itself and continue to exist. With the swiftness of a nuclear holocaust, many organisms will thus find themselves unable to immediately cope with the change. One of these will probably be man. He might find himself emerging from his shelter with the problem of acquiring newly different foodstuffs.

Dr. DeBusk explained that any cells which man might store for use after a nuclear attack could prove to be ineffectual in the face of new living conditions brought on by the increased radiation level. Not as pressing as the problem of foodstuffs will be man's treatment."

water supply. Many underground sources will be unaltered by radiation and those storage areas on the surface quickly lead themselves to decontamination.

ECOLOGICAL PHASE

Dr. DeBusk also pointed out that the ecological phase of the earth will be altered. Existing varieties of plants and animals will be unable to survive under this radiation and yet others will grow even stronger. All living things if they are to survive will be forced to live a considerable length of time with the new level of radiation and adapt themselves whenever necessary.

Dr. DeBusk and others feel that it is logical to suppose that certain areas of the earth will be affected less by fallout than others, but sooner or later this radiation in the atmosphere will find its way over the entire surface. However, due to less intensity in some regions and the size of the human populace, man will survive somewhere and through evolution adapt himself to meet new requirements for existence.

It will be the cost of such adaptation that can be a great difficulty to overcome. Man will be confronted with more deaths at the embryonic stage, deaths at an earlier age and less births proportionately besides the possible unpleasantness of physical and mental abnormalities.

NUCLEAR TESTS

As most other geneticists, Dr. DeBusk is concerned over the reported rise in the background radiation resulting from the Soviet Union's new series of nuclear tests. Any such increase, even though it remains small at present, over the spontaneous radiation which we experience under conditions without such tests can easily alter the structures and therefore functions of living organisms.

There yet remain scores of other sociological, political, and biological questions raised by this nuclear threat and most likely many of these will go unanswered, but, as Dr. DeBusk remarked, "Homo Sapiens will survive and adapt himself through evolution to his radically changed environment."

Game Routes Recommended By Fla. Patrol

The map below shows the three routes to Gainesville suggested by Sergeant Tony Graham, Security Officer of The Florida Highway Patrol. These routes are recommended by Sgt. Graham to alleviate the difficulties anticipated from the mass exodus of cars converging upon Gainesville this weekend for the FSU-Florida game.

The first suggested route is by way of U.S. highway 90 to Lake City. From Lake City, U.S. 441 via High Springs is recommended.

The second suggested route is by way of U.S. 27 to Perry, Branford, and High Springs. At High Springs, U.S. 441 intersects to complete the route to Gainesville.

The third route is by way of U.S. 27 to Perry and U.S. 27A, U.S. 19 and U.S. 90 out of Perry to Fannin Springs at the Suwanee River. Florida 26 intersects at Fannin Springs and goes to Gainesville via Trenton and Newberry.

According to Sgt. Graham, the first two routes are better for the driver not familiar with the Gainesville area. He described U.S. 441 as a good, four-lane highway that goes right by the campus in Gainesville.

The third route is suggested for the driver who is acquainted with the Gainesville area, since the highway goes through the city of Gainesville before reaching the stadium.

Construction May Begin On New Union In Spring

Optimistically, Florida State University students can expect to see the beginning of construction on the new student union building in the spring, reports Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students.

Architects preliminary drawings are now completed on the four new buildings which will make up the student union complex. The present Student Center will be incorporated into this complex as the fifth building.

A portion of the money for these new buildings, which will cost from two and one half to three million dollars, has been accumulated by FSU through savings from student fees.

The remainder is to be supplied by the federal government through the Student Housing Loan Fund. This loan has already been earmarked for FSU by the Atlanta office but still must be cleared through Washington.

As the plans now stand, the new buildings will be located in much the same area as is presently used for the parking lot of the Student Center.

COURTYARD

All buildings will be connected by covered walkways and will center around a type of courtyard, which promises to be "an outstanding beauty spot" on campus, said Dean Oglesby.

The main building of the complex will be a three story rectangular construction directly facing Call St. The first floor of this building provides for rental or commercial-type areas. The second floor contains a browsing library, quiet rooms, music listening rooms, as well as the union administration offices. The floor will also have a large lounge, which will be the main congregating point for all students.

The third floor will house all student government offices as well as the offices of all student publications. Completion of the union will eliminate the use of Longmire as a student building.

The present Student Center will be incorporated into the complex, by converting it completely to a post office and book store and eliminating the eating area.

A new dining area is to be provided by a second building. This building will be located back of the three story building and will be connected to it by escalator.

Two cafeterias accommodating 275 persons apiece as well as a snack bar providing space for 200 persons will be on the ground floor. On the second story, there will be a ball room and several smaller private dining rooms. This will provide space for several banquets and meetings to be held at the same time.

To the left of the new student center will be the games area, including a small bowling alley and billiards as well as a small snack area.

AUDITORIUM

The fourth building of the complex is a new auditorium which will sit four hundred persons. This is to be air conditioned and equipped adequately to present many of the programs and

All business and economics majors are invited to attend. Rushees are requested to wear coats and ties.

Nikolaidi Directs First Guild Opera

A native of Greece, Miss Elena Nikolaidi, will direct this year's first Opera Guild production, Orpheus and Euridice, which is based on a Greek legend.

The Florida State University professor of voice has appeared as Orpheus in the opera many times, including performances with the Vienna Opera and the Greek Music Festival at the Herodes Atticus Theatre in Athens.

She has appeared both here and abroad in leading roles with the Metropolitan, American and Vienna State Operas and has appeared with such orchestras as the New York Philharmonic and the Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles and St. Louis Symphonies.

COMBINED EFFORTS

The FSU production will be presented through the combined efforts of the University Opera Guild, the University Symphony Theatre Dance group and the University Theatre Guild.

The role of Orpheus will be played by Joy Davidson, a graduate student in the School of Music. Elton Donaldson and Patsy Sue McCarty will play Euridice and Amor, respectively.

The three principle roles are sung by women since the role of Orpheus is sung in mezzo-soprano voice, in keeping with the 18th Century tradition.

Orpheus and Euridice by Gluck, was first performed in 1762, in Vienna and is one of numerous operas based on the Orpheus legend. It is the earliest opera that still appears frequently in the great opera houses of the world.

The story concerns the legendary Thracian musician Orpheus who, grieved by the death of his wife, Euridice, so moved the gods by his singing that they allowed him to enter the Underworld in search of his beloved. There on the condition, however, that he must not look at her until they were back on Earth.

ORPHEUS REUNITED

When Orpheus is reunited with Euridice, they begin their journey back to Earth. Euridice does not understand why Orpheus will not look at her and longs to return to the peace of Olympus. Orpheus, unable to bear his grief, takes her in his arms, he thinks he has indeed lost her, but the god Amor in pity descends and once more restores Euridice.

Status Of Cheering Squad In Question

By TONI DICARLO
Asst. Assoc. Editor

The status of the newly-elected cheerleaders was thrown into serious doubt Wednesday when Student Senate postponed action on a bill to increase the cheering squad from 10 to 12.

Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, who moved for the postponement, stated, "I'm not convinced that we need more cheerleaders, and I'm not convinced that this 'the larger squad' is going to operate without additional expenses. The expense is my primary concern. Considering all the other financial needs of this institution, I am not necessarily convinced that the money should be spent on additional cheerleaders."

SPOKE STRONGLY

Carl Kuttler, men's vice president, spoke strongly against the bill, which was introduced by Junior Class Sen. Jeanie Ferlita, Senior Class Sen. Joedy Smith and Sophomore Class Sen. Dale Marler. Sen. Johnny Smith, junior class senator, joined with Kuttler in opposition of the increase.

Miss Ferlita, speaking for the bill said it helped school spirit. "The average high school has from 10 to 12 cheerleaders, and we have fa rmore people than they."

Kuttler opened his debate against the bill with the statement, "School spirit does not necessarily consist of "hip, hip hoorays". We need less cheering and we'll have more response when cheers are led."

He asked the senators to remember that people go to football games primarily to watch action on the field, and he cited the instance during the George Washington game when the "Garnet-Gold" cheer was started as the Seminoles were two yards away from a touchdown. He commented, "A little better discretion could be used on the part of the cheerleaders."

Kuttler also pointed out that the extra cheerleaders had already been chosen without the consent of Senate, which has the duty of legislating any change in the squad's size. "This," he commented, "is no way to do business. They have already elected them and now are asking our approval."

When Jocdy Smith pressed for an immediate vote to settle the question before the FSU-Utah game tomorrow, Miss Champion retorted, "I wonder is it matters what we do since they've already been selected."

The bill, which will come up again next week, also includes a clause for changing the male-female ratio from five and five to "a minimum of two men and a minimum of six women on the squad."

SUMMER COUNCIL

Jim White, chairman of Summer Council this past summer, pledged his "complete cooperation" to the Senate committee, headed by Fred Dialus, which is to investigate the rumors of mismanagement in Summer Council and suggest revisions in the organization.

White said he is preparing a complete report on the summer government and added, "As far as I am concerned, this report is open to the entire student body."

In another action, Senate passed a resolution congratulating FSU's Distinguished Professor of the year, Dr. Wiley L. Housewright, on his appointment from U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk to the U. S. National Commission for the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

SG Passes NASA Grant Resolution

Student Senate Wenesday passed unanimously the following resolution introduced by Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, concerning the grant for establishment of an institute of space biosciences:

WHEREAS: The Florida State University recently received an Initial grant of $748,000 from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration;

WHEREAS: It is anticipated that the same amount of support may be provided annually for further projects of this Institute;

WHEREAS: The provision of this grant has enabled the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's recognition of the unique quality and potential of the Florida State University in spite of certain financial handicaps;

BE IT RESOLVED: That the Student Senate of the Florida State University express our appreciation to the NASA;

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED: That Student Senate shall express its appreciation to the Board of Control of the State of Florida for approval of this grant.

REW Chairman Appointed By Blackwell

Jan Dougherty has been appointed student chairman of Religious Emphasis Week by President Gordon W. Blackwell.

The third annual Religious Emphasis observance will be Feb. 18 through 21.

Faculty chairman for the week will be Dr. Robert Lawton, associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Other members of the steering committee are: Dr. Glover Rogers, professor of engineering science, vice chairman; Dr. Raymond Schultz, professor of higher education, faculty member-at-large; Chaplain John Carey; Jim Fredericks, president of the Student Inter-Faith Council; and student representatives, Susie Workizer and Ken Van Assenderp.

About 20 other students and additional faculty members will be cooperating in planning the week's activities.

"This is the third year that Florida State University has been privileged to have outstanding speakers in the field of religious thought come to our campus and share with us in formal and informal situations the basic ideas and principles which direct their lives," said Miss Dougherty.

"This is not a week of complacency but a week of challenge which each student owes to himself to meet," she added.

Speakers for the week will address student and local congregations, lead informal discussions and be available for private conferences.

Why More Cheerers?

After a considerable amount of debate Wednesday, Senate decided to spend another week considering whether or not to raise the number of cheerleaders from 10 to 12, including alternates. On the surface, this may seem a simple enough question, but there are actually several important factors involved.

Money is one of the main issues. Proponents of the bill arruged that the larger squad can operate on the amount of money already budgeted for cheerleaders. If this is true, it would seem that the cheering squad has been overbudgeted in the past and should be cut in the future.

On the other hand, if those backing the increase intend to push for more money, they should first consider the relative worth of cheerleaders and decide if two extra squad members will produce several hundred dollars worth of school spirit. If money is to be invested in esprit de corps, perhaps an improved speaker system would yield more returns.

Another issue must also be considered. Even if Senate decides to pass the bill, and with it place the financial burden on future legislators, there is still an important principle which has been violated.

Wayne Barnes, head cheerleader, has usurped the Senate's legislative duty. Senate is the only group on campus which has the right to increase the size of the cheering squad, yet Barnes has already held tryouts and selected the additional cheerleaders. Furthermore no one seems to have told the contestants that two of them do not have legal standing. If Senate defeats the bill, two members will have to be dropped from the squad. This should have been taken into consideration before the new members were announced.

The cheerleading selections committee is supposed to include, besides the head cheerleader, three other students and three faculty members. Among the faculty members shall be, according to the statutes, the director of student activities, and representatives of the dean of students and the athletic director.

Barnes, as head cheerleader and chairman of the selections committee, gave his committee members instructions as to scoring procedures, but they apparently were not consulted about the number of contestants to be selected.

If Senate quietly accepts this illegal action, they are setting a dangerous precedent. Future organizations may try the same thing, logically expecting Senate to approve their actions also.

The chairman of the committee should be officially reprimanded, regardless of the fate of the bill to legalize his proposal.

Regarding the bill itself, and all future bills, we recommend that the legislators consider carefully the wors of a former student body officer:

"A bill should not be passed merely because there are no serious objections to it. A bill should be passed only if there are definite, positive reasons for it." TD

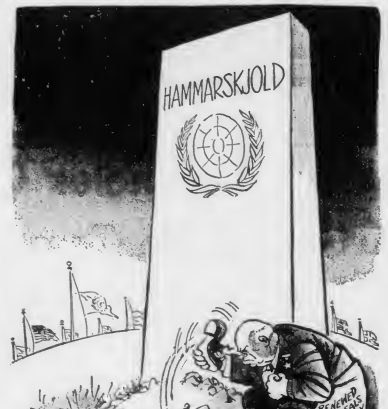
Land Of Disciples

Once the United States had pride, self-confidence and spunk. Those days appear to be gone for good.

ONCE THE NATION fought to preserve a union that would transcend regionalism. It fought later for principles that mean nothing when translated from hearts and minds into words.

In those periods the United States was capable of being "home" to internal divisions — rural-urban division!, and politically opposed groups which really had their differences in depth beyond a headline writer's imagination.

NOW THE HEALTHY air of frank opposition has given away to the fine art of labeling; to the clans, cults and circles which abound on every level of national life. Everybody who is anybody has disciples. The disciples are capable of no more than clever parroting of whichever line is popular at the hour.



Each group of "specialists" is busily engaged in closing themselves away from everyone else. The arty set gets more arty and their vitality suffers. Writers write for other writers; painters paint for the adoring circle of easel droppers with whom they associate. The patter boys in any field go on developing a language that only they can "dig." Sociologists, militarists, and the "newspeak" public official are all guilty. They use awesome jargons that merely bore the public. Then when they feel rejected, they go rummaging through the memoirs of faceless, nameless "experts" and dig out more jabberwocky.

ALL THIS LEADS to the "better Red than dead" Americans. They are ready to accept any so-called "norm" in their pseudo-density. They go on calling for more summit talks, are willing to drop out of the painful arms race that is necessary lest they soon learn for certain whether they had rather be dead than Red or vice versa. They seek out anyone of divergent opinion and lay the blemishes of the world at the opponent's feet.

These "intellectuals" who would build Panaces overnight if the foolish public would but disappear are those who have brought down suspicion on the real intellectuals of the world. Horn rim glasses and a balding crewcut or chalky make-up and other worldly catter over teabags do not constitute minds that have the answers.

Coma Goes 'Gator Giggin'

By LESLIE POWELL

Coma charged into the Soda Shop wearing loin cloth and accessories. Great dashs of pokeberry juice stained her face in the time honored lines of war paint. She threw herself into a rickety straightback chair donated to the Soda Shop refugees by the Stupid Center. Her imitation Sammy Semmole spear clattered to the floor; the fall broke it open and her switchblade plopped open. Over her shoulder she carried a binocular case. You could hear the binoculars splashing around inside.

"You obviously are going to..." "HATE FLORIDA," she yelled, startling Tooralora Goldfarb so badly that poor Toora bit the tines off her fork.

"Now Coma," Toora said, "You can't go down there and be offensive ..."

"Offensive? Nobody is more offensive than Florida. Who can out offense the Gainesville nerds?"

"FURTHER, those nasty people down there spend all their time molesting poor innocent alligators. They've behaved so badly that the federal governmemt had to nationalize the wildlife in Florida. Look at The National Wildlife Refuge at St. Marks. Established for no reason but to save the helpless animals from the Gainesville terror."

Aside to Toora, Coma whispered in calliope tones: "Gotta play on the emotions of the animal loving element. Just say poor innocent helpless animals and half the campus will arm itself for battle. The other half will circulate a petition demanding fresh straw be shipped to the G'ville stadium pen."

TURNING AGAIN to the cup rattlers at large, Coma yelled. "Hate Florida. You may as well start now. You know they won't play fair. They'll run a team of Senators in on us, or maybe a passel of representatives, and every point FSU makes will cost us a few hundred thousand at budget time.

"Or maybe they'll even have the game halted to see if our team is padding their shoulders with Max Lerner textbooks. Maybe they'll shake our cheerleaders down to see if their megaphones are lined with old Orange Peels."

TURNING TO TOORA again, Coma steamwhistled: "What do 'gators eat besides people?"

Noting Toora's stricken expression, Coma said, "No, No, Goldfarb, not them, I mean four legged 'gators like pore old Albert. Maybe we can slip him a platoon of Pershing Rifles and he'll rust internally."

With that, Coma flounced to the door Across the seat of her loin cloth was emblazoned the sentiment: Sit On 'Em, Seminoles!

Will Prayer Or Introspection Get Peace?

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

We have just completed "Prayer for Peace" week in the United States. All over the nation, people were kneeling, burning incense, and praying that God would somehow bring peace. That there should be such a week, officially proclaimed by our President, indicates to me that we may not be very far advanced over the African savages who employ a witch doctor to chase out evil spirits or to bring luck to their enemies.

IF THERE IS a God who takes a personal interest in the affairs of men, and some people argue that there is not, then surely He would tell men to look into their own hearts if they would seek peace. As the preamble to the charter of the UNESCO says, "Wars begin in the minds of men, and it is in the minds of men that the means of peace must be evolved."

The words to the preamble are no mere platitudes. A study of the school history textbooks used during the thirties in Poland and Germany, for example, leads one to the inescapable conclusion that war was inevitable between these two nations, for whole generations were being taught to hate. Whatever the economic or political causes of war, men will not fight until a "war psychosis" has been created. Creation of a war psychosis involves a sustained campaign of lies, half-truths and propaganda about "the enemy," after which anything which could be termed a provocative act will be sufficient to crystallize pro-war sentiment. A long anti-German campaign in the United States, followed by the sinking of the Lusitania, was sufficient in World War I. Persons who didn't go along with the war hysteria were ruthlessly persecuted as "pro-German." The Spanish American War was manufactured by the Hearst Press.

THE MOST FRIGHTENING thing about world events during the past year is that war psychoses are being created in the two leading nations of the world.

In both the United States and the USSR, the majority of the people are fed lies and propaganda about the other nation. Khrushchev, Kennedy and the slaughters of public opinion have fanned the flames of hatred and suspicion, have accelerated the disastrous arms race, and have sped the entire world toward the brink of war. How ironic, therefore, that Kennedy should ask the nation to pray for peace while at the same time he accuses the American people for possible war, and Khrushchev should likewise endorse a Pugwash plea for peace while setting off his thirteenth nuclear explosion in three weeks.

Anything Goes

Boomtown Tallahassee

By DOUG SMITH

Over WFSU-FM the other night, I heard a question: What is the industrial future of Tallahassee?

If one stops to think, it isn't so fantastic, really. After all, Tallahassee is near great centers of commerce such as Sopchoppy and Blountstown.

Although the city will be affected most, that could get into the act, too. It has been rumored that a well-known brewer is bidding for Westcott; a fine idea since there are several rooms which serve no useful purpose at present, and would make excellent storage rooms for the new brew.

Some of the more progressive townspeople have suggested that the library be put to better use than it now serves by being converted into a battery acid factory. Since everybody drives, and nobody around here in his right minds reads much, the conversion would serve the many instead of the few. Isn't that democratic?

On the town side, perhaps one of the most encouraging reports is that the state capitol would become a large publishing house, specializing in red-blooded stories, white pamphlets, blue books, and black lists.

A large columned house on a quiet street will turn out land mines to guard the approaches

FSU-UF Duel No Mere Rivalry

IN ORDER TO REALIZE the full significance of Saturday's impending clash, one must remove the FSU-UF duel from the ranks of the mere athletic rivalries.

For the competition between the two state universities permeates every area of endeavor on either campus.

Only a few years ago, the University of Florida was the unchallengeable top do in the state. It received the cream of the legislature's devotion in the form of physical and fiscal aid.

But 1947 changed all that and newly-ordained FSU began its race for the high academic stratosphere.

Of course, the former girls' school's bid for funds and favors began putting the bite on ole UF. It responded from the price with a howl. But the pain only increased.

SINCE THAT time, FSU has rocked forward so that in many areas it leads the state.

Scientifically, the recent federal grant points to FSU leadership in this area. Also in education, government, psychology, criminology, banking science, music, and many others. FSU can claim to compare with UF.

FSU has made dynamic gains in the field of student leadership, as SUSGA conventions graphically point out. FSU Student Government leaders rank among the best in the Southeast. This summer a Florida representative visited FSU to inquire about student publications. UF publications have been beset by student frauds, while FSU students have managed their finances professionally.

BUT THERE ARE two areas in which Florida State University can not compare.

One is in the affection of the legislature, for senators refer to their "glorious" UF when making any sort of university appropriations.

The other is football.

And strangely enough, the two have a connection. The people of the state and their representatives in the capitol did not begin speaking of the two in the same breath until they met on the gridiron.

These same people will not begin recognizing the areas in which FSU is supreme until they have proven themselves supreme on the turf.

Wrong as they are in doing this, they do. FSU will still be second in the eyes of the voting public until the big orange Gator has been felled.

The Geni

Three Or Seven

By BOB FOSS

It was a dark, cloudy night as the moon shone brightly over Lake Ella — where sat our heroine and hero.

CHARACTERS: Herman Shmelts—A freshman magotohydrodynamics major. Four feet 2 inches tall with red hair and freckles. Hermione is more about girls that is Hermione Zis—Herman's girl. Six feet 8 inches tall. having 17 strands of bleached blonde hair. Hermione being a graduate major in general educations means nothing, she's a sweet girl.

▲ Hirnbold the geni—Big Humboldt always appears with his three arms crossed across his massive hairy chest with a tatto of mother square in the middle. Humboldt, however, being different from other genis is wearing a New York yankees baseball cap.

AS HERMIENE and Herman stand in passionate embrace facing opposite directions Herman grasps Hermiene's small balding head violently as if to convey some animalistic instinct. Hermione turns and looks into Herman's eye and smiles with all her four teeth showing in the moonlight, she opens her mouth as if to whisper some sweet loving into Herman's ear.

Hermiene: Dearest, most passionate lovable one, when was the Magna Carta signed?

Herman: Gadzooks and three or seven golly darns peach blossom, here it it is the night before our big football game with the University of Florida and all you think about is some ridiculous course you're taking. Aren't you ashamed?

Hermiene Deeply.

Herman: Holy cow and six or eight shucks, we outta be out riding your Go-Kart all over the campus yelling "To hell with Florida" or hanging crocipators—

Hermiene. Alligators, honeycomb.

Herman: Yeah, well anyway we outta be hanging 'em in effigy or something else truly collegiate.

Hermiene: Great!

Herman: Shucks, excuse me Hermiene, you outta heard some of the things that my ole man—

Hermiene: Father, dearest.

Herman: Yeah! Well anyway Hermiene, why don't we have any school spirit?

Hermiene: Shucks, I don't know, Hey Herman! I found it, I found it!

Herman: Found what?

Hermiene: Here it was all the time in the back of my R.O.T.C. book.

Herman: For god sakes Hermiene, what?

Hermiene: The Magna Carta, it was signed in June, 1215.

Herman: SOOOO what! Herman Herman drawes back as if to hit his beloved, accidentally brushing her sorority pin at which time there is a blinding flash and a huge puff of smoke as the geni, Humboldt appears in a superarrest.

Humboldt: I'm Humboldt the geni of the Sigma Fi Nothing sorority pin.

Herman: Hermiene? Hermiene? For god sakes climb down outta that tree, it's just a friendly geni.

Hermiene: Oh!

Humboldt: Master, we are granted any wish you desire.

Herman: Get serious! All those other guys always got three.

Humboldt: Ya man, that I know, but I'm running low on them this season as I gotta spread 'em thin. Dig?

Herman: Yeah, I guess.

Humboldt: Like man, what's your wish, Dobie Gillis is on soon and I don't want to miss Maynard.

Herman: Geni, I wish that tomorrow at the Florida game FSU would be the loudest they have ever been. Give 'em all some school spirit geni.

Humboldt: Your wish is my command and all that other geni stuff. (With this there is a big flash and Humboldt is gone.)

Herman: You boob, you could have controlled the world.

Herman: Silence woman. Mark my words, it'll be worth it.

The next day was wonderful for Hermiene and Herman. Everybody was hanging effigies in effigy and yelling "To hell with Florida" and all other things exuberant college students do before the big game Needless to say FSU came home victorious and Herman and Hermiene lived happily ever after.

"Give 'em Hell, FSU."

Freshmen Class Office Candidates Express Their Sentiments In Letters

Vice President

Hamilton

As a candidate for Vice President I can not promise or give anything, except my upmost (sic) ability.

There are a few subjects that I wish to be exposed and critically analyzed: (1) equalization of class expenditures, (2) better understanding of amount of personal belonging (sic), and (3) more freshman events.

As the past I have tried to do my best, and I shall continue to do the same.

JAMES (JIMMY) HAMILTON

Henderson

I feel that with experienced and qualified leadership, our class can realize success never before experienced.

I am a candidate for the office of Freshman Class Vice-President and feel that I have the necessary experience and qualifications to represent you well.

Therefore I hope when you cast your vote next week you will seriously consider my desire and qualifications.

SHERMAN HENDERSON

McEwan

As Freshmen we have a job to do. A good student government is the basis for a strong, unified class. We want to be remembered as the Freshman Class that had leaders and participants in all phases of campus life. I think that I can help the class accomplish this task. When you cast your ballot on Tuesday, I hope you will remember to "Back Mac" for Vice-President.

CHRIS "MAC" McEWAN

President

Darnell

I would like to take this opportunity to say "hello" to each of my fellow classmates and to urge each of you to vote in the primary election on Tuesday, Oct. 3.

It has been said that here at Florida State University only one student in every three is willing to give a few minutes to cast a ballot. This blunder should not exist and will not prevail, if we, the Freshman Class, will vote.

We have heard said in the past three weeks . . . that the Freshman Class plays a big role in building Seminole spirit. Well, the Freshman Class can play another important role in FSU campus life, if everyone of us turn out and vote in the primary election next Tuesday.

FRANKLIN DARNELL

Dawson

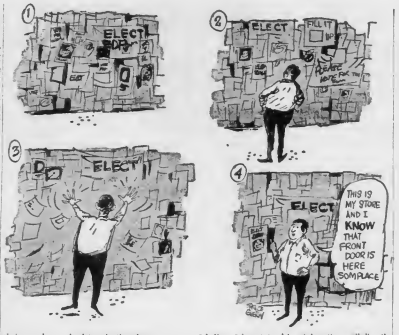
Tuesday, October 3, our class elections will be held. These are certainly important to you as freshmen because the officers you choose will be in charge of all freshmen activities for the remainder of this year.

There are many candidates for each office and each will tell you how well qualified he or she is for his post. But it seemes (sic) to me that what we did while we were in high school doesn't really matter. We are now in a completely different situation; we are in college. For this reason, it would be foolish to ask you to vote for my experience. But I can say that I am no stranger to this political game.

I don't plan any impossible reforms such as later dorm curfews or cars for freshmen. I do promise that, if elected, I will carry out the duties of the office that I will hold.

Next Tuesday I sincerely hope that we are in accord when it comes to casting our vote for president. If we are, I hope that we stay that way the rest of the year.

BOB DAWSON



Hester

I feel that we have the makings of a fine freshman class, and if I'm elected president I along with my colleagues (sic) will try to bring us together into one unit. This unit, the Freshman Class shall and will excel scholastically and socially beyond all goals ever attempted by the classes before us.

We won't be looked down upon because we're Freshmen, everyone will admire us. We'll prove all statistics about drinking, and cheating wrong in our "United Freshman Class." To do this everyone must pitch in and help, and I sincerely hope that when election day comes around you'll vote Joe Hester President of your Freshman class.

"Freshmen are the backbone of a successful University, through their works and determination comes the future."

C. J. HESTER, JR.

Kerrigan

Fellow Freshmen: Realizing that the 1961-62 freshman class has possibly the greatest potential of any class in the history of Florida State University, I would be both proud and honored to serve as your president.

Poetic phrases and dynamic promises are not the answers to questions concerning our class projects. We must resolve to do and not to say what is best for our class and school. We must desire to act positively instead of observing apathetically in areas where we can be of service to Florida State University.

It is my desire to serve as president of our freshman class. Your support would be greatly appreciated.

BOB KERRIGAN

Smith

My decision to run for President of the Freshman Class came after much deliberation. I feel that I have the qualifications and most of all, the desire to fulfill all obligations of which I would be subjected to.

Deep inside there has to be a burning desire which craves the chance to serve. I believe I have this desire, and I hope you think so too.

I cannot tell you how to vote, that is your decision. I only wish that you will give each candidate equal consideration. Which ever way you decide, build up the incentive to share in your government and vote.

HORACE SMITH

Senate

Casterton

Being able to write a letter to the Flambeau gives each candidate a chance to explain his reasons for his desire to participate in Student Government.

I have a deep interest in the Student Government and I hope to have the opportunity by being elected to show my abilities or disabilities. As your senator, I will act as your personal representative and welcome your criticism and suggestions on how to further improve your Student Government.

I ask not what FSU can do for me, but what can I do for FSU.

MICHAEL P. CASTERTON

DeLaVergne

You have realized that we are all a part of Florida State University. We are all going to witness a truly thrilling experience during our stay here at the university.

Just as some of us are interested in giving up our time in athletics or some other form of outside interests, I am a devotee to student government. Please remember that we are a part of FSU, and what it stands for. Make your choice and trust that the shadows of our student government may never be less.

TED DELAVERGNE

Meyer

This week you will elect fellow students to represent and serve you through student government. Those you elect should be students who are qualified to lead our class to the goals which we will establish.

I have served on student councils for six years before coming to FSU and this has enabled me to see the organization of student governments.

The student government will be only as effective as its members so when you are voting for (a) woman senator consider my qualifications.

BETSY MEYER

Orth

No doubt one of the most consequential decisions we shall make during our entire career as a student this year, will be to decide who shall represent us in our Student Government. The choice is ours alone to make and whoever we choose to voice our opinions, I believe I have stand in vital matters will directly affect the pride we shall have in our school, its traditions and its goals.

Allow me, therefore, to urge you to keep me, Marsha Orth, in mind as the girl who is anxious to serve and represent you in the Freshman Women's Senate.

Vote for Marsha Orth. She represents "good government!"

MARSHA ORTH

Spoonts

First of all, should I be elected to this esteemed position (Freshman Senator) I can (faithfully promise to support only those measures that are also supported by the majority of the Freshman Class. Secondly I shall violently oppose any measure not designed for the good of the Freshman Class as a whole. I believe in true representative (sic) in that I feel the senator should get the opinion of the group he represents before casting his or her ballot.

I have been promised the help and guidance of many upperclassmen who have had experience in the student government at FSU. I feel that their assistance, combined with the trust and support of the Freshman Class will enable me to competently fulfill the obligations of this office.

JAMES H. SPOONTS

Vaughn

I take this opportunity to formally announce my candidacy for the office of Freshman Senator.

My name is Jim Vaughan. I am a Tallahassee boy and have grown up knowing the Florida State University. I feel I am qualified to serve you as your Senator. It is important that our class select capable and conscientious persons.

Your vote will be an important one.

Consider all the candidates. Go to the polls and elect Jim Vaughan as a Freshman Senator.

If elected, I will represent the class of '65 to the best of my ability.

Thank you for your vote and support.

JIM VAUGHAN

to the new industrial giant of the South. Must keep the foreigners from interfering with our business, you know.

What with all the new executives in Tallahassee, fine homes must be available to them. It just so happens that there is a very elite section of older homes called Smoky Hollow near the capitol. The houses are basically sound and well-kept, having been owned by prominent Tallahasseans for generations. All the houses need is another coat of white wash.

A top executive can't be expected to work all the time. He needs a place to relax with his friends. Some of the larger companies have already purchased several buildings from a local group. After some redecorating, the Green Steeple Club on the hill will open. The gala opening will feature a cocktail party, dinner, swimming in the large glassed-in indoor pool, and gaming in the casino for those who don't care to get their feet wet.

When the Industrial Revolution comes to Tallahassee, it should be quite interesting. So stick around, the show is about to begin.

Frosh Speak

TO THE EDITOR:

Dear Freshmen — Are you at a loss for words these first few days in class" Are you afraid to speak for fear of saying something wrong" This summer I have studied one of our great national institutions and have gleaned these bits of philosophical wisdom which are sure to make a hit in their appropriate courses.

For instance, if you are taking Oriental History, you might say: From the exotic mount, from the land where thirst was born . . . Others are for ROTC: Can he clean a garbage can? If he can't no-one can. Home Economics: Washing machines everywhere are humming a new tune, Most anywhere. If you enjoy smoking, you'll really love Pepsodent toothpaste. Debate: Who put the men in menthol smoking? Crimenology (sic): (To be spoken with a fake Irish accent) I'm the boy in blue; I'm the rust arrester. Chemistry: It's got hexa-hexa-hexachlorophene. English 101: You haven't gotta scrub it. Geology: Old Gold straights are blue the big, bold hand of nature. And Marriage: Don't let romance fade, fade, fade away. Charlie gets them with a whistle, wink,' and wildroot: it gets them every time. And if you believe in marriage, you'll believe in Fresh Cream Deodorant.

In addition, any of these sentences can be used in a business class, as they were originated by some of the best paid and well thought of men in industry.

CARL ROSENBUSH, JR.

Suntan U.

TO THE EDITOR:

One of our neighbor schools to the south has recently (gone) from one extreme to the other. I refer to the University of Miami . . . "Suntan U."

Outlawed were fraternity weekends, necking in parked cars on campus and bermuda shorts that came more than 1 w. inches above the knee. Also Jackie Kennedy haircuts . . . Maybe the Dean of Women is a sore loser Republican!

FRANK AQUENO

Vis A Vis

A Christian Nation?

By AP ZYLSTRA

The United States is not a Christian country. This realization begins to dawn upon many students shortly after they enter a university. Sixty per cent of the people are, according to statistics, churchgoers. This includes the Christmas-and-New Year Christians, the social churchgoers and the Unitarians. The small percentage left is certainly not influential enough to put the label "Christian" on the US.

INDIRECTLY students learn from some of their professors that Christianity is anachronistic and academically suicidal. On face value the history of the Christian church is rather poor and even today the Bible is sometimes misused to advocate white supremacy (South Africa; Southern U. S.), backwardness in cultural fields and dogmatic hair-splitting. This last fact is evident through the diversity of churches. Realizing this, many former churchgoers now avoid the church and look for a "liberal" way of salvation and a humanistic self-redemption. Those who do so have probably never been church goers and now throw away the child with the bath water.

The former negative remarks may be counteracted by the fact that the Church is still alive in the churches; perhaps in some more than others. After all it isn't an organizational chemitmer the Christian makes, but an individual one.

THE CHRISTIAN aims to work and worship in the churches as a member of the Church. Our relation to God is personal and individual, through Christ and not through an organization The church is not our mediator. This does not mean, however, that the Christian should be aloof from the church. It is in the church that he meets the Church and his criticism of the members is a criticism of his lack of participation.

Man is a social being; the church is the place for worship together. In the church the Christian as an active citizen of the Kingdom that surpasses national and temporal boundaries. There he can work for unity of the churches, for cultural frontier work. Frontier work is a faith which is as contemporary.

THE FACT that the Episcopalian Church recently announced that it is looking for unity with other churches is laudatory. The remark of one of her bishops that unity is impossible because of liturgical difference is a challenge.

The greatest obstacle in the way of unity is trad-tional prejudice. The greatest aid on the road to unity is the Apostolic Creed, and evangelical foundation. If the churches showed more evidence of the Church, their witness to the world would be profound. Criticism from without is secular, but if it comes from within it can move mountains.

Civil Defense

Four Civil Defense briefings for students will be held next week in Westcott Auditorium, announced Dean of students R. R. Oglesby.

The meetings will begin at 7 p.m. Freshmen will meet Monday; sophomores, Wednesday; juniors, Friday; and seniors and graduates, Monday, Oct. 9.

Students will be given information concerning fallout shelters, emergency procedures and other things related to possible disasters.

Clash Tomorrow

ground out 40 yards in 8 attempts, including a 21 yard jaunt.

The Gators are weaker in the middle of the line than in last year's 3-0 win. They list nc lettermen in the left guard slot, one at the left tackle spot, one at right tackle, one at center, and two at right guard.

Counted on heavily in the forward wall by Coach Ray Graves will be Jim Beaver, 226 lbs. Captain, and Bruce Culpepper, 225-lbs. center. Culpepper is a native Tallahasseean who goes to FSU for the summer session.

Florida State will be at less than full strength when they invade Gainesville.

Particularly missed will be fullback Gene Roberts, who Coach Bill Peterson ruled definitely out of Saturday's tilt.

Also missing will be Jerry Bruner and Frank Defrancesco, a pair of right guards, Jack Forehand, a left halfback, and Doug Messer. field goal specialist who converted against George Washington.

Roberts, who was counted on Gator running game to supply up-the-middle punch before the season began, injured his knee on his first carry from scrimmage and may be out for the remainder of the campaign.

The Seminoles did, however, receive some good news. Fred Grimes, a defensive end, will be ready for action against the Gators.

Eddie Feeley, diminutive tribe signal caller, will be the chief Seminole threat.

Feeley led in total yardage against GW with 52 yards rushing and 66 yards through the air. The junior quarterback threw three times completing six.

Favorite Feely targets in the first encounter were end Jim Daniel, who caught three for 43 yards, and halfback Tom Hillabrand, who caught two for 28 yards. Marion Roberts also caught two, gaining 13 yards.

Fullback Paul Andrews was top ground gainer in the first clash. He totaled 56 yards on 11 carries for a 5.1 average.

Coach Bill Peterson will be counting on tough tackles like Steve Klesius, Tom Slicker, Mike Sinovich, Don Donatelli, and Joe Varbinski to stem the strong Feely's alternate, Ed Trancygier will also see heavy action. The 207 lbs. quarterback completed two out of seven passes for 30 yards and carried three times for 19 yards.

This will be the fourth FSU-UF encounter since the modern series was instituted in 1958. A team from the Tallahassee campus defeated the Gators in 1901, but none of the modern FSU teams have been able to turn the trick.

In the opening tilt in 1958, which was played by order of the state legislature, Bob Renn grabbed the opening kickoff and ran it back 73 yards. Florida had too much power, however, and manhandled the Seminoles 21-7.

The 1959 clash pitted a hurler against the Gators. Star fullback Fred Pickard before the game and Tony Romeo, end, was on the doubtful list. FSU played over their heads but Florida won 18-8.

Last year's 3-0 battle was the closest yet. Tallahassee's Billy Cash booted a field goal for Florida to provide the margin of victory.

On The Receiving End

THE SEMINOLES' NUMBER ONE PASS RECEIVERS. Tom Hillabrand and Jim Daniel, prepare for tomorrow's game with the University of Florida. In the opening game against George Washington Hillabrand grabbed two passes and Daniel came down with the pigskin three times.

Frosh Go After Tenth Straight Win

Freshman Eleven Faces Mississippi Southern

By SHIRLEY HARDSON

Florida State's freshman team kicks off its 1961 season tomorrow against Mississippi Southern in Columbus, Georgia.

The Baby Seminoles will be striking out for its third straight undefeated season under the leadership of Coach Charlie LaPradd. The 1961 team boasts one of the biggest and fastest teams fielded at FSU.

"This team has the best potential of any freshman team we've had," LaPradd stated recently. That statement is reinforced when the statistics are shown. The average freshman outweighs and is taller than the average varsity player.

LAPRADD

Coach LaPradd has plenty of respect for the Mississippi Southerners. As he said earlier this season, "They always field a tough bunch of boys at Southern! They like to play hard nosed football and so do we."

Sources from Mississippi report the freshman team is to be one of the better squads in recent years. The Southerners are reputed to be "hard-hitters."

Loaded with talent this season, FSU has recruited some of the most sought high school backs in the country.

A three-man Georgia contingent dominates the starting Florida State backfield, and one holds down the center line spot. Quarterback Ed Pritchett, weighing in at 175, from Decatur; fullback Avery Sumner, tipping the scales at 213, from Adel; and halfback Ralph Norton, weighing 180, from Thomasville complete the backfield. Steve Slay, touching 196 will start at center. Slay is from Atlanta.

Two other halfbacks will be in the spotlight Saturday night. Alternating will be Earl Hawkins, a 6-5 200 pounder and Jim Loftin, a 6-1, 176 pounder. Hawkins was one of the country's most sought after high school backs last year. Loftin was an All-Florida candidate last season.

Dale Twitchell, 6-1, weighing 196, starts at left end while Terry Garvin, 5-10, weighing 194, holds the right end position. Woody Benson, 6-1, weighing 222 and Jim Arnold, 6-1, weighing 227, are right and left tackle. Jack Shinholser, 6-2, weighing 202, and Joe Parrish, 6-2, weighing 189, guard the team on the right and left.

Last year the freshman team ran up 141 yards for a 20.2 average in its triumphs over other frosh teams. Mississippi Southern is the lone returnee to the frosh schedule this season. Last year the Southerners were defeated 26-12. Classified as a major team last season, they are classed as a minor team in 1961.

P.E. Exemption Tests Planned

A physical education exemption examination will be given Oct. 7 and 14 at 8 a.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Dr. Mary Alexander, of the Woman's Physical Education Dept., has requested students to sign up for these examinations before 5 p.m. Oct. 1 in her office or in the main office of the woman's gymnasium.

The same written tests will be given both days, with a skills test following.

The exemption tests will be given for archery, badminton, bait and fly casting, men's and womens basketball, bowling, canoeing, dance (folk, square, modern, and ballroom), field hockey, golf, gymnastics, soccer, softball, speedboat, swimming, tennis, touch football, and volleyball.

Coaches Comment On Intrastate Clash

Coach Bill Peterson of Florida State and the University of Florida Conch Ray Graves have been awaiting the intrastate battle tomorrow with evident interest.

Although neither coach wished to predict a win for his team, both were hopeful that his team would come out on top.

Peterson said in an interview, "Florida's got another great football team this year. There's no doubt about that. Libertore is great."

Graves, UF's head foothall coach, said he expected his players to be in "the right frame of mind" for the game He stated that he thought that FSU was good this year. "I believe that Florida State has as much depth as we do this year I didn't think that last year," he concluded.

PETERSON

He commented on the similar types of defense and said that both clubs had improved since the meeting. Graves stated that the FSU-UF rivalry was good for both schools moneywise, but he concluded, "It is not the biggest game on our schedule."

After the Seminoles' opening win over the George Washington Colonials Peterson said he was well pleased. "We made some mistakes, but those are to be expected in any early season game." he stated. "There were some disappointments," he said. "We drove real well, but we couldn't score. There were some gaping holes in our defense too."

The University of Florida was not as impressed about the 1961 Seminoles' debut. "George Washington moved the ball a lot better than we expected," commented Graves. "We are counting on a real close game, though," he said.

Quarterbacks Spell Difference Saturday

The Gator-Seminole battle could easily be decided by the abilities of two schools' highly regarded quarterback duos. Eddie Feely and Ed Trancygier of Florida State will be matched with the task of out-performing Florida's Larry Libertore and Bobby Dodd, Jr.

All four of the field generals are juniors. Feely and Libertore are both small in comparison to their teammates, but have already earned "Back of the Week" honors from the Florida State Sportswriters' Association. Fee-

Feely

Trancygier

ly grabbed the title in FSU's first contest against George Washington, and Libertore was tapped in UF's season opener against Clemson.

The two miniature quarterbacks lead the passing attacks for their schools. Feely completed six out of nine tosses in his first game, and Libertore passed for three completions in six tries. Dodd and Trancygier can also whip the ball through the air with deadly accuracy. Last season Dodd's aerials broke the University of Florida's school record for percentage of completions with 30 hits out of 55 attempts. Trancygier's bullet shots went for 30 yards in two completions in FSU's game with George Washington.

Last year Feely hit 58 percent of his passes and figures to be a top offensive threat on this season's air minded tribe. Trancygier had 27 successes in 96 tries for 539 yards during the 1960 season.

Libertore, nicknamed L'il Lightnin', dazzled sports writers and grabbed the public's attention for his performances last year. The little Mussman, weighing only 138 pounds, was elected Sophomore of the Year in the Southeastern Conference and named Most Valuable Player in the Gator Bowl as a sophomore. Although he is not noted for his passing ability, the Gator signal-caller completed three out of six passes in the opening game with one of the completions going for a touchdown.

Speed is an important asset for Feely and Libertore. The UF quarterback, a deadly broken field runner, has the power through the middle of the line to cover his evasive tactics around the end and off tackle. Libertore carried for a net of 420 yards and averaged 3.5 yards per carry last year. Against Clemson he piled up 66 yards in 11 runs for a six yard average.

Feely romped for a net gain of 171 yards in 90 carries in his first season at Florida State. The 160-pound Gainesville native carried an All-American honorable mention in his college football debut. In the first game he racked up 53 yards in 12 carries.

Trancygier, the larger of the two veteran field generals, supplied 217 yards on 55 jaunts last year and opened this season with 19 yards on three rushes.

Dodd was noted mainly for his passing ability last year, but the 173-pound signal caller netted 55 yards in 41 carries. Last week saw the second string field general net only nine yards in three rushes.

Peace Corps Accepts Five

Five Florida State University students have been accepted for training in the Peace Corps program proposed by President Kennedy to aid foreign relations.

Chaplain John Carey, University liaison officer for the Peace Corps, said the FSU students included Malinda DuBose, accepted to work with a West Indies prefect. Pat Bellamy for a Ghana teaching project; Raymond McEachern for a teaching project in the Philippines; and Al Ulmer, for a project in Nigeria. The elfith student who had been accepted, Jan Pearce, had to decline her appointment for personal reasons.

Miss DuBose received her bachelor of science in nursing in 1958, and has served as a visiting nurse and clinical instructor in Miami. Miss Bellamy, graduate student, was as instructor in the FSU University School. She holds a BA from the University of California, and is now in California in training.

McEachern received his BA in education from FSU last year, and has been teaching in Clearwater. Ulmer holds a bachelor's and master's degree from FSU.

Chaplain Carey said that national representatives from the Peace Corps will be on campus sometime this October to interview interested students. Qualifying exams will be given three times this fall. Oct. 7, Nov. 20, and Dec. 1, at the post office downtown. Students who wish to know about the Peace Corps or who want applications for the program should see Chaplain Carey.

performances now held in Westcott Auditorium and Conradi Theatre.

This new center will meet a utilitarian and functional purpose as well as being a center for student enjoyment and relaxation, said Dean Oglesby.

In providing new dining areas on the west side of the campus, we are meeting a "desperate need for students to have adequate food services," says the dean. With the addition of a new Science Bldg., a new Math-Meteorology Bldg., as well as the proposed men's dorm, the need for food services on the west side of the campus cannot possibly be met by the present facilities," he explained.

However, we should not underplay the wonderful contribution the center will be to the beauty and culture of the campus, Dean Oglesby added. This is "not just a big country club" he says. The unioo in preseot university life has become the common cultural center. It is a very important and vital nerve center of the university," he concluded.

FSU-Ga. Tickets Now On Sale

Tickets for the Florida State-University of Georgia football game are now on sale for the general public at the Athletic Ticket Office.

The office announced that there are only 3,000 tickets remaining for the contest, and they are on sale for $5.

Marching Chiefs Perform At Game

Tomorrow in Gainesville, regardless of the outcome of the game, the thousands of fans gathered in Florida Field will probably be in store for an added thrill when the Marching Chiefs of Florida State University take the field during the pre-game and halftime periods.

At full strength of 170, the Marching Chiefs will leave early tomorrow morning to arrive in Gainesville in time for a scheduled rehearsal with the University of Florida Gator Band.

COMBINED PERFORMANCE

Both bands will take the field for a combined performance before the game. Richard Bowles, director of the Gator Band, will direct "On the Square March" by Panella, after which Dr. Manley Whitcomb will direct the "Star Spangled Banner."

Led by Drum Major Bennett Shelfer, the FSU band will take the fans on a "Sentimental Journey" by way of ship. The first stop will be a legendary South Pacific island, where Jo Ann Beazley's majorettes will perform under the palms to "You and I."

Intricate drills requiring the alertness and skill of every member of a band have thrilled untold football crowds for untold years. To the tune of "This Old Man," the Marching Chiefs will demonstrate precision maneuvers that took weeks to perfect.

GARNET AND GOLD

Back for their third year are the Garnet and Gold Girls, Beverly Calvert and Janice Freeman. Their twirling routine has been set to the strains of "Indian Summer" for tomorrow's performance. Both Miss Calvert and Miss Freeman have won numerous contests and honors in the twirling field. Since returning to school this fall, they have appeared on both radio and television.

As a finale, the Marching Chiefs will combine with the Gator Band to salute both schools with the "Alma Mater" and "Dixie."

Season tickets for the Film Club's features are available in Westcott Ticket Office at $3. There are no single admissions.

Bond Issue May Net FSU Four Buildings

Issuance of the proposed $15 million in revenue certificates will insure construction of three and probably four buildings at Florida State University.

On the priority list as approved by the Legislature, the Board of Education and the Board of Control are the following buildings: a $525,000 addition to the Psychology Bldg.; $226,000 for the completion of the Nuclear Bldg.; a $1,784,000 first phase of the Physics Bldg.; and $700,000 toward the construction of a men's dormitory. The remainder of the funds for the dormitory will be obtained through a loan from the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency.

TENTATIVE PLANS

The Board of Control is currently going ahead with tentative plans on how the bond issue would be repaid, according to the board's finance officer Bill Hendricks. Once the plans are completed the bond issue must be validated in Circuit Court before they are sold. The board has asked the cabinet to release $410,000 in planning funds so construction can begin when the bonds are sold.

Attorney General Richard Ervin has ruled the Florida Development Commission has the authority to issue the bonds. However, bonds to finance the men's dormatory may be issued by the Board of Control. Whether it may be included in the major bond issue or in a separate one has not yet been decided, since it is only to be partially financed by the state.

The bond issue method of financing the buildings has been advanced by Governor C. Farris Bryant as a method for the university system to obtain early in the biennium, rather than waiting to the end of the period, to learn whether or not state funds will be available for construction.

If the bond issue is passed, that revenue will be the only money to come to the universities from the state for construction for the next two years. The universities must wait until the next session of the Legislature to request other needed buildings, said Vice President Milton Carothers.

About $11 million worth of buildings were requested by FSU at this session of the Legislature.

FSU Rejoices Over 3-3 Tie

ROY BICKFORD, PLAYER OF THE GAME, . . . he gigged the 'Gators hard.

"I'm Proud To Death-" Bill Peterson

By BEN SHARP
Flambean Editor

Coach Bill Peterson propped his feet on his desk, clasp his brawny hands behind his head, leaned back, stared at the ceiling and contemplated his team's two-day old 3-3 tie with the Florida Gators.

He savored each word.

"I'm proud to death of our men," he said simply. "I thought it was the greatest effort I'd seen in college football.

"I think we've come into our own. You're never satisfied with a tie though. We had a good chance to win and didn't.

A phone call interrupted and again it was the same enthusiastic tale.

"Hello Jim, I sure am proud of these kids. You know Florida's got something going for them, playing on their home field. And we had three guys who'd never been in a ball game together. A new combination."

No Discipline Required Says Loucks

"This is the fourth consecutive year that I have been able to return to my office on Monday morning without having to take disciplinary action against any student as a result of the Florida game," said Dean of Men Donald Loucks.

The deam commented that the 400-man post-game scrimmage after the 3-3 tie between FSU and UofF was probably "just a spontaneous movement on the part of the students."

He added, that, although he was opposed to mob action, he felt that perhaps the demonstration released some tension that would have been exhibited later with far more disastrous results. Dean Loucks also noted that the students had yielded the captured goal posts to police without violence, and that no students had been arrested.

WOODEN POSTS?

"I trust that they will have to have more police around the goal posts in the future or else build them of wood and expect them to go, as many other schools do," he said.

'Last Lecture'

Dr. Parker Will Explain The Collegial Executive

"Florida's Collegial Executive" will be Dr. Dainy Parker's topic for the first lecture of Mortar Board's "Last Lecture Series," at six Thursday night.

The associate professor of government will speak at 8 p.m. in Odeum Music Hall. Dr. Parker will explain the operation of the "cabinet" system and present a critique of its operation.

"I've chosen this as my topic because Florida government is my specialty and the executive is my center of interest in research in state government," she said. Dr. Parker teaches the department courses in Florida and state government.

The lecture will include "a discussion of the plural executive found in Florida in the presence of the governor and six elected administrative officers, popularly known as the cabinet, who together make up innumerable executive boards, which bear the burden of the administration of the state," Dr. Parker explained.

WOMEN IN POLITICS

She believes that women as a group should take a greater interest in politics and government, especially here in Florida where they are a majority group. Women could serve on school boards, on city commissions and in other phases of city government.

In Florida, where the State Legislature meets for only 60 days every two years it would even be feasible for more women to serve in the Legislature. "I think women could make a notable contribution in these fields, especially on county commissions," she added.

Dr. Parker received her bachelor's degree in history from Florida State College for Women in 1927, and then taught at Leon County High School for several years. In 1940 she received her master of arts in history and in 1950 her Ph D. in political science, both from the University of Virginia. She joined the FSCW faculty in 1942.

MEMBER HONORARIES

While a student at FSCW she became a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi, academic honoraries; Phi Alpha Theta, history honorary; Pi Sigma Alpha, political science honorary; Sigma Delta Pi, Spanish honorary; and Mortar Board, senior women's honorary. She was later editor of Mortar Board Quarterly, director of expansion for Mortar Board and is presently national chairman of the Mortar Board fellowship committee. In July she was the banquet speaker at the tri-annual national meeting of Mortar Board at Oklahoma State University.

She is currently president of the Phi Beta Kappa chapter at Florida State University and was a delegate to the national triannual council of Phi Beta Kappa in Salt Lake City this year.

Also as a student at FSCW she was editor of the student literary magazine, Distaff, and was an editorial columnist for the Flambeau. Her column was a commentary on world politics called "Beyond the College Gates."

Dr. Parker is a member of the Association of University Women, the American Political Science Association and the Tallahassee Woman's Club. In 1954 she served on former Governor LeRoy Collins' Citizens Committee on Personnel.

She has written articles which have appeared in the Florida Historical Society Journal and Apalache (Tallahassee Historical Society Journal).

While caught in the traffic jam trying to leave Florida Field in Gainesville after the game Saturday, a coed began eaves-dropping to catch some of the comments uttered by the disgruntled Florida fans.

One tall, blond, irritated Gator, apparently a former classmate of FSU quarter-back Ed Feely, moaned, " * * * ! All I can think of is that day, back in algebra class, when I looks at him and I says, 'Feely,' I says, 'Let's us go to FSU.' * * * ! And he went and I didn't. * * * "

Withdrawal Rate Retards Temporary Housing Moves

By JOAN ABBOTT
Flambean News Editor

About half of the original 100 women students living in temporary housing have not yet been moved to permanent quarters.

Withdrawals have been coming in "very slowly," said Miss Edith McCollum, housing director. Generally there is a large number of withdrawals either in October or November, so those students living in temporary housing can expect to be moved well before the end of the first semester, she said.

Temporary quarters have been set up in one of Cawthon Hall's two large recreation rooms, in the lounges in Florida Hall and in the two end lounges on the fifth floor wing of Landis.

The conditions of the temporary housing are described to the women prior to their arrival on campus, she said, as well as the length of time that they may expect to remain in the temporary quarters. The response to the temporary situation varies, she added. "Many of these people who are in temporary assignments don't want to be moved—they dont' want to leave their friends," the housing director commented.

"However, there are some who don't like it—ever," she added. "Some never make an adjustment."

NEW MEN'S DORM

It appears that the use of temporary quarters may continue indefinitely. Although the University is expected to receive funds for the construction of a new men's dormitory within the next two years or sooner if the pending $15 million bond issue is approved. There is no prospect for a new women's dormitory until after the next session of the State Legislature, two years from now.

Temporary housing has been a rather permanent aspect of the housing problem for at least 20 years, according to Miss McCollum.

This method of housing some women students until regular dormitory space is available is preferable to placing a third woman in the regular rooms, said Miss McCollum.

This practice was tried a number of years ago. The result was that the women were most unhappy in the temporary situation vary, she said. The rooms are simply not set up for three, she explained. The University of Florida has tried placing a third person in a room also. However, it is generally felt that it is better for the late applicants to suffer any discomfort rather than make those who applied early suffer also, she said.

"I don't condone them (the temporary rooms) and I don't recommend them," she commented.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS

The Housing Office has had "girls who are living off campus coming in begging to move into temporary housing," Miss McCollum reported. This is primarily because of the transportation problems involved in living off campus, she explained. Of those living in temporary housing, "I've had only one student ask to move off campus," she added.

Although the University has been allowing more women to live off campus, they have been having difficulty in finding suitable living quarters. Regulations originally required that women living off campus live with a relative or close friend. But because of the housing shortage the University has been "lenient" and has been accepting friends of friends," she said.

People are generally "more willing to take on boys, because boys do not require the same amount of attention," she said. They can just "hand a boy a key," she added. While a woman will want to wash and iron there, use the parlor and will be home a great deal more than a male student, she commented.

"I think men are happier in off campus housing than women," the housing director said.

Identification Made Easy

O.K., the much heralded photo identification cards are distributed now. The guffaws have dwindled to an occasional titter and people are beginning to ask "aside from now knowing what we look like to each other, what are they good for?"

FOR ONE THING, photo ID's are much handier for the individual student than the bulky student activities ticket books and the old, ragged, much-punched ID cards, which seemed somehow to collect semester after semester in billfolds.

For another, the current ID pictures are expected to improve from year to year as the kinks are ironed out of the registration procedures. Sombody might even think to have the photos made as soon as the fee is paid — that way the students might look a little less harried and hurried.

ONE MAJOR DRAWBACK to the new ID's is that so many people are not going to be easily identifiable from the photos. There might be some not unexpected friction where the securing of tickets is concerned if resenblance is stressed too much. Now and then it might not be a bad idea if the ticket office assumed the University was accurate in the spelling of names and the arranging of the student number digits.

It won't be a bad idea for students with poor ID photos to have other unmistakable identification handy when they intend presenting the student ID for any reason. Driver's license, military ID's social security cards or other identification that is normally carried about in pockets and handbags might be a ticket-saver.

CHEATERS, PRACTICED or preparing, should note and abide by the rules concerning the ID card. People borrowing or loaning ID's can expect to lose their ID eventually. Those who falsify the IBM cards which have to be filled out to secure tickets at the Westcott office do so with the knowledge that the ticket office will check on all ticket holders after each event. Disciplinary action will be taken by the University when an offender is uncovered.

LP

More Than Called For

Senate will be called upon tomorrow to make a decision about the proposal to add two extra cheerleaders to the FSU squad.

In Gainesville Saturday, extra girls did cheer, although they weren't dressed in regular cheerleading uniforms. The fact that they weren't uniformed glosses the picture over somewhat, but the fact remains that head cheerleader Wayne Barnes allowed more cheerleaders to appear than the statutes call for.

CHOOSING TOO MANY cheerleaders before Senate ratified the change might be considered an honest mistake, but actually using them is open defiance.

We can appreciate the feelings of the girls involved and we can easily sympathize with their desire to cheer at the big game. However, Barnes has stepped far beyond his jurisdiction. He should have considered the possible consequences before choosing the additional girls, and he certainly had no right to let them appear when they may be eliminated by an act of Senate tomorrow.

BARNES SHOULD BE CALLED before the legislators to give an account of his action. They certainly deserve an explanation of his conduct before they make any decision.

Friday, the Flambeau recommended that the head cheerleader be officially censured. If he cannot justify his behavior, we will be forced to initiate about the procedure for impeaching a head cheerleader.

No governing body can afford to have its statutes neglected, even through carelessness. In the case of flagrant, willful disobedience, more will show the determination required may be necessary. We hope Senate will show the determination required to make its rulings respected.

IN REGARD TO THE BILL ITSELF, no one has yet presented evidence that more cheerleaders are needed. It is doubtful if any reasonable person will claim that the additional cheerleaders accounted for the tremendous school spirit shown at the Florida game.

A larger cheering squad will inevitably lead to requests for more money, and no one is more aware of this than the Senate which does the budgeting.

Flight Of The Fine Arts

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

On Monday of this week, Governor Bryant was in Tampa at the groundbreaking of a new $1.6 million Humanities Building at the University of South Florida. Not to be outdone, the University of Florida in Gainesville recently unveiled plans for an impressive new building for the School of Architecture and Fine Arts.

MEANWHILE, at Florida State, the plight of the Fine Arts daily becomes more grave. It appears that our sister institutions are going to leave us far behind in this important field.

Florida State already lags behind most universities throughout the nation in the field of fine arts. We have no school of architecture. Our Art Department is small. Painting is taught in the attic of the Westcott Building; sculpture is in the basement of the dining hall. The classes often consist largely of future advertising men, elementary teachers, and others with little interest in art as such. Although the faculty contains some capable individuals it is impossible to attract any artists of true national stature to a town such as Tallahassee, or at least not at the salaries paid by Florida State.

BUT IF THE FACULTY and the facilities are somewhat less than outstanding the students are hopeless. The high out-of-state tuition has resulted in largely confining registration throughout the university to the dull-witted products of Florida's own high schools, where art is considered a useless frill if it is offered at all.

The students majoring in the fine arts are themselves shockingly lacking in the creative spirit. The students not majoring in the arts are absolutely hopeless as they sit with glazed eyes in various humanities sections, hoping they can "pull a 'C' outa da course". One humanities instructor confided that if he can reach just five peoples in each of his huge classes he considers the semester a success.

AND WHAT ABOUT the other thirty or forty people in these classes? They muddle their way through to a diploma—an fact, some later become honor graduates in physics or biology or business. And later, when they mingle with society, and people ask, "What school did that ignoramus attend"?, the answer Florida State" will cheapen still further our already-degraded diploma.

Let's Get Serious

'Scientific Hoax' Talk Is Continued

By GERRY DOBSON

There have been several points raised concerning the column "Scientific Hoax of the Century," published in the Sept. 19 issue of the Flambeau.

Dr. Lewis Killian has accused me of impugning the integrity of a majority of social scientists. I did no such thing; the opinions expressed in the column were those of Dr. Garrett, as discussed in an article by him (Congressional Record vol. 107, no. 142, pp. A6641-2). I merely commented that if Dr. Garrett's charges were true, something was amiss.

IT ALSO MIGHT be pointed out that it is immaterial to the question under discussion that a vast majority of social scientists disagree with Dr. Garrett's opinions. The correctness of a theory in science is not decided by a majority vote: a majority of geographers in Columbus' time thought the world was flat.

A further clarification is in order to Mr. Dunart. The column as written was "cut", and included in the cut portion was the following:

"THE PURPOSE OF this column is not to try to justify segregation by showing that there is reason to doubt the equalitarian idea; on the contrary, the rights of American citizens are not dependent upon intelligence."

Mr. Dunart, when he says I belong to the "almost paranoic fascist lunatic fringe of right-wingers" is voicing an opinion which has absolutely nothing to do with the question at hand. We are discussing psychology, not politics. It is indeed unfortunate that many persons today cannot discuss an issue without introducing irrelevancies which only becloud the discussion.

TO DISCUSS THE theory mentioned by Dr. Killian, I must, of course acknowledge that he undoubtedly has a broader background in the social sciences than I, but I should like to comment that in the course of my studies for the M.Ed degree, I took several psychology and educational psychology courses, and that this work included some fairly intensive literature research in the field.

But to the first point, that modern theory holds that "no test has been devised that actually measures the biologically inherited capacity to learn." While this is, doubtless, correct, the tests are, nevertheless, able to give some measure of the relative ability to learn. If the socio-economic backgrounds of the subjects are equated as nearly as possible, differences in test scores can show the better advantage taken of this background by a person of a higher "biologically inherited capacity to learn."

The second point, that "it is impossible to control all the environmental factors which influence learning and test performances, thereby making impossible a perfectly controlled comparison between groups," is also true. However, it would seem to be an over-simplification to imply that because this is true, that no valid conclusions may be drawn from test results. If this is the view, we had better stop wasting time and money on all the intelligence testing now being done. It is not necessary that a scientific experiment be "perfectly controlled" in order that the data obtained from it be valid and useful.

A POPULAR VIEWPOINT held today is that such test differences which are found between whites and Negroes are caused solely by environmental factors, and that the Negro, because he has been relegated to an inferior role in American society, therefore scores more poorly on intelligence tests. This viewpoint undoubtedly has merit, and probably explains some of the test results which have been obtained. But I cannot agree that this view explains all the test differences, and there is evidence which supports this belief.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Dobson's original column was heavily cut. It appeared in the Sept. 19 issue of the Flambeau. The column appearing today will be continued in a coming issue).

Reflections

Coma And The Little People

By LESLIE POWELL

Coma cocked her head to one side, thereby causing her wig to slip down, covering one ear. From her Cupid's bow lips came the words: "I just adore those little compact models."

EVERYONE in the coffee circle looked around expecting to see Little Malaria's Simca parked beside the coffee urn, or maybe a Fiat grinding its gears over a cup of coffee.

All we saw was some little guy about four feet tall wearing jodphers and a tattoo across his upper arm that read "Made in Japan."

"YES," COMA said again, " I do admire the compact little people. They have advantages in life. They can break line by merely walking between one's legs.

"Of course, I do realize that they have their own peculiar disadvantages too, like having to watch out for hungry alley cats and always having the feeling that they're sitting on the edge of the world because their feet never touch the floor.

"THEN AGAIN, they can sit on the second row in any class and be inconspicuous. That's bad though, when the instructor is gung-ho and too blasted lazy to walk back to see if there is someone in that "empty" chair before he marks one absent.

"The compact little people don't have to worry about chunks of anatomy hanging off the beds that the Grand Rapids people turn out. You never hear of the little people going bald from having their hair scrubbed off on the headboard. All they have to worry about in bed is that the pillow will roll over in the night and squash them.

THE LITTLE PEOPLE stick together. AT FSU they have a kingdom appropriately called the Kingdom of the Little People. Up on second floor Longmire, the Little People are undisputed rulers. They chain big people to desks and walls and feed them peanuts.

"And little men like the Playboy fold-out pictures. For them it's like lifesized and more fun than a barrelful of Anita Ekberg's.

"Of course, to join the Little People, you have to be cut down to size, but that's not so painful once you get used to peering through the rungs of chairs," Coma said as she climbed off her chair and stamped out on her newly shod knees.

Ghosts Of Yesteryear

By STEVE PRENTICE

Two down and eight to go on the Seminole football roster, and college football is in full swing.

Stars of the game are placing their bids for eternal gridiron fame, ploughing their way into football history. They too may one day look back across an empty field and with that old glint in their eyes remember today—twenty years ago.

It is late in November. The sky is a grey and chilly blanket. A few light snowflakes pass my face and melt as they touch my coat. I turn and cast a cold icy glance over the fifty thousand empty seats that surround me, silently watching my every move. But it's not me they're watching, not really —That's me out there calling the signals, number nine, that's me. I'm not the only one though, there are eleven of us, all giants, all men of gridiron glory. On day like this we came out here to play. At one time or another we've beaten every major team in existence.

Look, there goes Johnny! Boy can that guy handle a ball! He's like the wind, swift, tricky, and perfect. Listen to his cleats bite that turf.—But then we're all that way. Each man can play his position with that perfection, and as a team we're a flawless piece of machinery.

Yes, we are the greatest combination of eleven men that ever took the field. We're proud of it too, but we never show it and no-one ever comes to cheer us on. We play for the love of the game. We hit the line with silent fury, a mighty love that comes from our hearts. And we leave the field with the satisfaction of a clean, well played game behind us. You see, we're not only giants of the game, we are the all time greatest of days gone by, the ghosts of yesteryears gridiron.

Registrar's Comment

TO THE EDITOR:

We of the Registrar's Office appreciate very much the favorable comment concerning registration procedures published in the Flambeau of September 19. It is most gratifying to know that our efforts toward improvement have not gone unnoticed.

Much remains to be done and we are studying our various procedures with a view toward simplification where possible and toward the general efficiency of our office. Suggestions of improvement, particularly from students will always be welcome and helpful to us. We appreciate especially the cooperation given to us by the Flambeau in communicating campus-wide information from our office to the student body.

ONE HUNDRED FIFTY YEAR old egg shells (note them in box) have been dug up by a Florida State University expedition and Dr. Charles H. Fairbanks, associate professor of archaeology, thinks the Creeks used them in their sofki (grits), cooked in large vessels like the one he is putting together. The pottery and shells were dug from the ground at the site of the Creek village of Nuyaka, on the Horseshoe Bend of the Tallapoosa River in Alabama, destroyed by Andrew Jackson in 1814. Discovery of the shells furnished the first evidence Fairbanks knows of that eggs were eaten by Southeastern Indians.

Ancient Dump Proves To Be Treasure Pile

A once-odiferous garbage dump in Alabama yielded its varied treasures to a Florida State University acientist and a party of ten FSU students this summer during an eight-week archaeological dig. The site of the dig was the Village of Nuyaka on the Horseshoe Bend of the Tallapoosa River about 50 miles east of Montgomery.

By far the most important discovery made by Dr. Charles H. Fairbanks, associate professor of anthropology and archaeology, and his group were several 147-year-old eggshells. The shells are the first indication, as far as Dr. Fairbanks knows, that Indians of the Southeast included hens eggs in their diet, although it has been known that the Creeks and other Indians kept poultry.

EGGS AND GRITS

Since there is no evidence in the shell that the eggs had been boiled whole, Dr. Fairbanks speculates that the eggs were placed in sofki, a hominy grits used widely by the Indians.

The Village of Nuyaka lies in an area laid waste by the bloody Creek war. The group sought first to locate the site of a barricade extending across the bend of the river and found that any evidences of it had long since disappeared.

The Village of Tohopeka, across the river in Horseshoe Bend, was pinpointed in another dig. Here the archaeologists found pottery of an unfamiliar sort, indicating the existance of the village by be much earlier than had been supposed.

GARBAGE DUMP

In Nuyaka, the group dug a test hole and discovered the garbage dump, which had been used as a food storage place. These places usually produce artifacts bearing on the diet of the Creeks, who like their fellows in the Southeast, were agricultural.

The FSU group made the first organized exploration for artifacts in this area, which has been recently designated Horseshoe Bend National Military Park. The National Park Service, which sponsored the exploration, is planning a museum in the park.

Coffee Hour

The English Coffee Hour will begin its meetings for this year Friday. Dr. W. F. Townsend will present the first program entitled "As You Like It: Shakespeare's Finest Comedy," at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House.

The Coffee Hour will assemble weekly on Friday afternoons at 4. Students and faculty are welcome to attend.

Public Service:

Why Did You Get That Traffic Gig?

Since the Flambeau has received reports that there is some confusion concerning driving and parking regulations on campus the paper is printing a list of regulations as a public service.

The following regulations cover car registration, driving, parking and fines.

Freshman students are prohibited from bringing a car to FSU to Tallahassee or to Leon County.

Cars must be registered and decals must be affixed on the left side, rear bumper within 72 hours after arriving on campus. Proof of ownership is required at registration. Registration fee is $1.

Students with 24-83 semester hours of credit are permitted to have cars on campus, but cannot drive or park on the parts of the campus listed below between 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Students with 84-up semester hours may drive and park on campus under listed traffic regulations.

The driving area on campus extends East to Copeland, West to Woodward, South to West Jefferson St. and North from Palmello to Dewey to West Call St.

FAILING TO REGISTER

A student who fails to register his car within 72 hours after he has arrived in Tallahassee is subject to $10 fine. A car which has a "DEALER" or "E" tag will not be registered.

Only ONE decal is to be displayed and it must be legible. Decals must be removed from vehicles when sold or traded. The person in whose name the vehicle is registered is responsible for all fines.

The traffic office should be notified of change in ownership or license tag number of any vehicle registered for campus parking.

Motorcycles and motor scooters must be registered and decals affixed.

FRESHMAN CARS

Freshmen are permitted to have cars only if they are: (1) over 21 years of age, (2) married, (3) physically handicapped (written verification from doctor) (4) living more than one mile from campus.

The following regulations apply to all the faculty and staff members, students and visitors:

1. No parking will be permitted near fire hydrants, across street-entrances to sidewalks and buildings or along painted yellow curbs at any point.

2. All posted traffic signs must be obeyed. "Loading Zone" must be observed at all times.

3. Vehicles parked on University streets are to be parked parallel to the curb and within the colored lines, unless angle parking is provided and outlined in colored lines.

4. The maximum speed limit on all campus streets is 20 miles per hour unless otherwise posted.

5. Reckless and careless driving is forbidden on the campus.

6. Movement of traffic along the campus streets is not to be obstructed by stopping in the streets, or in parking lots, for any purpose other than parking.

7. Parking on the lawn or driving on campus where university streets are not provided, is forbidden.

LIMITED PARKING

8. Limited time parking spaces must be observed between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. except on Saturday and Sunday and University designated holidays.

9. All vehicles must stop when the stop signal of a campus bus is displayed. A fine of $5 will be assessed for failure to abide by this regulation.

10. On streets with two-way traffic the driver must not cross oncoming traffic to park.

11. All traffic regulations are enforced throughout the year, except two hour parking regulations which will not be enforced during examination periods or during semester breaks.

12. Pedestrians must use cross walks. They will be held responsible for failure to observe traffic regulations on the campus.

13. All pedestrians and drivers must obey the signals of traffic control officers.

14. Drivers of motor vehicles must approach pedestrian cross walks with caution. Pedestrians have the right-of-way.

FINES

The penalty for EACH offense checked in Group 1 violations shown on the traffic ticket is $1, and within 24 hours after issue; $2, if paid within 48 hours; and a minimum of $5, after 48 hours.

Fines for EACH traffic offense in Group II Violations shown on the traffic ticket will be fixed by the Student Traffic Court. Failure to settle a ticket within 30 days will result in doubling of the fine and disciplinary action through the dean of men or of women's offices.

A $2 fine will be levied on any car registered to a junior, sophomore or freshman found within the area outlined above between 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

A student with six traffic violations during one semester will lose the privilege of using his car in Tallahassee for his next three months in residence.

TV Training

A free training program in television production is being offered by the University television station WFSU-TV, beginning Monday.

Lasting a period of eight weeks, the program will teach all phases of television production, including sets, lighting, audio board work, announcing and directing. Students completing the course may be offered a position at the station.

Classes will be from 3:15 to 5:15 p.m. each Monday, with a repeat of the work covered at the same time on Wednesday.

Peace Corps Test Is To Be Given On Sat.

Any FSU student who wants to serve in the Peace Corps will have another opportunity to qualify by taking the examination Saturday at the Main Post Office Bldg. in Tallahassee.

The third round of the Peace Corps examination will be held at that time in testing centers throughout the country.

The examination will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will last for six hour, with an additional hour out for lunch.

Each person will be given his choice between two types of examinations. One of the exams is designed for men and women who would like to be considered for positions as secondary-school or college teachers. To take one of these tests, a bachelor's degree is required but candidates do not have to be accredited teachers.

The other examination is for anyone who wants to serve in the Peace Corps. There is not a rigid passing grade for the test. Results are considered along with other elements of background as special skills and character.

From the October tests, the Corps hopes to attract a large number of Americans in agricultural and industrial fields.

"We are receiving an increasing number of requests for such skills from prospective host countries," according to Dr. Nicholas Hobbs, director of selection for the Peace Corps. "We will have to turn down these requests if we are unable to meet their needs," he added.

Many of those who will take exams on Oct. 7, will be those who have sent in a Peace Corps questionnaire since the last testing in July.

Anyone who has not filled in a questionnaire, but is interested in the Corps service, may still take one of the exams Saturday ernoon verified the dean's belief that it was all spontaneous.

"We didn't decide to take the posts down until the fourth quarter, when we realized they weren't going to beat us," one of the men said.

He added that the FSU students didn't expect a fight when they pulled the posts down, but, "They didn't like the idea of our pulling them down, and we didn't like the idea of their trying to take 'em away from us."

"The posts were kind of hard to break up because they're aluminum," he added.

SEMINOLE OR GATOR

On the field, the combattants asked each other, "Are you a Seminole or a Gator?" If the answer was a flying fist, no further reply was necessary.

One FSU partisan stood by calmly as a Gator tried to pick up one end of the post. The Seminole calmly took off his glasses, hesitated, then loosened his tie and handed the suit coat to a friend before flattening the offending "Florida man" with one blow. The victor then donned his glasses, retrieved his coat and returned to his date, who was cheering in the stands.

The police were "real nice about it" said a student who was close enough to the action to know. "They could have been a lot rougher. Instead, they just pulled the guys apart and told them to leave. Nobody hit any of the officers," he concluded.

"LIKE HELL YOU CAN have it back," shouted the outnumbered FSU stalwarts who held at bay the horde of U of F men that tried vainly to re-capture the north goal post at Florida Field. The Seminoles held their ground until the police requested that they leave the metal pole. The law respecting FSU men thought it prudent to allow the slightly worse-for-wear goal post to accompany the officers from the field.

THE SEMINOLES BEGIN TO MOVE AS QUARTER BACK EDDIE FEELY PITCHES . . . out to fullback Marion Roberts in FSU-Fla. Game Action.

Bickford Stands Out

Ex-Offensive QB Shines On Defense

Roy Bickford, who has been a relatively unknown offensive quarterback, was heralded the Seminole of the hour as a defensive specialist before 44,200 fans at Florida Field Saturday.

Unable to gain fame in his sophomore year because of senior quarterback Joe Majors, he looked forward to his junior year. However, with the arrival of Ed Feely and Ed Tracygiver from the Baby Seminoles to the Varsity team, he was still unable to acquire renown.

After 2 years of playing behind the scenes, Bickford broke into the spotlight by blocking the most important punt of the day.

With the game only five minutes old Bickford took the Gators by surprise when he lined up in quarterback position as a ninth man in normally an eight man line. As U of F Coach Ray Graves stated," We were not expecting that type of defense and they did it very well. We had not seen them rush the kicker the way they rushed to block that punt."

Bickford streaked through the Florida line to block a punt that put FSU in the scoring column.

"It happened so fast. All I know is that I blocked it," stated Bickford

Not only did Bickford block an all-important punt that set up FSU's field goal; he intercepted two Gator passes, one of which might have spelled the difference in the score.

Bickford praised teammate Don Donatelli who cleared the way for this breakthrough. Bickford, however, was not satisfied with just blocking the punt. He pounced at the ball with the vigor of a wildcat, picked it up and advanced to the Florida 17-yard line.

Disdaying the reason why he was voted the most outstanding player of the game, Bickford intercepted two passes and made six individual tackles and helped on two more.

Bickford said "The Renegades played a good game." and "the Linebackers did a fine job."

Defense Demon Bickford, Harllee Lead Seminoles To Tie With UF

ness and turned back.

"Saw the governor in Sunday School yesterday. He congratulated the team for a fine effort."

"I saw the films the other day. I couldn't single out one single individual. They all contributed. If I started listing stars, I'd have a whole team full."

A team victory it was—all victories are won by a team—but individuals sparkled in key plays

Roy Bickford, who played in the shadows as an offensive quarterback and turned defensive specialist, copped the Most Valuable Player of the contest award with a brilliant performance.

Bickford rushed through a hole drilled by a Doo Donatelli block in the first quarter to smother Don Riopgidi's punt to set up the first Semnole score.

He also dulled the previously razor-sharp Gator air game by beisting a Larry Libertore aerial at the FSU 40 to stymie a second quarter Gator drive and snatched a fourth period loss by Bobby Dodd to mumle the Gators last bid for victory.

HARLLEE KICKS FG

John Harllee, a sophomore who had never before attempted a field goal in collegiate competition, converted on a 29-yard boot to score the Seminoles only points.

The Gators came driving back only to have Bickford hold the fort with his grab of Libertore's pass. But the Gators could not be denied for long.

Florida mounted another drive late in the second quarter and powered down to the Florida State five yard marker before injured Fred Grimes burst through the UF backfield to spill Ron Stoner for a five-yard setback.

Billy Cash, the Tallahassee converter, made an appearance long enough to tie the score from 28 yards from the crossbars.

FSU got a break just before the half ended. The tribe was setback to the one on the Florida kickoff when Keith Kinderman's knee touched the ground before his return. Charley Calhoun, FSU punter, managed only a short kick to his own 33, but Libertore bobbled the ball and John Levings recovered. Florida State raced against time, but the clock ran out with the Tribe on the UF 24.

The third quarter was a passive one. Both moved up and down the field but could not get within scoring distance.

Calhoun, a Tallahassee sophomore, and Ringgold, Florida's chief booter, waged a kicking duel.

The fourth quarter began likewise. But with 1:55 left in the ball game, the sparks flew again.

BICKFORD AGAIN

It was Bickford again, a constant thorn in the Gators hide, who grabbed off an aerial from Dodd on his own 42 and streaked down the field to the Gator 28 before being tumbled to the ground.

Seminoles fans were oo their feet, as they were during the entire contest. But this time louder than ever.

A 15-yard penalty for illegally returning a substitute to the ball game set the tribesmen back to the Florida 43.

The Seminoles put the ball into play and three plays later the Gators drew a penalty. This one was for 15 yards on a personal foul charge. Again the tribe was knocking at the door.

GO FOR FG

The Seminoles elected to go for the long field goal with only 1:18 left to play.

Harllee's second attempt fell short; the Gators took over and never relinquished the pigskin.

In the statistics column, Florida completely dominated the content. But the Gators found out that statistics woo't substitute for points.

Florida's potent offensive attack notched 15 first downs as compared to only five for the Seminoles.

On the ground, the Gators led. The hosts compiled a total of 196 yards running while the tribe managed only 80.

Florida also excelled through the air. The Gators gained 86 yards through via passing while the tribe pitching corps managed only 28.

The Gators threw 15 times and completed only six passes. The Florida State pitched the same amount but only four were successful.

MISTAKES COST

Despite the difference of statistics, mistakes cost the Gators their second victory. Besides the two Bickford interceptions and the blocked kick, the Gators fumbled the ball three times.

"I am disappointed we didn't beat them by a couple of touchdowns," Florida Coach Ray Graves said after the game.

"But when you consider the mistakes, what was it three fumbles, two interceptions, and a blocked kick? Well then you might say we were lucky," he added.

HANDICAPPED FSU

Petersoo pointed out that this was a handicapped FSU team.

"It's not an alibi; it's just the truth. We were running with a new combination. Marion Roberts had never played fullback in a game before. Keith Kinderman was moved up to first string and Henry moved from guard on the warriors to guard on the chiefs.

"You know experience makes a difference. Take Bickford for instance. Bickford has been through the wars a few times. It pays off."

"I'm particularly proud of the way the band, the cheerleaders, and the student body supported us. We certainly did appreciate it. It really makes difference and we are very grateful." he concluded.

Frosh Gridders Tie Southern 6-6, Almost Ruining Record

By JIM CARROLL
Flambeau Sports Writer

Saturday night almost ruined the Baby Seminoles' chance to record their third straight undefeated season as they battled the freshmen of Mississippi Southern to a 6-6 deadlock before 11,000 fans at Memorial Stadium in Columbus, Ga.

Jim Loftin of Pensacola scored the Seminoles' lone touchdown in the second quarter on a 62-yard burst. The extra point failed and the Seminoles gained a 6-0 lead.

In the second half Mississippi Southern was a different team. They began to show some of the offensive spark they lacked in the first half. Bob Nall scored from three yards out capping a 56-yard drive. Southern's touchdown came when seven minutes and 17 seconds remained in the third quarter.

Successive drives by the Baby Seminoles fell short in the final period. Terry Kollman missed on two attempts at field goals.

A fumble on Southern's 22-yard line gave the Seminoles control of the ball. After advancing to the nine the Seminole eleven were set back by penalties.

In the final minutes of play both teams attempted long passes in vain efforts to score.

Loftin was the big ground gainer for the Baby Seminoles, rushing for 80 yards in seven carries. Ed Pritchett and Charles Spooner each ground out 45 and 29 yards respectively.

The Freshman squad out maneuvered the Southern team on the ground 221 yards to 140 yards. In the punting department, Burt Shephard averaged 38.5 yards and Pritchett 34.3.

The next game for the Baby Seminoles will be against the Miami Freshman on Nov. 4 in St. Petersburg.

Unknown Back Ties Florida

With the big scoreboard clock at Florida Field showing 5:48 gone in the first quarter, an unknown fullback made his entrance.

His name was John Harllee.

Harllee, a former Palmetto High place kicker, was substituting for injured Doug Messer. He had never kicked a field goal in intercollegiate competition.

But he did this time, and Florida State moved into a thin lead over their arch rivals.

"Before the game at the motel," said FSU coach Bill Peterson, "I called John over I said John, you've got the strength, the distance, and the height to kick a field goal. But you have a tendancy to kick it to the right. Just kick straight through the ball and you've got it made."

Harllee did just that.

The kicking hero's story is one tinged with irony. He was awarded a scholarship in high school and planned to attend FSU. When he arrived, he told Peterson that he was going to forego the game. In the spring, the Seminole brain trust found out that he kicked in high school.

They persuaded him to come back as a specialist.

But at the end of the year, the tribe got word that Harllee had flunked out of school. As it turned out, it was another John Harllee. And the one kicked the field goal that tied the mighty Florida Gators.

Seventeen Areas

FSU School Of Education Departmentalization Cited

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The School of Educatioe has been divided into 17 separate departments, according to Dr. Eugene Boyce, associate dean of education.

The new departments are administration, supervision and curriculum; audio-visual education; art education and constructive design; educational foundations; upper elementary education; guidance and counseling; health education; higher education; English education; mathematics education; physical education and recreation; science education; social studies education; industrial arts and vocational education; early childhood education; educational research and testing; and university school.

Under the new plan, the 17 departments are descriptively divided in the same manner that College of Arts and Sciences separate physics, English, etc.

TRAINING FUNCTION

Each department will clearly have a function in the training of teachers, said the associate dean. The department heads are autonomous, and no department is able to impose unnecessary requirements upon another, he said.

For instance, the guidance and counseling head can not make the English education official insert extra guidance courses into a student's field of study.

This means unnecessary methods courses will be discarded and course planning will be left up to each department.

Divisions of Arts and Sciences will also find the new plan more efficient, he said Under the old plan, a mathematics official for instance, might not know whom to contact to education, whereas there is now a specific person in charge of math.

The new plan will b ' unset the instruction of poten' eachers, said Dr. Boyce. ..od, it will enhance the teaching.

"We believe that the best place to teach teachers is on a university site . . . we could set up a teacher's college and isolate ourselves from the rest of the campus . . . but we believe in using the total assets of the university.

PLANNING ROLE

"We want each departmeot (in other schools) to teach the subjects . . . but we want to be in on the planning," he continued.

"This cooperation between education and other departments will do away with the math-teachers-aren't-qualified because the Math Dept. will be helping to plan teacher's courses," he said.

There is another view, he said. Some educators feel there should be a teacher's college where professors teach teachers with the idea the students are going into education. This university, however, does oot believe in this philosophy, he added.

Actually, he said, there probably should have been a teacher's education council established to coordinate all teaching activities, but the University accomplished the same purpose with the re-organization plan.

One key point in the operation of the specific programs of the new plan is that the Math Dept., as an example, must respect its counterpart in education, he said.

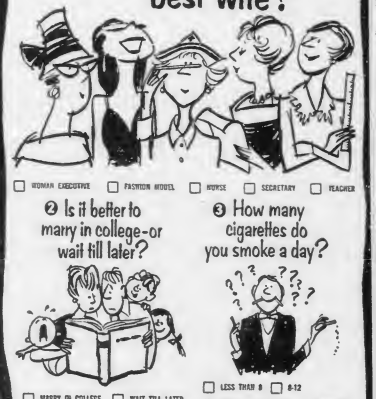
Therefore, he continued, education must have a superior person to coordinate with the Mathematics Dept. Formerly, the university was unable to provide superior officials, because the educator wanted to be lost in a large department.

GIVE STATUS

Now, the School of Educa can give them status and re nition, he said.

No department head in ed too considers himself an ad istrator, said Dr. Boyce. Inst of devoting all his time a administrative level, an edu is able to work in his sub field.

However, he added, since University School and Physi Education Depts. are so lar the two department heads forced to much administra work.



The new plan is of crucial portance in getting resea grants, said Dr. Boyce. As example, Dr. Harold P. Cou ham, guidance and counsel deals directly with officials give NDEA grants.

This is the first year that college has been able to gr departmental budget consi approved by the Board of trol, the associate dean said.

Senate Passes Cheerleading Bill

The number of members on the cheerleading squad was officially raised to ten with two alternates, by Student Senate Wednesday. At the same time Senate sent a proposed amendment which would have invalidated the increase in April, through a slow death during extended floor debate.

The squad previously consisted of eight cheerleaders, including the head cheerleader, and two alternates.

Under the bill seven cheerlead ers will be selected in the spring by-outs with two additional cheerleaders and two alternate cheerleaders, including at least two freshmen, to be chosen in the fall tryouts. Including the head cheerleader, there will be two cheerleaders and two alternate cheerleaders on the squad. A minimum of two men and six women will be on the squad.

If the squad is financially unable to carry the entire squad on out-of-town trips, the two alternate cheerleaders shall not be included financially in the trips, under the measure passed by Senate.

OPPOSITION

Senate opposition to the measure centered when efforts to make alternates and two additional cheerleaders without petting a ate vote of approval, as required by the Student Body ctions.

"This is a bigger problem than we realize," said Men's Vice President Carl Kuttler, "since two additional cheerleaders were elected, we must ask ourselves which two are going to be taken

It is disturbing that a vote elected and then approval of Senate was asked." He added that insufficient planning and a lack of administrative ability were reasons behind the problem.

Women's Vice President Myg

Miss Champion

Non Champion proposed that the bill be invalidated on the second Monday of April, 1962 — a time when the cheerleaders are fairly inactive.

"Whether or not the cheerleading squad should be increased should be our concern," she said. "Unfortunately we have become absorbed instead in personality issues. This amendment would enable us to save embarrassment for individuals concerned and to consider the issue on a permanent basis next spring when no personalities will be involved," she added.

Others felt no personalities were involved at the meeting.

Sen. Jeanie Ferlita answered, "The misunderstandings will be straightened out . . . I don't think any personalities have come into the issue."

Sen. Johnny Smith saw a slight danger to the Senate's reputation and also warned of establishing a dangerous precedent of changing items acting on measures that require Senate approval.

The bad feeling — after petting the opinion of Senators over the telephone — sought to be had a majority approval, said Sen. Jody Smith.

He also said he could not find where it would give the right amount of money that the Flame-bean reported, if the bill added some cheerleaders.

COST OF UNIFORMS

Twenty-five dollars will be spent on two uniforms, which will be passed on each year he said. Transportation costs will not be raised, since six people can ride just as cheaply in a cole five, he said. The senator said the same would apply to two.

Last year, the cheerleaders went to only three games when they had to stay over night and some of them have already asked to go home for Thanksgiving instead of attending the Friday game, he said.

Fire In Landis Hall Causes Mild SNAFU

A fire in East Landis caused 'much ado about nothing' Wednesday afternoon.

Firemen said the fire apparently started in the trash chute between the first floor and the basement due to a lighted cigarette. Two residents, smelling smoke, reported the fire to the office and a bucket brigade was organized.

Dallas Matthews, a junior living off campus, Bea Betts and Chris Knox, both juniors, helped Mrs. Myra Bailey, East Landis maidence Counselor, dump buckets of water down the fifth floor trash chute.

The fire had been extinguished by the time the Fire Dept. arrived. However, the sprinkler system came on in the Landis store room and neither firemen nor janitors could find the shutoff valve. Men from the Maintenance Dept. finally shutoff the water.

Water covered the basement floor, but other than that, no damage was reported.

Mathews was visiting friends at the time of the fire, and commented that the women students evacuated quickly and were level-headed. He added that it will probably be the only time in his life that he would ever get up to the fifth floor so quickly.

For his help with putting out the fire, he was invited to remain for tea and cookies, and was named East Landis's unofficial mascot.

Error In Tabulation Fouls SG Elections

★ ★ ★ ★

Frosh Elections Were Correct

The primary results in the Freshman Class races Tuesday are to stand as originally announced, said Secretary of Elections Nancy Sill.

None of the freshmen officers were elected the first ballot, so run-offs in all of the races will be held Tuesday.

Franklin Darnell and Bob Kerrigan will run-off for the class presidency. They had 234 votes, and 202 votes respectively. They defeated a field of nine candidates including Frank Booth, Bob Dawson, Tommy Duke, Kenny Dunson, Clay Gooch, Joe Hester, Dick Kulp, Steve Spearnce and Horace Smith.

For vice president Sherman Henderson, with 312 votes, and Chris McEwan, with 131 votes, will oppose each other in the run-offs. Defeated in this race were Charles Shirlton, Bill Durham, Doug Ferry, Jimmy Hamilton, Maria Sartwell and Jan Walker.

Run-off candidates in the secretary's race will be Mina Crawford, with 296 votes and Arden Wright, with 236 votes. Defeated in this race were Diane Babbitt, and Harriet Welborn.

Run-off candidates for Treasurer will be Jerry Davis, with 272 votes, and Mary Lou Murphy, with 229 votes. Defeated in this race, was Larry Stallings. Social Chairman run-off candidates are Gerri McDaniel, with 330 votes, and Jeanie Murphree, with 276 votes. Defeated in this race was Judy Vernon.

Men's Senate—for the two seats —Allen Bird, with 99 votes; Ted DeLaVergne, with 152 votes; Tom Sisco, with 138 votes; and Jim Vaughn, with 173 votes will be in the run-offs. Defeated in this race were Mike Casterton, Richard Erickson, John Merting, Ronald Moseley, Ward Seguin, Jim Spoonts, Clinton Terry and John Tinder.

Rebarae Denlinger, with 196 votes, Carole Ferlita, with 327 votes, Marsha G. Orth, with 254 votes, and Janet Wiltshire, with 296 votes will run-off for the two woman's Senate posts. Defeated in this race were Peggy Gady, Julie Johanscik and Betsy Meyer.

14 Senators Chosen, Run-Offs To Be Tues.

An error in coding the IBM tabulations of Tuesday's election results turned the earlier posted results topsy-turvy when the coding corrections were made yesterday.

Although the run-off elections were scheduled for today a special session of Student Senate at 5 p.m. yesterday was expected to postpone the final election until Tuesday.

When errors in the results of several precincts were first discovered Wednesday night it was believed that the IBM machine used to count the ballots had not functioned properly. However, yesterday as the elections committee, headed by Natcie Sill prepared to recount the ballots on a different machine the error in coding was discovered.

According to Miss Sill 40 ballots in the precincts elections were discarded because students deliberately voted out of their proper precincts. She estimated that approximately 2,300 students voted in the primary election.

All of the precinct results were recoded and the close races checked by a hand count. Miss Sill stated. The freshmen elections were properly coded and are correct as announced Tuesday night, she emphasized.

"I regret all the confusion that has been caused and particularly

Investiture

Dr. Jackson L. Lee, assistant professor of philosophy and religion, will give the main address at the first formal recognition of seniors, Sophomore-Senior Investiture, Oct. 17.

Dr. Dalsy Parker, associate professor of government, will be the speaker at the dinner, preceding the investing ceremony.

Tickets for the banquet, which will begin at 6 p.m. will go on sale Oct. 11. The banquet will be followed at 8 p.m. by the investiture ceremony, the "capping" of seniors.

the inconvenience to the candidates because of the error in coding," Miss Sill said. "This is certainly something that will not happen again," she stressed.

"I want to halt any rumors that the machines were at fault in any way," she added. "These results are final and accurate," the elections secretary emphasized. Miss Sill was backed up in this statement by Chief Justice of Honor Court Don Walbolt, who added, "As far as we're concerned the election stands as is."

Director of the University Test Service, G. Emerson Tully, made this statement yesterday, concerning the mistakes made in connection with the election tallies:

"All ballots from the two elections—the freshmen election and the precinct election—were counted by an IBM machine in the University Test Service. Machine count records were given to members of the election committee by the University Test Service to be tallied. Because of a mistake in coding, the tallies made for some precinct races were in error. No complete recount of all races was made, but a retabulation using the proper code was made for all votes. This, of course, changed the outcomes of some of the races as previously announced. No ballots were thrown out as a result of this retabulation.

"In those races that were exceedingly close, a recount was made to determine that each candidate was credited with every vote cast for him.

There were no tabulation errors in the freshman elections, and the outcomes of these elections remain as first announced.

Student President Bobby Byrd also issued a statement yesterday afternoon. "The Secretary of Elections was in error in releasing the results before they were official. But f feel that it was an honest error and I think she is to be commended for work she's done in correcting mistakes," he stated.

Fourteen senators were elected in the primary election.

Women's Senate Hits .666

Women's Senate achieved slightly better than a two-thirds record in getting its Bills approved by the administration this year, Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion announced yesterday.

Of the 21 bills passed by last year's Women's Senate, 16 were approved and five not approved by the administration.

Among the changes proposed by the unapproved bills were: to allow upperclassmen to type bill night in a specified area of each dormitory; to change visiting hours for men in dormitories, to remove the shower time limit on upperclassmen and to reduce the "lights out" time for freshmen from six weeks to five weeks.

Among the changes proposed by approved bills were: election of floor chairmen by floors rather than by the entire dorm, addition of a section to Knowledge for College to explain "full restrictions" and "partial restrictions," removal of penalty for calling out of windows, and allowing study-in in the recreation rooms after closing hours.

When Women's Senate convened for the second time this year, it added mother bill to its records. This bill is now subject to the approval of the Administration.

The bill, entitled, An Act to Amend the Rules of Procedure of Women's Senate is mainly a clarification and definition of orders, rules, and procedure to be observed in Women's Senate.

Introduced by Senator Jeanie Ferlita, it was amended slightly and then passed by the unanimous consent of those present.

In addition to this main business, Miss Champion, presiding over the group, distributed extra copies of the new Knowledge for College booklets to each senator and announced the date for the test on information in that booklet. as Oct. 10.

Miss Champion appointed Sen. Ferlita chairman of a committee in charge of orientating new senators on procedure in Senate and also announced that help assuming on procedure would be given new senators beginning Thursday at 4 p.m. in the Senate chamber.

Sen. Beth Ann Legate was asked to distribute copies of rules on house council to various residence halls on campus, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Tally-Ho Sets Entry Deadline

Deadline for entries in this year's Miss Tally-Ho contest is today at 5 p.m.

The contestant's name, sponsor and where she can be reached must be placed in the box marked "Entries" outside the Tally-Ho office, on the fourth floor of Longmire. This contest is free and open to all women students, who may be sponsored by dormitories, fraternities, or sororities.

These groups may enter as many contestants as they wish.

The first half of the contest will be in Opperman Music Hall Wednesday at 8 p.m. Contestants should be present at 8 p.m. in a cocktail dress and heels.

Dr, Townsend Speaks Today

Dr. Frances Townsend, head of the English Dept., will speak this afternoon at the English Coffee Hour to be held in Westminster Hall at 4 p.m.

Dr. Townsend's subject will be "As You Like It: Shakespeare's Finest Comedy."

Although I think that As You Like It is one of Shakespeare's very best plays, it is also one of the most difficult to each, because students don't respond to it, Dr. Townsend commented.

He will discuss general propositions to account for the play's greatness, and suggest why its greatness isn't easily discernable at first or even at last.

Dr. Townsend, who holds a Ph.D. from Ohio State, came to Florida State University in September, 1956.

BSU, Wesley Gain Directors

Two young religious leaders have joined the host of directors of student religious houses on the Florida State campus.

Miss Nancy Reiss, new associate director of the Wesley Foundation, and Reverend David Talley, new director of the Baptist Student Union, were honored at a reception Tuesday from 4 to 5 p.m. in the Large Lounge of Longmire.

Miss Reiss came to Tallahassee in August to accept a temporary position as assistant director before continuing post-graduate work in radio-TV and theology. Her formal training has been directed toward radio-TV work; in Cadillac, Mich., she was women's program director, and received her bachelor's in radio-TV from the University of Miami in 1958.

After graduation, she went to St. Petersburg, where she organized the radio-TV department of St. Petersburg Junior College, but began to work more actively with young religious groups and became director of youth activities at Pasadena Community Church there.

Still planning to enter graduate school, Miss Reiss was asked to come to Florida State to be associate director of the Methodist student group, Wesley Foundation, where she finds the work stimulating, and the response of the students overwhelming.

Rev. David Talley, from Knoxville, Tenn., has a bachelor's from Carson-Newman and a B.D. from Southern Seminary in Louisville, Ky.

Talley did some post-graduate work in clinical counseling, which he considers the most valuable part of his studies.

At the Medical College of Augusta, Talley was director of the Baptist Student House, and resigned to become associate pastor at the First Baptist Church in Jacksonville. Here he also worked with the Baptist students at Jacksonville University.

When the previous director of FSU's Baptist Student Union left, Talley accepted the post because he considers it the best position available in Florida for his work.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

Shooting The Screamers

Each year when sorority bids come out there are plenty of young women in various stages of ecstasy. And there are some who weep in disappointment.

WHETHER A SORORITY bid is worth tears of any sort is entirely a matter of opinion.

The women know when they rush that only a certain number can make a given organization. Some are going to be disappointed from the start. No doubt some girls are turned down by the coveted Greek crowd for reasons that are not reasons, but most often on this campus it is likely that girls are turned away for lack of space and vacancies in the Greek house. When applicants are greater in number than vacancies, a choice has to be made. Somebody is going to be left out.

AT THIS POINT the weeping begins. And at this point the Flambeau photographers are eyed with deep suspecion. It, apparently, is felt that our lensmen are out to add to the misery of rejection by shooting the exultant winners with a backdrop of weeping losers. Not so.

We don't pretend that there are no crying coeds, but our idea of a picture story on the issuance of sorority bids is not to embarrass or further humiliate some coed who didn't get in the sorority she hoped for.

IT IS DOUBTFUL that a Flambeau photographer would walk up and ask some bawling girl to step off the edge of the world for a moment so he could get a clear shot of exultant comrades. He'd just wait another few minutes and shoot a couple of the happier screamers as they chant at each other, "we're sisters."

That's what made it hard to believe that our staff was asked to photograph no coed in the bid pick-up area that did not look happy beyond all doubt. Further, a guardian was dispatched to Longmire from further up the hill to see that we did as we were asked.

THE RESULT was one of the most awful pictures ever to appear in the pages of the Flambeau, and we know how bad they have been before with no help from anybody.

We don't think that our photographers really need lovely companions to direct their assignments. No doubt they enjoy the company of a pretty administrative aide, but it takes their minds off their focus.

End Zone Follies, 1961

The quarrel over two extra cheerleaders has little to do with the cheerleaders themselves. They are merely the people who stood to be hurt had Senate demanded that two megaphones be dropped.

THE ACTUAL DECISION of whether to increase the cheerleaders squad by two is, of course, a very small decision that ordinarily should have taken perhaps fifteen or twenty minutes of Senate time.

The argument has been over the method by which the girls chosen as cheerleaders were placed in an eminently embarrassing position.

THE CHEERLEADERS have nothing to fear now. Senate, if a group of twelve or thirteen individuals can thruthfully be called "Senate," has seen fit to legalize and subsidize the entire production, End Zone Follies of 1961. The aforementioned multitude took the issue to heart Wednesday and absolved everyone of everything.

The real loser has been Senate. Senate has the budgetary power, but that power was used in a manner that will sent the cheerleader's budget into the red without Senate consent. We wonder of the Opera Guild or the Debate Team had pulled a similar stunt, whether Senate might not have reversed the 10-2 vote recorded Wednesday in favor of retaining the extra cheerleaders.

SENATE LOSES in the eyes of the students who have watched the whole mess unfold. The student body is aware that power was wrongfully used. While Senate did not initiate the furor in any way, it will have to absorb the blame for anything which has ensued.

Now that Senate has the weighty issue of two hoarse coeds out of its hair, it might get down to business of doing something about the antiquated procedures that allow a dozen people to make decisions for weeks on end that are rightfully the decisions of some forty-plus persons. A newly elected senator should be seated in Senate as a voting member the next meeting following his election. We vote for representation; for a change let's have it.

TO GIVE CREDIT where credit is due, two voting members of senate had the unheard of nerve to go against the usual united, unanimous front Senate often presents. That means that there must be two people in Senate who regard it as just a bit more than the Wednesday afternoon circle smirk.

LP

From The End Zone...

After all the controversy about the addition of two cheerleaders to the existing ten provided for in the cheerleader's constitution, the cheerleaders would like to attempt to clarify matters with the student body.

Since the Gainesville game is such a big one, we did not feel that six cheerleaders would be adequate to lead the abounding spirit of Florida State University. Therefore, tryouts would have to twel held before the Gainesville game Unfortunately senate was not scheduled to meet in time to pass a bill providing for the two extra cheerleaders the squad deemed necessary.

Not knowing what to do, our only alternative was to consult with the President of the student body. Bobby Byrd. On his advice, the cheerleaders got an unofficial consensus of the senators, of which none of the senators consulted were against. Consequently tryouts were held and six cheerleaders elected. We felt it was necessary to increase the squad from ten to twelve, because we needed the two extra cheerleaders to help in stretching across the stands and also to help in the end zone which adds so much to the school spirit.

One of the major issues involved in this addition of two cheerleaders is money. The opinion seems to be that more money will be needed this year than originally allowed. It costs no more to have two extra cheerleaders for home games aside from two uniforms which cost $33.00. However, our budget for this year was increased $100.00 more than last year. As you can see, we certainly should be well able to stay inside our budget.

The bill for a squad of twelve cheerleaders has passed senate. We are elated and thankful for this. If there are still those who feel that the cheerleaders have usurped the power of senate, let it be known that we did as unwittingly.

Our whole purpose was to increase the school spirit We firmly believe as your cheerleaders that the additional girls to the squad will serve as a means to the end: that end being more school spirit for a great university.

Do We March Faithfully To A-Hell?

By JERRY RINGER

Dr. DeBusk's statement, as quoted in last Friday's Flambeau, is a classic of contemporary unscientism:

"DR. DE BUSK and others feel that it is logical to suppose that certain areas of the earth will be affected less by fallout than others, but sooner or later this radiation in the atmosphere will find its way over the entire surface. However, due to less intensity in some regions and the size of the human populace, man will survive somewhere, and through evolution adapt himself to meet new requirements for existence."

Does the doctor know that, at procurement rates as scheduled through 1966, we will have stockpiled 1,000 tons of uranium by 1970? At the rate of about 110 pounds of U-235 per one-megaton bomb, this quantity could make a roaring hull of earth many times over.

HE GRANTS that an atomic war would result in the gradual implantation of radioactive garbage over the entire face of the earth, with the reservation that intensities will vary.

Has he considered that the major powers alone hold over 5,000 nuclear devices? Is it not conceivable that these could render even the areas of least radiation fatal to man? What reasonable bearing then would it be "size of human populace"—or even its geographic spread—have on the question?

For the past two years insiders have intimated us that the United States alone holds bombs equivalent in explosive force to ten tons of TNT per human being on earth. Given a quantity of garbage and universal distribution, the half-life factor, unmentioned by Dr. DeBusk, would become a key factor; and "dirty bombs" can yield fallout of up to 5,000 years half-life.

TO STATE unequivocally that "man will survive somewhere and through evolution adapt" is a mere hopeful prayer—idle speculation. Otherwise, the doctor would tell us where "man would survive." This would enable us to go there now, before our leaders get pushed by Dr. DeBusk's readers into taking the cosmic misstep.

In suggesting that nuclear war necessarily will not produce "inhuman creatures," Dr. DeBusk pontificates about an area of knowledge that man has only begun to explore. We actually do not know enough about the rapid mutation of human genes to make such statements.

MANKIND EVOLVED, we believe, from "inhuman forms," and need not necessarily be a blind alley in nature's byways. Post World War III radiation, if it failed to exterminate man as would probably accelerate man's evolution abnormally, terrifically.

It is conceivable that war, and its probable resultant, increased radiation levels, could evolve tattered remnants of humanity, through time, into an animal less than man. The arts and sciences —including biology—could disappear from the face of the universe. Such retrogression has been dubbed "devolution" by biologists conversant of the full range of possibilities in the Atomic might of the soul.

When the President tells the peoples of the world that we must find peace or perish in earth's flames, that should be a clue to Dr. DeBusks that they do not have the whole picture. Perhaps an Air Force pilot on campus would be willing to explain things to this man. The fact is, nobody can know in advance what would happen.

AT ROOT, he is exposing the biologist's simple faith that biological organization inexorably evolve. But this faith inflates the hapless reader: it leads to the acceptance of nuclear holocaust in the saccharine hope that humankind will adjust to living in a world full of radioactive rubble and poisoned wreckage. Bernalies the unintentional-yet-abysmal fraudulence of such writing: it creates hope at a meaningless level that cannot be recognized as meaningless by the unreflecting reader. We march faithfully to atomic destruction.

Those who wish to learn more about the biological implications of thermonuclear war might look into the Accident, by Desmar Masters; Fallout, edited by John Fowler; the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists; and, just-published, Is Place of Folly, by the perceptive Norman Cousins.

Every scholar, in writing about atomic war at this late hour, should conclude his remarks by emphasizing the presumption, the immorality—nay, the obscenity—of man in rationalizing his contemplated betrayal of nature and the leveling of civilization.

Coma, Girl Nimble Maniac

By LESLIE POWELL

Coma passed into the Soda Shop, staggered, upset several tables, lost her toupee, and flopped down in a steaming heap gasping for breath.

When she had regained her composure and had settled herself into her clothing, she dragged out an enormous watch and laid it in full view across her table.

I NOTICED HER books were stacked neatly beside her regular table, and her toothbrush stood upright in a glass. To all appearances she had moved in for keeps.

"Coma," I said. "What . . ."

"Back in ten minutes," she yelled, and holled for the door. Next somebody called me to make up their minds who has ticket privileges on that thruway.

"I WONDER WHO one has to see to get a parking ticket concession on this campus. I could give up my standing as a hoodess and become a teenage millionairess. I could give swinging parties with gallons of Ovaltine and prune juice. I could afford the finest of leotards and maybe even a nice pair of silver spurs. I could become with Western Cattle society and maybe even get to keep books in the bank or lift the phone for somebody's secretary."

Coma was off in a dream world now, counting the money paid out in traffic ticket fines. You could look into her great vacant eyes and hear the sweet murmuring of great sheafs of green, free money; hear the clink of nice ringing silver.

"I COULD . . . I could . . . Oh!" she yelled, "It's that time again," and she leaped up and charged out, bowling over several librarians on coffee break.

"My goodness," one of the ladies said, picking herself up. "I haven't been hit that hard since the Merriam Webster unabridged dictionary fell on me."

And she bit the dust again as her companion shouted "Sheesh Gert, I forgot to check for chalk marks myself," and charged off, leaping shrubs like a nimble maniac.

Art Field Controversial, Not Immune To Criticism

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

My column of Tuesday was intended as a defense of the fine arts at FSU. Instead, it sounded like a clumsy attack. This was caused by my own inept writing, some editing necessitated by limited space, and by my desire to provide discussion and interest in the subject.

MY CONCERN for the arts at FSU was mainly motivated by the apparently continued neglect of facilities. In 1953, a Fine Arts Building was high on the construction priority list, but it has been repeatedly shunted aside in favor of more science structures. Now of the three instances in facilities at the other state universities brought home with more urgency the need to have the fine arts from a fate similar to that suffered by journalism at FSU.

Meanwhile, the Art Department is doing a good job of making the best of the facilities it has. Nevertheless, there is a definite need for a building designed for the arts. Especially pressing are the needs of a gallery suitable for touring national exhibitions, and the need for a museum and outstanding art library to permit a proper study in depth of art history.

EVENTUALLY, consideration should be given to the establishment of a program in the field of architecture as a complement to the fine arts field. There are two schools of thought concerning the training of architects. The University of Florida represents the technical approach in which the students are concerned with the finest details of construction and materials. The liberal arts approach, on the other hand, emphasizes art, design, and aesthetics, leaving such matters as the tensile strength of structural steel to the construction engineers.

This approach is not offered in this state, and FSU could thus perform a unique service—as it does in engineering science — by offering a liberal arts-oriented program in architecture and design.

CONCERNING the members of the faculty—there is little doubt that they are outstanding in the fields of their interest. Many have raised significant academic attention on the national scene. As I said previously, all are capable. I do not intend to downgrade the faculty in the Arts in any way. I merely urge its expansion, with particular attention to attracting people from outside the South—people as outstanding in painting and sculpture as Dr. Dohnanyi was in music.

As for the students, I will hopefully listen to their opinions of themselves, but for now I will stand by the generalizations and remarks previous remarks.

THERE ARE ALWAYS exceptions to generalizations, but the fact remains that most FSU students degradautes outside the field are ignorant of and contemptuous of the arts. The humanities courses are doing nothing to remedy this. As long as this situation continues, it will be a blot on the record and reputation of the whole university.

Finally, to those majoring in art: I didn't mean it. I just think you're cute when you get riled up. But as you progress onward and upward in art, don't expect immunity from criticism, for you are entering one of the most controversial and important fields of human endeavor.

Zerbe's Calibre Cited

TO THE EDITOR:

As a graduate student of the Art Department at Florida State University I should like to comment on one aspect of the article written by Robert Sanchez, which appeared in the October 3 issue of the Flambeau.

Mr. Sanchez states that there are no artists of national calibre teaching at Florida State University. This is untrue. There are two or three members who would be recognized as nationally known artists of quality, but one must admit that there is neither of international stature. That such a man should be at FSU is quite surprising and Karl Zerbe lives, paints and teaches here.

How can we say he is international known? Zerbe was born in Berlin and studied in Munich. He lived in Paris and became a nationally known German artist in his twenties. In 1935 he settled in the United States as a political refugee and quickly became head of the Boston Museum School of Fine Arts. He reintroduced to artists the long forgotten technique of Encaustic painting. He experimented in various plastic media and is a master of such techniques. A list of collections which include his paintings may perhaps show his acclaim. I shall mention just a few: Addison Gallery of American Art; Metropolitan Museum of Art; Museum of Modern Art, New York, and Whitney Museum of American Art.

The Ford Foundation awarded him a retrospective exhibition now currently travelling the USA, which will continue until 1963. He has been invited to exhibit in Israel next year with four other internationally known painters and will visit that country to give a series of lectures. An exhibition of his works will travel through Switzerland, Germany, Holland and England next year. Copies of Karl Zerbe's catalogs with a biography and reproductions of his works may be obtained from local bookstores.

Perhaps you are not quite convinced of the calibre of this man, Mr. Sanchez. May I offer a personal experience.

I am an English national and have studied for nine years in England and Germany. I have won various scholarships including a Prix de Rome award and a Fulbright scholarship. And yet I felt that I could make a six thousand mile visit to study under Karl Zerbe.

Mr. Sanchez perhaps you should review your articles for other inaccuracies a little obvious to us in the Art department. It may be better in the future for you to appologize.

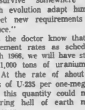
Letters Policy



Flambeau readers are reminded once again of the policy controlling the publication of letters to the editor.

All letters addressed to the editor and expected to appear in the Flambeau must bear the writer's signature. A printed name is not acceptable.

Letters should be kept to a 250 word maximum. This preferred length will be adhered to. Space often requires that even shorter letters must be cut before publication.

Equality Despite Favor Handicap

Roy Bickford, John Harllee and the Seminole Company did a service to the university as a whole with their 3-3 equilization of the University of Florida in last weekend's heart-stopper.

For these gentlemen overcame considerable delicits to achieve equality on the gridiron.

They were hurt. Top players like Gene Roberts could not even get in the game. Doug Messer, number one kicker, was out with a boil on his kicking foot. Fred Grimes played with a cast on his hand.

But an untried place kicker provided the necessary points and an underrated defensive specialist led the tribe to an inspired effort.

* * * * *

Financially the two universities are not even in the same class, grid-wise. UF has a multiplicity of alumni, boosters, and ticket sales to provide an almost unlimited supply of cash for the Gator till.

Florida is equally well off in many areas of academic pursuit. If state hands have their choice, Florida will always get first pick of anything it wants. The Legislators refer to "our glorious University of Florida" on the floor of the Senate and their UF loyalty can be attested to by FSU.

Still, in many areas of university activity, Florida State has been able to do what the Seminoles did—equalize or surpass, despite handicaps.

* * * * *

It has been a tough job arguing, begging, and fighting with words for buildings, courses, and monies in the past. Many times, FSU has had to go to the federal government for assistance when the state could not be prodded.

The situation promises to get tougher before it gets easier. If indeed, it ever does become easier.

The many new junior colleges, designed for mass education, will help greatly to relieve the universities of second rate students. But they will also grab a great many of the resources need for quality education by the universities.

* * * * *

But the equalizing trend of the two state universities is at least one encouraging sign. The money left over from the JC's at least might eventually be used.

Of course, equality will not come easily, nor by voluntary action of the State Legislature. But elected officials are sensitive to the people of the state. These are the people who are beginning to recognize equality.

The football game aided this among the rank and file. It received more headlines and publicity than almost anything else Florida State could do. It familiarized voters of the state with the vigor and drive which characterizes FSU in every facet.

As Seminole trainer Don Fauls said after the game, "We don't have much, but what we have is damn good."

This is the epithet for the whole of Florida State University.

CHALLENGE!

Can we meet the new competition?

"In the forty years that have elapsed since its Revolution, Russia has devoted a far larger portion of its gross national product to education than have we. As a result of this intense commitment to education on the part of the Soviets, we as a nation are presented for the first time with a challenge to our leadership in all of the values that we cherish.

"If we rightly interpret the significance of this event, our first reaction of dismay and consternation will herald a rededication of ourselves to the best that we have learned from our first century of educational effort. We have a longer and a stronger tradition, greater resources in depth and diversity, a freedom of enterprise, and a talent for innovation which can all combine to more than redress the present balance and carry us to new heights of educational accomplishment if we display the requisite wisdom and determination."

GAYLORD P. HARNWELL
President, University of Pennsylvania

For further details of what this can mean to you and your children write HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36—Times Square Station, N.Y. 36, N.Y.

WE CAN AND MUST MATCH THEIR ZEAL—because our strength as a nation will depend on how we treasure and build our educational assets. Yet the hard facts are these:

1. Low salaries are not only driving gifted college teachers into other fields but are steadily reducing the number of qualified people who choose college teaching as a career.

2. Many college classrooms are already overcrowded yet in less than two years entrance applications will double in number.

You can help in this crisis, one of the gravest in our history. Support the college or university of your choice —now!

Mono Proved Beneficial For Grad Student Lanza

Sal A. Lanza

By MARY ELLEN HARRIS
Flambeau Feature Editor

A bout with mononucleosis and a recuperation period in New York turned out to be the best thing that ever happened to Sal Lanza.

Lanza, a graduate student at Florida State University was "recuperating" in New York when he met the stage manager and the choreographer with whom he had worked at the Rye Music Theatre, Rye, N. Y., during summer stock productions. After that, according to Lanza, "doors began to open."

In Lanza's case, the doors opened to the point where he was hailed as "New York's youngest professional production stage manager." The production which brought Lanza so much renown was a musical revue entitled "Greenwich Village, U. S. A." and acclaimed by the critics as "a real bang—a certain hit" and a "fast, friendly, spirited, gay revue."

Curtain time found Lanza at his usual post just off stage, ready to cope with any emergency or problem that may arise. "Any emergency is the word for it," Lanza remarked to a Westchester paper. In one performance, an actress who was supposed to run offstage and quickly run back on shedding an outer garment stopped just as she was about to return to the stage—she had forgotten the undergarment!

It took quick thinking on Lanza's part to convince the girl to stick her head out from the wings and adjust her dress to fit the occasion.

In another instance, Lanza told about his responsibility to keep people away from the back stage area and how, zealously executing his responsibility, he almost punched Gower Champon in the nose.

Fortunately, Lanza had had a great deal of experience with the stage, after spending several summers in various capacities with the Rye Theatre. As technical director, he was responsible for housing the cast, directing the apprentices, supervising the scenery and costume changes during each performance and appointing the tent and ushering area. As a performer, he appeared in "Fanny," "Carousel," "The Most Happy Fella," "Li'l Abner," "Ziegfeld Follies," and "Brigadoon."

In his "spare time," Lanza has worked as a professional model in New York, posing for advertising shots from clothing to shaving lotion.

Television commercials have also entered into Lanza's varied career as he extolled the virtues of products such as Mohawk Rugs and Gillette blue blades.

His voice, as well as his face, had been broadcast nationally. While a student at New York University, Lanza had his voice recorded for the Airborne Television instruction program in which he introduced elementary science programs broadcast nationally each week to third grade students.

Lanza is a member of Actor's Equity and Screen Actor's Guild.

Lanza hopes to receive his masters in radio-TV and humanities from FSU this June. He attended FSU for three years before he went to New York. During those years he was president of Cavaliers, men's dance honorary, governor of West Hall and a member of the Gymkana team. He serves his fraternity, Delta Tau Delta in several offices.

Bickford Picked 'Back Of Week'

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

Roy Bickford, acclaimed as the most valuable player of the day during the FSU-Fla. game was named as "Back of the Week" by the Florida Sports Writers Association last Mon.

The 21-year-old senior from Miami won the honor by unanimous selection for being the most outstanding player during the Fla. conflict.

Bickford, defensive quarterback and captain of the Renegades, blocked an early punt and intercepted two passes to lead FSU to a 21-0 victory over Florida.

According to the sports writers, Bickford was accredited with six individual tackles and several assists.

Bickford's runnerup were Florida's Lindy Infante and Tampa's Tom Caldwell.

Monday afternoon at practice Bickford was told he had been named. That's a "fine honor," Bickford said calmly. "It's not anything that happens every day."

The 178-lb. quarterback graduated from Archbishop Curley High in Miami. He only played one year of high school football.

"I didn't think I weighed enough my junior year," Bickford said. "I waited until my senior year to see if I could gain some weight." Graduating at 145 pounds Bickford stated, "Nobody offered me a scholarship."

Bickford did not try to play football during the fall of his freshman year, but decided to try out for spring practice. "I weighed 160 pounds and I decided to give it a try."

"Jerry Moss gave me a scholarship before he quit his position," Bickford said. "I wanted to play my home quarterback but I like playing defensive now."

After viewing the films of the Florida game Bickford said, "The Renegades did a fine job. We were determined to win after last year when we were beaten by a field goal. I was fortunate in that our line's rushing pressured Florida into making some costly mistakes," stated Bickford.

Looking forward to the Mississippi game Bickford said, "Last week we made some mistakes and let some pass receivers get in back of us. If this happens against Mississippi they will beat us for they won't give us a second chance," stated Bickford.

Seminoles Meet Miss. Tomorrow

Nation's Number Two Power Hosts Florida State At Hemingway Stadium

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

Florida State faces the number two football machine of the nation tomorrow afternoon at Oxford Mississippi.

The "Ol' Miss Rebs", Southeastern Conference champs of 1960, host the Seminoles in Hemingway Stadium at 2 p.m. (CST).

Entering the game both teams will be sporting a spotless record. "Ol' Miss" boasting impressive victories over highly ranked Arkansas 16-0 and top - notch Southeastern Conference foe Kentucky 20-6.

The only score "Ol' Miss" has given up is a pair of Kentucky field goals. The Rebels have yet to let a team cross their goal line.

The Seminoles have given up a touchdown and a field goal. The touchdown came during the George Washington campaign which FSU won 15-7. The field goal was the one that produced a 3-3 tie against the Florida Gators.

The Rebels lost all but four of their starting line up by the graduation route. As Coach Johnny Vaught said at the beginning of spring practice, "Our graduation losses are the severest we've experienced from the standpoint of both quality and quantity. Ole' Miss will be missing its All-American Quarterback, Jack Gibbs."

Vaught stated five major losses. They are:

1. Gibbs at quarterback.
2. The starting backfield with particular mention to the defensive ability of Boss Anderson.
3. Along with Gibbs' throwing skill choice backfield targets and ends Johnny Brewer and Jerry Daniels the Rebels will have a definite passing problem.
4. Seasoned Lineman who had started for two and three seasons.
5. The punting of Gibbs and the field goal and conversion kicking of Allen Green.

The Seminoles have been rated a three touchdown underdog. According to Coach Peterson, "The big thing is Iowa and Ole Miss battling it out for first. If they ever get us down, they'll really pour the points on us."

The Rebels have a considerable weight advantage in the line. The Seminoles will average about 18-pounds-per-man lighter than their southern host.

Although the Rebels are missing Gibbs at quarterback, the backfield receivers and two ends, there should be plenty of passing by a capable quarterback Doug Elmore.

Four of Mississippi's last five touchdowns came as a result of Ole Miss's aerial attack.

Coach Peterson said, "I don't care what anybody says. You have to have a passing attack to move the football against a team like Mississippi." FSU has the potential passing ability in both of its quarterbacks.

To aid the Seminoles in ground gaining will be Gene Roberts who was injured during the George Washington game. However, it is doubtful if Marion Roberts will be able to play. Roberts sprained his ankle during the Florida game.

Donatelli, Klesius Lead Llne

When the Florida State Seminoles meet the "Rebels" of "Ol' Miss" in Hemingway Stadium in Oxford, Mississippi Saturday afternoon, the two players shown here—Don Donatelli (left) and Steve Klesius — will be among the mainstays in the capable Seminole forward wall. Both are seniors, 20 years old, and play the right and left tackle positions, respectively.

Donatelli (75) is a six-foot two inch, 233 pound native of football from Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. In his third year as a starting lineman for the Seminole Varsity, he was a center on the Frosh eleven.

Teaming up with Donatelli as a "bull" of the interior line will be six-foot one-inch, 220 pound, Steve Klesius, (73), a former All-State player from St. Petersburg. Cited by Coach Peterson as doing "a fine job for us on defense" against the Gators last week, Klesius is a strong, experienced player.

FSU Track, Golf, Baseball Squads Hold Full Practices

Baseball, golf and track training sessions are getting underway as many athletes report to their specialty squads for fall practice.

Coach Litwhiler Danny Litwhiler believes his 1962 team will be a strong one again this coming year, though it will suffer from the loss of nine lettermen who will not return from last season's squad.

But with eleven returning lettermen, Coach Litwhiler expects to have a choice of players calculated to make a strong backbone for his schedule.

Returning players of proven dependability include Hal Mangin, first base, Roger Zimmerman, second base, Kyle Spitzer, third base; Woody Woodward or George Ferguson, shortstop.

Catcher Buddy Teagles, pitchers Ray McShane, Frank Echols, John Tucker, Tommy Davis and Jack Rose, plus outfielders Bob Madison, Dwight Smith, Doug French and Gary Elliott complete the roster of returning players.

Coach Litwhiler will be looking strongly towards a new transfer from Manatee JC—Larry Hawkins. Hawkins beat the Florida Freshman three times last year with his pitching.

All in all, Litwhiler hopes his team will again "be one of the top teams in the nation for 1962."

Golf Coach Bill Odeneal got his golf teams underway Oct. 1, with both varsity and freshmen golfers working out at the Tallahassee Country Club.

Odeneal said that this was the largest turnout of prospective golfers in the history of the FSU team.

Beginning Monday, Odeneal initiates a 144 hole, 8 round tournament which will be the fall work out for his players.

Five top varsity lettermen who are returning are Brian Bergerson, Dave Phiol, Manny Nardone, Dave Oustead and Chuck Keating.

Others who are expected to see plenty of tee action are Roger Kennedy, Dick Ross and Dick Whitmire.

Coach Mike Long's track team begins full practice Monday with a sizeable number of cindermen reporting for workout.

Team strength will depend mainly on sprinters Craig Johnson, Quinton Till, Bill Davis and John Brockamith.

Bill Welch, Bill Davis and Terry Long are expected to show the way over the hurdles.

Returning lettermen in the field events who are expected to be key men are: Pole Vault, Ed Hayes and Franklin Ford; High Jump, George Smith and Mike Olivero; Broad Jump, Herb Kraft and Gene Giddens; Shot Put, Discus and Javelin, Jeff Clark and Barry Topper.

Intramural Competition

Basketball Action Begins With Greek, Dorm Play

By SHIRLEY HARDISON
Flambeau Sports Writer

Basketball and volleyball intramurals began this week with more than ever participating in the events.

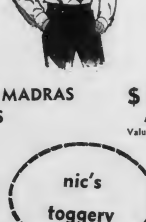
Fraternities, sororities, dorms and the independents are beginning to shape up teams, coaches, and the practice scheduling.

Monday night was the first night for basketball and eleven teams were on the floor at one time or another.

The results from Monday night in the Garnet and Gold Leagues had Phi Delta Theta over Sigma Phi Epsilon 48-40, Lambda Chi Alpha over Sigma Alpha Epsilon 51-47, Kappa Alpha over Alpha Tau Omega 35-31, Delta Chi over Sigma Chi 40-32, Theta Chi over Pi Kappa Phi 49-35 and Delta Tau Delta over Sigma Nu 49-36.

In the dorms and Independent league, the P.E. Majors Club was victorious over the Baptist Student Union 49-45 while the Geology Club won over West Hall by a forfeit.

Wesley Founnation also won by a forfeit by the Dean of Men's Staff. Yankee Doodlers beat the Celts 62-19 and Alpha Kappa Psi was victorious over the Foundation Scholarship Organization 35-27.



Tuesday night the schedule was not as full with only the independent playing. The P.E. Majors Club, the Geology Club, and the Yankee Doodlers were the repeating winners. Their wins were over West Hall, the Foundation Scholarship Organization and the Dean of Men's Staff respectively. The Newman's Club forfeited to the Celts and Kellum beat Wesley 43-31.

Day students are encouraged to participate in the intramurals program. If there aren't enough for one team, they will play either on one of the dorm teams or as independent.

In the Garnet League the leading scorer was Allee who had 22 points Monday night. So far this is the highest score made in the intramurals this season. Jim Hill was the leading scorer in the Gold League. Hill had 17 points. Allee played for the Phi Delta Theta team while Hill was a member of the Delta Chi fraternity.

SAIL ON, SAIL ON!

I suppose October 12 is just another day to you. You get up in the ordinary way and do all the ordinary things you ordinarily do. You have your breakfast, you walk your coelot, you go to classes, you write home for money, you burn the dean in effigy, you watch Howdy-Doody, and you go to bed. And do you give one little thought to the fact that October 12 is Columbus Day? No, you do not.

Nobody thinks about Columbus these days. Let us, therefore, pause for a moment and retell his ever-glorious, endlessly stirring saga.

Columbus never wanted to clap eyes on a horse again...

Christopher Columbus was born in Genoa on August 25, 1451. His father, Ralph T. Columbus, was in the three-minute auto wash game. His mother, Eleanor (Swifty) Columbus, was a sprinter. Christopher was an only child, except for his four brothers and ei, it sisters. With his father busy all day at the auto wash and his mother constantly way at track meets, young Columbus was left pretty much to his own devices. However, the lad did not sulk or brood. He was an avid reader and spent all his waking hours immersed in a book. Unfortunately, there was only one book in Genoa at the time—Care of the Horse by Aristotle—and after several years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus grew restless. So when rumor reached him that there was another book in Barcelona, of he ran as fast as his fat little legs would carry him.

The rumor, alas, proved false. The only book in Barcelona was Cuidar un Caballo by Aristotle, which proved to be nothing more than a Spanish translation of Care of the Horse.

Bitterly disappointed, Columbus began to dream of going to India where, according to legend, there were thousands of books. But the only way to go to India was on horseback, and after so many years of reading Care of the Horse, Columbus never wanted to clap eyes on a horse again. Then a new thought struck him: perhaps it was possible to get to India by sea!

Fired with his revolutionary idea, Columbus set out to race to the court of Ferdinand and Isabella on his little fat legs (Columbus, though six feet tall, was plagued with little fat legs all his life) and pleaded his case with such fervor that the rulers were persuaded.

On October 12, 1492, Columbus set foot on the New World. The following year he returned to Spain with a cargo of wonders never before seen in Europe—spices and metals and plants and flowers and—most wondrous of all—tobacco! Oh, what a sensation tobacco caused in Europe! The filter had long since been invented (by Aristotle, curiously enough) but nobody knew what to do with it. Now Columbus, the Great Discoverer, made still another great discovery: he took a filter, put tobacco in front of it, and invented the world's first filter cigarette!

Through the centuries filters have been steadily improved and so has tobacco, until today we have achieved the ultimate in the filter cigarette—Marlboro, of course! Oh, what a piece of work is Marlboro! Great tobacco, great filter, great smoke! And so, good friends, when next you enjoy a fine Marlboro Cigarette, give a thought to the plucky Genoese, Christopher Columbus, whose vision and perseverance made the whole lovely thing possible.

Deadline Of October 23 Set On Fulbright Forms

The deadline for completion of application forms for Fulbright Fellowships is Oct. 23.

Prospective applicants should see Dr. Albert LeDuc, Fulbright advisor, this week.

General requirements for the fellowships are that the student have a study project which is appropriate to the country concerned, the student must have a working knowledge of the language of the country in which he wishes to study (this usually means that he must have had three or four years of language study in college), he must have a bachelor's degree by the time he enters the program, he must be a U.S. citizen and in good health.

The amount of the stipends vary but all include travel expenses from New York to and from the country involved, living expenses and university costs for the year of study. The average value of the fellowships is about $2,500, Dr. LeDuc said. However, the prestige value of being a Fulbright scholar makes receipt of a fellowship worth a great deal more, said the advisor.

Twenty Countries

About 20 countries are included under the program through bilateral agreements between the U.S. and the foreign governments. Under the agreements the U.S. provides the money for the fellowships and the countries the facilities.

Principle countries involved and the number of fellowships awarded last year are France, 155; West Germany, 132; Italy, 63; United Kingdom, 100, and Spain, 27.

The competition for the fellowships is generally quite stiff, said Dr. LeDuc. There are eliminations made at the local, state and national level before the remaining applications are sent to the countries involved for further consideration.

Gilbert Fernandez was a Fulbright winner from Florida State University last year He is currently studying history in Spain.

Run-Offs

Both Freshman Class and precinct Senate run-off elections were postponed until Tuesday by Student Senate meeting in special session yesterday as the FLAMBEAU went to press. Polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday, at Westcott, Bryan Hall, the Seminole Club, the Library, the Student Center and West (Smith) Hall.

Cheerleading . . .

man, and "there is no room for the law," he ended, requesting the Senate to examine the case by itself.

Kuttler, noting that it was a very emotional plea and that the cheerleaders were an cute as "stuffed teddy-bears," pointed out that the cheerers needed a better microphone system far more than additional members.

The question of precedence is much more important, and two additional cheerleaders take additional finances," were his chief points. "Maybe not now, but next year they will require more money," said the men's vice president.

STRICT ECONOMIZING

He did not approve of strict economizing. "I want to see our cheerleaders go first class, and not eat at hamburger stands!" he said.

Cheerleading representatives said they had consulted with Student Body President Bobby Byrd, who suggested they poll the Senators before electing the additional cheerers.

They also pointed out that the alternates would be used in the end zones of home games and would not necessarily go to out-of-town games.

Vice Presidents Champion and Kuttler again urged passage of the amendment in order to avoid embarrassment and disappointing four girls.

Sen. Nancy Sindon said, after Sen. Ferlita urged defeating the amendment, "The Senate is being pushed into this situation; we are being baited into thinking this is an issue; I move to defeat the amendment."

The amendment then dies when 10 senators voted "no." The bill passed with the same vote.

FSU To Get $500 Grant

A $500 scholarship to an outstanding senior who is a major in radio-television was established at the Florida Association of Broadcasters' board meeting in Jacksonville last weekend.

The scholarship will be given to a student from Florida State University, University of Miami or the University of Florida. The applicant does not have to be a legal resident of Florida. He must, however, be a third year student, majoring in broadcasting.

The details of application are currently being worked out by a special committee of the Florida Broadcasters. This information will be forwarded to the universities so that eligible candidate may make their application. The deadline is Dec. 1.

The scholarship award winner will be invited to the FAB annual convention in June, as an all-expense-paid guest. The scholarship will be presented at the annual banquet by the president.

Thomas Wright, director of radio-television instruction for FSU, attended the FAB board meeting in Jacksonville at their invitation. He congratulated the Florida broadcasters on establishing the scholarships for radio-television majors.

Wright also emphasized that this action was a forward step in bringing about closer cooperation between the broadcast industry and the academic department of radio-televisiion at Florida universities.

Stolen Key Cause Rumor Of Elections Tampering

By JOAN ABBOTT
and
LESLIE POWELL
Flambeau Staff Writers

A missing set of keys has touched off speculation on whether or not an attempt was made to tamper with ballots from last Tuesday's election, after they were counted and stored.

According to Nancy Sill, secretary of elections, the key to the closet in which the ballots were stored and a key to Longmire Bldg. were stolen early Wednesday evening from the Cabinet Office.

At this time it was believed that a re-count of the ballots might have to be made because of errors in posted results of the election had been discovered. However, later it was discovered that the error had been made in the coding of the results, and recoding of the IBM tabulations was necessary and a recount of the ballots.

BACK OF CABINET

The keys were placed in the back of the filing cabinet drawer in the Cabinet Office on the fourth floor of the Longmire Bldg. at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday, by Miss Sill and Jerry Browning, an executive committee of the elections committee.

Browning, who operates the IBM machines for the committee, was to contact Dr. Howard Stoker, assistant director of test services, and return with him to check the IBM ballot sheets in order to trace the error.

When he couldn't contact Dr. Stoker he returned to Longmire at about 8:30 p.m. Finding the office dark, Browning says he went down to the lobby where he met Ted Wilkinson, another member of the elections committee.

They went back up stairs and discovered that the keys were missing from the cabinet. The day before, Wilkinson had kept the keys in the same cabinet when he was distributing blank ballots to Sophomore Councilors to take to the polls. However, no one other than Browning and herself knew that the keys had been returned there Wednesday afternoon, Miss Sill said.

Since Miss Sill was in a class and could not be contacted, Women's Vice President Myanon Champion and Chief Justice of Honor Court Dan Walbolt were consulted by the two elections committee members.

MOVED BALLOTS

The group decided to move the ballots at about 9:45 p.m. Miss Jane Adams, director of Longmire, unlocked the closet where the ballots were stored and under the supervision of the Chief Justice placed the ballots in the projection room above Longmire Auditorium behind two locked doors.

When the ballots were moved, the committee members said that they could not be sure whether or not any of the ballots were missing. Actually 12 ballots had been removed by the committee earlier, to be used as proof that the posted results were in error. Whether any additional ones were missing from the stacks of ballots remains unknown.

LOCKED IN CENTER

Later in the week, the ballots were moved again and locked up in the testing center.

The only way tampering could be proved conclusively would be to re-count all of the ballots, a move which is not deemed necessary at this time, according to elections officials. The results as published in Friday's Flambeau are final and accurate and even if tampering were proven, the election would not be affected in any way, since any tampering would have taken place after the official count.

The only reason we keep ballots is in case some one contests the election," said Miss Sill. No one has contested the election, according to Walbolt.

After Tuesday's erroneous election results were posted, the committee has decided not to post any partial results in the future.

Legislative Recognition Is Saturday

The annual Legislative Recognition Day, sponsored jointly by Florida State University and the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, will be this Saturday.

Activities for the day will begin with a coffee at 10:30 a.m. on the terrace in back of the Music Bldg. honoring the President of the Senate and Mrs. Randolf Hodges. Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Chappel and the Tallahassee delegation and their wives. Sen. and Mrs. Wilson Carraway, Rep. and Mrs. Mallory Horne and Rep. and Mrs. Dick Mitchell.

After the coffee, the legislators and their wives will attend a program in Opperman Music Hall. Dr. Sidney Fox, director of the new Institute of Space Biophysics, will make the main address at the program. Dr. Wiley Housewright is in charge of the musical portion of the program.

The legislators, the cabinet, members of the State Supreme Court, the Board of Control members and their wives will be the guests of the Chamber of Commerce and FSU at a barbeque at Tully Gymnasium at 12:30.

Tickets to the barbecue have also been sold to townspeople by the Chamber.

The Chamber of Commerce will entertain the guests for the day at a social hour and buffet at 4:30 p.m. at the Country Club.

Following the buffet, the guests will be brought to Campbell Stadium by bus for the FSU-Georgia football game.

Action Due: 100 students Used ID Cards Illegally

The Office of the Internal Auditor has discovered a discrepancy between the number of tickets issued for the George Washington football game and the number returned to the university.

Students received instructions with their photo ID's to do the new procedure being used for student activities this year. Despite the warning, however, the auditor has stated that 78 to 100 students evidently used the one ticket with the new ticket system.

Notices have been sent to students who illegally secured two or more tickets to the George Washington game, asking them to report to the auditor's office, 103 Westcott. If they fail to do so, a list of names will be turned in to Dean of Women Katherine Warren and Dean of Men Donald Loucks and these students will be subject to disciplinary action by the University.

Jerry M. Leonard, Internal Auditor, stated that an investigation will be made after each home game.

This is the new procedure for securing tickets for student events: A stamp of an IBM cards will be outside the Westcott Ticket Office. The number and name on the student must sign his name on one of the IBM cards and put his student number in the upper right-hand corner. This card must be presented at the Westcott Ticket Office window with the photo I.D. card. The ticket seller must compare the name and number on the photo I.D. card with the student number and name on the IBM card and then issue a ticket, returning the I.D. card.

Students who are enrolled for four or less hours are not entitled to a free ticket.

...st Lecture

State Government Needs Progress

By HOWARD DENSON
and
BONNIE FREEDMAN
Flambeau Staff Writers

Gov. Bourdon Wilson could accurately describe the Florida government of 1961 said Dr. Doyle Parker, associate professor of government, Thursday night at the Mortar Board Last Lecture.

Speaking the Florida Collegiate Dr. Parker emphasized the method of having a governor and six elected cabinet members with equal votes on many executive boards and intended to remove possibilities for political machinery, but on the growth of Florida's population and economy, this is inefficient.

The "great, modern state of Florida" cannot afford executive diffusion, she said. This diffusion hurts the governor's attempts to act as an executive because he has no more power than the cabinet members, except in vetoing pardon, board decisions and legislative measures.

Although the governor and cabinet have joint responsibility in executive actions, the state citizens place the responsibility on the governor, she added.

Between elections, she continued, the citizens think of the governor and cabinet as one unit acting as various boards. She listed over fifteen such boards including the Pardon Board, Board of Education, Administration, Railroad Assessment, Budget Commission, State Canvassers, and Directors of Public Safety. The members of the collegial executive campaign individually, however, she added.

The cabinet members, who are colleagues and not advisors of the governor, are not consulted concerning policy and are reluctant to put themselves on record concerning issues. The cabinet operates under a laizzez-faire policy, she said.

A vigorously acting governor might be able to get legislation through which would simplify the executive branch, she said.

This governor would attempt to get approval of such bills as an executive controlled budget, removal of administrative agencies from ex-officio control; a general purchasing agency under gubernatorial control.

Combining Boards.

Dr. Parker also listed other measures, including combining of licensing boards, elimination of some boards and of overlapping concerns of boards, consolidation of legislative terms with the term of the governor, and a veto power for the governor on boards of which he is a member.

The executive system in Florida is no longer as much an attempt to keep out political bosses as it is habit for the citizens, and Dr. Parker suggested that an aware population would do much toward improving the system.

This sharing of power by the governor and the cabinet can be attributed to the Legislature's taking the easy way out, she said. Since the seven men were available, she pointed out, it seemed natural to make them members of the various boards.

The governor, then, Dr. Parker said, has no great control over the cabinet. He must push aggressive measures through the Legislature and cabinet on the strength of his personality, prestige, and party leadership. He must also overcome the image of the elder statesmen — cabinet members who have been re-elected year after year and have made a career of politics—since the Florida governor cannot succeed himself.

Several governors and members of the Legislature have analyzed the executive in Florida, Dr. Parker said.

E.-governor Carey Hardy said that the framers of the constitution in 1885 clearly contemplated the action of giving the cabinet so much control.

Other former governors viewed the gubernatorial-cabinet system as similar to large corporations, in which no one person can seize control of the organization.

Newspaperman Malcolm Johnson said the plural executive system is misunderstood because it has no system.

The Legislature has not presented any clearer views of the system, Dr. Parker said. In 1951 measure attempted to defuse the system, but was repealed.

Several legislators have begun movements to re-organize the executive branch, but these movements have fallen by the wayside, the speaker said.

Who's Who

The deadline for organizations to submit nominations for Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities has been extended to Monday.

Nominations must be turned in at the Student Body President's Office, 214 Longmire, or placed in the Student Government mail box in the Longmire Bldg. Director's Office by 5 p.m. Monday.

Any recognized campus organization may submit the names of seniors or graduate students for Who's Who. A committee led of the nominee's activities must be included with the nomination, said Secretary of Student Events Ivy-Lee Franer.

Thirty-six students from Florida State University will be selected for Who's Who. The nominees must have maintained a 2.5 overall scholastic average or above for the preceding five semesters, must have shown outstanding leadership in elected or appointed positions in the various activities of campus life, must have shown cooperation and willingness to give of time and effort in educational and extracurricular activities.

Fallout:

Key To Survival: Public Education

By JOHN M. JERKE
Flambeau Features Writer

Education has been know to erase much fear and its use cannot be completely ignored in the case of nucleomitophobia. Lengthy tables of data on the destructive force and quantity of nuclear weapons which the enemy might possess could be found, but should this deter the attacked from making any sort of preparation other than retaliation?

In the light of a megaton weapon the expression "an ounce of prevention . . ." might appear more than inept. Still there are good reasons for having such programs as courses for FSU students and townspeople on precautions which they might exercise to save themselves from the nuclear aftermath—fallout.

As some have pointed out before, would it not seem feasible to suppose that the enemy might feel such areas as cities should be spared from the immediate nuclear blast thus concentrating on militar targts and leaving the populace to the probable fallout from these and other well placed weapons?

Lacking the knowledge of the enemy makes such a question almost unanswerable, at the justification for an affirmative is not ele-cured. In such a case, this populace could and should be in a position to shield themselves from this deadly precipitation. Without going into the problem of so much commercialism and artificiality connected with many of the present civil defense programs, it suffices to say that sound ones do exist and are available.

Then, too, it has been argued that man, being a somewhat logical creature, has ruled a nuclear war out of order but such a supposition must be examined for rationalization and mere wishing. Man is left floundering, surrounded by uncertainty and indecision, but again, should this preclude any sensible action directed to save himself from the toxic by-products of this nuclear holocaust?

Many television programs and movies have depicted a man surviving nuclear devastation as a creature reduced to his animal-like instincts preying on the misfortunes of others. Such programs have attracted attentive audiences, but many sociologists, psychologists and other are quick to admit that a definite prediction to the exact behavior of man in such circumstances is unpluasible. However,as Dr. Edwin Chalmers of the FSU Psychology Dept. believes, man has been living primarily in a community type existence, those which survive will not only aid one another but in some instances will be drawn closer together.

Such an idea is not necessarily naive or wishful to consider but is more congruous than the idea of a human jungle populated by beings armed with weapons stalking others in order to gain food supplies. He feels that the vast majority of the population will share their sustenance and other necessities.

OBSESSION

Dr. Chalmers agrees with the idea that under this fear of total desolation, man has not exactly avoided the problem but has not permitted himself to become obsessed with the associated fear. Certainly such obsession would be unhealthy. On the other hand, complacency could be fatal. Since the individual is not in much of a position to stay a thermonuclear weapon, he can at least do something which might save him and his family from the effects of blast to those of fallout.

Dr. Chalmers, as others, has quickly noted that the expense could be considerably reduced if community shelters were constructed from such sources as tax, State assistance, etc., rather than make the individual property owners subject to the sometimes expensive fees of private concerns. He also agreed that the advertising campaigns connected with a number of these had unfortunately made some individuals lose sight of the fact that something can be done which might prove effectual in shielding human life against the radiation.

BOMB SHELTERS

The Federal Government in its civil defense program has made no outspoken endorsement of bomb shelters. Dr. Chalmers explained that they have left the details up to individuals and other civil defense organizations but at the same time moved to check the complacency evolved from the great destructive power of nuclear weapon.

Tallahassee, having taken a number of definite steps with regard to their civil defense preparations, has no doubt regarded an idea similar to the one of Dr. Chalmers in his statement, "Education is the starting point, not morbid concern and science fiction."

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

Present And Voting

The ridiculous cheerleader fireworks, which could have been easily avoided had the head cheerleader bothered to use proper legislative channels, pointed out one weakness in the student legislative process.

Thirteen student solons passed this particular act. And a baker's dozen gathering of senators does not constitute a representative body in the governmental sense.

PRESENT AND VOTING at these first sessions have been only senators representing classes. Living area senators, who represent the bulk of this body, were shaking hands, waiting for the runoff, and hoping for election while the pre-chosen few passed the laws which will bind the student body for the remainder of the year.

The difference in the quality of representation by a senate of thirteen aside one of over forty is obvious.

Two proposals might help to remedy the problem of working with a skeleton senate.

1. The date of the election could be pushed forward.

Campaigning for precinct senator's posts could begin the first week of classes, instead of the second. Official campaigning lasts only a week and this should be time enough for candidates to meet prospective constituents.

Elections could be held the first Friday after classes begin, with the runoffs scheduled for the following Tuesday. By the second senate meeting, precinct solons would be in office.

Freshmen, who have not had the opportunity to meet each other prior, could be elected the week following so that by the third senate meeting the legislature would be filled.

2. Tarma of precinct senators could be carried over from the previous year.

Senators would not leave office until their successors had been elected, as is the case with state and national legislative bodies.

This would provide a more complete representative picture when senate tackled the first business of the new year and for a more effective, informed legislature.

BOTH OF THESE proposals have been supported by members of the senate who recognize that a skeleton senate is not a valid law making body.

Now it is time for the senate as a whole to take action for its own good and for the student body.

Senate should no longer begin each year a severely undermanned vessel floundering through its vital opening meetings.

Precautions Needed

The two missing keys taken from the Secretary of Elections Office Wednesday night have caused more confusion than ordinarily surrounds a campus election.

Fortunately a number of campus government officials including the Attorney General, Chief Justice of Honor Court and Woman's Vice-President were present by the time the ballots were removed from their usual storage place to a safer, double door, double locked closet.

Most of those present at the time the keys were discovered missing have been willing to tell such details as they were in possession of. No doubt there are suspicions in the minds of some fifteen or twenty persons immediatey connected with the event. It is not difficult to get the idea that somebody hasn't told everything that could be told.

An example: twelve ballots were held out for perfectly reasonable proof in regard to a particular race. Yet, these ballots, known to be separated from those now securely locked away somewhere on campus, have leaked up speculation that could have been damaging to a number of persons intimately connected with elections.

Possibly someone has stolen the aforementioned keys with dishonest intent, or again they may have been taken to imply that the election return had been tampered with. This last possibility cannot be overlooked.

If there is more concerning the circumstances connected with the removal of the keys from the Cabinet room, or if any official, not necessarily connected with the Elections Committee, has knowledge pertaining to this strange and elusive affair, it will be to their credit and in the interest of the student body and the University to bring such facts to the attention of the Flambeau or some other outlet that will let a puzzled student body know exactly what is going on.

The Flambeau does not believe that ballots have been tampered with. There is no evidence that anyone got into the closet where the ballots were stored. But, we do feel that something definately intended that either the ballots were to be molested, or that it was to appear that they might have been molested. Whatever comes of this situation, it might be in the best interests of all concerned to take precaution to see that no such fishy affair takes place again on this campus. Not only will we come to suspect the returns of future elections, but the current student officials should never forget that suspicion of "rigging" or otherwise maneuvering the votes of fellow students is a retroactive suspicion. If we doubt the returns of tomorrow, there is no good reason why we shouldn't doubt the returns of yesterday.

All-American Tally-Ho

The Flambeau proudly extends congratulations to the yearbook publication, Tally-Ho. Word has just been received that the 1961 Tally-Ho has been awarded an All-American rating. That is just about as well as you can do.

TALLY-HO EDITORS have been chosen with care, and the attention given to the selection of the editor and that individual's attention to staff capabilities has paid off again.

We know that the present editor, Miss Harriet L'Engle is going to be equally thrilled.

IT IS AN ACCOLADE to the students who give of their time and effort to make a campus publication successful, to have their endeavors rewarded with high national ratings. The Tally-Ho staff worked long, tedious hours and coped with every conceivable disappointment with imagination and energy.

Florida State University can be justly proud of any publication that brings home that All-American bacon. We wish the 1962 staff equal success with the Tally-Ho.

Key Heist An Inside Job?

The irony of the key stealing intrigue was that anyone would risk Honor Court indictment and possible expulsion for a seat in Student Government.

For once the glory and excitment of the campaigning and the prestige of the election has waned. Student Government no longer seems a haven for the select.

It is instead an area where hard, deliberate, continuing labor is needed. Devotion to the university and an acute desire to lead it properly is vital. And persistent labor without material reward are characteristics of the able Student Government worker.

But the able Student Government worker is a rarity.

* * * *

Ability is rare because those who put up posters do not realize that they are hiding for something more than an occasional Wednesday afternoon meeting and an invitation to the Student Government retreat.

And the voters do not realize that they are electing a person who is charged with the advancement of their ideas and representation of their thoughts.

Instead they elect a pretty face or a pleasant smile without thought to issues, responsibilities, or leadership.

This type of voting habits have allowed senators to hold office for two and three years without contributing as much as one statement to the legislative process.

* * * * * *

It has been estimated that less than ten senators actually contribute to the determination of student legislation.

The rest sit in the back of the chamber, if they even actually attend, and wait for adjournment and supper.

It is a tough job sitting for hours without a stir of life or an original thought. Certainly not as appealing a job as the candidate originally anticipated.

Prestige is not even what a candidate would imagine for a politician is not looked upon favorably at FSU. This is particularly ture of politician who has the gaul to stand up for what he believes regardless of who he offends.

But there are very few of these also.

Some people have indicated that the key heist might have been an inside job. That might be possible but it seems doubtful that anyone who actually knew Student Government would risk as much for so little.

Halloween Brings Hunters

By DOUG SMITH

Autumn is here, bringing, in a few weeks, Halloween with its ghosts and goblins and things that go bump in the night. Also in hand will be the everpresent witches and the biennial witch hunters.

HAVEN'T HAD a good witch hunt since our own homegrown Joe McCarthy set up shop around here several years ago, but the whole business was a rather dismal failure last time, due as best to bad witnesses and the witches as to the ineptness of the hunters.

But be of good cheer. Thanks to the widespread interest in Everybody-Think-Like-Mesism and its very social spasties, this hunt should be a real Inquisition, though not as sophisticated. It's hard to beat witnesses and wood for dedication to the cause, but these people run them a close second.

IN A WAY, the revival of the hunt is a good thing. It gets pretty boring being a witch with nothing to do, and nobody to hex. This way, the witches get practical experience in confounding the opposition which really isn't so hard, anyway.

One of the many illusions that the hunters labor under is that there is only one kind of witch. It just isn't so. There are more kinds of witches than you can shake a stick at, and very few are broke a broom these days. It's much too obvious.

AT THE TIME the homing party arrives, unannounced but expected, the witches will have their earthly rewards gleaned, and can sit back and laugh as the hunters beat the bushes and shout "Witches!" at a few harmless eccentrics. They may even burn a few as examples, but fortunately they never do any lasting damage.

Witchcraft will flourish as it always has only under opposition. Enjoy the fun, but just keep your brooms out of sight for a while.

A G'Ville Gritch

TO THE EDITOR:

This letter is in reply to one published in the Oct. 6. edition of the Florida Alligator and signed by a Peyton L. Wynn, who appears to be an FSU student.

Mr. Wynns made some intriguing statements in his letter. I cannot help responding to them. To begin with, he states "the main Gator chant of 'hit 'em again' clearly showed how your student body took the loss . . . "I must insist that the game ended in a tie. While the Gators clearly dominated the statistics, and FSU was lucky to gain that, history will record the game as a tie, no more, no less.

Further, Mr. Wynn implies that the Florida students are a bunch of sorcheods to resent their goal posts being pulled down. If FSU students claim the goal posts after a tie, what are they going to do after a win? Seize the stadium light towers?

If Florida students and their band displayed poor taste during the fight, what example did the guests show? . . . through the game there was a large banner proclaiming "To hell with Florida" waving in the FSU section (and) in addition the FSU necktion during the fourth quarter enthusiastically chanted "Go To Hell, Florida" loud and clear. The precedent has been set by the guests from Tallahassee. Really, Mr. Wynn, when a guest walks into someone's house with a chip on his shoulder, he is not likely to be treated well.

In conclusion I would like to comment on the vituperative, insulting nature of Mr. Wynn's language in his characterization of Florida Alligator as a "mullet wrapper" and . . . to our smartest as a "smart-aleck reptile." Mr. Wynn your language suggests an embittered loser rather than a fan of a winning, well-coached, The U nf F has asbalt rivalires with such fine schools as Auburn. I hope our rivalry will FSU can be the same. If not, then we might as well put Leon High on our schedules.

JIM FISHER

EDITORS NOTE:

The sentiment expressed on the banner was very sincere. Further, due to the gross seating of FSU students at the FSU-UF game, the staff's or our sundeder. We apologize for the crack about a "stupid reptile." Up here we know it is just a big, green paddy tat.

Who's 'Alright' Jack?

By JIM PRESTON

"I'm Alright, Jack": Only Half-way right!

Heavens knows I'm not one to complain, but Peter Sellers really slipped us a low blow with his recent hoffo, "I'm Alright, Jack", which really wasn't.

His picture does manage a few clever, just, worth-while, intelligent slams at the horrendous practices of the management demonied classes in general; viz, the shady maneuvering of an unscrupulous manufacturer who endangers the peace in the Middle East to hot spot of so little security that the conservatives will probably advocate fighting a war to save it from Russia for the sake of some surreptitious pocket padding—proving himself typically more interested in the profits than the prophets of Doom.

All this is to the good, and quite satirical and all. Good clean fun. However, when Mr. Sellers himself plays the insulting role of a union leader (fine, sturdy chap) who praises the Soviet Union, studies Marx and Latin religiously, and has the implication apparently is, has communistic leanings, Mr. Sellers assumes an odious presumption.

Society and the forces of Progress have had enough trouble with the neo-Birch (ugly, rightist elements continually harping on the alleged infiltration of our long-suffering labor unions with Communists, citing as cases in point such stout fellows as Walter "Too tall" Jack" Reuther, James "Silver Knight" Hoffa, and Harry "Red Sails in the Sunset" Bridges, all on the basis of a few silly arguments hardly worth niggling over here.

Mr. Sellers, your portrait of the working-man's friend is a few inescapable, minor itsy-bitsy problems, such as the moral issue of doing a minimum amount of work in a maximum amount of time to keep the management from feudal slave-driving tactics; and the possibility of holding the Coventry members who bilk the will of the union, was so handled as to actually border on poking fun (egad) at so sacred—I mean—serious a topic. And when the union leader told his factory president that they couldn't accept incompetence as a criterion for dismissal (a perfect anti-seniority able statement in the context) members of the audience actually laughed.

Mr. Sellers, before we ever laugh at you again, we must know: Are you for us or against us?

Let's Get Serious

Discrimination Against Data

By JERRY DORSON

If indefinite socio-economic levels and discrimination against Negroes are solely the causes of the observed differences between Negro and white IQ's, the relative absences of these hindrances to the Negro should be accompanied by a marked "closing of the gap" between Negro and white IQ tests. Such is not the case.

STUDIES MADE in Kent County, Ontario, by H. A. Tanser are an excellent illustration of this. The Negroes have lived in exhit County for over a century, and are accepted there without regard to race. They may attend any theater, eat at any restaurant, work and live anywhere in the County, and attend any public school. Many are independent farmers who own their own land. The economic levels of Negroes and whites in rural Kent County are about the same.

Yet despite the favorable conditions which exist in Kent County, conditions which our equalitarian friends assure us would eliminate the cause of the Negroes' poor performance on IQ tests, the difference remains large, and is of considerable magnitude. In Tanser's words: ". . . was feel that the low intelligence of the Negroes plays the major role . . ." in explaining the test score differences.

BUT FEW PEOPLE have ever heard of Tanser, while the test mentioned in Mr. Danart's letter is one of the most widely published. It is the standard equalitarian argument, to be dutifully trotted out whenever anyone questions the sacred word.

To quote Mr. Danart: "It's easy to play around with these statistics to make them fit any preconceived notion you might have . . . the writer feels after testing thousands of inductees, that northern Negroes had higher IQ's than southern whites."

SPACE MUST have limited Mr. Dinart's comments, or he might also have mentioned that in the Army Alpha test data to which he refers:

"The states chosen in the study were the four states in which the Negroes scored highest and the four states in which the whites scored lowest, and that these states were chosen specifically with that in mind: that the northern Negroes of the four selected states outscored the southern whites in only three of the four selected southern states, that in every single state in the union, whites outscored the Negroes of their state by a considerable margin; and that the Negro group for the highest scoring northern state (Ohio) was composed not of "thousands" but of 152 men.

THE DATA as Mr Dunnrt gave it would seem to lose some of its persuasiveness when these additional facts are included. Klineberg, a patron saint of equalitarianism, and the individual who compiled the data must have sensed this too, for he also neglected to include them in his "study." Mr. Danart and Klineberg juggling figures to fit a "preconceived notion" they might have had? Heavens, no! Only a member of the "almost gone" noinc lunatic fringe" would do that.

In conclusion, let me again emphasize that it is not my intent to attempt to justify segregation by casting doubt upon the equalitarian dogma. It is my intent, however, to ask if misunderstanding concern over the plight of the Negro is reason enough to justify the attempts being made by some persons to legislate over, ridicule and suppress the evidence which they feel may damage their cause. Or to put it another way "Do the ends justify the means?"

A Gaseous Grandpa?

TO THE EDITOR:

The handwriting may be on the wall, but is Mr. Ringer our Daniel?

Only being to a small degree in the "Hide Trade." I find myself somewhat opposed to Mr. Ringer's not-too-subtle implications.

I am not eager to be vaporized, whether it be in an atomic war or in a gas oven. And I am not pleased with the thought that my son may father a brood that does not have some remembrance to gaseous Grandpa, floating aimlessly about in the atmosphere polluting everything in sight.

On the other hand, I do not wish for my son to father a brood which is politically and tradition bound mutated to such a degree that none of Grandpa's outdated beliefs in individual and collective freedom would be known to them, except as useless relics of a non-progressive age.

Mr. Ringer is apparently appalled at the lack of "scientism" in the article I quoted several weeks ago. This leads to wonder if he is being consistent. If "scientism" is to be desired for local observations which will benefit mankind, why are not "scientists who are responsible for Mr. Ringer's dilemma observed in the same light? Why, Mr. Ringer, do those "leaders" of ages shed liters of tears when speaking of atomic danger, and then go on to build "bigger and better" atomic weapons? Do they fear for mankind, or for their selves?

As I said, I'm only to a small degree in the "Hide Trade." However, the small amount I have I have for my own "hide" is totally eclipsed by anger when I realize that the people, aimed to "scientism" are threatening me.

Yes, it's time we read the handwritten on the wall, and it's time we did something about it with sweat, not with slobber and tears.

DEAR DAY STUDENTS:

Today the run-off elections for all precinct senators will be held. At this time eight names will appear on the ballot from which you, as day students, will be expected to select four senators for the coming year.

Last year, as your senator, I was almost ashamed of the under representation in student government of day students. But, I was equally shocked by the apathy evidenced by many of you. This day four senators will be chosen to represent 4,000 day students but will they represent you?

Student government can help make our university life more pleasant, but only if you let it.

I hope that you will consider this today and will carefully consider the qualifications of the candidates, deciding which would best represent you. Then . . . vote. If you choose to vote for me, I can only promise to work hard, in the sincere interests of my constituents, and try to represent all of you as I think you'd want to be represented. If this is enough, I would appreciate your vote.

Rebels Engulf Tribe

Tribe Pride Hurt···

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

Nothing but Seminole pride was injured as Mississippi romped over Florida State 33-0 at Oxford Saturday.

"It hurt our pride," said Coach Bill Peterson. Everyone was sent to the trainer for examination and according to the report the team was able to pull through the game with only minor bruises.

"We had a lot of effort," Peterson stated. "We played real well," However he added, "We made some mistakes."

"We were looking for the big play but we just couldn't connect. A couple of times we had men passed the safety but just couldn't hit them," continued Coach Peterson.

"We didn't really know what to think." about Mississippi the head coach stated. "Playing any Southeastern Conference team such as Mississippi will help us. We have to play a team like Mississippi to get used to playing this League," expressed Coach Peterson.

"Mississippi had good throwers and good receivers," Peterson said. This fact can be testified to by looking at the yardage gained through the air. Ole Miss earned 169 yards on 9 passes as opposed to FSU's 34 yards on 3 passes.

"We were expecting the score to come out 20-0" the head coach stated, however, "We gave them 2 easy touchdowns.

"Mississippi has a great ball team. They are a fine precision team. We couldn't stop them when they got started. They needed something to give them confidence. Once they got in front they can make it tough on you," Peterson remarked.

Ole Miss head coach Johnny Vaught termed his teams effort as, "Our best ball game."

"We didn't contain them as much as Arkansas and Kentucky, but we gambled more than they did," Coach Peterson observed.

Ole Miss's "players are always older than our boys because of their red shirting," stated Peterson adding, "I told the boys not to be ashamed of the game and to keep their heads up."

One of FSU's players expressed his thoughts of the game by saying, "Ole Miss wasn't any tougher; they were just smarter."

Looking forward to the Georgia game Peterson said, "Georgia is a tough team. They are no different from any team in the Southeastern Conference. Georgia's line is of the same caliber as that of Ole Miss. It will help us to be playing them here. Georgia doesn't have the passing that Mississippi has."

Student Body President Bobby Byrd, after viewing the game, remarked, "I don't see how Ole Miss has the support and money it does. They only have two home games this year. Saturday there were only about 12,000 fans in the stadium."

Byrd continued, "Oxford is about 4 miles from the Stadium. There's not anything close to the stadium. It's like North Greenville Junior College — a dump on a hump."

···As Miss. Rolls

"Ole Miss was up for the game to be number one. Their coach told us that's the best game Mississippi has played. That's the reason the score was so high," continued President Byrd.

"Coach Peterson didn't want to take a chance of injuries,' before the Georgia game," continued Byrd.

"I think they played a better game than the score indicates," expressed the Student Body President.

"It was surprising to find out Ole Miss had only four players that weren't from Mississippi. Three of the four out of staters are from Tennessee; the other one is from Kentucky," said Byrd.

Explaining the reason why Mississippi has only four players from two other states, Coach Peterson said, "Mississippi is really wrapped up in football. They produce more football players per capita than any state in the union."

Trying for the number one spot in the nation, the Ole Miss Rebels proved too much for the hopeful Seminoles.

The Rebels rolled up an impressive 351 yards rushing, 169 yards passing, and gained gained 28 first downs.

The Seminoles were able to penetrate Rebel territory only twice. Once on a fumble, the other on a pass interference penalty.

Halfback Ken Kinderman led the Florida State rushing with 39 yards in 13 tries.

The Rebels were able to score in every quarter with four men contributing to the total tally.

Tennis Team Opens Pre-Season Practice

By DALE MARLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

Coach Ed Cubbon's Florida State University tennis team will get under way shortly with fall practice beginning Oct. 17.

Four varsity lettermen are returning with the backbone of the squad consisting of Paul Scarpa, probable number one man, Gordy Smith, Ed Fasula, and Jamie Jamerson.

There is a strong possibility that two transfers from Pensacola Junior College, Don and Larry Caton will be eligible for varsity competition this spring.

The Caton brothers who once attended Tulane University, will likely bolster Florida State as they meet as tough schedule.

Though the slate is not complete such teams of Louisiana State University, Florida, Mississippi State, and several Big Ten Conference schools.

Also in the planning stage are games with Furman, University of South Carolina, The Citadel, and Presbyterian College.

Cubbons reported that this year's freshmen team has been working out on their own since the beginning of the fall semester.

Under supervision of Danny Malcomb, assistant tennis coach, the freshmen reporting are as follows: Allen Gurunty, Gaines Pickett, Reggie Dickey, Paul Bennett, Doug Spencer, Don Compton, Mike Sterrie, Kenny Alcorn, John Akin, Matt Suker, and Thomas Hevery.

Cubbon Named Tennis Coach

Edward Cubbon will direct the fortunes of the Florida State University tennis team this year.

Cubbons began his coaching career at West Virginia University in Morgantown, West Virginia.

While there he coached and organized the first varsity team in the history of the school. Besides coaching tennis, he handled the basketball team and coached high school athletics.

He then moved to California State College, which strangely enough is located near Pittsburgh, Penn., and was named Director of Athletics.

He also coached basketball athletic director.

Then in 1942 through 1946 he joined the U. S. Navy. While in the Navy he played on and coached teams at every base on which he was stationed.

Cubbon has been away from the game since 1946, though he still plays the game consistently.

In April 1954, Cubbon became Athletic Business Manager for Florida State University. He has served as Director of Development of Athletics, a post which he still holds.

He also teaches physical education courses of beginning tennis, intermediate tennis, and the theory and coaching of Basketball.

Besides these activities he is serving as Academic Advisor of Athletics.

"I am proud to be the new Florida State tennis coach," says Cubbon.

Women Start Intramurals

Archery tournaments, a volleyball game and a bowling league highlight the opening of women's intramurals this afternoon.

Archery is the first sport to open, while bowling and volleyball follow close behind. Approximately 35 people are in the archery competition today. Thirty-five teams are entered in the bowling and volleyball leagues.

Miss Martha Moore, professor of Physical Education, is the co-ordinator of the 1961 intramural program. Donna Deutsch, president of the Women's Recreation Association, is in complete charge of the program. P. E. majors are in charge of the specific sports fields. Maxie Thorpe heads the volleyball league; Paula Welch takes the archery; Vernita Pinto is in charge of bowling and Donna Ashling supervises the horseshoe competition.

New members to the volleyball league are the Newman's Club and the Baptist Student Union More than 40 teams are participating in this sport. Volleyball is the largest intramural sport during the season.

Bowling has approximately 25 team participants while the archers are 35 in number.

The court schedule for the Wednesday games are as follows: Court 1 Reynolds I vs Foundation Scholarship Organization II; Court 2 Reynolds II vs. Jennie Murphree; Court 3 DeGraff vs. Gilchrist II; Court 4 Cawthon vs. Magnolia; Court 5 Newman vs. Dorman. In the inside games Gilchrist playa Bryant and Florida playa Foundation Scholarship Organization I.

Want to see Tallahassee from 1500 miles up?

This question is being asked by members of "The Seminole Fliers," a sport flying club on campus. The club is promoting a membership drive to increase their number to 35 so that they will be able to purchase a Piper Cub to use as a training plane.

Mary Frances Irrgang, last year's president, stated that anyone interested in joining the club will be taken up for a free ride.

"The club is open to everyone who do not have to have a private license in order to join," said Miss Irrgang. An initiation fee of $50 and monthly dues of $8 is the only requirement for membership. The dues provide for two hours solo flying time per month; any additional time is $4 per hour.

The "Fliers" have been on campus for almost ten years, but just recently came into the public eye with the purchase of a Cessna 140 two-place plane. "When we have 35 members, we are plan-ning on purchasing a Piper Cub to use as a training plane Miss Irrgang.

Forty hours of flying is required before a student can receive his private license. also is required to take a examination and a flight which he will be accompanied by a representative from FAA. 14 members have pilots now.

Miss Irrgang said that students are very carefully in the proper techniques and safety rules. There only two accidents, Miss Irrgang. "One boy his plane in a tree, and plane ran into a fence.

The club has a fourfold purpose, to offer a better opportunity for private flying to all students, faculty, and staff, at cheaper rates for those interested in private present flying education and to provide for private student pilots and to promote in private flying.

At the last meeting, new were chosen. They include Nelson, president; Ed and Baker, vice presidents Irrgang, secretary and Lynch Miller, treasurer.

Miss Irrgang is the only in the 23-member club.

A bill to alter the selection of nominees to Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges brought Student Senate action to a grinding halt Wednesday.

The senators, unable to solve the Who's Who problem, scheduled a called meeting this afternoon at 4:15.

Introduced by Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, the bill called for a 13-member committee to rate the top seniors and graduate students.

COMMITTEE TO INCLUDE

This committee—which would include nine students and four faculty members or administrative officials—would represent the secretary of student events; chairman, dean of women, dean of men; athletic coach; general faculty; Student Government (2); athletics, music; publications; religious groups; president of the graduate student council; and dramatics and speech. Committee members would be appointed by the student body president.

The committee, which would notify the presidents of officially approved campus organizations, would obtain from the registrar a list of qualified students, and would be able to add names of students being overlooked.

Senate President Ken Van Assenderp appointed a 10-man committee to examine the bill.

Four factors would determine eligibility of Who's Who nominees.

Nominees must have maintained a 2.5 scholastic average for five semesters.

Nominees must show by their college records their ability to be of service to the community and society.

Nominees must have shown outstanding leadership in elected or appointed positions in various activities.

Nominees must have shown cooperation and willingness to give time and effort in educational and extra-curricular activities of the university.

The committee would select the nominees, and the number of students would be determined by the national organization.

The selection would be based upon an established system — which dres five from some senators

The system would give one to five points to the various posts which students hold, said Dora Chazol, committee representative. For example, student body president, vice president, editor of the Flambeau or Tally-Ho would be rated five points each.

Limelighters To Be Feature At Homecoming

Buddy Morrow and his Night Train Orchestra, as well as the nationally known Limelighters, will be some of the main features in entertainment at Florida State University's annual Homecoming activities.

The Homecoming weekend officially begins at noon Nov. 17, when classes close for the day. The annual parade complete with floats, bands, and decorated cars will begin at 3:30 p.m. that day. The Garnet and Gold Ball (formerly Sadie Hawkins) at which Gov. C. Farris Bryant will be speaker, will be the initial activity of the evening. It will be following the parade at 8:30 p.m.

The annual Pow Wow at which Miss 1961 Homecoming Queen will be crowned.

All fraternities, sororities, and dormitories will hold open houses following the Pow Wow.

An alumni breakfast and business meeting will open the schedule for the day at 8:30 a.m. Nov. 18.

President and Mrs. Gordon Blackwell will join with the alumni at this function rather than entertaining them at their home as they have in the past.

An innovation for the weekend will be a series of seminars planned specifically for alumni. Speakers will include: Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, who will speak on Philosophy; Dr. Wiley Housewright, speaking on Trends in Music; and Dr. Noel E. LaSeur whose subject will be Science and Archeology.

A barbecue is planned for noon Saturday at the Men's Gym, after which a capacity crowd is expected to fill the Doak Campbell Stadium to see Florida State's Seminoles play the Southerners of Mississippi Southern.

Tickets Sold For Banquet

Tickets for the Sophomore-Senior Investiture banquet will remain on sale until noon of the banquet day, Oct. 17.

Students may pick up their tickets at the main ticket office at Westcott. The price is $1.

According to tradition seniors invite a sophomore to cap them at the ceremony and in return the sophomore invites the senior's dinner at the banquet.

At the banquet Dr. Doisy Parker of the Government Dept. will describe the significance of the academic regalia.

Following the banquet the group will proceed to the Opperman Amphitheatre where Dr. Grace Fox, director of convocations, will organize the procession. Members of Omicron Delta Kappa, Gold Key, Cabinet Key and Mortar Board will lead the procession.

President Gordon W. Blackwell will preside at the Investiture and will cap the Senior Class President Jack Ascherl. At the same time the sophomores will cap the seniors, investing them with this formal symbol of the senior class.

Man And Wife Team Play Leads In 'Last Days Of Lincoln' Production

By LINDA COLLIER
Flambeau Staff Writer

One of David Clarke's most prized possessions is a miniature stovepipe hat with the words, "Good bye my friends and neighbors" engraved underneath the brim. The hat was a gift from Raymond Massey, who played the part of Abraham Lincoln in Abe Lincoln in Illinois.

Clarke played the part of William Herndon in the play for a year on the road, after understudying the part on Broadway for a year.

Clarke will play the part of Joshua Speed and his wife, Nora Dunfee, the part of Mrs. Lincoln in The Last Days of Lincoln, premiering at Florida State University next week. They are two of the professional actors who will appear in the play.

In comparing the part of Herndon with the part of Speed, Clarke says that "Herndon was a firebrand, goarder, abolitionist. The part of Speed is almost that of a narrator, as Horatio in Hamlet. He interprets what is going on and fills in for the audience. He is in general much quieter than the part of Herndon."

Because of their interest in the university and in experiment in the theatre, both Clarke and Miss Dunfee are pleased to be able to set up residence on campus and take an integral part in the play. Both feel that it is time professional theatre and the university combine to bring about a rejuvenation of "live" theatre.

COMMERCIAL PRESSURE

They feel that both the professional actors and the university will benefit from such a merger. "Broadway at this time is in bad shape. The excessive real estate charges in New York make it almost impossible for a dramatic production to be tried out—most of the theatre-owners want something in their theatre that is sure to bring in more profit, such as a musical. In the university, the "commercial pressure" is not as noticeable, so they are free to experiment with new things. Both the "professional" actor and the student benefit from this experimentation."

Many students have never seen a "live" play before coming to college, just as many people over the United States have never had the opportunity to see an actual play being performed before them with professional actors. Clarke, while working with Orson Welles in the Federal Theatre during the depression, noticed how much people who had never seen a play before enjoyed it. Both he and Miss Dunfee feel that it would be of tremendous benefit to the United States if New York were decentralized as the center of acting, and professional theatres set up across the United States in all large cities with populations of 50 to 100,000.

SUBSIDIZE THEATRE

"If it were possible for the Federal Government to subsidize the theatre as it is in Europe, more people would be better able to enjoy the theatre. At this time, it is almost impossible for even people in New York to be able to afford to go to the theatre," they said.

Miss Dunfee has found in her experience that not the theatre facilities, but the play itself is the important thing in drama. She once directed a one-woman show for Juliet Hayden which toured the United States, and "one of the most delightful evenings we had was spend in a little carriage house in Kentucky which had been converted into a theatre. The scenery I had done for Miss Hayden's show liked as if it had been made especially for that theatre."

Miss Dunfee's first professional part in the theatre was with Sinclair Lewis in Our Town. Later she played with Diana Barrymore in Romeo and Juliet. Since she and Clarke have been married, they have toured with the Lunts in The Visit, in which Miss Dunfee understudied Lynn Fontanne. Their elder daughter, Katherine, who is 13, also played in the show

Buy A Faculty Slave

President Gordon W. Blackwell and Dean of Women Katherine Warren will be among more than 20 faculty members participating in a Faculty Auction next week to benefit Campus Chest.

Sponsored by Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity and Kappa Delta Sorority, the auction is slated for 4 p.m. Thursday in front of Westcott.

Members of the faculty will be "sold" to the highest bidder and will perform certain services in return for their purchase.

Some of these services include serving at fraternity or sorority houses at mealtime, giving short lectures, carrying students' trays in cafeterias and singing for their buyers.

Some faculty members have agreed to perform acts other than those suggested, such as taking a purchaser and date to dinner, sponsoring a cook-out and free tennis lessons.

Lowell Burton, publicity chairman for the auction reported that the event will be a first at FSU and that all proceeds will go to the Campus Chest.

1,000 To Participate In Legislative Day

About 1,000 people are expected to participate in the activities of the Annual Legislative Recognition Day at Florida State University tomorrow.

The event, sponsored jointly by FSU and the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce will honor the legislators, the cabinet, members of the State Supreme Court, the Board of Control members, and their wives.

The activities of the day will begin with a coffee honoring the President of the Senate and Mrs. Randolf Hodges, Speaker of the House and Mrs. William Chapman and the Tallahassee delegation and their wives; Sen and Mrs. Wilson Carraway, Rep. and Mrs. Mallory Horne and Rep. and Mrs. Dick Mitchell. The office will be at 10:30 a.m. on the terrace of the Music Building.

Immediately following the coffee, approximately 90 legislators and their wives will attend a brief program in Opperman Music Hall Dr. Sidney Fox, director of the new Institute for Space Biosciences, will be the featured speaker. Dr. Fox will discuss plans for the institute

Dr. Wiley Housewright is in charge of the musical portion of the program. However, Gene Simmons, assistant director, will conduct the University Singers on Saturday. The group selections will include: "Hymn to the Garnet and Gold." "Sing Thus Happy Man" by Eric Smith, a Latin number entitled, "Mastere Recordare" by Durante; the opening chorus from The Bartered Bride by Smetena; and a Negro spiritual "Ride the Charriot." Pianists for the group are Joyce Faegieni and Michael Cohen

After the dinner the guests will end the day's session by attending the FSU-Georgia football game, at Campbell Stadium.

THESE 25 FINALISTS HAVE BEEN CHOSEN FROM AMONG 241 ENTRIES IN THE MISS Gymkana contest. They will serve as the Gymkana Court, and during the annual show, "Fleiss-Kana," Nov. 1-4, one of them will be named Miss Gymkana. They are, 1, to r., front row, Carolyn Duyek, Linda Duyek, Theresa Marsh, Diane Goodwin, Jan Brantley, Chris Munroe, Dot Hay, Carol Ann Luck. Holes In Selection Setup

Another democratic right, a traditional privilege of the senior class, may be taken away if Senate passes the bill which comes up for discussion at the special meeting this afternoon.

The bill provides that the election of graduating seniors to Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities, one of the most important and enduring honors on campus, will be taken away from vote of the senior class and given to a 13-man committee which will be appointed by the president of the student body.

One of the main reasons given for the proposed change is that a "relatively small" number of seniors vote in the special election called for the Who's Who selection. It seems inconsistent that no one has suggested having the president appoint senators, too, since "relatively few" members of the student body vote for precinct representatives.

THE OBVIOUS SOLUTION to the small vote is to place the Who's Who candidates on the ballot of the regular fall elections, when seniors who wish to vote will already be at the polls.

Aside from the fact that the proposal takes voting rights away from the senior class, there are several other points to consider:

The bill calls for the committee to make their selections on the basis of "an established system," but no system is designated. The criteria for candidates, therefore, is left to the discretion of the group. The significance of being chosen for Who's Who may vary each year as the personnel of the group changes.

IF SENATE IS PLANNING to inaugurate a point system similar to the one used for Hall of Fame, it should be included in the statutes or else the committee is not legally bound by it. With the growing emphasis on junior colleges, such a point system would have to take into account all of the junior college activities of the transfer students and decide a method of giving the same amount of points for activities at other schools involving an equal amount of work with activities here.

WHEN SUCH A POINT SYSTEM has been written and ratified by Senate, there will be no need for a committee to make the decision.

Another provision of the bill is that four of the committee members are supposed to be from the faculty and administration, and the remaining nine are to be students from various walks of campus life. Nothing in the bill stipulates whether a candidate must have a simple majority, a two-thirds majority or a unanimous vote of the committee to gain the coveted honor.

If each committee member was proposing a single favorite candidate, any two in co-operation could select a winner.

MORE CONSIDERATION should be given to the fact that faculty members often have conflicting schedules and that administrators are frequently out of town. No provision is made for substitutes if a member can not be present at all the meetings. Since no minimum quorum is set, this could lead to a further lessening of the number of people choosing Who's Who at FSU.

While we do not wish to question the integrity of any student body president, we feel that he might be subject to certain unfair personal pressure in choosing this powerful committee. It would be unusual but certainly not unfeasible for one social organization to have influential members in each of the aspects of campus life cited in the bill. Again, no restriction clause limits the number of "brothers" or "sisters" who may serve on the committee.

ANOTHER FALLACY is the fact that, since executives are expected to appoint able and active people to important posts such as this, it is probable that several of the members themselves will be Who's Who candidates.

Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, author of the bill, said that this is one of the problems which will have to be ironed out" in committee meeting at 3 p.m. today. As the bill reads now, the committee might be placed in the awkward position of having to discuss and possibly reject one of its own members.

WE REALIZE that Senate is rushed on this decision because the candidates must be named and sent to the national organization in the middle of October and we commend them for trying to do something about a matter which they feel is a problem.

However, we protest when an election is taken away from the voters and given to a group of 13 people, especially when there are so many legal loopholes in the committee's operations.

WE SUGGEST that Senate defeat the present bill and allow this year's election to operate under the present system of a vote by the senior class. Later, when there is not need to hurry, the matter could be submitted to public vote in a referendum.

Replace Popularity Contest

By MYGNON CHAMPION

Emotions are certain to surge upward when Student Senate meets in special session this afternoon.

At issue is the method of selecting members of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Whether members of Who's Who will be selected by a Senior Class vote or selected by a joint student-faculty committee is, in essence, the central issue.

Some members of Senate violently oppose the proposed change to Committee selection. The Flambeau has eloquently spoken in opposition. However, it seems only just that the Student Body is entitled to hear the other side of the issue.

What, then, are the reasons for the proposal?

FIRST, WHO'S WHO IS supposed to recognize the outstanding seniors from all phases of university life. A senior who has given his time and effort to activities such as drama, music, art, speech, or religious affairs should have an equal opportunity for selection as another senior who has worked in any other activity.

Rather than guaranteeing an equal opportunity, the present electoral system does just the opposite. It gives a special advantage to students in such activities as publications, Student Government, and athletics. It handicaps seniors in music, drama, speech, etc.

THIS IS SO BECAUSE sports, Student Govt., and publications enjoy much more publicity and recognition than other fields.

For proof of this, examine a Flambeau: one full page is given to sports, much of the front page is devoted to Student Government; part of the editorial page is usually given to Student Government, scattered throughout the paper are by-lines of reporters, editors, and columnists.

This leads to the very obvious conclusion that names of students in these highly-publicized activities are much better known than the names of equally outstanding students in less publicized activities.

Under the present popularity (or notoriety) contest system, deserving seniors who haven't had their names plastered across the Flambeau don't stand much chance of recognition in Who's Who either.

SECONDLY, THE TIMING of the special Who's Who election forces their selection by a small minority of the Senior Class. The National Who's Who deadline (Oct. 23 this year) makes it necessary to hold elections at an inopportune time.

The result is a very light turnout of voters (approximately 200-300). Bloc votes in a situation like this can easily manipulate the entire election.

The proposed change in the method of selecting Who's Who provides an improvement. They would be selected by a bi-monthly faculty-student committee utilizing a point system.

Included on this committee will be the three deans of students, representatives from the athletic coach, and nine students from various fields such as drama, religious affairs, speech, music, athletics, Student Government and publications.

This committee would insure that each senior would have a fair chance of selection. It would guarantee that each field of activity would be recognized on an equal basis. It would select Who's Who members on the basis of merit rather than popularity and publicity.

'Operation Remove It' Again?

By LESLIE POWELL

Somebody is at it again. They, whoever that that ominous contglomeration is, have taken the soup machine out of the Soda Shop. That means Operation Remove It is underway downstairs again this session, and the semester barely underway.

THE SODA SHOP, which I am fond of, since I live there, has been slowly falling apart for some time. Lady patrons who feel themselves pinched smartly on or about their personal sitting apparatus would be smart to check rickety chairs before they wind up and slug the guy at the next table.

Once there were plenty of chairs in the place, but fifteen or so were sent out for repair and kept right on rocking. As near as can be figured now, they must be in the neighborhood of, say, Abilene, Texas by now. They were replaced, more or less, by Shrine Center cast-offs. Cast-offs are the story of lower Longmire.

I AM STILL waiting to be arrested for silver lifting after the ridiculous table that holds the silver and trays collapsed (I made the tactical error of picking up the tray that broke the balance's back) and filled my pocks with an assortment of knives, forks and church keys.

That lovely salad table is still with us. Very scenic, those tin cans that hold it up. I especially like the way it tilts that cottage cheese over the side of the bowl at me. If it ever tips over completely the new Ice Age will be upon us.

FURTHERMORE, the Soda Shop serves a neat percentage of customers every day with nothing near the facilities or the space of co-campus cafeterias. The classy joints will eventually have love seats with a built in boogie beat. Down in Longmire we can expect little more than wooden benches wired for furtive sounds.

And before better organized groups holler about "the Soda Shop" has had enough publicity, let's try and get one good across.

Longmire is central for day students. Day students lounge-wise, etcetera, can have what pressure groups don't want. That often includes rude behavior on the party of what might be politely termed "administrative aides" whose jobs don't include supervising traffic in the halls or the menu inside the Soda Shop.

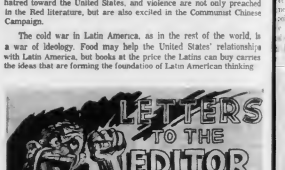
THE MANAGEMENT in the aforementioned establishment gives the students a break in gone into effect at the cash register each day. Price hikes that have tier this semester are the result of a sales tax extended to college lunch counters. Morrison's hasn't gone into the sales tax bit yet. Such manna falls from heaven.

Yes, funds are always short for many things, but there surely must be a little left over to keep a hub of campus activity from convol-te deterioation.

Paper Missiles

Bargain Price Books Are Cold War Aids

By ALLAN DERMOTT



Th Communists are flooding Latin America with Communist propaganda and other Red literature. Less than two months ago the Mexican police seized 24 sacks of Communist Cuban propaganda which was to be distributed in Mexico. The September 20, St. Petersburg Times editorially said: "It is responsibly estimated that the Communists spend at least $100 million annually to supply inexpensive books and manuals in Latin America.

BY WAY OF CONTRAST, The United States Information Agency and the International Cooperation Administration—the voices of freedom and democracy in the Latin American battleground—spent only slightly more than $15 million in the area in 1959. Of this amount, only about $250,000 was being spent annually for Spanish-edited books, and most of these were priced beyond the means of most Latin Americans. This left the area's youth with the choice of reading the paper-back books published by the Communists in Spanish and Portuguese—or not reading at all."

Any Communist written books have a Communist influence, even if the books are not outright propaganda. The estimated 100,000 Chinese throughout Latin America help move the Communist literature.

GUERRILLA warefare is being taught. Distrust of governments, hatred toward the United States, and violence are not only preached in the Red literature, but are also excited in the Communist Chinese Campaign.

The cold war in Latin America, as in the rest of the world, is a war of ideology. Food may help the United States' relationship with Latin America, but books at the price the Latins can buy carries the ideas that are forming the foundation of Latin American thinking

Mr. Zerbe Is Not Alone

TO THE EDITOR:

The controversy in last week's Flambeau over the art department seems to have misled some people, and in spite of Mr. Sanchez' protests and apologies there is seemingly endless harm done by exhibiting a little knowledge—or a lot of ignorance, if you prefer, about any subject.

I am glad Mr. Sanchez clarified his stand, although comparing the late Dohmanyi to Mr. Zerbe seems hardly fair to either party. Both men have excelled in their respective fields; however, Karl Zerbe is still at the peak of his productivity and still exerts a stimulating influence upon the students at FSU. This was aptly put by Mr. Brailey last Friday.

I am writing today to assure that Mr. Zerbe is not alone in the garrets of Westcott. To mention a few other members of our art department with the talent and acclaim, Mrs. Gulnar Bosch, Deming Read, widely known as a historian of Islamic Art, Mrs. Ann Carroll, recently published two children's books, one a best-seller. More important, there are others on the art department faculty are producing students who are getting somewhere. You don't know about it because it takes a little more time to excell in the arts than it does to learn how to mix breadcough or type a letter.

Mr. Sanchez rightly deplores the condition of inadequate art department with its lack of facilities and space. There is simply not the facilities to offer a graduate student in sculpture or printmaking so we lost the graduate student in this area —(to Yale, Cranbrook, Brooklyn Museum School. We have no museum so we lost graduate students to torums (to NYU) but we do have the faculty and we do have the students.

And since time is a vital factor in making a successful artist, and "natural acclaim" as what it takes to impress you, and perhaps whoever designates funds, we may not get FSU's art department out of cellars and attacs until 1985. Let's hope our faculty will feel the wrath of student material and the beauty of Tallahassee a sufficient substitute for the time being.

DIANE KAROL

Sees Errors At The Polls

TO THE EDITOR:

In regard to our student government, let me make several observations:

1. Elections procedures must be improved. IBM cards may help to speed the counting, but it doesn't prevent one from voting in races one is unqualified to vote in. Had I wished to be dishonest I could have voted in any of the precinct elections and no one would have known the wiser. The same could be said of the precinct workers, they could vote in the graduate senator election and no one would have been the wiser. Also, it is very easy to vote for the wrong person or not to have one's vote count at all, in marking the so-called ballot.

According to the constitution for the SGA, the ballots are illegal in the primary for they prevent one from writing in a candidate's name. Another election fault is the absence of guards posted at the polls at the time the boxes arrive. Still another fault is a set time to begin and end the election. Polls were closed at 8 (am) and some started as late as 9:15, and some were going after the deadline of 5 p.m.

All of these irregularities are small compared with the checking of I.D. cards. A person could vote in the freshman election with an upper-class card at some of the freshman election with an upper-class card at some of the polls, for the checkers were lax in seeing they were the right ones.

2. Senators terms should be carried over from the previous year, or graduate senators and graduate senators should be held in the spring for the following year.

3. Graduate students should be represented by departments, as they only know those in their special fields. No matter how hard an L.S. major campaigns, he can never expect to beat an Education major, for sheer numbers are against him.

I know this is a long letter, but action must be taken and this is the best way to be heard. Speaking of being heard, at no time prior to the precinct election primaries were those running for office given a chance to present their views, except the freshmen. This does make it hard to win when one has little money and is . . . not . . . well known . . .

In closing, I wish to ask all graduate students to pull behind our graduate senator, Gerry Dobson.

or senators disagreed, citing tendi turnouts for previous Who elections.

Don Thigpin said, "This is regularity contest; this is a on what they the nom can do." This is something hould not be decided by 150 students, less than one- of the seniors, he added.

ren's Vice President Chamointed out that there would enough time to set up a election and again pointed low turnout for elections.

Dobson retorted, "There will be time." The nominees must not be chosen by an oligarchy, but by the interested students, he said.

SENATE APPROVAL

Sen. Tom Sisco approved of the bill but wanted the nominating committee be approved by the Student Senate.

After Sen. Nancy Sinden suggested a called meeting, he withdrew his stipulation and requested the Friday meeting.

The time element was an important factor in getting the bill considered.

The women's vice president and others decried that the next meeting would be Oct. 18, only five days away from the deadline.

There would not be enough time, they said, to set up a committee, get the nominees chosen, and permit the committee or students select the campus representatives.

The Who's Who bill went through various steps before it was tabled. A motion was made to consider the bill in a second reading.

The motion failed, the senators wanting to postpone voting. The senate then debated and discussed the measure — deciding to reconsider the bill. After waiving the rules, the senators scheduled today's meeting.

400 Fires Here

Students Should Know Fire Safety

With the ever-present danger of fire, each student should know the procedure for reporting a fire, the location of fire alarms, extinguishers and emergency exits in each building, according to Safety Coordinator W. H. Watson. About 400 to 500 small fires are extinguished each year by the use of fire extinguishers, located in the buildings, he added.

A manual for fire prevention and safety has been issued from the FSU safety office to each dormitory and residence house. Careful attention to the procedures set up by the safety office should result in a minimum of confusion and loss of property in case of fire, Watson said.

FIRE PROCEDURES

In case of a fire, the following procedure should be followed.

1. Sound the fire alarm. There is a fire alarm on each floor of every residence hall that sounds throughout the whole building.

2. Call the city fire department, phone 222-1313. Be sure to give the exact location of the fire—building location and room—so that it may be found easily by the firemen.

3. Call the University operator by dialing "O" if using a campus phone, or 222-9000 if off campus. She will alert the maintenance emergency crew.

4. Evacuate the building. Even in the event of a relatively small fire, the building should be entirely evacuated, not only for the safety of the individuals, but also to make room for fire equipment.

5. Check rooms to see that everyone is out of the building. This includes all rooms — bathrooms, telephone booths, utility rooms and recreational areas. Close the doors after checking each room. Leave the lights on.

6. Use fire extinguishers if possible to do so without undue personal hazard. Demonstrations on use of the extinguishers will be given from time to time by the city fire department.

Chattahoochee Sings Geologic Tune

The tap tap of a geologist's pick is echoing along the bluffs of the Chattahoochee River these days, adding a new note to the "Song of the Chattahoochee."

This addition to the old refrain by Sidney Lanier, supplied by Florida State University geologist Lyman D. Toulmin in the past 19 years, soon will be silenced, however, with the rise of water from two new dams.

When the dams are completed, providing a nine-foot channel from the Gulf to Columbus, Ga., approximately 1,600 feet of tilted rock strata will be buried under water.

These strata, providing fossils covering about 60 million years of the geologic past, offer one of the best records known of Gulf Coast geology, Dr. Toulmin says.

Fortunately most of this record already has been preserved. Toulmin has a laboratory full of guide fossils accumulated in more than 30 boat trips. Soon he and an associate, Dr. Phillip E. LaMoreaux of the Alabama Geological Survey will publish a 77-page description of Chattahoochee stratigraphy.

The oldest strata represented are those of the later Cretaceous period, deposited about 105 million years ago, before the Rocky Mountains were formed. These are just below the fall line at Columbus. Further down the river younger and younger rocks are exposed until near the Florida line, about 125 miles below Columbus, the bluffs contain a layer of Ocala limestone, familiar over much of Florida as an outcrop from which road-building materials are obtained. This is about 45 million years old.

The geologic evidence along the Chattahoochee, said Dr. Toulmin, who made his first reconnaissance of the river in 1942, provide a connecting link between Gulf Coast and Atlantic Coast geology. He has just received a grant of $11,900 from the National Science Foundation for a two-year study of the foraminifera fossils along a 49-mile stretch of the river extending from 15 miles south of Eufaula, Ala., to 15 miles south of Columbia, Ala.

Most of the fossils needed for this study are already in hand, he says, but supplementary material will have to be collected beginning in November. He'll have to work fast to collect what is needed. Winter rains are expected to raise water levels by January and in the spring the locks at George Andrews Lock and Dam at Columbus, Ala., will be filled, burying many of the bluffs under water.

By 1963 the big Walter F. George Dam at Fort Gaines, Ga., will be completed, a dam which will raise the water level 92 feet and impound waters clear to Columbus, Ga. 85 miles upstream. Its lock will lift vessels 88 feet, or three feet higher than all the locks of the Panama Canal.

The strata which will be buried by the rising water level provide at least as complete a record of Geologic ages as the strata on such Alabama rivers as the Tombigbee and Black Warrior and Alabama, according to Dr. Toulmin.

Rock exposures along these west Alabama streams attracted many geologists in the early days of the last century, including Sir Charles Lyell, who gave the name Eocene and Paleocene to strata of the recent geologic past. The west Alabama stratigraphy has long been a standard.

The work of Toulmin and his associates along the Chattahoochee in these lower reaches of the river, long after it has left both the hills of Habersham and the valleys of Hall, will provide a connecting link between west Alabama and what is found by core drilling in other parts of the Southeast.

The FSU scientist, who is councilor for paleontology of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists, an organization with a membership of 1600, is one of several geologists from FSU working on problems of sedimentary materials of the Atlantic and Gulf coastal plain.

SAND DOLLARS LIKE THIS 60,000,000-YEAR-OLD ONE ARE among the fossils chipped from the bluffs of the Chattahoochee River by Florida State University geologist Lyman D. Toulmin.

International Club Organizes Tonight

An organizational meeting for the International Students Club will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Large Lounge in Longmire.

The primary purpose of the first meeting is to get acquainted with new members and re-establish old friendships, Dr. John Cummer, assistant director of counseling, Miss Elke Frank, foreign student adviser, and Samuel Faircloth, International Student Club adviser, plan to make suggestions for the year's activities.

The International Student Club has been in existence for several years under Student Government.

The club, according to Faircloth, gives the international student a voice in student affairs, a chance to meet more of the student body and to share the culture and experiences of his country with others. It should also provide opportunities for learning more about U.S. culture, he said.

INTEREST IN PEOPLE

Faircloth defines "international student" as one with an interest in people that goes beyond the general academic connotation of student. This makes the organization open to all interested students and faculty. According to his definition, FSU has approximately 100 foreign students, but many more international students. The object is to incorporate the international students into all student affairs, not just academic life, he said.

"If the international student doesn't contribute something to our university life, and we to his, besides academic training, we really haven't accomplished all we could," he added.

"These people," he continued, "are the cream of the crop from their countries and many go back to their countries in positions of leadership in government, business, private industry, and education." "The international student doesn't just come to the U.S. to study," he added.

Faircloth, who is beginning his first year as International Student Club adviser, received his M.A. degree from FSU. He is a instructor in the Speech Dept. and has been a member of the FSU faculty since 1957.

Tutor List

Alpha Lambda Delta, freshmen women's scholastic honorary, is compiling a booklet listing tutors available for students on this campus, as a new project this year. The booklet, which is to be printed shortly after mid-terms, phone numbers, prices and hours open to students.

This year's officers for the organization are Libby Grubb, president; Clyda Stokes, vice president; Marjorie Williams, secretary; Kim Strasius, treasurer; and Becky Bailey, historian.

FSU Cage Drill Kicks Off Monday

By DALE MARLER
Fambeau Sports Writer

Florida State University's fall practice for basketball will begin officially Monday.

Even though the team has been working on physical conditioning since Sept. 25, with an average workout of two hours a day, they have not been able to work out on the court as a team because of NCAA rules.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association sets up rules for colleges throughout the nation. These rules are the rules which we abide by at FSU. This is why basketball can not officially begin until Oct. 16.

Coaching this years basketball team will be Head Coach Bud Kennedy and Assistant Coach Hugh Durham. Both coaches feel that this years team is as good and as strong as we have had in the past fourteen years.

The strength of this years team will be inbounding, where last year they finished eleventh in the nation with a percentage total of 458. Even though this years team will be strong in shooting, the weakness will lie in their lack of size and height.

The backbone of this years squad will be composed of eight returning lettermen: Dave Fedor, Ray Swain, Rufus Aesbworth, Tim Edney, and Jack Davis, seniors; Forrest Cogle, Charles Long, and Dale Ricketts, juniors. With the seniors and juniors this year will be five outstanding sophomores, Wally Dale, Bobby Ek, Dale Reeves, Bobby Lobbell, and Bill Grawald.

Serving as this year's co-captains will be seniors Dave Fedor and Ray Swain. Both of these boys have excellent records in basketball. Fedor has a two year average of 20 points a game, was the leading scorer and rebounder of last year's squad, and shot a field goal percentage of over 50. Swain, is the most improved player on the squad, was the second high scorer and rebounder on last year's team, and was rated as thirteenth in the nation in field goal percentage with 53.5.

Along with them are: Rufus Ashworth, the most improved defensive player on the team; Tim Edney, an outstanding defensive man; Jack Davis, a top defensive player in his third year with the Seminoles; Fairest Coogle, who was a reliable sixth man on last year's team and could always be depended on for one hundred per cent effort; Charles Lang, who was the outstanding Freshman in '59 and is expected to have a good year this season; Dale Ricketts, who has a years experience, is expected to really boost the team's scoring with his keen eye; Wally Dale, in his first year of varsity competition can be depended on for some good shooting.Bobby Ek, having improved steadily since his Freshman year is expected to see a lot of action this year; Dale Reeves, shows great promise in rebound and defensive work; Bobby Lobbell, holder of the Freshman scoring record is the only recruit from the Freshman team on the Varsity; and Bill Griswald, who is expected to see plent of action this season too.

The schedule for this year's fighting Seminoles will lead off with Ohio State University, the number one team in the nation last year, along with such other outstanding teams as Wisconsin, Rice, Clemson, Auburn, Tennessee, Furman, Alabama, Georgia, and Florida. Teams in this year's schedule represent five major conferences and three major independents.

This year's freshman team is one of the best al laround teams in freshman basketball history at FSU. The team is composed of, such outstanding players as: Tom Lund, 6' 4" All-State guard from Indiana; Jerry Shirley, 6' 5" All-State forward from Alabama; Bob Geming, 6' 7" All-City center from Jax, who is expected to reach 6' 9" by next season; Ken Black, 6' 8" guard All-Conference from Wisconsin with an average of 26 points a game; Cal Huge, 6' 6" forward All-City and honorable mention All-State from Wisconsin; Pete Gonzales, 6' 1" guard All-City from Miami; and Ross Winter, 6' 2" guard from Alabama.

Basketball games, the archery tournament, horseshoe competition, and the volleyball intramurals take over the campus this week as intramural action swings into full view.

Volleyball competition started Wednesday afternoon. Marie Thorpe, chairmen of the volleyball league, stated that more than 50 teams were entered in the competitive game.

Bowling will be the new sport to come into full view next week as the bowlers hustle to the lanes in sorority competition. Bowling is being put into a different season this year since the girls are trying to combine some of the sports. Intramurals is always open to everyone at campus and the bowling competition should prove to be one of the biggest if expectations are up to par this season.

Schack, of the Majors team, rose to the second position on the leading scorers sheet and the Majors now stand 4-0 after licking Alpha Kappa Psi and the Foundation Scholarship Organization teams.

Kellum Hall increase their lead to 4-0 also in the Monday and Wednesday tilts. The Kellum team topped the Celts and the Yankee Doodlers.

A nek team bas been added to the dorm-independent league while another had dropped out. West Hall had dropped from the Garnet League of the Dorm-independent league and the Villagers have taken their place. Because the schedule has been set up, and the league organized, the Villagers will simply take over the West Hall spot. The team is composed of the alumni who live off the campus.

In Monday night's competition the Majors beat the Alpha Kappa Psi 42-38. Foundation Scholarship Organization and West Hall had a double forfeit and the Baptist Student Union defeated Geology 45-31 in the Garnet League. In the Gold League, Kellum trounced the Celts 67-26 while the Yankee Doodlers and the Newman Club had close games with Wesley and Dean of Men's Staff before coming out on top 59-54 and 29-23 respectively.

Wednesday night the Majors and Kellum Hall defeated their opponents to keep their leads in the respective leagues. The Majors hit the Foundation Scholarship Organization for a 59-26 loss while Geology was the winner of the games against Alpha Kappa Psi 47-39 and the Baptist Student Union slaughtered the Villagers 60-14.

Kellum had another close game with the second-place team, the Yankee Doodlers, but finally managed to win 48-41. Dean of Men's Staff won a forfeit over the Celts; Wesley knocked over the Newman Club 54-38.

Broer, of the Yankee Doodlers, is leading the basketball intramurals with 92 points to date.

Against Georgia Bulldogs

Seminoles Look To Settle Score

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

The Florida State football team will be looking for revenge when it meets the Georgia Bulldogs in Athens, Georgia, this Saturday in an effort to retain their five-game victory streak over the Seminoles makes this grid battle Saturday night a gridiron headliner.

Besides looking for their first win over the Bulldogs since the series began in 1954, the Seminoles will be out to crop their second Southeastern Conference scalp.

The first SEC victory came in 1958 against the University of Tennessee. A combination of Fred Pickard, Jack Espenship and Bobby Renn turned the Vols easy "breather" into a Seminole field day. Pickard rushed 133 yards against the "unaware team."

Georgia will be defending its perfect record of 5 wins-no losses in this encounter.

The first game with Georgia was in 1954. The Seminoles-Bulldog series looks like this:

1954 FSU 0, GA, 14; 1955 FSU 14, GA 47; 1956 FSU 0, GA 2; 1957 FSU 13, GA 28; 1958 FSU 0, GA. 42.

Three all-time single game records have been established during the Georgia tilts. In 1954 Le Corso intercepted 11 passes to tie an already standing record. In 1958 the other two records were set forth. Fred Pickard rushed 29 times to lay claim to a record for the most times on one game. During the same game FSU suffered its greatest margin of defeat, 0-42.

The Seminoles hopeful of a win will be playing without the services of two backfield men, Marion and Gene Roberts. Gene Roberts hurt his knee during the George Washington game and is a doubtful starter. Marion Roberts is still nursing an injured ankle he received al the Florida game.

Paul Andrews will be starting so fullback position to replace Roberts.

Dropping their first two games the Bulldogs lost to Alabama 22-8 and to Vanderbilt 21-0. South Carolina suffered a 17-14 defeat at the hands of the Bulldogs.

"Georgia made some big, critical mistakes in its first two ball games," Peterson said. "We expect the Bulldogs to be at least as rough on the line of scrimmage as Ole Miss. Maybe even tough-er."

Frosh Gridders Scored Well On Entrance Tests

By SHIRLEY HARDISON
Flambeau Sports Writer

"Big, Dumb, football players" have no place on the Florida State campus and the freshman players are one of the superior groups to support this statement of idea.

On a survery of the scores on the 12th grade senior placement test taken in all Florida schools, the freshman team has an average of 323, which is in the top 40% of the ranking.

According to Dr. Murray Kenna, close to 50% of the young people taking the test make over 300 on the final tally. This is also the admission mark for most of the state universities. Making over 300 puts the student in the top 40% of all the students who took the test the preceeding year.

Four of the freshman team members made over the 400 mark which is close to the top 20%. The scores ranged from 217 to 442, most of the scores being in the high 300 or 300 ranking.

Coach Charlie LaPradd was out of town at the time the scores were noted but Coach Bubba McGowan said he was "real pleased that the boys made so high. Maybe this will give the right idea to the public about our "so-called 'dub' athletes."

Coach Bill Peterson said he thought it was a fine showing for the team and he was quite pleased with the high scores.

THE TRUE AND HARROWING FACTS ABOUT RUSHING

It is well enough to sit in one's Morris chair and theorize about sorority rushing, but if one really wishes to know the facts, one must leave one's Morris chair and go out into the field. (My Morris chair, incidentally, was given to me by the Philip Morris Company, makers of Marlboro Cigarettes. They are great-hearted folk, the makers of Marlboro Cigarettes, as millions of you know who have enjoyed their excellent cigarettes. Only from bountiful souls could come such mildness, such flavor, such filters, such pleasure, as you will find in Marlboros! For those who prefer crushproof boxes, Marlboro is available in crushproof boxes. For those who prefer soft packs, Marlboro is available in soft packs. For those who prefer to buy their cigarettes in bulk, please contact Emmett R. Sgrafoce, friendly manager of our factory in Richmond, Virginia.)

But I digress. I was saying that in order to know the true facts about sorority rushing, one must go into the field and investigate. Consequently, I went last week to the Indiana College of Spot Welding and Belles Lettres and interviewed several million coeds, among them a lovely lass named Gerund McKeever. (It is, incidentally, quite an interesting little story about how she came to be named Gerund. It seems that her father, Ralph T. McKeever, loved grammar better than anything in the world, and so he named all his children after parts of speech. In addition to Gerund, there were three girls named Preposition, Adverb, and Pronoun, and one boy named Dative Case. The girls seemed not to be unduly depressed by their names, but Dative Case, alas, grew steadily more morose and was finally found one night dangling from a turnpike. After this tragic event, the father abandoned his practice of grammatical nomenclature, and whatever children were subsequently born to him—eight in all—were named Everett.)

But I digress. I was interviewing a lovely coed named Gerund McKeever. "Gerund," I said, "were you rushed by a sorority?"

"Yes, mister," she said, "I was rushed by a sorority."

"Did they give you a high-pressure pitch?" I asked. "Did they use the hard sell?"

"No, mister," she replied. "It was all done with quiet dignity. They simply talked to me about the chapter and the girls for about three minutes and then I pledged."

"My goodness!" I said. "Three minutes is not very long for a sales talk."

"It is when they are holding you under water, mister," said Gerund.

"Well, Gerund," I said, "how do you like the house?"

"I like the house fine, mister," she replied. "But I don't live there. Unfortunately, they pledged more girls than they have room for, so they are sleeping some of us in the bell tower."

"Isn't that rather noisy?" I said.

"Only on the quarter-hour," said Gerund.

"Well, Gerund," I said, "it has certainly been a pleasure talking to you," I said.

"Likewise, mister," she said, and with many a laugh and cheer we went our separate ways—she to the campanile, I to the Morris chair.

Coffee Hour

50 Stand To Hear Dr. Townsend Talk

By JOCELYN WARD

Friday, a capacity audience filled the Westminster House to overflowing as Dr. Francis Townsend opened the first English Coffee Hour of the year. Over 50 people were standing at the back of the room and several eager latecomers were peering through the windows from the outside.

Dr. Townsend spoke on Shakespeare's As You Like It. He considers As You Like It one of Shakespeare's finest comedies, yet in the classroom and on stage the play is often a failure.

This maybe explained by the old adage, "Greatest art it that that seems like no art at all." As You Like It seems to be a loose, light comedy with limber construction. But actually it embodies a close tightly knit problem in one of Shakespeare's favorite themes, illusions versus reality.

Dr. Townsend explained that in the average human life there is conflict between the world as it is and as we wish it to be. The major problem of life is resolving the two.

Shakespeare brings out this theme against the "humorous" background of two brother's hate for one another. He includes the picadilio of treason and tyranny. The characters escape to a world "as they like it," but the hilarious clown Touchstone keeps the reader informed of the world as it really is.

In closing, Dr. Townsend challenged the audience. "When you read Shakespeare do you see it as it really is, or do you see it as you like it?"

The English Coffee Hour will be held every Friday at 4 p.m. in the Westminster House.

KITTEN-LOVING ABE LINCOLN APPEARS IN "THE LAST DAYS OF LINCOLN"

A kitten-loving Abraham Lincoln shows up in the first play at New York Author Mark Van Doren's night, which will be premiered at Florida State University next Wednesday night. In the last days before Appomattox (and only a few before his own death) the President, who is fighting for a peace of reconciliation in place of vengeance, is made to observe as he pets three tiny gray kittens found at General Grant's headquarters: "I believe they are Confederates. Does this mean I should hang them?" Said one observer at the president: "Mr. Lincoln was quite humorous, although one could always detect a bit of irony in his humor." This picture shows New York actor Jim Campbell, who takes the part of Lincoln, with kittens Rebel, Tiger and Dixie, and with Van Doren between acts at rehearsal.

Poet - Playwright Discusses Aspects Of 'The Last Days Of Lincoln' Work

By LINDA COLLIER
Flambeau Staff Writer

The world premier of The Last Days of Lincoln, by Pulitzer-prize winning poet Mark Van Doren will be tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m. in Conrads Theatre.

The play will be performed at Florida State University through Oct 25 except Sunday night. Tickets for the production are on sale at Westcott Ticket Office at $.75 for students and $1.50 for adults.

Sponsored by the Eddie Dowling Foundation and the University Theatre Guild, the play stars Jim Campbell as Lincoln and two other professional actors, David Clarke and Nora Dunfee. with FSU students playing supporting roles. Richard Fallon is directing the production.

Van Doren did not originally intend for his latest work to be a play, but after three years of reading, during which he collected a whole library of Lincoln literature, he said, "more and more of my attention centered on the dramatic last days of Lincoln's life and thus perod seemed to lend itself more to a play than to a long poem.

"I have never thought of myself as a playwright, this just happened to be the way this subject was treated., he explained.

"If the opportunity comes up I may write another one, but I have made no specific plans for one," he added

Three years of research and one week of writing went into The Last Days of Lincoln He began the play, his first, while delivering a lecture in Raleigh, N.C. "I was alone in the hotel room when I decided to write the Lincoln play." he said "I wrote from memory as I was away from my notes and continued to write for the next week on planes and trains as I traveled I finished it at the end of a week." Van Doren continued

LIVING MAN

"The part of Lincoln is not treated in the usual way in this play. I hope to make him a living man rather than a cold, formal portrait. He is most informal in the play, and most talkative. Since the plays him a rather long part, it has been a great challenge to Mr. Campbell, who plays Lincoln He has worked very hard to learn and interpret it. If he seems different to some people in this close-up, I could be that they have known him more from legends that have arisen about him rather than from direct knowledge," he explained

Van Doren's Lincoln is both complex and simple. His concern at the time of the play is with the aftermath of peace. He sees his desire for a good peace for the South through which he is deeply worried as he tries to muster his defenses for his ideas, and get the backing of the people behind him.

An autograph party honoring Mark Van Doren will be held Friday from 2 to 5 p. m. in the Faculty Club. Students, faculty, and the public are invited to attend.

The University Book Store is sponsoring the reception, at which copies of the play, "The Last Days Of Lincoln," and other works by Van Doren will be available.

PORTRAYED VIVIDLY

"I had no expectations at first, as I have never been involved in a play in this manner before. Both the professional actors and the students have given themselves to the play with great sympathy, generosity and understanding. They have portrayed my characters in some cases even more vividly than they are shown in the book," he added

Senate Holds Action On Who's Who Bill

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Student Senate has temporarily withdrawn the controversial Who's Who issue by requesting a deadline postponement of nominee selection.

Student Body Vice President Ken van Assendelft was requested at the Friday night meeting to write to Randall Publishing Co., which publishes Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

The Who's Who bill, introduced by Women's Vice President Mygan Champon, calls for a 13-man committee of nine students and four faculty members to choose the campus Who's Who nominees.

Introduced last Wednesday, the passage of the bill was slowed by various objections of several senators.

TAKE AWAY RIGHT

Some senators do not like taking away the right of the senior and graduate students to choose their Who's Who nominees.

But others point out that many students are overlooked when voters choose the "popular" students instead of the deserving ones. Still others point out that about only 150 students vote in Who's Who elections — which is less than one-fifth of the senior class.

The largest objection, however, seems to be a certain phrase in one section of the bill, "The number of students selected shall be determined by the national organization and the selection shall be based upon an established system," the sentence reads.

This could allow the committee to stack the selections, some have complained.

But the pro-Who's Who bill faction counters with these facts:

Many students work hard, hold many positions, work hard, and not get their names into the Who's Who publication. This bill would erase this unfair advantage.

The "established system" ascribes points from one to five to various offices on campus. There can be no juggling of figures, say Who's Who backers.

—The committee would be able to judge the amount of work nominees have done and would have the power to by-pass the lazy office holders—who may have accumulated more points than harder workers.

OPPOSING FACTION

However, the opposing faction replies by saying the latter power is the most dangerous one.

Some senators have said, "I feel that the people that elected me are capable of choosing Who's Who nominees."

At the called meeting, however, the Who's Who bill received scant attention once the legislators learned they could delay the decision.

Once the Who's Who measure was tabled until Wednesday, three other bills were passed Introduced by Sen. Nancy Sindon and Sen. Joedy Smith, the Senate unanimously approved a bill that let it be known "to all that (the' Senate will not condone any act taken in disregard" of the student body constitution and statutes.

Sen. Genne Boyd felt the bill was unnecessary, because it would be better to show the Senate's ideals by "actions rather than words."

STUDY CHANGES

A bill, introduced by Sen. Dale Marler and Miss Champion and passed by the Senate set up a committee of five senators to study the Constitution and Statutes to see how they will be affected by a trimester or quarter system.

The last bill to pass congratulated the administration on formulating the trimester system and enlisted the support of the Board of Control members on the Oct. 20 vote.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Tom Sisco, also endorsed the proposed idea of dividing the summer session into two parts—Apr. 25-June 10 and June 24-Aug. 12.

This measure caused the loudest squall of the call meeting when some senators failed to see, or agree with, the trimester system's advantages.

They bickered over phrases in the bill, changed some incorrect dates of the summer session, and then debated on the necessity of including the dates.

The bill then passed with one "nay."

Kellum, Too

Due to irregular procedures in the Kellum Hall election earlier this year, a special election will be held October 24. for the election of dormitory president, a unit governor and an athletic chairman.

A hearing committee met Friday night to discuss the irregularities and decided to hold a new election. The governor of Unit Two and the Unit Three athletic chairman, as well as the dormitory president will be re-voted on in the election.

The deadline for filing for these offices will be Wednesday at 5 p. m the candidate did not affect the election's outcome, stated one witness.

The contestors stated that it didn't matter whether or not he had affected the outcome, what mattered was that he had handled the ballots and ballotboxes—a clear violation of election rules.

—"No campaigning is to take place within 50 feet of the polls," is the second reason

The Kahn group stated they had proof that the chairman of the election committee and the other candidate were campaigning at the polls.

The elections chairman said he did not remember making any remarks which would be classified as campaigning The committee decided it was a technicality whether a candidate standing in a voting area constitutes campaigning.

—The elections chairman did not appoint anyone under him to help in handling the election.

LIST OF STUDENTS

The protestors said they could supply a list of students that would have served, although the chairman said he could find no one.

These last two points were thrown out by the committee—who said that the dormitory was not under the rules of the Constitution and the Statutes of the student body.

Kahn said he is taking the issue to the University Court because he believes the dorms are under Constitutional and Statutory law.

He cited paragraph B under the dormitory rules—which says, "The executive council shall have the power to make all technical laws, rules, and regulations for the dormitory . . . so long as it does not violate any University rules, regulations and policies or any rules and policies set up for the West (now Smith) Hall Staff."

Before he began contesting the election, Kahn said he contacted a faculty member in the Government Dept. who agreed he had solid grounds to protest.

The faculty member "suggested that I appeal for a decision from the dormitory government and that if I felt this decision was biased or unfair in any way, then I should appeal to the University Court for a decision," he stated.

Fox Tells Solons Of 'Basic Biology'

Plans and goals of the Florida State University's new space bioscinences program were outlined by the Institute Director, Dr Sidney Fox for the Legislators who were visiting the FSU campus Saturday.

President Gordon W Blackwell, Coach Bill Peterson and Student Body President Bobby Byrd, also spoke to the group which was called for the annual Legislative Recognition Day, sponsored jointly by FSU and the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Fox said various phases of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration Office of Life Sciences Programs are concerned with biotechnology and medical and behavioral sciences, both concerned with problems of maintaining man in space vehicles, and "basic biology".

This last area, for which FSU has just received an initial grant of $784,000 from NASA, "is almost blue sky research of the type which has come to be so heavily supported by industry because of its extremely valuable although unpredictable results," he said.

It is this kind of research in which FSU will engage, said Fox. "We can go so far as to formulate such questions as, 'Is there life elsewhere in the solar system, or elsewhere in the universe, and if so, how does it differ from life on earth?' Widespread public interest in the answer to this kind of question has a special quality in that the underlying motivation is curiosity, or as it has been called a 'divine nosiness,' and is closely akin to impetus of the scientist."

Ice Talks Tonight For Investiture

The main address at tonight's Sophomore-Senior Investiture ceremony will be delivered by Dr. Jackson Lee Ice on the topic, "Swan Song."

According to Dr. Ice this topic was designed not only to apply to the Class of '62 but is equally applicable to all "education as the term is used today.

The ceremony will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a banquet in the Suwannee Dining Hall. Following the banquet the group will proceed to the Opperman Amphitheatre. The procession led by members of ODK, Gold Key, Garnet Key, and Mortar Board will then go to Westcott Auditorium for the formal investiture. The deans and heads of all departments will be in the procession.

Tickets for the banquet will be on sale until noon today at the main ticket office in Westcott. The price is $1.

Senate Studies New Exam Methods

By JOAN ABBOTT
Flambeau News Editor

A five-point program for revision of the testing system aimed at cutting down on academic dishonesty will be presented in Student Senate Wednesday.

Introduced by Men's Vice President Carl Kuttler and Sen. Don Thigpen, the resolution will call for Faculty Senate action on the proposed revisions.

Similar to systems at Harvard and the University of Chicago, a major point of the system calls for old tests to be made available for study guides.

PROPOSED REVISIONS

The proposed revisions are as follows:

1. That all examinations be filed in the Library for the students' use.

2. That all tests may be recopied by both students and local bookstores for study guides. Local bookstores may sell the study guides.

3. That no identical examination be given twice.

4. That all examinations be returned to the students within a reasonable time.

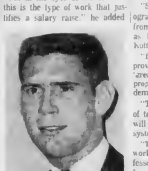
5. That strict supervision be placed over the mimeographing process of examinations and student assistants be watched more carefully.

Sponsors of the resolution believe that these measures will cut down on academic dishonesty in many ways by removing temptation and will aid in raising the academic standards of the University.

Students with whom the sponsors have discussed the proposals' provisions have voiced overwhelming approval, they said.

STUDENTS WANT

"I think that a large majority of the students want a better testing system," said Kuttler. "There are a lot of loopholes in the present system."



"Some professors are giving examinations that have been used for many semesters and fraternity and sorority files, as well as independent sources, place an unjust curve to those students who do not have access to them," he explained.

"By having the test made available to local bookstores for copying, everyone will be able to use them as study guides, not just a select few," he added.

"Now students will often use an old examination purely as a study guide and then will go to class and discover that the same is being repeated," he said.

"When students first come to this University they have no idea what to expect on a test," Thigpen said. If such study guides were available, they would be much better prepared for their initial college tests, as well as for the first test in a subject area, he added.

Additional work will be required of the professors if they make up new tests, Kuttler commented. "But in the eyes of the students this is the type of work that justifies a salary raise," he added

Kuttler

When professors return tests promptly students will have an opportunity to check the professors grading and to review before another test is given, which will be highly beneficial to the students," he said.

"Students themselves want their tests back so they can see what they've done," Thigpen said Some professors either never return tests or give them back so late that they're not nearly as a learning aid, he pointed out.

"Strict supervision over mimeographing process will keep tests from getting out ahead of time as has happened in the past," Kuttler emphasized

"I believe that this will improve the academic standards of 'great university but we will not succeed until we raise our academic standards," he added.

This will close many areas of temptation to the students and will serve to strengthen the honor system," Kuttler stressed

"The honor system doesn't work on this campus because professors leave too many loopholes for students to cheat and student self-power isn't strong enough," he concluded.

Compromise May Solve It

Battle lines are shaping up the Who's Who election method debate, and many tempers seem to be getting short. On one side are those legislators who feel that a popular vote tents to elect popular, but not necessarily capable, people.

On the other hand, there are those who maintain that the principal of democratic action should be followed in all cases.

BOTH GROUPS HAVE valid points in their favor. Too much centralization of power in the hands of any one group is dangerous and contrary to the ideal of majority rule.

However, it is also true that many organizations simply nominate all of their senior members for Who's Who and then try to vote them in, even if other groups have more able candidates.

Rather than support either of these movements, we advocate a compromise. Some modification of the present system is definitely needed. The disagreement stems mainly from degree and not from principle.

WHY NOT SET UP a committee, similar to the one already proposed which would screen the candidates nominated by the various organizations. This group, perhaps usng a point system and also exercising their own judgement, could examine the records of the nominees in greater detail than is possible by the entire senior class.

After this group has met, it could submit a list of one third more names than are allowed to FSU by the national Who's Who organization. The senior class, exercising its traditional privilege, could then vote, choosing the final candidates from this list.

UNDER THIS SYSTEM, the major points of both arguments can be satisfied. The committee can strike the obvious shirkers from the ballot, but the voters will still have the final choice.

Too often, people find themselves too proud to change their minds publicly or even admit that they were only partly right at first. We hope that this will not happen when Senate meets tomorrow to decide the question. With the best interests of the student body in mind, Senate could act on this suggestion to reach a workable solution.

A Degree For Fo otballers?

There once was a time when it was a standing joke to say that a football player was majoring in football. But now Coach Bill Peterson wants this to become a reality.

Peterson told the assembly of legislators on Legislative Appreciation Day that he would like Florida State University to offer a degree in football.

IT IS DOUBTFUL that even the state legislature will be impressed by a proposal as ludicrous as a degree with the main emphasis being on football — even for budding young football coaches.

But the proposal points up an issue which has to be faced by every university which aspires to athletic greatness.

And that is whether or not a football player can be classed as a student or as a gladiator hired to do combat for the university.

This is a far-reaching problem. It involves whether athletes should take the same courses, pass the same tests, or live under the same regulations as their non-athletic brethern.

THE UNIVERSITY HAS been reasonable in their approach to the problem so far. For the most part faculty members and administrators have viewed the football player in the same light as they view other students. This is the only way a healthy program can be run.

It seems out of character that a man as sincerely interested in the welfare of his players as Peterson would make such a proposal. Peterson has often impressed observers with his efforts to make his players normal members of the student body both in their scholastic work and their outside endeavors. And certainly Peterson does not believe that the world outside of Westcott Gates will take a degree in football seriously.

POSSIBLY PETERSON'S proposal was misinterpreted or misrepresented. Knowing Peterson it would seem so. But prospective gridders should not be deluded into believing they are coming here as a breed apart and a breed above the rest of the student body.

Florida State welcomes gridders who can put on the demonstration of desire and determination that typified the Seminole victory over the Georgia Bulldogs.

But those who desire to be gods of the gridiron with no obligations to take normal academic loads or no restrictions had best go elsewhere.

We only want students of genuine merit here.

'Fire' In Male Dorms

The stench of charges and counter charges over alledged voting irregularities in Kellam and Smith Halls has become more choking by the year. Annually charges are made.

Some undoubtedly have a foundation of truth, some undoubtedly do not. But as the old adage says, where there is smoke there is fire. And the smoke around these halls is choking.

REGARDLESS, the residents of these halls who are interested in good government might well remember one thing.

There is only one way in which a poor government can consistently pull the wool over their constituents eyes.

And that is when it has apathy as an ally.

IF THE RESIDENTS of these halls are unhappy with their present governments, they should turn out in droves to voice his disapproval. A clear majority of votes is an indication of the type of government desired.

But if these residents do not care enough to make a ballot, then they should be happy that anyone is interested enough in dorm government to try to legally run the show.

Kuttler's Proposal

May Be Solution

Examination time has always been a period of deepest intrigue, secret speculation, and frantic thefts at Florida State University.

It is a time when the Honor Code is too often reduced to shambles while the guilty parties laugh mockingly at students who must study to pass courses.

Whispered—then openly declared—rumors of what fraternity swiped which final or what sorority has which test on file are spread.

The whispers are widely encompassing with their accusations. Everyone from the Chief Justice of the Honor Court to the lowest freshman in the past have been tangled out as possessors of test information.

Some of these have been true. But only a small proportion of the guilty have received punishment.

All of the rumors are passed with "good authority" and all point up several needs of the examination system.

* * * *

Carl Kuttler, the energetic Men's Vice President, is going to propose what may be the solution to the problem. His plan certainly merits adoption.

Kuttler is proposing that Florida State adopt the "Harvard Testing System."

Supposedly this plan was originated at Harvard University and many outstanding institutions of higher learning subscribe to it.

The system involves five points: filing of old tests in the library, giving back tests within a reasonable period of time, making old tests available to local bookstores for mimeographing and selling as review sheets, allowing no test to be given again, and tightening up on security precautions regarding tests to be given.

Adoption of this plan would eliminate any advantage any fraternity or sorority may have by keeping a complete test file. It would also eliminate students stealing old tests which professors are trying to guard.

At the same time, it would make available to every student the opportunity to use old tests to study by and take advantage of the benefits derived from reviewing actual test questions.

* * * *

Perhaps its greatest benefit would be its improvement of the quality of this institution.

A university at which questions from past exams and even complete old tests are regiven year after year can certainly never claim the title of a "great" university.

A university at which time spent hoisting a test or making a deal for an old exam is more valuable than spending time reviewing the textbook and notes is certainly not one which can claim quality as its objective.

True, this would put a heavier load on the faculty. But the faculty is probably more vitally concerned with the quality of this university than are most of the students. And an increase in their efforts to improve its quality would certainly add credulance to their requests for well-deserved higher salaries.

Kuttler, nor the student body, can have this plan adopted without approval of the faculty and administration.

Support and adoption of the "Harvard" plan would certainly indicate that these groups are taking positive steps toward quality rather than merely mouthing slogans of greatness.

Guest Column

A Play Being Born

By DAWN SHARP

Bending low in front of the stage, the silver-haired man gingerly plucked a Dr. Pepper bottle from a trashpile of rags and sawdust. He jostled it, meticulously pushed his latest cigarette stub down its throat, and gently returned it to the trash. Someone asked, "Do you miss smoking?" The man turned again to the laughing knot of actors he had just corrected with a quiet "Not too much. After all, if I were still teaching I couldn't be here."

This scene was not in the script at the all-day rehearsal Wednesday of "The Last Days of Lincoln," which will run for a week at FSU's Festival Theatre. Scheduled as its world premiere Oct. 18 And the "main character" was Mark Van Doren, Pulitzer Prize winning poet-turned-playwright, a living legend. Van Doren and his author-wife arrived in Tallahassee Oct. 6 for a stay of several weeks—weeks which will find the retired Columbia University professor (of English) lending a wise hand to the interpretation of his first play. "My wife and I have been waiting weeks for this, and now that we are here, everything is better than we expected. Of course, it is hard work—hours of rehearsal each day — but that is what I wanted. And my play is already in full process of being born, thanks to a dedicated cast, and thanks to the superb direction of Richard Fallon, who understands possibly better than I ever did, what I intended. I have confidence in the eventual result."

Toward the fruition of Van Doren's hopes an enthusiastic troupe of three professionals and sixteen amateurs (most of them FSU students) plus the support of the Edith Dowling Foundation have combined forces. The play itself, in six scenes, affords a powerful depictment of the last few weeks before the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, a sturdy and poignant drama created from a deep understanding of Lincoln and the Civil War era. After a lifetime of writing poetry, fiction, and non-fiction, Mark Van Doren has taken an thin play a decisive step into the realm of theatre artistry. Archibald MacLeish — another poet-playwright combination — lauds Van Doren's play without reservation. "Mark Van Doren ... read his Lincoln to me. It was an unforgettable experience. The play has the sweep and the inevitability of true tragedy deepened by the human warmth of which Van Doren's verse is so surely master. He is poet as well as playwright, playwright as well as poet, and the lines have those dimensions; they enlarge."

A rehearsal spectacter, glancing perfunctorily at the slender figure in khaki trousers, navy print sportshirt, and horn-rimmed glasses, might not immediately recognize that one of the contemporary theatre's foremost figures is present. But the record does not lie. This is the man who has fired dynamic insight into English courses with his works on Thoreau, Dryden, Shakespeare, Hawthorne, Quixote. This is the man who from 1924 to 1928 was literary editor of the Nation, succeeding his brother Carl, and who from 1935 to 1938 served as that magazine's motion picture critic. This is the man whose edited anthologies include the Oxford Book of American Verse and the Anthology of World Poetry and whose Collected Poems, published in 1939, won the Pulitzer Prize. This is the man who, feeling that "Nothing is too difficult for students," has taught and lectured brilliantly for forty years. This is Mark Van Doren who has brought his play to FSU.

Cast members of "The Last Days of Lincoln" have succumbed en masse to the genial charm and wit of Van Doren. As professionals, he is attentive to the work taking place on stage but never too absorbed in concentration to completely lose sight of up-coming lay and to chat with visitors who drift in to meet him. His capacity for sincere appreciation of others is as vast as his authority on the Lincoln period: both factors inspire friendship and respect from the troupe, resolute in the desire to give his play their best. It takes more than a Pulitzer Prize scholar to effect this kind of spontaneous chemistry; it takes a "regular guy."

It is highly improbable that Henry Nettles, the Negro porter in the Soothe-Sayer Motel (where the Van Dorens are staying), ever read his verse. Yet, it was Henry, who, on helping the new arrivals get settled, paid Van Dorn a tribute of recognition that indicates, among other things, the scope of his influence. "Mistah Mark Van Doren! I've heard of him. He writes good books."

Players To Major In Football?

TO THE EDITOR:

I was aghast to read in Mr. Bill McGrotha's column on the sports page of the Tallahassee Democrat dated Sunday, October 15, that Coach Bill Peterson has discussed the notion of allowing FSU football players to major in football, with members of the state legislature. It seems to me that intercollegiate football has already received far too much emphasis in American colleges and Universities. The implementation of any such proposal would be the last straw. It may come as a great surprise to some, but our colleges and universities are not in the entertainment business, at least not yet.

What would be the difference in the progress of a football major and the program in the already well-established field of Physical Education? It seems to me that the primary difference would be that the purpose of the Physical Education major is (or should be) to improve the physical fitness of the American people and the purpose of the football major is to win more games for FSU.

Perhaps this proposed program is in line with the idea of making Florida State a "great university." It seems to me that

Armed Services Taken For Granted By Public

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

Among members of the great American public, there is widespread ignorance and misunderstanding of the military. This is particularly true among college students, whose limp-wristed demonstrations against ROTC are but one symptom of a general malady.

THE PROBLEM is made all the more acute by the fact that in the United States, the people, through their elected representatives, are responsible for shaping dense policy. Furthermore, the public has never let its ignorance of military matters deter it from massive interference in this field.

The Army, after extensive studies, found that the average person's sources of information about the military are (1) about 75 per cent from former members of the service, (2) about 40 per cent from entertainment media eg. movies, Sergeant Bilko, Beetle Bailey, and obscene literature, and (3) about 5 per cent from the Army's own information program.

THE DEFECTS of the first two sources are obvious. Few former service members ever had anything more than a fragmentary view of the Army during a atypical situation. Nevertheless, many civilians talk with great assurance about the military because "My Uncle Max was a Private in The Great War," or "The guy down at the garage told me, and he spent thirteen months in Korea." The entertainment industry's treatment of the military is beneath contempt.

To those in the Service, the most annoying aspect of the public's attitude is the tendency to take the Armed Forces for granted. The public is willing and eager to let others make sacrifices. When there was an imbalance of gold payments, President Eisenhower decided to waive the problem by separating the families of military personnel.

THE PUBLIC evidently assumes that persons in the military will put up with this neglect indefinitely. That is not the case. Each year the services lose thousands of badly needed technicians in whom they have invested thousands of dollars of learning. These men leave because their sense of duty to their country, however strong, can no longer bridge the widening gulf between the advantages of civilian life and the military, especially when they have another duty to their families. The wonder is not that they leave, but that they stayed so long.

And as they leave, they are replaced by green troops, who must be given many months of costly training before they will be of use. Gone are the days when the Army could hand a man a rifle and proclaim that he was a soldier. Complex weapons and equipment demand specialists of high ability and training. The pity is that the Army must spend as much as $30,000 to train a man, only to lose him after a year of service because Congress refuses to pay him much more than $100 a month.

Meanwhile, college students, safe and secure from any demands of sacrifice or reality, wave their silly placards, demand "peace," and deride the very men who are protecting them.

How Can You Report Contest?

TO THE EDITOR:

I believe that the contents of a university student newspaper should be the sole responsibility of its editors, free of all faculty censorship.

But I also believe that:

(1) The editors of a chosen newspaper should have enough sensitivity and dedication to the principles of a free press so that they would not give support to any society that is avowedly antidemocratic and authoratarian in nature.

(2) If, as on last Friday, an announcement on behalf of such an organization is carried, the editors owe it to their readers to identify the organization by some thing more than an address.

(3) If the Flambeau was prepared or duped into free publicity for the Birch Society, the editors should apologize to their readers or alternatively if the Flambeau has fallen into the hands of what Senator Fulbright calls the "right wing radicals" independent students on this campus should organize a free press for the defense of traditional American values expressed in the Constitution.

In other words, how come you all to announce that "Imperial Earl Warren" contest with a straight face, huh?

RENEGADES STOP GEORGIA SHORT OF THE FSU GOAL

CHEERLEADERS REJOICE AS GEORGIA BULLDOGS ARE STOPPED

FSU Upends Georgia 3-0

Renegades, Bickford, Messer Mean Victory

By BILL CHEEK

A combination of Roy Bickford, Doug Messer and a goal line stand by the Renegades proved too much for the victory-starved Georgia Bulldogs Saturday night.

The first time the Seminoles took possession of the ball they produced a field goal that proved to be the difference between winning and losing the ball game.

With 8:06 remaining on the clock in the first quarter, Doug Messer split the uprights with a 28-yard field goal giving FSU a 3-0 lead and final score.

Ed Feely piloted the fired-up Seminole football machine for a 51-yard drive from his own 40 to the Georgia 8 yard line on successive short passes and hard running. It took the Seminoles only 4:31 seconds from the time they took over the ball until their first tally had been chalked up.

On the Seminoles 34 yard line Durward Pennington attempted to even the score up for the Georgia team. The attempt was barely short.

Nearing the end of the first half Pennington tried a second field goal from the 30 yard line of Florida State, but the effort was wide and to the left.

Pennington had completed 10 consecutive field goals before entering Saturday night's game.

The Bulldogs returned to the game after the intermission attempting to put a tally on their side of the score board. The Georgians took possession on their own 28 and started a drive that totaled 55 yards before they met a brick wall on the FSU one.

Roy Bickford stopped a pass receiver at the 4 yard strip and the Renegades took over from there.

Like another defensive team, the Chinese Bandits of LSU, the Renegades, a defensive specialist unit, gained their own reknown by placing a stone wall in front of Georgia. The Bulldogs could not penetrate the Seminole line. After four tries the long drive was halted and the ball changed hands.

Still hopeful for a six pointer the Bulldogs moved the ball from their 22 across the mid strip to the FSU 15. End Fred Grimes hit the Bulldog quarterback Larry Rakestraw hard enough to make him fumble, thus squelching the last hopes of the Georgians to claim their second win of the season.

Ken Kinderman proved to be the Seminole workhorse as he ran 22 times for a total of 101 yards. Ed Feely followed with 14 times for a total of 41 yards.

Not only did FSU win on the score board but statistically they totaled 153 yards rushing against Georgia's 39 yards.

In the air, the Georgia Bulldogs predominated. Riding on the right arm of Rakestraw, the Bulldogs compiled a total of 144 yards through the airways. FSU, who in past encounters has relied heavily on its air force, could not equal the Georgia attack.

Florida State managed only 17 yards on three completions by quarterback Feeley on five attempts. Ed Trancygier also threw once but it fell incomplete.

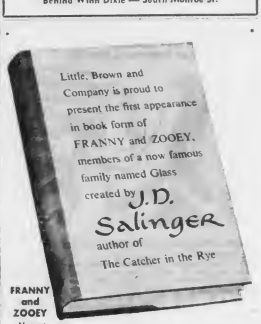
Injured Fick Out For Year

Junior halfback Happy Fick has been lost to the Seminoles for the remainder of the season because of a knee injury in the Ole Miss game.

The junior from Miami injured his knee this summer while doing road-work. Fick stepped into a hole, turning his knee. Trainer Don Faulks okayed him for limited duty this season. Coach Bill Peterson employed him in the defensive backfield.

He was reinjured in the Florida game, but sufficiently recovered to play against Ole Miss a week ago. During the Mississippi game he began to show signs of limping, after another look at the knee, doctors agreed that he had a torn cartilage. Fick will be operated on within the next few weeks.

Fick was outstanding in the spring game and was counted on for heavy offensive duty this fall. Peterson said that "Fick is one of the fastest men on the squad."



"It is hard to say how the injury will affect the team, because many boys have come along better than expected," Peterson also stated.

Larry Brinkley, who was injured in a pre-season practice, has been named to Fick's position on the Renegades' team. Brinkley played in the Georgia game after being sidelined for the first three games.

FOR 30 YEARS THIS BUILDING WAS THE LIBRARY OF FLORIDA STATE COLLEGE FOR Women and Florida State University and now it houses offices of the Graduate School and College of Arts and Sciences. On Thursday, Oct. 19, the building will be dedicated as the William George Dodd Building, honoring a man who from 1915 until his retirement in 1944 was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at FSCW. Dr. Dodd, 87, may be able to attend the dedication, to be held in the foyer at 3 p.m. Thursday.

Graduate Building To Become Dodd

A building which for 20 years housed the library and now has the main offices of the Graduate School and the College of Arts and Sciences will be dedicated Thursday at 3 p.m. as the William George Dodd Hall.

Dr. Dodd headed the College of Arts and Sciences as Dean from 1913 until his retirement in 1944, and colleagues say that he and the late Dr. Edward Conrads were primarily responsible for the pattern of organization which Florida State College for Women took during this period.

In 1939, a year after Conrads became president of the institution, then with a student body of around 300, he brought Dodd here as professor of English. Dodd served during all of the Conrads' administration and three years more. When he left in 1944 there were 2,000 students.

WAY UNDERSTOOD

Now, 87 years old, Dr. Dodd may be able to attend the dedication to be held in the foyer of the Graduate Bldg. at 3 p.m. Thursday. A bronze plaque has been installed designating this as the Dodd Hall and saying of the educator, "Lake an architect with majestic vision he helped shape the building of a great institution."

Many former students and Tallahaseans recall Dr. Dodd's Christmastime reading of The Christmas Carol in the browsing room of the old library housed here. Former students recall his classes in Shakespeare, popular throughout his long professorship.

Two daughters will be present at the dedication. They are Dr. Dorothy Dodd of Tallahassee, state librarian, and Mrs. Wilson Mary Trammell of Coconut Grove.

Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, president of Florida State University, will preside and Dr. J. Paul Reynolds, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, will speak.

The brick building now officially named for Dr. Dodd was built in the twenties at a cost of about $250,000 and the first west wing, which now houses the audios of WFSU-TV was placed in use in 1925.

The completed building was dedicated during commencement in 1938. In 1956 the present Library was completed and placed in use but some materials still are housed in the old building. Besides offices of the Graduate School and the College of Arts and Sciences the building also houses some of the university editorial offices and classrooms.

Dr. Dodd, for whom the building is named was born in Waynesville, Ohio, on April 19, 1874. He received his A.B. degree from Bethany College in West Virginia in 1895. His M.A. and Ph.D. degree were from Harvard, one in 1908 and the other in 1913.

He taught mathematics in Lancaster, Ky. high school in 1895-94 and was principal of Cadiz, Ky., high school from 1894 to 1897. From 1897 to 1907 he was a student and private teacher of music. In addition, from 1898 to 1900 he taught music at Tri-State College in Angola, Ind., and from 1905 to 1907 taught at Boscobel College, Nashville.

He is a member of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity and of Phi Beta Kappa honorary. Among his publications are Courtly Love in Chaucer and Gower (1913) and History of West Florida Seminary 1905.

The book on Chaucer still is a standard reference and in 1939 it was reprinted by Peter Smith.

Dr. Dodd, in addition to teaching Shake-peare in classes of 70 to 80 students, taught Chaucer and modern poetry.

He conducted his classes, colleagues say, with great vigor and if emphasizing a point called for slinging a chair a few inches from the floor and bringing it down abruptly, down came the chair.

You know about Air Force ROTC and the Air Force Academy. Then there's the navigator training program. You've probably heard about Officer Training School...where the Air Force takes certain college graduates, both men and women, and commissions them after three months of training.
You:
Starting salary is important. What about that?
Future You:
Add it up. Base pay, tax-free allowances, free medical and dental care, retirement provision, perhaps flight pay. You don't have to be an ace major to see it adds up to an attractive package.
You:
I've been thinking about getting my Master's.
Future You:
As an officer you can apply for the Air Force Institute of Technology. At no cost, and while on active duty some officers may even win their Ph.D. degrees.

'Who's Who' Bill Change Passed

The Who's Who bill, after undergoing a two-hour altering—was passed with two no's and four abstentions in Wednesday's Student Senate meeting.

There were 30 yes's, while Sens. Judy Smith, Pat Doomar, Arnie Gibbs, and Ron Jones abstained. Sen. Brenda Alberson and Sen. Gerry Dobson voted no.

By and large, the senators accepted the bill put forth by Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion, who introduced the bill in its original form and headed the committee which revised it. Part A was amended from the original bill by the committee to give the Senate more control over Who's Who committee members. The original bill did not mention a quorum.

The entire controversial 'Who's Who' bill is printed in its final amended form on page 2 of today's Flambeau.

Sen. Jeannine Perlita's movement that a student's overall average be required was passed. Sen. Judy Smith wanted a 2.0 point, but Sen. Dobson wanted the average to be figured in five consecutive semesters — but both their proposals failed.

JUNIOR COLLEGE TRANSFERS

In the revised bill, the Student Body President was to select a committee member concerned with junior college transfer students.

The phrase "junior college," however, ignited a flame of controversy.

Sen. Johnny Smith, the newly-elected president pro, moved that the phrase be deleted and asked if there was a pressing reason for including it in the bill. Since there has been a constant influx of junior college students into the university and since the freshman class is larger than the sophomore class, the phrase was added to give the juco transfer students a proper representation, said Vice President Champion.

There are many difficulties, he continued, in recognizing junior college students.

It is difficult to ascribe points to various position in the state junior colleges; for instance, she asked, should the student body president of Pensacola Junior College receive as many points as the St. Petersburg president, when SPJC is twice as large?

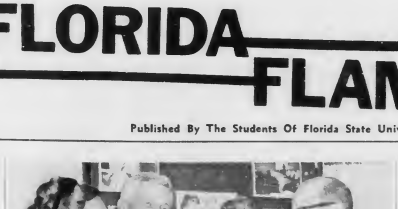
A junior college committee member would also insure that the juco students aren't overlooked, said Sen. Jones. They would be used, not to slight other transfer students, but because junior college transfer students were so numerous.

Sen. Joedy Smith and Sen. Doomar did not think a junior college transfer student, who would have to be a junior, would be prepared to point out the top seniors if the junior had been on campus only about two quarters.

The phrase was deleted.

REWORKED BY COMMITTEE

The old part E, changed to F, was completely reworked by the committee and was accepted by the Senate without change.



Men's Vice President Carl Kutchey however, suggested that the phrase "the last issue of" be deleted. He said the Flambeau might be hampered by having to run all the qualifications in that specific issue.

He yielded the floor to Toni Di Carlo, associate managing editor, who said it would be best to run the qualifications in a Friday issue. She also suggested running the qualifications in a series.

Some senators disagreed—feeling it would be unfair to split up the qualifications in different issues and saying it would be best to have the names appear in a Tuesday issue.

Sen. Jones said the student government could compel the Flambeau to print them. In reply, the Flambeau representative said the paper might be forced to run the qualifications in agate, or small type (see Who and Where).

The Senate also altered the original bill, which said the measure would go into effect immediately, the bill will go into effect Jan. 1, 1962.

MARK VAN DOREN, PULITZER PRIZE WINNING POET WHOSE FIRST PLAY, "THE LAST Days of Lincoln," was performed for the first time at Florida State University tonight, chatted with Eddie Dowling, the New York producer in the lobby of Conradi Theater before production. Dowling heads the Eddie Dowling Foundation which produced the play with students and professional actors.

Full Audience Sees Premiere

The opening performance and world premiere of Mark Van Doren's play, The Last Days of Lincoln was presented before an audience of standing room only, here Wednesday night.

Author-poet Van Doren was called to the stage by audience applause after the closing curtain, to take a few bows. The overall audience reaction was very good, said Richard Fallon, director.

"One major thing was accomplished by the opening of the play," says Fallon. "It proved that it is a theatrical play and warrants full fledged production."

In the course of the next two weeks, changes and revisions will be made on the production, reported Fallon, but the theatrical potential has been recognized and plans are now going forward to line up a tour.

Mr. Eddie Dowling, who sponsored the play here with the University Theatre Guild, is going to take up the option on the play and intends to return to New York this weekend to make further arrangements for a forthcoming tour.

The play stars Jim Campbell as Lincoln joined by two other professional actors, David Clarke and Nora Dunfee. Supporting actors are played by FSU students.

The production will continue here through Wednesday playing every night with the exception of Sunday. Tickets are $.75 for students and $1.50 for adults.

French Ballet Starts Mon. In Westcott

Le Theatre D'Art Du Ballet, a French ballet troupe, will perform Monday and Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium, as the first Artist Series program this year.

The group of 35 performers will present Francisca Da Remini, with music by Tchaikovsky; Les Sylphides, with music by Chopin; Adventures of Harlequin, with music by Beethoven; and Danseuses D'Opera, with music by Ivan Sermemoff, Monday night.

The second program, on Tuesday night, will be Ballade, with music by Faure, Carnaval, with music by Robert Schumann; The Spectre of the Rose, with music by Weber; Simple Symphony, with music by Benjamin Britten, and The Fountain of the Blind, after Pelleas and Melisande, with music by Gabriel Faure.

The troupe is headed by Anna Galine, who has been called "the foremost interpreter of ballet in the romantic tradition." Miss Galina has studied in New York's Fokine Ballet School and later in Paris with Tatiana Piankova. The repertoire includes original ballets by Michel Fokine, Janine Charrat, Leonide Massine, William Dollar and others. Decor and costumes are by Raoul Pene Du Bois, Nathalie Gontcharoua and S. Lepri.

Each dancer in the company is trained as a soloist. The company has toured Europe, the Orient, and recently South America, where it won acclaim by both press and public. This is the initial tour across the United States and Canada.

The remaining student tickets for both performances are available on presentation of an I.D. card at Westcott Ticket Office. Tickets at $3.50 have gone on sale to the public.

Role, Scope Study Progress Shown

Nineteen Man Steering Committee, 100 Sub-Committees Guide Work

By ROLAND WILKERSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Florida State University self-study, involving every faculty member and a large part of the student body, has shown great progress since getting underway last year.

The entire study is being overseen by a 19-member steering committee. In addition there are 100 sub-committees representing every school, department, and agency in the university.

An intensive study is being made of the opinions of various groups to determine the present status of FSU. These groups include faculty, students, legislators, alumni, students' parents, other colleges and high school students.

To help in the huge undertaking, each area of the school will make its own comprehensive self-study.

HAND PICKED COMMITTEE

As a part of the self-study, a hand picked committee has been working since last year preparing a statement of the role and scope of the university. The final draft of the report must be submitted next April.

Final reports from all areas of the university are to be submitted to President Blackwell in April.

BOARD OF CONTROL

Blackwell will transmit the report to the Board of Control which will then define the role and scope of the institutions in the state university system are undergoing the same process.

After the reports are received from each of the individual studies and the role and scope determined, the university program will be adjusted to conform to the present needs.

The recommendations made as a result of the study will have very far-reaching effects. Purpose of the project is to provide a master plan to guide the development of the university through 1975.

"This project is good because we can't have everything at each institution in the state," says Dr. Hugh Stickler, director of the study.

Some of the programs now being offered at FSU will be sloughed off and there might possibly be some additions to the present program

The special committee working on the Role and Scope have already made five drafts in an attempt to make it concise and to the point. The present draft is quite similar to what the final report will be, according to Dr. Stickler.

Following is the latest draft of the Role and Scope.

The role of the Florida State University is to serve the state which established and supports it.

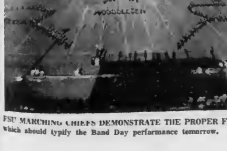
Recognizing its obligation to provide opportunity for higher learning, to all Florida students who have the aptitude and desire to pursue it, the university must offer such instruction as will enable them to become leaders in their chosen fields in the public service

Recognizing further its responsibility to serve the people of the state, the university must develop a reservoir of knowledge useful for economic improvement, political enlightenment, and cultural enjoyment.

Florida State University must maintain a standard of scholarship which will extend its reputation beyond local limits and attract to it students, teachers, and research scholars not only from Florida but also from other parts of the country and from other nations of the world. It should transmit the tradition of learning of preceding generations and extend present frontiers through creative efforts of its faculty and its mature students.

Changes in curriculum, policies, and general aspects of campus activities may be effected as a result of the Role and Scope study being conducted at the present time.

Members Of FSU's Student Union Group Attend Meet



Members of the Florida State University Student Union Committee returned last Sunday from the 12th Annual Region Four Conference of College Unions held at the U. of Virginia in Charlottesville.

The conference, which was held from Oct. 15-15, was represented by 35 southeastern colleges and universities. FSU delegates were Bob Barranco, Evelyn Kaiser, Dick Hume, Doug Hank, secretary of the FSU Union, and Shannon Talbert. Mrs. Hume attended the conference as presidential assistant in place of Bobby Byrd, who's body president.

Byrd felt that representatives should attend the conference in order to estimate coordination in all university activities which will be affected by the new planned three million dollar union complex at FSU. Hume stated that his main interest in the program was to find out how representatives of other universities felt toward the idea of a student body in a college student union.

Since FSU is in such a favorable location and many of the attending schools at the conference already have pools, we received a favorable attitude toward our proposal." Hume revealed.

The committee members attended various discussion groups related to topics on the position pa-

Dr. Ice Expresses Fears Of 'Training School' Image

Great Universities were established by men who saw a vision; in their quest for beauty, goodness, and truth, and in imparting this to youth, they reach the ultimate expression of man's humanity, and his initial act of faith.

Dr. Jackson Ice, speaking at the senior investiture ceremony Tuesday night, stressed his fear that universities were becoming training institutions, where education was no longer an end in itself, where there were no more of Woodrow Wilson's "wholly enlightened man," and where education was having less to do with intellect and character than with proficiency.

He continued, that our aims were now only toward prestige pills, 5-way social adjustment tablets, and efficiency, the root metaphor of our society.

To those who have missed an education, let me say, sadly, may be we have failed," Ice said. He added that of course education was not always a desirable thing.

Another scholar stated, "Thinking is one of the most unpopular vocations of the human race. They hate it because they can't do it."

Education further brings the maturity of disillusionment, and then it tastes which society and life may not offer, he said.

Ice recalled George Bernard Shaw's description of a man who "did not see man as he was, and ask Why, but dreamed of Man as he never was, and asked, Why not."

Band Day Uses 'Civil War' Show

"Civil War Centennial" will be the theme of the half-time performance of the annual Band Day Show which will be presented by thirty-one high school bands from north Florida and south Georgia at the FSU-Richmond game tomorrow.

The 1800 musicians participating in Band Day will arrive on campus for registration and practice Saturday morning. Dr. Manley Whitcomb and Robert Braunagel, members of the FSU music faculty, will direct the bands in the morning and afternoon rehearsals.

The bands will assemble on Adams Street Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. for a parade to the Capitol.

Newsmen Tell Demo Club 'Press Is Not Objective'

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The press is not objective, said Martin Waldron of the St. Petersburg Times during a panel discussion at last week's Young Democrats meeting.

If the newspapers were completely objective, he said there would be only one long story on each page—explaining all the minute, trifling and unimportant details concerning the story.

Waldron also did not feel the Associated Press and United Press International were reporting properly.

"Wire services are so damn objective, that they don't run some stories because they can't get both sides," he said, "this too is wrong."

A previous speaker had stated that newspaperman Newton Miller thought that all politicians were crooks.

"Actually, I think only about 95 percent are," he added.

Other panelists included John Evans, press secretary for the governor, Hendrick Chandler of the Associated Press; and Rick Tuttle of the Miami Herald.

A journalist, who reports on his experiences and interests, presents his version of the truth, Evans said. But he must recognize that it is still only his version, and he must be fair in the pursuit of answering questions concerning his interests, he said.

Evans, who said Tallahassee is the best covered state capital in the country, felt that the public figures who get into trouble with the press usually deserves the bad publicity.

Giving honest, straight-forward answers to reporters would rid them of most of the trouble, he said.

CONFINED TO NEWS

The question of objectivity should be confined to the news articles, said Tuttle.

There can be no "yes" or "no" Nixon to whether newspapers and reporters present objective pictures, Tuttle said. Most newspapers do, but every report editorial comment in what should be straight news copy, he explained. Some newspapers try too hard to be impartial and objective, he pointed out.

The Miami Herald, which supported former Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the recent presidential campaign, tried on hard to be fair to John F. Kennedy that they gave the Democrat more space, he said.

The paper also gave equal space to Kennedy on days when Nixon and the greater news value, said Tuttle.

The wire services are as unbiased and objective as they can be, Chandler said. But it is allotted, said Chandler. He felt that newspapers as a whole were objective, although it is hard to go beyond his definition of objectivity

STRESSES IMPARTIALITY

The AP stresses impartiality as much as accuracy and interesting writing, Chandler said. Often, they have been accused of being dull while trying to be objective, he said.

Although the owners of most newspapers are Republicans, the reporters are liberal; and often Democrat politicians had rather have the reporters on their side than the owners, he said.

It is impossible to attain a perfectly objective press, said Tait. There are basically two type of newspapers, Tait said — the newspaper that prints all news fit to print, the New York Times; and the paper that acts as the conscience of the community, Joe Pulitzer's St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Preferring the Times, he said that a paper can become non-objective by serving as a community's conscience.

There are probably several state newspapers in this category, Tait said.

Student Opinion Asked On Future Class System

The general comment of FSU students when asked whether they would prefer the quarter or the trimester system was that they were not well enough informed about either to make a choice.

Of a cross survey of 100 students questioned by the Flambeau, 58 had no idea which they would prefer. Twenty eight members of FSU's student body preferred the quarter system either because they felt that they could finish school more quickly this way or because exams would be completed before major holidays.

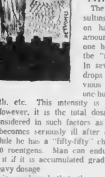
Several felt they wouldn't like Saturday classes under the trimester system. Others felt that by taking fewer subjects and by attending classes more often that they would be under less pressure.

Of those who preferred the trimester system many listed that their primary reason was because they would not lose previous credits. Also one preferred the trimester plan because he could easily get a good job during the fall semester without the great competition which exists for summer jobs.

Then there are the conservative few who would prefer things to remain as they now are.

'Fallout'

Quantitative Factors May Help Survival



By JOHN M. JERKE
Flambeau Feature Writer

Numbers are of utmost importance in dealing with nuclear fallout for it is quantitative factors which can determine the survival of an individual. People need not commit to memory an extended list of such numerical facts but some are well worth remembering.

Dr. Mael A. Melvin of the Florida State University Physics Department former Chairman of the Technical Committee on Civil Defense of the University, takes the problem very seriously while detesting the necessity for doing so. This summer Dr. Melvin took a group from FSU to New York for a radiological monitoring instructors course dealing with technical problems in civil defense and the use of instruments in measuring fallout radiation. Among those in the group instructed were Dr. Ernest Thonnard of the University Hospital, Mrs. Lawrence Riddle, Executive Housekeeper for the women's dormitories, and Joseph Dabbs, a physics graduate student

PROTECTION FACTOR

The "protection factor" is the ratio of exposure of an individual to radiation he would receive outside to that which he would receive inside a shelter at one place. It is this factor which determined those areas as adequate or inadequate as fallout shelters. However, Dr. Melvin stated that this protection is "only adequate for a nuclear attack at distant points from Tallahassee."

Should the enemy place a thermonuclear weapon on such a target as Eglin Air Base, the cigar shaped pattern of fallout developed by the winds might dump the radioactive dust particles on Tallahassee in 5 to 10 hours depending on the season (higher winds in the colder seasons).

INTENSITY AT H PLUS 1

The intensity of radiation resulting from a nuclear weapon has as a standard the amount of radiation present one hour after detonation or the "intensity at H plus 1." In terms of this intensity drops to one-tenth of the previous amount, in 49 hours to one hundredth, in 2 weeks, one-thousandth, etc. This intensity is measured in roentgens per hour. However, it is the total dosage in roentgens which is usually considered in such factors as the critical dosage for man Man becomes seriously ill after exposure to around 200 roentgens, while he has a "fifty-fifty" chance of dying around a dosage of 400 roentgens. Man can endure the radiation better and more of it if it is accumulated gradually rather than in an immediate heavy dosage

Dr Melvin explained that the most effective protection from this radiation is obtained by interposing thick layers of dense matter between the source and the individual to be protected This is, of course, the principal reason for placing fallout shelters below the surface The direct danger from absorbing radioactive dust also must be guarded against either by filters or, at least, by making the air intake of an individual indirect.

Dr Melvin mentioned another less well-known method of reducing the fallout danger—that of washing the radioactive dust from the shelter roofs with appropriate drain- and underground sumps. Under optional circumstances this can be 99 per cent effective and in the absence of funds for building thick walled shelters, Dr. Melvin is recommending this as a temporary administration. Elsewhere, since the radioactive dust would be contained only within the first few inches of soil, such soil could be plowed under.

GAMMA RADIATION

The dangerous and invisible gamma radiation from the radioactive particles belongs to the same family of radiation as light, ultraviolet, and X-rays except that it is more penetrating than any of these Dr Melvin likened the program of protection from this gamma radiation to that of reducing light intensity since the gamma rays are absorbed about in proportion to the

Congratulations, Senate

We congratulate Student Senate on their willingness to compromise and reach a plausible, workable decision as regards the selection and appointment of a committee to select Florida State University seniors for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

In effect, by adding to and subtracting from the original bill, Senate rewrote Bill Number Five. The result (see lead editorial) is about as good a guarantee against "stacking" the committee, or otherwise showing favor or holding another "beauty popularity" contest as FSU will get.

The ability to compromise, to seek a solution to the most tedious, annoying, faction-making problems, is a very integral part of life in our nation. We are happy with Senate for their contribution to a better political life at FSU.

Coma Gets A Big Laugh

By LESLIE POWELL

Coma clumped into the Soda Shop out of breath and struggling to control herself. She simpered, smirked, and unable to control herself any longer, collapsed across a tableful of customers and uttered one line of dialogue: Ha ha ha ha hahahahahaha

SHE READ the following: (Reprinted from the Florida Alligator) Dear Bruce: The action of the student body immediately following the Florida State University football game has further strengthened my faith and pride in the maturity and judgment of Florida Students.

No more than a small fraction of the students in attendance took part in the unfortunate melee, and many of these were attempting to establish order. This restraint was noted with satisfaction by thousands of alumni and friends of the university.

WHILE I WAS pleased and proud of our student body, I was by no means surprised. University of Florida students have increasingly demonstrated mature and responsible judgment in comparison with students generally.

They are better students, and they are supporting good moral and ethical standards. Student leaders and students in general are encouraging a good atmosphere of intellectual inquiry and attainment.

ALL OF this adds up to a better school spirit, which is further enhanced by an increase in personal friendliness. While walking across campus since the new year began, my spirits have been boosted on many occasions by warm and friendly greetings from students.

I am proud of the student body you represent.

Frustrated Columnists Get Help

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

It is my theory that the average Flambeau reader is a frustrated columnist. To help relieve his frustration, therefore, f offer here an opportunity for him to construct his own column in the simplest possible way. All he has to do is to substitute the name of the country of his choice wherever the term "Geopolia" appears, and select the appropriate alternatives listed within the parentheses. The result will be a pithy and informative essay concerning one of the newly-emerging nations we hear so much about GEOPOLIA is a land of contrast! Roughly one half, twice the size of the state of (Connecticut; California), it stands with one foot planted firmly in the (19th century; 18th century; Stone Age) while greeting the Twentieth with the other. A neat trick.

A colony of (Great Britain; France; Spain) until achieving independence in (1776; 1848; 1867), Geopolia has been noted for its (cocoa beans; tung oil; cheap cameras) since (the travels of Marco Polo; the time of the Crusades; an article in The New Yorker of February 12, 1927.

But not only is Geopolia a land of contracts; it is also a land of change! In 1948, for example, a 25-man team of doctors from (Point Four; the UN; the FSU Infirmary) established a medical mission to combat (yaws; hookworm; syphilis), the disease prevalent in Geopolia. The results were astounding. Within three years there was a 78% reduction —in the personnel of the medical team as they succumbed to (yaws; hookworm; syphilis).

THE FRIENDLY dictator of this thriving nation of the free world is (Sir John Radcoolenlupu; M. Pierre Mockoolenmupu; Don Jose Franco Mboyacancarne), who studied as a youth at (Oxford; Sorbonne; Madrid). All would be well in Geopolia except for the opposition to his regime by the (workers; peasants; businessmen; clergy; all of the above), stirred up by Communist agitators.

Leader of the Communists in Geopolia is a (scholarly; fiery; mad) radical called "El Zorro" by his followers. As a young man he attended (Harvard; Columbia; UCLA; where he majored in (Public Relations; Marxism; Invertebrate Ichthyology). He returned to Geopolia, where he began causing unrest. For his subversive activities, he was imprisoned by colonial authorities for a total of (14; 20; 29) years between 1920 and 1949. However, with our military aid, the Army in Geopolia is slowly stamping out the Communists and all opposition to democracy—in fact, all opposition—in the nation.

And it's a good thing, too, for Geopolia is of vital importance to the free world, being located at the mouth of the Red Sea, the Yellow River, U. S. 27, an important trade route since the days of Genghis Khan; Henry the Navigator; Howard Johnson.

RECIPIENT of (4.3; 12.6; 94.3 billion dollars of American aid since 1947, Geopolia is our biggest buyer of (farm machinery; surplus rice; bonclothis). Geopolia, on the other hand, is also a major exporter of (used American farm machinery; surplus rice, hooked rugs cleverly fashioned from loincloths by skilled native artisans).

IN SPITE of our aid, Geopolia recently signed a trade pact with (Czechoslovakia; Poland; USSR) whereby it received 12 MIG jet fighters in exchange for (Urnium and oil rights; 12,000 square miles of territory; used American farm machinery). Thus today Geopolia is standing at the crossroads. Which way this tiny nation goes may well decide the fate of the free world!

Anything Goes

'Last Days' Good Play

By DOUG SMITH

The third time is a charm. After two rather unfortunate experiences with new plays, Eddie Dowling and the FSU Theatre have picked a winner.

The Last Days of Lincoln, by Pulitzer-prize winning poet Mark Van Doren, is a good play. It is evident from the language of the play that Mr. Van Doren is a fine poet. The use of scenes in a logical sequence instead of conventional acts brings the characters into focus without a lot of extraneous material, both plotwise and characterwise. Slides were projected before the play, and were very effective in setting the mood.

THE PLAY succeeds in showing the warm humanity of Lincoln, and some of the tragedy of the man. The supporting characters, while maintaining their individuality, help to expand and enhance the character of Lincoln.

While the play itself was excellent, the performance was not quite up to the usual standard. It may have been jitters connected with a world premiere.

Jim Campbell was a believable Lincoln, but did not quite manage to give him the depth of character and the stature one expects, although he approached it after intermission. This may be due to the shortness of time Mr. Campbell has had to work on the part.

MISS NORA Dunfee, while an excellent actress, somehow was not suited to the part of Mrs. Lincoln. One could not believe that this was Mary Todd Lincoln.

Mr. David Clarke portrayed a thoroughly believable Joshua Speed, Lincoln's oldest friend, throughout the play.

The majority of the student cast did a fine job, with a few notable exceptions. Kent Wood overreacted, to say the least, the part of Sumner, and Barbara Speesman's portrayal of Mrs. Grant was awkward and unreal.

JOHN BLACK, a speech teacher at Lincoln High School, was excellent as Jefferson Davis' butler.

Great credit is due Richard Dalton and all those who worked long, hard hours on this production. It was a professional job.

Let's Get Serious

'Ask The Experts'

By GERRY DOBSON

Ladies and gentlemen, tonight our program "Ask The Experts" discusses various aspects of communism. We take you now to Hell where our moderator, Mr. A. Devil will introduce the panel. Come in Hell . . .

GOOD EVENING. This is Abercrombie Devil. Tonight, as you can see, we have a most distinguished and qualified panel. They are, reading from left to left Mr. Josef Stalin, Mr. Vladimir Ilich Ulianov, who writes under the pen name of N. Lenin. Gentlemen, are you ready for the first question?

Many persons today are talking about peaceful coexistence between capitalism and communism. What do you think are the chances of peaceful coexistence?

LENIN: Permit me to say that I believe that ". . . the only choice is: either a bourgeois or socialist ideology. There is no middle course. . . ." However, let me add that ". . . for the time being—important concessions and greatest caution" will be used by communism ". . . precisely because a certain equilibrium has set in, precisely because we are weaker than our combined enemies."

Devil: I see. Would someone care to comment on the methods to be employed by your side in this struggle?

LENIN: "We have never rejected terror on principle nor can we do so. Terror is a form of military operation that may be successfully applied, or may even be essential in certain moments of the battle, under certain conditions. . . .

Devil: I see. Would someone care to comment on the method agreement with you on this point. These days, there are a great many nominal anti-communists who fear nuclear war and therefore feel "better red than dead." What are their chances after the communists take over?

LENIN: I feel that I can speak for my colleagues when I say that following our victory there will be ". . . the period of transition from capitalism to communism . . . the period of the overthrow and abolition of the bourgoisie."

Devil: The bourgoisie will be abolished, then. Knowing you gentlemen, I can well imagine how you plan to do this. Continuing on this tack, many say today that if we have reforms, communism will no longer be a menace. In other words, they say that if the western countries adopt democratic socialism, for example, the threat will be eased; these reforms are said to be a great weapon against communism.

STALIN. To a revolutionary . . . the main thing is revolutionary work and not reforms: to him reforms are by-products of the revolution. That is why, with revolutionary tactics under the bourgeois regime, reforms are naturally transformed into instruments for disintegrating thus regime, into instruments for strengthening the revolution. . . .

Lenin: Joe, might I add here that I feel that a reform to democratic socialism would aid our program, for this will help accomplish one of our initial objectives in the struggle ". . . First—overthrow the bourgeoisie . . . primarily the bourgoisie . . . utterly root them; suppress their resistance." Democratic socialism will surely aid in accomplishing this. Then we can continue on to the other steps of our program to ". . . win over and bring under the leadership of the . . . Communist Party, . . . the . . . proletariat, . . . also the whole mass of toilers . . . tear this overwhelming majority of the population . . . from its dependence on the bourgoisie . . . then we will ". . . neutralize . . . the inevitable vacillation between . . . bourgeous democracy and Soviet power, of the class of small proprietors naturally inclined to . . . vacillation . . . as well as the stratum of intellectuals, office employees, etc., which corresponds to this class."

One Nation

The Promise Is Ours

By MYGNON CHAMPION

The Star Spangled Banner rose majestically over the reverent silence of FSU and while the United States flag glided gracefully upward toward the skies. As I stood there, memories and chords of our national anthem faded into the background and I spoke this vow:

I PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE TO THE FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA . . .

I pledge allegiance to the proud symbol of our great nation, for it is the people and ideals it represents. I watch it proudly waving its red and white stripes in the heavens; I think of the history of that fling, of days when its ragged borders withered in the heat of the burricane of oppression and conflict.

Yesterday that flag waved an angry fist in the face of King George and proclimed "Give me Liberty of give me Death!" Last night it was hope for the enslaved black men. This morning Hitler and his minions cried "You are through! You are through!"

TODAY, it waves freely, the light of freedom and equality for half a world in darkness.

AND TO THE REPUBLIC FOR WHICH IT STANDS . . .

America parades across the vision, America with its great will for Rockies and rugging Appalachians; its calm lakes on the North and sparkling Gulf to the South; its skyscraping towers of business and small farm villages; its muddy Mississippi expanse; its half a continent and its roaring Niagara; its great factories and potato patches; its spreading moss-draped oaks and its tremendous redwoods pointing their fingers toward the sky.

I WATCH its people march across the scene, its youth from home for Christmas, the freckled-faced Little Leaguer behind a cloud of bubblegum, bermuda clad teenagers bopping to the rhythm of Paul Anka and Ricky Nelson, I see its Catholic boy making the Sign of the Cross as he enters his church, and the Protestant girl singing "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," and the Jewish youth praying "Hear, O Israel, the Lord God, the Lord our God is one." Yes, I breathe the same prayer of freedom and peace.

ONE NATION UNDER GOD . . .

America stands on the rock of faith, trusting upon the God of Liberty and of Justice and of all that is sacred to the human heart. We are a nation blessed with plenty, with 180,000,000 individuals each responsible to his Creator in his own way.

INDIVISIBLE . . .

Memory fades into the past, back to the War Between the States. Dark clouds of secession and turmoil blacken the sky until finally, in 1865, the thunder roars, the tumult bursts, and lightning streaks across the sky above a nation filled with chaos and confusion.

Today I give my solemn oath to a country that shall never again be twisted and manacled by internal violence

WITH LIBERTY AND JUSTICE FOR ALL . . .

America holds above her head the highest ideals a nation has ever stretched to grasp. But we stretch; because we believe in the simple dignity of Man and in each man's right to Life, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Happiness.

The ideals for which we strive are radiant gems, so beautiful that many scoffers have jeered they can never be achieved. We reach for the Utopia of our dreams, for a nation where each man can attain his highest ambition, limited only by his ability, without regard to his race, social status, religion, or political influence.

Students Forget Box Numbers, Give Workers 'Gifts'

Frogs, Beer Bottles And Cookies Left In Boxes At FSU Post Office By Students Each Semester

By JOYCELYN WARD
Flambeau Feature Writer

Even college students can make mistakes.

In a recent attempt to keep Florida State University Post Office box numbers distinct from Tallahassee box numbers, addresses at the University Post Office have been changed to include the letter "U."

Explanations of the new system were put in each student mail box informing students that "the letter "U" is to be added to your University address, for example, box number 256 would now be U256. Students obligingly changed their addresses, and in about a week, several sheepish faces appeared at the post office window asking for mail which they had sent to box U256 instead of their own.

FROGS TO BEER BOTTLES

Anything can and does turn up in campus post office boxes. "We've found everything from frogs to beer bottles put in the boxes by students" Postmaster Dave Raybon said. "Last week someone in box 2159 left us two biscuits and a brownie."

To serve a student body of over 9500 plus the faculty, the University post office contains 3,239 locked boxes. This requires two and even three students to a box. Students receive mail three times a day, at 10 a.m., 2 and 4 p. m.

Postmaster Dave Raybon took charge of the University post office this Fall replacing W. H. May who retired after 18 years of service as postmaster. Raybon found the nine employees at the post office to be "real hard workers and they know what they are doing." He feels that the post office is frequently taken for granted and little praise is given for a job well done. "No other organization on the entire campus is as devoted to their work" he commented.

All of the post office employees have worked at their jobs for several years. Mrs. Grace Clemons has been with the post office 12 years and Eddie Gosby has held his job for 15 years. Both were employed here when Florida State was Florida State College for Women.

BURSAR'S OFICE

Then the post office was located in Westcott in what is now the Bursars Office. When the new student Center was built, the post office acquired its present home. It was originally designed to handle mail for 7,500 students. It is now handling the mail of almost 10,000 students.

Mis - addressed mail and lost money are the two biggest problems receiving complaints and they could be solved by the students, Postmaster Raybon requested that "students please do not send money in the mail. Checks and money orders are much safer and surer."

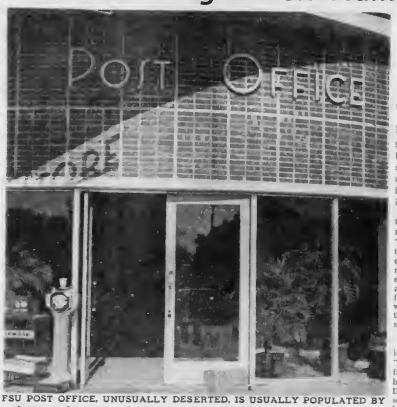
To correct mis - addressed mail, a periodic check is run on all mail left in the boxes. Each piece is taken out and matched against a cross - index of names and box numbers.

EXTRA SERVICES

The University Post Office is state operated. According to the postmaster, this saves money and provides students with services such a free campus mails and main put up three times a day instead of just once as the Federal Post Office does. The University Departments also benefit, receiving two deliveries to their offices a day and three mail pick ups. Handling department mail is a major portion of the University post office service. They serve all the department offices, the deans' offices, the registrar's office, the athletic office and all of the University schools.

The business at the Post Office is increasing much faster than the population of the campus. Between September 1960 and September 1961, there has been a 45 per cent increase in total business of the post office, according to Mr Raybon. The University post office handles approximately $200 000 in outgoing mail and money orders alone. This includes departmental mail, but does not include free campus mail, or incoming mail.

This year there has been no leveling off point of incoming mail. Normally the amount of mail arriving by Tuesday to Thursday has fallen off but this year heavy mail continues throughout the week.



VALENTINES DAY

The first month of school is always extremely heavy and Christmas is also a busy time for the post office even though students are home for the vacation. But college students will probably be surprised to learn that they have not left all their high school habits at home because according to the postmaster, Valentines Day is one of the busiest days of the year at the post office.

The present post office has no mailing room and no office for the Postmaster. His business is carried out at a desk that is separated from the main room by a thin partition Mr. Raybon feels that "with an additional mailing room adding approximately 3,000 square feet onto the University post office, we would be able to handle as many as 12,000 students."

HERE WILL BE ONE LESS UNHAPPY STUDENT soon as this piece of mail is inserted into his box.

FSU POST OFFICE, UNUSUALLY DESERTED, IS USUALLY POPULATED BY students eagerly awaiting checks and CARE packages.

TWO INSTRUCTORS FROM THE FSU UNDERWATER SAFETY Council's SCUBA diving course show a cool how to use the diving equipment.

Scuba Class To Be Set Up For Campus

For the fourth consecutive semester, the SCUBA diving course set up by the Underwater Safety Council will be offered to all Florida State University students and faculty.

Tomorrow is the last chance to register for the seven-week non-credit course. The class will meet bright and early at 7 a.m. in the Women's Gymnasium pool.

Approximately 70 students have benefited from the previous lessons in skindiving with mask, fins and snorkel and SCUBA (self-contained underwater breathing apparatus) diving with compressed air tanks.

Five certified instructors and two assistants will conduct lectures and practice sessions every Saturday for students.

The Underwater Safety Council which offers this course, was organized two years ago by FSU administration and Student Government as a result of an increasing number of drownings involving FSU students. Cave diving in this area is not only a very popular, but also a very dangerous sport.

According to instructor Alan Schwartz, persons contemplating cave diving are urged to attend the lectures at least, since techniques of safety and procedure will be illustrated.

CAVE DIVERS

Several of the instructors are experienced cave divers, though they do not recommend it as a sport. Joe Dabbs and Carroll Runyon were both divers for the Florida Speleological Society and Donald Martin was diving advisor to the society.

Alan Schwartz was certified by the Club Aldin Sous-Marin of Cannes, France, the first and most famous skindiving club. Instructory Tony Llewelyn was certified by various British diving organizations.

The assistant instructors, Victor Johnson and Sarah Norris, have both taken the SCUBA course and have had advanced training. Through an arrangement with the Naval Mine Defense Laboratory at Panama City, all of the instructors are able to receive advanced training in the latest techniques. Miss Norris is believed to be the first woman diver on a Navy diving staff trip.

Groups Recognize Leaders Scholars, Service-Minded

By MARTHA ROBERTS
Flambeau Feature Writer

In addition to honoring students for academic achievement alone, Florida State University also recognizes outstanding students through the various campus-wide leadership and service organizations.

Alpha Council the FSU Panhellenic sophomore men's leadership honorary, was organized on the FSU campus in 1956, the primary purpose of the organization is to recognize potential leadership ability and to develop and maintain interest in worthwhile campus activities of male students. Development of school spirit, stimulation of religious activity, partial sponsorship of University orientation and ushering at some of the artist series are a few of the many services benefitting the university. Boyce Ezell is Alpha Council president.

BLUE AND WHITE

Sophomore Council is a local honorary composed of sophomore women who were outstanding during their freshman year. Its purpose is to act as a service organization assisting student government. Wearing the traditional blue and white, members assist the faculty during orientation week, assume various duties during elections, register alumnus during Homecoming, and act as hostesses at the Sophomore Senior Banquet. The election and selection of members is done by the freshman women, junior counselors and dorm counselors. Membership is limited to ten per cent of freshman women. Serving as president this year is Lynne Gordon.

The purpose of Garnet Key, established on our campus in 1948, is to recognize outstanding junior and senior women who have contributed to the advancement of the university through their spirit, leadership and service. The organization sponsors the sale of Senior Black Books and acts as hostesses at the Homecoming Banquet. Members of Garnet Key are selected for outstanding records of campus activities, various positions of leadership and a minimum scholastic average of 2.3

President this year is Suzy Workiser.

CONTINUED LEADERSHIP

Gold Key, a local honorary for men was established on the FSU campus in 1947. The purposes of Gold Key are much the same as those of Garnet Key in that it strives to promote continued leadership among its members and to foster service as a worthwhile goal for all students. A 2.5 overall scholastic average is necessary for membership. Charley Hawkins is the president of Gold Key this year.

The members of Mortified tap outstanding junior women each spring. These young women are chosen on the basis of their leadership, character, service and spirit. Mortified traditionally taps one less member that its friendly rival Mortar Board. Mortified president is Selby Cason.

Mortar Board, the highest honor a woman college student can receive, is a national leadership and scholastic honorary. It strives to stimulate service, scholarship and leadership in university life, and to promote college loyalty by advancing the spirit of service and fellowship among university women Projects of Mortar Board include the popular Last Lecture Series, Penny-a-Minute Night, and participation at the Freshman Honors Night. Nancie Sill is president of this organization.

THREEFOLD PURPOSE

Omicron Delta Kappa was the first national college honorary to award recognition and honor for outstanding service, leadership, and character. Its purpose is threefold in recognizing men who have attained a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities, bringing together the most representative men in all phases of college life and bringing together faculty members and students on a basis of musical interest and understanding. ODK membership is composed of members of the junior and senior classes. Members of the faculty, administration and alumni associations are awarded honorary membership. The office of the president is held by Jack Ascherl.

Alpha Phi Omega is an organization for men with previous experience in scouting. It strives to develop friendship and promote service in the fellowship of Scout oath and law. Best known for its travel service, this organization participates in assisting local scouting groups, helping in the Muscular Distrophy drive and in fall registration. DO WE HAVE TO DO THIS

We build better roads. We retain traffic engineers to make them safer. We pass traffic laws—hire officers to enforce them. Then—we junk all these safeguards by speeding, passing lights, ignoring warning signs. Where's the sense? Such law violations breed accidents that injure and maim thousan ds daily! The remedy? Drive safely—drive lawfully. Where traffic laws are strictly obeyed, accidents go down!

FACE THIS FACT
Drivers are the No. 1 cause of traffic accidents which last year injured 1,400,000 and killed 38,000. This year an increase is threatened. How long must this go on? YOU can supply the answer!

FSU Hosts Spiders In Fifth Encounter

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

Florida State's Seminoles host the Richmond Spiders in Campbell Stadium at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Mel Rideout, who ranks fifteenth in the nation in total offense, will be the biggest threat to Florida State's staunch defense. Rideout has compiled 522 total yards, 477 of these coming through the air. Rideout also rates seventh in the natuoo in passing.

Rideout will be pitching to a pair of exceptional pass catchers. John Hilton, who ranks thirteenth in the nation in pass grabbing, has caught 13 tosses for 168 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

The other Richmond end, George Rapp, has snagged seven passes.

Richmond will be out to knotch their first victory against FSU. The Seminoles have set them back twice in two outings.

The tribe has tallied in the twenties on both previous contests. In the 1959 encounter the Virginians suffered a 22-6 setback. Facing the Seminoles on the opening night of the 1960 season, the Spiders were shut out 28-0.

Tomorrow nights game will be the fifth for the Seminoles who are tagged with a 2-1-1 record. This is identical to the record sported by last years tribe as they entered the fifth game.

But the opponents this season have been different. FSU began the season with George Washington, Florida, Mississippi and Georgia. Last year for openers were Richmond, Florida, Wake Forest and Citadel.

Peterson said last year that "a great deal will depend on how we emerge from our first four games, a lineup I consider to be among the toughest, "first four" in the country. We know how Dizzy Dean felt when facing 'murderers row.'"

Richmond has won two against three losses in their opening encounters. Richmond defeated George Washington 16-15 on halfback Earl Stoudt's 28 yard run. Stout is an all-Southern halfback who is bidding for national recognition.

The Spiders also whipped West Virginia 35-26 and lost to Army 24-6, Virginia Military Institute 8-6, and Citadel 24-6.

Richmond will bring the largest squad in their history to Tallahassee. The Spiders also have eight slots in their starting line-up filled by returning lettermen.

Entering the game FSU has run up a total of 365 yards on the ground and gained 175 yards through the air.

The tribe leads their ppponents in only two categories. Florida State leads in punting, with sophomore Charley Calhoun doing the booting, with 29 punts for 946 yards and 32.7. Opponents have kicked 15 times for 430 yards and a 28.7 average.

In field goal kicking, FSU has knotched three in five attempts as compared to one completed on three attempts. Florida pierced the Seminole uprights while Georgia missed twice.

Tuesday night there were no returne winners in the Gold League. Sigma Nu cleerly cromped Pi Kappa Phi 59-37 while Delta Chi topped Kappa Sigma 52-36. In the other action of the Gold League Theta Chi defeated Pi Kappa Alpha 47-38.

In the Garnet League Alpha Tau Omega scored a 38-30 win over Phi Kappa Tau while Lambda Chi Alpha returned to the winners rank, ditching Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Phi Delta Theta continues to hold the lead in the Garnet League with a 2-0 record. Delta Tau Delta is holding their top spot in the Gold league with a 2-0 record also.

Library Receives Rare Koran

A 600-year old handwritten Koran from Syria will be presented to the Strozier Library Sunday, by Mrs. Olive H. Cross, assistant professor of English.

Among those especially invited to the presentation in the Library Lecture Hall at 4 p.m. Sunday are the 13 Moslem students on campus. The public also is invited, according to the sponsoring Friends of the Library.

Mrs. Cross recently returned from two years teaching as a Fulbright professor at the University of Damascus under sponsorship of the State Department, and while in Damascus she bought the Koran from a dealer named George Obeid, who turned it over to her with the understanding certain conditions will be met in handling it.

The Moslem religion requires, she said, that the hands be washed before it is touched, and therefore a handwashing will always precede its handling. The book will have a permanent place in the special collection of the Library and a hand-carved Koran stand has been provided for it by Mrs. John Ausley.

According to the inscription in the front of the Koran its writing was begun in 1548. The laborious process of forming the illuminated characters of the classic Arabic was not completed until 1800, according to the same inscription.

It was a practice, Mrs. Cross said, for a man to copy the Koran as a memorial for future generations of his family. The copying itself, however, took several generations and in this instance more than 300 years. The family Koran usually, she said, was the most prized possession.

"Don't worry about the ink not staying long enough to reach Heaven, for I, a poor man named Mohammed Dyfic, made the ink myself, and it will last forever," said the inscription.

Dr. Flory Talks For Coffee Hour

Dr. Claude Flory will speak at the English Coffee Hour today at 4 p.m.

The literary-social program will be held in Westminster House. The topic will be "Humanist Manifesto"—an outline of the humanities.

Dr. Flory, of Florida State University's English Dept. feels that the humanists themselves are to blame for the decline of the humanities. "The literature teachers have failed in their duty and have turned teaching literature into a pseudo-science", says Dr. Flory. The literature teachers look at the salary and publicity of the science teachers, thus they want re-search themselves.

He received his Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania, and has been teaching at FSU, formerly Florida State College for Women, since 1945.

mass of the intervening material. Thus, if we could see gamma rays our problem would be to make the darkest area. As Dr. Melvin puts it, "Safety would be where it would be 'darkest'— a sad principle for the troglodytic destiny of man."

TIME AND DISTANCE

An attack with light thermonuclear weapons would produce 3000 roentgens per hour at H plus 1, while a heavy one would yield 8000 roentgens per hour at H plus 1. Dr. Melvin thought that a possible figure would be 4000 roentgens per hour. Therefore, at H plus 7, that is 7 hours after detonation at ground zero the intensity would be 400 roentgens per hour. At H plus 49 hours, it would be 30 roentgens per hour, etc. Besides this decaying effect with time, the radiation intensity would decrease by the spread of the fallout over a larger area. Considering Eglin Air Base as the source and dispersal over the area including Tallahassee and Eglin, the intensity at Tallahassee would be reduced by an appreciable factor possibly of the order of 20.

Examining the implications of all these factors more quantitatively than can be explained here with the projected shelter facilities at FSU, one may conclude, "We can survive, if we want to."

EVERY COLLEGE STUDENT needs this book

to increase his ability to learn

An understanding of the truth contained in Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy can remove the pressure which concerns today's college student upon whom increasing demands are being made for academic excellence.

Christian Science calms fear and gives to the student the full assurance he needs in order to learn easily and to evaluate what he has learned. It teaches that God is man's Mind—his only Mind—from which emanates all the intelligence he needs, when and as he needs it.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT GORDON W. BLASKWELL ADDRESSES AN AUDENCE OF STUDENTS, FACPLTY and townspeople at the dedication of Dodd Hall.

Dean Dodd Sees Dedication

Few men have buildings named after them. Fewer are present at the dedicating ceremonies extolling the man's virtues.

But William George Dodd, Florida leader in failing health and nearly blind, attended ceremonies Thursday at Florida State University which officially changed the Graduate School building to a hall to his honor.

The 87-year-old retired English professor was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences from 1913 and 1944

The office of the college is one of a number housed in the new William George Dodd Hall. Others include the Graduate School, education station WFSU-TV and several university departments.

The present dean of the College of Arts and Sciences was the principal speaker at the dedication ceremonies.

MATHEMATICIAN

"He (Dr. Dodd) was in early years a good mathematician and a singer," Dean J. Paul Reynolds said. "He became a professional organist, was briefly an actor in Shakespeare plays, and often composed music, he said.

"But this tall man with the commanding presence turned to scholarship and prepared under Harvard's Kittredge for a professorship in literature. From there his boundless energies carried him on up and this institution with him, in the search for truth and wisdom," Dr. Reynolds said in tribute.

Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, president of FSU, presided at the ceremony in the lobby of the hall. The Rev. Simon W. Davidian, pastor of the First Christian Church of Tallahassee, gave the invocation and benediction.

In dedicating the building Dr. Blackwell said:

"It is a significant occasion when we give recognition to the central core of a university—the College of Arts and Sciences.

Board Of Control Choses Trimester

Quarter System Downed After Two Hour Debate By Five To One Vote

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

The Board of Control has downed the quarter system, five to one, at Friday's State Board of Control meeting with Dr. Ralph Miller of Orlando scoring the quarter system's lone tally.

After two hours of debate, during which forces supporting each system, presented their arguments before the Board chose the trimester system for at least four reasons.

—Using the trimester system will allow the state colleges and universities to make room for thousands of additional students.

—The growing demands on tax dollars for education compelled the universities to go on year-round operation.

—The trimester system will save Florida money on buildings.

—By using the trimester system to its fullest extent, students could finish work on a bachelor's degree in three years or less.

SPLIT IN SUPPORT

The state universities were split in their support of the systems. Florida State University and the University of South Florida favored the trimester system, while Florida A and M and the University of Florida favored the quarter system.

The system will go into effect next fall, when the universities will have three terms of 15 to 16 weeks in length.

The first trimester will open Sept. 5 and end Dec. 21, the second will start Jan. 3 and finish April 19; the third will run from April 25 to Aug. 9.

The Board divided the third trimester into two periods to enable teachers to enroll in the second period of seven to eight weeks and to allow students a period during which to work.

There will be a three and one-half week vacation period between the end of the third mester and the start of fall classes.

Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, the president of U of F, felt that the trimester plan shouldn't be used because 147 of the 1,068 accredited colleges and universities in the country are on the quarter system.

He pointed out that the University of Pittsburgh was the only major school in the country still using the trimester plan. Many institutions tried the plan in the 1800's and abandoned it.

JUNIOR COLLEGES

The Board predicted that by 1963 the state junior colleges will begin using the trimester plan and the high schools will utilize the system not long after that.

The adoption of the trimester system drops a truckload of problems into the laps of various campus departments.

These problems include revision of the catalog, employment, number of graduations per year, and whether or not publications, the Athletic Dept., and other departments will go on year-round operation.

The most pressing problem is the revision of the University catalog, said Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, president of FSU.

The University must compile

System May Cause Many SG Problems

Many problems will be forced on Student Government as a result of the Board of Control's decision to go on the trimester system according to Florida State University President Gordon W. Blackwell.

The two main problems are Constitutional and Statutory revisions and whether or not to go on year-round operation.

"Personally, I am in favor of year-round Student Government," said Ken van Assenderp, vice president of the student body and president of Senate.

"It seems to me that it will be necessary." said Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion of year-round student government. She did not feel that year-round operation would have a great impact on the Women's Senate.

Student Government in the summer would pose a problem, she said, because Knowledge for Cash is printed at this time.

Vice President van Assenderp pointed out that the Senate established a committee to examine the Constitution and Statutes and to recommend changes which will fit in with trimesters.

"This will probably be the most important thing before the Senate this year," he said.

COOPERATION NEEDED

The executive and legislative branches should work together on the revisions to avoid duplications, he added.

A representative of the executive branch of the student Government said a committee would probably be set up Thursday to examine the trimester problems.

The election of senators on a trimester basis would pose problems, said the vice president. First of all, the candidates running for office would have to say they would attend school year-round. The split summer trimester would complicate matters, because the Senate would have to decide whether or not to excuse senators who are interning or elect new officers during the period.

The Senate recently endorsed the decision of the administration in advocating the trimester system and it also indicated approval of the split summer session.

Van Assenderp said the Senate would have to determine when organizations would or would not need increased funds.

It would be necessary to discuss the Summer Council, said the vice president, if year-round operations were set up.

Play Tickets Still On Sale

Good tickets are still available for tonight and tomorrow nights performances of The Last Days of Lincoln, according to Mrs. Ruth Tate of the Westcott Ticket Office.

The play will begin at 8:15 p.m. both nights in Conradi Theatre.

Sponsored jointly by the University Theatre Guild and the Eddie Dowling Foundation, the play stars Jim Campbell as Lincoln, David Clarke as Joshua Speed and his wife, Nora Dunfee as Mary Todd Lincoln. Students play supporting roles. The play is directed by Richard Fallon of the Florida State University Speech Dept.

The first play by Pulitzer-prize winning poet Mark Vao Doren is expected to go on tour following the performances at FSU. The play will go to Tampa, St. Petersburg, Jacksonville, Miami, and Orlando during its Florida tour.

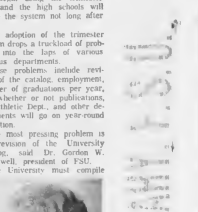
Other arrangements are still being made for the play to open in New York.

The central theme of the play is Lincoln's determination that the South not be treated as a conquered nation following the Civil War.

It is one of several plays currently being produced across the country during the sentennial celebration of the Civil War.

Will Greeks Keep Houses Open Yearly?

Fraternities and sororities must decide whether they want to open their houses on a year-round basis when the University goes on full-time operation, said Florida State University President Gordon W. Blackwell.



They must also decide, if they open year-round, whether they want to keep the houses open during both periods of the split summer session, added Blackwell.

Hal Smith, junior counselor said the organizations are gathering background material to determine whether or not to open the houses for all the trimesters.

The problem will be discussed and decided at the Inter-Fraternity Counsel retreat, which will probably be held in early December, he said.

But the FSU fraternity officials will discuss the problem at the National IFC meeting in November, he said. At this meeting, they will be able to talk to representatives from institutions using the trimester system—notably the University of Pittsburgh students

We recognize that the decisions will have far-reaching ramifications," he said, adding that the officials have not formed any opinions on the change at this time.

van Assenderp

the new catalog within a month or meanwhile, which courses shall be offered in various trimesters and which courses shall be offered the first half of second half of the summer trimester.

Patterns for faculty employment and faculty compensation must also be decided, he said. Professors must be able to continue in research, study, or teaching classes if they choose

MONETARY WOES

The state universities were recently given increases in financial allotments, said Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, executive director of the State Board of Control.

But they would receive the extra allotments only if they went on year-round operation, he said. The faculty members of the universities also received pay raises, but these were not affected by decisions to go on year-round operation, he said.

The University may conceivably have only one graduation per year, according to some reports.

But Dr. Culpepper said potentially there will be three graduations. (However this is one of

FSU Students Go To SUSGA Lab

Ten Florida State University students representing three campus publications were delegates to the second annual publications workshop of the Southern Universities Student Government Association at the University of Alabama in Tuscaloosa last week.

Joan Abbott, Bill Cheek, Mary Ellen Harris and Ben Sharp represented the Flambeau; Barbara Crawford, Pat Guerly, Scarlett Fogue and Sally Stroud represented the Tally Ho; Merry Morehouse represented Smoke Signals and Duane Klinck attended as business manager.

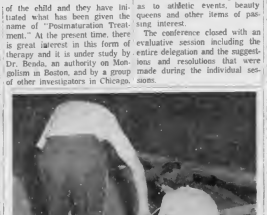
Dr. R. R. Oglesby, Dr. Reid Montgomery, Grady Toler of the publications laboratory and Dayton Roberts of the FSU delegation served as panelists.

The program began with a speech on the "Responsibility of Campus Publications" by Jesse M. Ewing, associate editor of the Shreveport Times, Shreveport, La.

Panel discussions on different phases of campus publications, their production, organization, financing and rating were scheduled for much of the allotted conference time.

Featured speaker at the publications workshop banquet was Edwin Crawford, executive associate of the Southern Regional Education Board. Crawford spoke on "Speak Out for What Counts at Your University," and stressed the importance of reporting and presenting incidents and information that really "count." He remarked on the vital need for devoting equal space to the university and the faculty and students which make it a good one as to athletic events, beauty queens and other items of passing interest.

The conference closed with an evaluative session including the entire delegation and the suggestions and resolutions that were made during the individual sessions.



Expert To Speak Tonight On Causes Of Mongolism

An authority on the causes of Mongolism, Dr. Hellmuth Haustein of Munich, will be the speaker at the first fall meeting of the Florida State University chapter of the Society of Sigma Xi tonight.

Possibilities and Limitations of the Postmaturation Treatment of Mongolism" will be the subject of the talk by Dr. Haubold, who is professor and vice president of the German Society of Physiology of Nutrition of Munich. The lecture, which is open to the public, will be at 8 p.m. in Room 101 of the new Mathematics Meteorology Bldg.

Dr. Haubold is a disciple of the famous pathologist Aschoff at Freiburg and studied extensively in Germany and at the Sorbonne in France. He is a specialist in diseases of the endocrinal system and nutrition. He has become internationally known through his studies of endemic goiter and he has demonstrated the contribution of vitamin A deficiency in this disease.

During the past 10 years, Dr. Haubold and his co-workers have directed their interests to the study of the causes of Mongolism. This congenital disease of children has become more frequent in the past years. He and his co-workers advanced the theory that nutritional deficiencies of the mother may result in retardation of the child and they have initiated what has been given the name of "Postmaturation Treatment." At the present time, there is great interest in this form of therapy and it is under study by Dr. Benda, an authority on Mongolism in Boston, and by a group of other investigators in Chicago.

New Women's Solons Meet For 1st Time

Women's Senate unanimously approved a resolution to establish a committee to be in charge of international women's student affairs, in its first meeting following elections, last Wednesday.

The resolution, authored by Sen. Jennifer Newcomer provides for a committee of three which would investigate and administer a program for developing closer relations between American and foreign students.

"A program such as this has tremendous possibilities and would be of mutual benefit to both American and foreign students," said Mygnon Champion, women's vice president, who has herself, indicated a strong interest in a foreign student program.

"Foreign students have much to contribute to our campus in the way of a deeper insight into world affairs, a broader cultural appreciation and new perspectives on life views and philosophies." Miss Champion further explained.

In addition to this resolution, Women's Senate passed a resolution to set up a judicial committee, and a bill pertaining to house councils and off campus counsel constitutions.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Nancy Sindon, amends limitations on the participation of students on both judiciary and house council. Formerly, any student serving on Judiciary or Honor Court was not eligible to be president, vice president, or social chairman of a dormitory. Under the bill, those students on Judiciary or Honor Court will be restricted only from the office of president of a dormitory.

The second resolution, also introduced by Sen. Sindon, states: "That the Women's Vice President appoint two women senators to serve on a "Judicial Committee" with two women members of Judiciary appointed by the Chairman of Judiciary." Senators, Ginny Boyd and Jennifer Newcomer, have been appointed to that committee for this year.

French Ballet Opens

Le Theatre D'Art Du Ballet opened last night to a capacity audience in Westcott Auditorium. Included in the program was Francisca Da Rimini. Les Sylphides. Adventures of Harlequin, and Danseuses D'Opera.

Tonight's program will include Ballade, Carnaval, Spectre of the Rose. Simple Symphony. The Prelude of the Blind, and Peleas and Melisande.

Two Paris artists, Pat De Sercey and Joe Henderson have been acting as interpreters for the company, as most of the cast speak French, Russian, Hungarian, or Spanish. The prima ballerina, Anna Galina, is an American by birth, but was trained in Paris.

The language barrier has presented a problem to the company in many of the places they have toured in the United States so far. Another problem that had to be overcome was adapting their stage materials to be stood, rather than hung on the stage, when their program was presented in the gymnasium at Auburn University.

The company was pleased with the facilities of the theatre when they began rehearsals in Westcott Auditorium Saturday.

The troupe of 35 is headed by Anna Galine, and features Michel Polene, Janine Charrat, Leonide Massine, and William Dollar.

This first presentation of the Artist Series will begin tonight at 8:15 in Westcott Theatre

WFSU-TV Show Celebrates UN Day

Tonight at 8 p.m. WFSU-TV will broadcast the film, The First Priority Freedom from Hunger) in commemoration of U.N. Day. The film illustrates the problem of food shortage in some lands and food surplus in others and what is being done about it by various agencies.

The film points out the achievements of the U.S. Food and Agriculture Organization's Freedom from Hunger Campaign, a worldwide five-year plan that disseminates information about the hungry areas of the world and their need for science, not charity.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

SUSGA Makes You Proud

Southern Union of Student Government Association gatherings are always gratifying experiences. They tend to make one appreciate Florida State University to a degree that only contact with other universities can.

For FSU's administration for the most part possesses one attitude that could only be duplicated by Auburn University and perhaps host Alabama of the universities gathered.

FSU as a whole looks at its students as mature individuals who are able to make their own decisions and run their own organizations.

THIS IS NOT REALLY appreciated until one finds out the situation on many of the other campuses of the southeast.

At one institution the editor-in-chief of the student newspaper had to submit all material to an advisor before it could see print.

At another institution a girl editor would not dare criticize the administration and faculty because she wanted to get a good job recommendation from them.

ANOTHER EDITOR FROM A small school would not print any material critical of the institution for fear that criticism would hurt the school.

It was this kind of cowering in the corner makes one appreciative of an administration that respects student opinion.

For the amount of censorship, the amount of control, and the amount of dictatorial powers exercised by this university looks like a drop in the bucket compared to many contemporary institutions.

The results of this policy are graphic. Students from universities enjoying like freedom were more aware of university happenings, more interested in administrative action, and more vigorous in their thinking. This is a good sign.

Dean Foy of Auburn summed up the sentiments of universities subscribing to freedom.

"We don't believe in meddling in student affairs. We think they are mature individuals able to run their activities better than we could run them. We believe in letting them make their own decision and their own mistakes."

This is a remarkable attitude considering that the Plainsman was faced with the same type pressure that the Flambeau underwent last year.

Such attitudes are what make college communities worthwhile. Such attitudes spawn dynamic action on the part of college students.

Such attitudes are enjoyed by the minority and Florida State Students can give thanks that they can be

Unplaster Those Posters

Campus politics need to be reminded again this year that those who plaster campaign posters all over everything are also responsible for unplastering posters when the hullabaloo is over.

ONCE THE POSTERS have served their purpose, they should be taken down with the same enthusiasm with which they were put up. Especially if they are placed on and in off-campus business establishments.

Owners of private property adjacent to the campus are not likely to grumble too loudly at student misuse of the "poster privileges". But they are a bit impatient at the clutter of elections posters that stay up until the business people get around to taking them down . . . as happened this last election for perhaps the umpteenth time.

Christianity Must Be Proven

Religion, good Communists have always declared, is the opium of the people. For this reason, it is most interesting to find Polish Reds seeking to put Christian "opium" in their pipes and smoke it.

Reports indicate that Polish Communist party leaders are now concerned about the spirit of indifference, skepticism and apathy which greets their line of Marxism-Leninism belief.

Therefore they have apparently decided to try and drape their wolf-like principles in the lambskin of Christianity, as well as the great moralist teachings of the past.

ALTHOUGH they cannot very well claim to have invented Christianity, they are making every effort to identify their system with decency. The general effect is that of the town drunk appearing at a Sunday School picnic.

Performing their usual semantic eliehiel-of-logue, Polish Communist men are saying that "while absolute moral norms are nonsense" it is "absolutely scientific" to admit that such commandments as "love thy neighbor as thyself" apply to every form of social relations.

Then, with the sort of reverse logic for which Communism is notorious, it is declared that "the opponents of socialist humanism should be hated in the name of the brotherhood of mankind."

The utter failure of Communism's moral paupers to grasp the meaning of simple decency and love for mankind is summed up in a poem by Communist China's Foreign Minister, Chen Yi. Praising the teaching of tolerance, Chen Yi concludes that he who is not tolerant should be hanged.

POLISH REDS and Communism in general demonstrate what Christianity and brotherhood is not. The question remains, when will the West demonstrate successfully to the world what Christianity and brotherhood ARE?

Students Speak Out For University

Last week's gathering of college publication leaders were repeatedly asked to plea for the cause of higher education.

The theme was not new but it was repeated with increased urgency—as if the speakers were desperate and wer carrying their cause to the voters, as a last appeal.

The plea was simple—more money, more quality, more responsibility, and more emphasis on that which is considered to be the truly important areas of university life

* * * * *

But Mr. Edwin Crawford, former editor of the Auburn Plainsmen, spelled out what he wanted the students to do and why. He wanted them to recognize the important.

"The position of the university today is one of great irony," Crawford said.

"The South was warned particularly about such public complacency last month by former Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr., of Virginia, when he bluntly told the southern Governors' Conference that 'nothing is more costly to a people than inferior education. Unless we in the South are willing, and we are able ,to pay the price of superior education, we will seal the doom of this section. We shall end as a second-rate and timeless section of the United States.

* * * * *

"I think you can and should speak out about the need to attract and keep well-qualified faculty members to your university.

"To do this, you must demand that faculty salaries in the Southern institutions be made competitive with those in the rest

"You should also point with pride to those dedicated individuals who have elected to remain in the South at a financial sacrifice to themselves and their families.

"Another facet of the University that should receive your attention is the important research being carried out on your campus.

"Another matter of concern to many students that you should speak out on is the need for more scholarships for the able student who finds he cannot afford to go to college.

"As the Carnegie Foundation has warned," said Crawford in concluding his message, "If the American public does not understand what its colleges and universities are about and is not willing to learn, nothign can save them."

* * * * *

There is something that commends itself to every student in these words. It does not take a student editor, a student government worker, nor any variety of student leader to speak out for the university.

The ordinary dorm-living students can speak out eloquently for their university. This eloquence of the students makes a college worthwhile.

Co-Existence?

Fight The Communist Anti-Freedom Doctrine

By ALLEN DERMOTT

When Moses was leading the children of Israel out of Egypt and "all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh" were pursuing them, the Israelites shouted to Moses, "Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness." (Exodus 14: 12) Moses, however, did not yield to the evil suggestion of slavery. He pushed on with his faith in God. Both Christian and Jew follow, or should follow, the example of Moses, but most unfortunely this is not being done.

ABOUT FIVE weeks ago a south Florida television station reported that many clergymen in Europe were telling their people that it is better to live unhappily with Communism than to die in a nuclear attack.

Where is the intelligence of these men? Even if they don't want to follow the example of Moses and other Biblical characters, they should know by now that Christianity of Judaism can not co-exist with dialectical materialism. Such opposite doctrines and beliefs can never mingle on any form without inharmonious employment of words and then action.

ON AUGUST 16, The New York Times editorially stated that, "we must seek to discourage anti-Communist revolts in order to avert bloodshed and war. We must, under our own principles, live with evil even if by doing so we help to stabilize tottering Communist regimes, as in East Germany, and perhaps even expose citadels of freedom, like West Berlin, to slow death by strangulation."

A month later the Saturday Evening Post of September sixteenth timidly and editorially said against the Times' editorial, "Certainly nobody demands military action in these circumstances, but the question arises: how long will our own citadel of freedom? survive if the Kremlin is always to be free to shore up 'tottering Communist regimes' with the tacit encouragement of the Free World?"

WE AS AMERICANS don't dislike the Russian people, but we do hate Communism and everything it stands for. We should never yield to the Communist's materialistic, atheistic ideology—never yield to any Communist's command or aim. We should not just ask the question the Post raises, but fight the anti-freedom doctrine with everything we have. It is our duty as Americans—witness all that God given free land—to cry Patrick Henry's immortal words, "Give me liberty or give me death!" for Americanism and Communism can never co-exist.

Sophistication Leads To Rationalization

By AP ZYLSTRA

Academic sophistication has often led to a rationalization of faith. As soon as man stops observing himself he will stop being religious; those are approximately the words of Freud. When Jung shows a greater tolerance for religion it is mainly because he sees in it a psychological need.

THE POSITIVISTS have defined meaningful language as that which is capable of being true or false. That means, in their terms, that faith contains no factual statements and has only subjective meaning. Forementioned and similar beliefs have a great influence on the thinking of contemporary man.

We find many times that people avoid talking about convictions. After all, they may reason, they are only subjective and have no universal true value. Social tendencies are found in the churches. Many churchgoers may say that they believe in God and that in this country Christianity is the accepted form of professing this belief.

PROFESSING IT in a group which most closely relates to our class and characteristical differences. Hence the "classy" and "less classy" churches. Thus we perceive a tolerance of one church for another, but no tolerance for individual differences within the church. These statements are, of course, a gross generalization. Some churches show no tolerance for another. Most evidence for first mentioned generalization is found in the fact that the churches are unwilling to have any discussion between them that is inexcusable from a Christian point of view.

The foregoing discussion seems to show a practiced belief in "particular" Christianity, or even subjective Christianity. So subjective that prayer is seen by many to be a therapeutic device with much wisdom, prayer only a self-conscious monologue, and Christianity just a cultural outgrowth of some moral value. This belief makes Christ a liar, prayer a self-deception, and the Christian faith an enormous blunder.

"He who isn't for me is against me," said Christ, and the gospels make no attempt to conceal the universality of the Christian faith and God's revelation to man through Jesus.

Anyone who uses the church merely for psychological satisfaction and his beliefs only as a self-therapy may as well stop deceiving himself.

The Legend Seeks Contributors

By LESLIE POWELL

The Legend, the Florida State University literary anthology, is currently accepting short stories, poems, and other writings for consideration by its selection committee.

ALL STUDENTS are invited to send any contributions to the Legend, room 405 Longmire, campus mail. Or manuscripts can be left at the information desk in Longmire, or in the Flambeau office.

The editors are interested in reading as much material as possible. Tentative deadline date for all submissions is November 10.

IN AN EFFORT to be completely fair and unbiased in the reading and selection of each chosen item, all manuscripts are numbered and the author are removed prior to being sent to the selections committee. That will also apply to the members of the English faculty who will serve as advisors to the Legend staff. Names will be placed back on the writing only if chosen for publication. All rejected stories, etcetera, will either be returned to the sender, if requestd, or destroyed.

We are particularly interested in receiving writing from freshmen and sophomores. And we will need a number of typists later in the semester. Anyone interested in working with the Legend now, or at a later date should leave his name and where he can be contacted at the information desk at Longmire.

THE LEGEND is intended to be a cooperative publication. Any material submitted to the Legend is also available to the Smoke Signals staff if it is felt that such material is better suited to the needs of that publication. This exchange is reciprocal. This we feel insures the student a better chance of publication on campus.

The Legend selections committee is made up largely of seniors. Many of the members are English majors.

THE LEGEND, known until last year as the ANTHOLOGY, was staked to a comeback on FSU campus by a group of interested students who felt the need for an outlet for creative writing by students.

The first issue was successful enough that the Legend was placed on the Smoke Signals budget as a supplementary issue at that magazine.

FRICTIONS SINCE that time has revolved around budget and materials. It has been felt that there was "not enough" creative material to sustain both magazines. This same argument has been advanced in regard to funds. It is not necessarily true.

The 1962 issue of the Legend is tentatively scheduled for distribution in April. It is intended to be as much a representation of the best creative student writing as is made available in its staff.

THE LEGEND is mailed out all over the country as an exchange magazine with other colleges with similar publications. Letters come into the Legend office requesting information about the setting up of such an outlet for the creative students at other universities.

Given an opportunity, the Legend will become fully as representative of FSU publication as any one of the better established publications. The outcome depends on the flow of material from the FSU student body. What have you to offer?

Writer Argues Sacrifice Of Reality

TO THE EDITOR:

In respect to Mr. Sanchez's article concerning the armed forces, I think it proper to make a few comments. I agree with them that the military is taken for granted—a greater awareness is needed. But let us not view the armed services as chauvinistically. The so-called "limp-wristed demonstrators against ROTC" prevalent among some students is nothing to be ashamed of. Nor are the college students who "safe and secure from any demands of sacrifice or reality" wave their silly placards, demand "peace," and deride the very men who are protecting them."

Mr. Sanchez, reality is what we make it. If you are content to live in a world debased in crime and hypocrisy and solved with the murder of hundreds of millions of people, if you are content to view the political issues agitating our lives today as novel and dependent upon military, and if you are content with the way our world has been and is being run by so-called competent politicians and military leaders, then I suggest you read no further.

It is you and not we who have sacrificed reality. For in reality I can see no noble or honorable reason to spend $30,000 to train a man in the "art" of war and killing. If you were to acquaint yourself with some history, I dare say you would find that ever since man became less prehensile he has been training a military to do his social killing for him; so much in fact that now we honor and shower with accolades the military man whose social function is to keep order and to kill. As long as we find it expedient to slaughter our fellow men, we shall need a military—is this your reality? Do you think anyone is blind to it?

We must change reality. We must train ourselves to let live instead of kill, to help instead of harm, and to love instead of hate.

We live in a world of hypocrisy, a world that jails philosophers for exposing its Janus faces and every day prepares for the ultimate and final slaughter of civilization. If, Mr. Sanchez, this is your world, it is not a very American dream where the good guys wear the blue uniform and the bad guys wear none. It is a world of fraud and deceit. If you wish to support and protect it, do so; but the military, and refer to the calls for peace as "silly placards." But you too will cry when you sit alone amidst the debris and ashes of your country after that inevitable day when the military plays its never-ceasing game of kill-or-be-killed. We have recognized our problem. Let's put together and try to solve it.

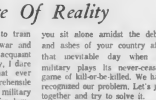
Fight Fiercely, FSU!

TO THE EDITOR:



In reaction to the many inane so-called cheers that abound at football games, some schools . . . have initiated a style of cheering known as "pedantic cheering." This probably had its genesis in humor of the type as that of a song by Tom Lehrer which begins "Fight fiercely Harvard, fight, fight, fight; demonstrat to them our skill."

So if you are weary of the cheerleaders-plus-two screaming at you over a tinny loudspeaker or if you are afraid of being arrested for conspiracy to murder in case the team should take the advice literally, I suggest these: They have been adapted where necessary.

"Repel them, repel them, make them relinquish the ball!" Instructing the team in sportsmanship: "Do unto them by most scurrilous. BAZOOKA, BAZOOKA, BANG! Elbow and poke and be injurious. EQUIVOCATE, EQUIVOCATE, WALDO!" When the opposition scores: "Snort, snort, we exhort, the Seminoles to avenge this tort!" Reprimanding the referee: "Blasphemus fool, FIE, FIE, FIE! Scoundrel! Winebigbeer! Nero! Go melt that lardage! POSH! POSH! POSH! Fathead!"

But above all else remember, "It isn't how you play the game, it's whether you win or lose." If you don't believe me, ask the business manager.)

THE PIGSKIN FOG

Out of past's betunicked dream.

You'll meet your pigskin in the jungle!

Dr. Fox Says

Mental Illness, Alcoholism Replace Criminal Activities

Mental break-ups and alcoholism are replacing criminal activities as an outlet for emotional pressures and frustrations, according to a new study at Florida State Univesdity.

In a 350-page report to the Florida Council on Mental Health Training and Research, Dr. Vernon Fox, head of the FSU Department of Corrections and Criminology, summarized findings from a two-year-long study of the Florida prison population from 1949 to 1958.

One major finding, when prison admissions were compared with admissions to mental hospitals, deaths from cirrhosis of the liver (indicating alcoholism) and psychotic arrests, was a growing tendency to "internalize" emotional problems, said Fox.

During the decade, he said sentences to prison began to taper off when compared with the growing population but admissions to mental hospitals followed the population upward.

"It is apparent that as Florida increases in population and complexity in economic structure and urbanization, there is a tendecoy toward greater pressure in the direction of 'socialization' of the population," he said.

"This means that aggressions and frustrations that were previously commonly acted out in homicide and criminal offenses are in the process of being more rapidly replaced by internalization of these anxieties with accompanying efforts to ameliorate anxiety with alcohol and narcotics or to find a psychotic or neurotic solution for them.

"The extreme internalization of aggression known as suicide shows a stable rate throughout the decade. It is apparently the internalization of aggression and anxiety short of suicide which is resulting in increased use of alcohol and narcotics and in increased admissions to mental hospitals and mental hygiene clinics."

"THE PLEASURE OF HIS COMPANY"

WHAT KIND OF A JOB DOES A POLICEMAN GET TO WORK HIS WAY THROUGH COLLEGE? Why on the police force, of course, George Doughty, who has been a police sergeant at Sarasota, now is studying in Florida State University's new four-year program of law enforcement. He is a member of the FSU police force. Here he is shown talking with William F. Tanner, director of security at FSU.

Policeman-Student Joins FSU Force While Working For Criminology Degree

George Doughty, a former Sarasota city police sergeant who is working on a degree in law enforcement, is a new member of the campus police force at Florida State University.

Doughty, a veteran of eight years service with the police force in Sarasota, resigned his job to enter FSU this fall. He donned the uniform of the campus policeman to help meet the expenses of his education.

Prior to coming to FSU, Doughty who was in charge of the juvenile division in Sarasota for three and one half years, completed the Delinquency Control Institute program of three summer sessions at FSU.

"As the police force becomes more and more community oriented, training for the policeman in the behavioral sciences becomes essential," he commented. "A preventive orientation on the part of a community's law enforcement agency and its function in the early detection of conduct disorders in the youthful age group increases the policeman's need for training in the behavioral sciences, especially sociology and psychology," he added.

A native of Laredo, Texas, Doughty attended the Associated Colleges and Universities of Upper New York, in Geneva, N. Y. and while in Sarasota, attended Manatee Junior College for a year. Before joining the Sarasota police force, he served as a special agent for the Prudential Insurance Company in Tampa. After he completes his degree he plans to continue a career in the law enforcement field.

Doughty is the first policeman of sergeant's rank to resign his position to study in FSU's new four year program leading to a degree in law enforcement, according to James D. Stinchcomb, FSU instructor of criminology and former member of the Louisville, Kentucky Police Department. FSU has the only sueb degree program in the South.

Theatre Dance Picks 20 New Members

By MARIANNA PROTSMAN
Flambeau Staff Writer

Tryouts for Theatre Dance were held on consecutive Tuesdays and Thursdays, October 3 through 12. The new members selected and notified on October 13, were Linda Daugman, Lynn Pollard, Denise Edwards ,Jodi Manni, Kay Clarke, Annette Williams, Lou Newman, Mary Petway, Elna May Bogman, Carolina Magee, Mary Lynn McCutchen, Barbara Gleason, Barbara Robertson, Joanna Turney, Nancy Walker, Alice Fugate, Dee Cuningham, Christine Christmas, Missy Wightman and Marsha Verdin.

Heading the organization is Sandy Myrick, president.

Tryouts are open to everyone interested. This year sixty persons tried out of which twenty were chosen.

The characteristics of a Theatre Dancer may be the result of native talent or trained discipline. Generally they comprise interest, concentration, coordination, balance, control, accuracy in dance pattern and rhythmic response, according to Miss Nelle-Bond-Dickinson, head of Theatre Dance.

Regular sessions are held every Tuesday and Thursday from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m. It is ideal for a freshman to begin training in the first semester and continue for the four year period since members must dance for at least a year, said Miss Dickinson.

The class time is divided into two parts comprising an hour's study of technique and another of choreography and performance. To quote Miss Dickenson, "A creative minded person in dance has unusual opportunity in Theatre Dance at FSU."

"An Evening of Dance" is held each spring. The performances of the Theatre Dance Group a this function represent the combined efforts of the students and faculty. Only original dances choreographed at FSU are presented. The group is fortunate in having as their accompanist, Lester Bruch, who frequently composes original music for the productions.

Besides being the most established college dance group of its kind in Florida, Theatre Dance makes this type of dancing available to an area which the being modern dance companies usually do not tour.

FSU Gives Gard Accounting Program

The first graduate program in professional accountancy in the Southeast has been established at Florida State University.

Dean Charles A. Bovetta of the FSU School of Business announced the advent of this program which leads to a Master of Accountancy degree. Dr. Homer A Black, C.P.A., has been named chairman of the program.

In addition to leading to a M.A. degree, the program also provides a continuing education in accountancy in cooperation with professional groups and conducting research in the field of accounting theory.

The Master of Accountancy Program resulted from the increasing complexity of modern accounting and the growing responsibility placed on the professon, and the preparation for a career in accountancy which requires additional study beyond the four-year baccalaureate program.

The new program places increased emphasis on professional preparation at an advanced academic level. The Master of Accountancy curriculum requires 37 hours of course work designed to be completed in two semesters and one summer session. The courses consist of a business core of nine semester hours; a research core of four semester hours; a major in advanced accounting consisting of 18 semester hours; and six hours of electives.

Dr. Black is a native of Georgia and received his B.B.A. and M.B.A. degrees from the University of Georgia and his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan. He is a Certified Public Accountant and has held various local and state offices and committee posts in professional accounting organizations, including the Florida Institute of C.P.A.'s, the Georgia Society of C.P.A.'s, and the American Accounting Association.

He received the Georgia Gold Medal for placing highest on the C.P.A. Examination in Georgia and the Elijah Watts Sells Silver Medal for placing second highest in the United States.

He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Kappa Phi, Beta Gamma Sigma and Blue Key.

He joined the FSU faculty in 1957, having taught previously at the University of Georgia, Ohio State University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Modern Dance Stays Popular

By MARY ELLEN HARRIS
Flambeau Feature Editor

A row of figures in somber black move gracefully across the floor, their movements reflected in a series of mirrors. Each action is definite, concise; an entity woven into the fabric of movement.

This scene is repeated numerous times during the week with varying degrees of skill, but always with the melodious accompanment of Lester Bruch, pianist, and under the watchful eye of Miss Nellie-Bond Dickinson, chairman of the dance division of the Physical Education Dept.

One of the most popular of all physical education courses according to enrollment statistics, the contemporary dance courses are offered on the beginning and on the advanced levels. Reasons given most frequently for enrollment in the classes are a desire to develop coordination, an interest in the art of dance and the probability of losing weight through strenuous exercise.

Students spend time on exercises to develop muscles which will be used in dancing, especially those in the legs and feet. As the level of the courses becomes more advanced, more time is spent on dance patterns utilizing these exercises.

Brahms Played

The Second Symphony by Brahms and a suite from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera The Golden Cockerel, will be performed in the first concert of the season by the University Symphony Orchestra Friday.

The orchestra, with Robert Sedore as conductor, will appear in Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. The concert is open to the public.

The Brahms Second Symphony, in four movements, reflects a particularly happy period of his life.

The opera The Golden Cockerel, was written by Rimsky-Korsakoff in 1907 and was the last of his compositions. He was considered one of the masters of orchestration and his instrumentation in this work makes lavish use of the colorful wind instruments of the orchestra.

THE DATING SEASON

Have recently returned from a tour of 950,000 American colleges where I made a survey of undergraduate dating customs and sold mechanical dogs, and I have tabulated my findings and I am now prepared to tell you the simple secret of successful dating.

The simple secret is simply this: a date is successful when the man knows how to treat the girl.

And how does a girl like to be treated? If you want to know, read and remember these four cardinal rules of dating:

1. A girl likes to be treated with respect.

When you call for your girl, do not drive up in front of the sorority house and yell, "Hey, fat lady!" Get out of your car. Walk respectfully to the door. Knock respectfully. When your girl comes out, tug your forelock and say respectfully, "Good evening, your honor." Then offer her a Marlboro, for what greater respect can you show your girl than to offer Marlboro with its fine flavor and exclusive selectrate filter? It will insinuate immediately that you respect her taste, respect her discernment, respect her intelligence. So, good buddies, before going out on a date, always remember to buy some Marlboros. Available in soft pack or flip-top box in all 50 of the United States and also Cleveland.

2. A girl likes to be taken to nice places.

2. A girl likes a good listener.

Do not monopolize the conversation. Let her talk while you listen attentively. Make sure, however, that she is not bored! A good listener. I recollect a date I had once with a coed named Gwendolyn Signfoot, a lovely girl, but unfortunately a listener, not a talker. I too was a listener so we just sat all night long, each with his hand cupped over his ear, straining to catch a word, not talking hour after hour until finally a policeman came and arrested us both for vagrancy. I did a year and a day. We got by with a suspended sentence because she was the sole support of her aged housemother.

3. A girl likes to be taken to nice places.

By "nice" places I do not mean expensive places. A girl does not demand luxury. All she asks is a place that is pleasant and exotic. The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, for example. Or Mount Rushmore. Or the Taj Mahal. Or the Bureau of Weights and Measures. Find places like these to take your girl. In no circumstances must you take her to an oil-cracking plant.

4. A girl likes a man to be well-informed.

Come prepared with a few interesting facts that you can drop casually into the conversation. Like this: "Did you know, Hookerpuss, that when cattle, sheep, camels, goats, antelopes, and other members of the cud-chewing family get up, they always get up hind legs first?" Or this: "Are you aware, Hotlips, that corn grows faster at night?" Or this: "By the way, Loverhead, Oslo did not become the capital of Norway till July 11, 1924."

If you can slip enough of these nuggets into the conversation before dinner, your date will grow too torpid to eat. Some men save up to a half million dollars a year this way.

FSU's Swimming Squad Schedules Bulldogs First

By DALE MARLER
Flambeau Sports Writer

"The Georgia team will be greatly strengthened by the addition of last year's freshman team to the varsity squad." These were the words Florida State Swimming Coach Bim Stults used to describe FSU's first varsity swimming opponent.

The tentative schedule calls for the first duel meet to be held on January tenth. That will be the FSU-Ga. clash. Stults said that while the proposed schedule has not been officially approved, Georgia was the prescribed opponent for the first meet. He also said we have been meeting Ga. for the first meet for about the last ten years.

Prior to the first duel meet, the swimmers will hold their annual inter-squad meet in December before the Christmas vacation.

Commenting on some of the other teams that will offer trouble for the Seminoles this season Stults seemed very confident.

FSU hopes to receive an acceptance from SMU for a meet this year. The SMU team is not yet sure if they will be able to swim in Tallahassee. "They want to come," FSU coaches say, "but they are not yet able to commit themselves." Stults described the SMU squad as one of the roughest in the nation. "Last year's team set numerous national records. This year's team can do the same," Stults said.

The University of Alabama will face the Seminoles again this year. They will also pose a threat to FSU hopes for an undefeated season. Like Georgia, the Alabama squad has been beefed-up considerably by their freshmen squad members who advanced to the varsity ranks.

THOMPSON BEST MAN

Florida will depend greatly on the talents of talented Paul Thompson in its meets this year. Coach Stults said this of Thompson, "He is definitely the most outstanding man on this year's team. He can swim anything . . . and he probably will be used to swim a number of events . . . where he is needed is where he will swim."

This year's squad will depend greatly on the ability and performance of last year's freshmen. Stults pointed the finger at the new varsity members by stating, "The success of this season will depend, more than any other thing, on the new members of the squad. We have lost many valuable swimmers since last year. Some graduated, some did not return to school. Our winning ability will lay in the hands of the former freshman squad members and their ability to fill the gaps of those who did not return."

ABOUT LAST YEAR

Last year's team produced two All-Americans, placed first in the Georgia AAU Championship and also won the Florida Intercollegiate Championship.

"Curt Genders and Buck Hiles are the losses that hurt the most," Coach Stults said. Genders compiled an impressive record during his career on the team. He won the National Collegiate Low-Board Diving Championship, was rated All-American as a low-board diver for three years. In addition he was rated All-American as a high-board diver last year.

Hiles also gained much fame in the water during his year's at FSU. He was rated All-American in the 440 during his sophomore year. Last year he received an All-American rating for the 100 yard butterfly.

This year the team will be captained by Paul Thompson, Tommy Mue and Bob Abstein. All are seniors. They will have a great winning to uphold.

Kinderman Scores First

FSU Eases Past Richmond 13-7

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

The Florida State Seminoles eased by the Richmond Spiders 13-7 Saturday night.

FSU took an early lead in the first quarter when Ken Kinderman dove across the goal line from the two.

Doug Messer's point after the touchdown was wide, giving the Seminoles a 6-0 lead.

This was the first touchdown FSU has scored since its opening game with George Washington September 16. The only other time Florida State has scored has been on two field goals, one against Georgia, the other against Florida.

The Tribesmen came within scoring position only one more time in the first half.

Eddie Feely ground out 31 and 24 yards on two tries putting the ball on Richmond's 14. A pass to Hillabrand advanced the Seminoles to the nine. Messer tried to add to the Seminole tally with a field goal from the 16. The attempt was wide.

The Spiders put the Tribesmen with their back against the wall on the FSU 4 yard line. Failing to move the ball out, the Seminoles were forced to punt. Charlie Calhoun booted the ball from the end zone to the Florida State 28.

Richmond was in the scoring position with two minutes left on the clock in the first half. Mel Rideout completed two passes to push the Spiders to the 12.

The Seminole line held and the Warriors took over with the idea in mind to kill the remaining minute left.

The Warriors were unsuccessful. After retaining the ball two downs Gene Roberts fumbled and Jack Yaffa recovered the ball at the 11.

With a little over 30 seconds remaining Rideout connected with George Rapp in the end zone to even the score up.

Earl Stoudt's point after the touchdown split the uprights and sent FSU to the dressing room behind one point.

Stoudt, an All Southern halfback, proved to be an able runner as he totaled up 53 yards in 13 carries. Rideout, the nation's seventh ranking passer, hit on eight out of 23 for 91 yards.

Kinderman was the FSU work horse of the evening grinding out 142 yards on 22 rushes, nearing a record set by Buddy Strauss who totaled 161 in 1940. Feely ran for 77 yards in 15 tries and completed 7 of 9 passes for 64 yards.

Moving into the last period Richmond recovered a fumbled punt at the FSU 20. With the aid of a 15 yard penalty and a 4 yard gain by Rideout, the Spiders were on the FSU 20.

The victory - starved Spiders were stopped dead when Gene McDowell saved the day for the Seminoles with an interception at the 12 yard line.

With 8 minutes and 38 seconds left in the game Ed Feely crossed the goal line to give Florida State a 13-7 victory over the University of Richmond. Feely piloted the Seminole craft on a 77-yard drive from the 12-yard strip to pay dirt.

Dodd...

In an age of increasing speculation, the mission of the arts and sciences in higher education becomes even more imperative.

"By authority vested in me by the Florida Board of Education and the Board of Control, I hereby name this building the William George Dodd Hall and dedicate it to the service of all who seek knowledge and cultural enrichment."

Two daughters of Dr. Dodd were present for the dedication ceremonies. They are Dr. Dorothy Dodd, state librarian, and Mrs. Wilson (Mary) Trammell of Miami.

Dr. Dodd joined the faculty in 1910, with his service paralleling that of the late president, Dr. Edward Conrads. His book, Courtly Love in Chaucer and Gower, is widely used in universities.

"He said that if he had the choice of a building on this campus to bear his name, this would be the choice," said Dr. Reynolds. "As the library it was the center of learning. He was active in plans for its building.

"It is now the center of Arts and Sciences, and his colleagues say, Dr. Dodd was Arts and Sciences, the whole of it. This is also, now, the center of the graduate division, and that brings us again to Dr. Dodd's philosophy that scholarship is the final high honesty.

"So it is fitting that this building should be known as the William George Dodd Hall. May we follow here his practices that it is exciting, and of the utmost importance, to discover truth and transmit wisdom," he concluded.

Trimester Plan Adopted...

the items that has not been discussed by the Board, he said. The Board must examine the distribution of students to the trimester, he said, before this decision is reached.

"In the beginning, it will be difficult to find a staff of reporters to put out a paper year-round," said Flambeau Editor Ben Sharp of the problem for publications posed by the new system. Until last summer a tabloid size summer paper was published, however, it was dropped partially because of the problem of maintaining a summer staff.

The Athletic Dept. will be able to extend athletics, the president said. The trimester system will make it easier for the baseball team to participate in the national playoffs, which normally take place three weeks after the spring season ended, he added.

GRADES NOT AFFECTED

Grades will not be affected by the change, said the president. An "A" in a semester course would have the same value as an "A" in a trimester course.

Under the new system, students will be in classes just as much as under the old, he said. Classes will be extended to 52 minutes in length, instead of 50, and there will be 15 minute breaks between classes, instead of 12, he added.

The drawback to the new class periods is that there will be less time for the students to study and for faculty members to prepare for classes, the president said.

The quarter system, backed by the University of Florida, would have provided quarters of 10 weeks. But the trimester system "provides very near the same number of weeks in a term as the present semester," said a report of the FSU Ad Hoc Faculty Committee.

Butler Wins National Title

Carl Butler, Student Body President last year, has been awarded the Colley Memorial Trophy for being chosen the outstanding Theta Chi of the year.

Men from 128 Theta Chi chapters throughout the United States were nominated to a committee composed of the fraternity's national officers. Judgment of each nominee was based upon his service to his Alma Mater, his fraternity, and his chapter. Selection for this award is the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a member of the Theta Chi Fraternity.

During the last three years, the local Gamma Rho chapter of Theta Chi has produced one runner-up and two winners of the Colley Memorial Award. Don Ramsden was the recipient of the award in 1959 and Sid Stubbs was awarded the second place trophy in 1960. The record has been maintained by the selection of Butler in 1961 as the award winner.

During his four years at Florida State University, Butler served as vice president of the Student Body as well as president and as a senator for two years. He was president of Theta Chi, a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Gold Key, and the varsity swimming team.

Presently Butler, who graduated with a ROTC commission, is a lieutenant at Greenville Air Force Base, Greenville, Miss.

Students To Study Icy Seas Firsthand

Equipment for exploration of the Antarctic Ocean depths will be tested next month by two Florida State University doctoral students when they go on a one week cruise of the Atlantic Ocean.

Ronald Kolpack and Ken Kramer will test the gear to be used in the year-long exploration, which begins in February. Financed by a grant of $33,000 from the National Science Foundation, the chief purpose of the expedition will be to test samples of the ocean sediments.

The two students, plus a third student not yet selected, will work aboard the laboratory ship Eltanin in Antarctic waters off the southern tip of South America.

TWO-MONTH CRUISES

Working alternately for two-month periods as the ship leaves and returns to Valparaiso, Chile, they will be among 35 scientists performing various research projects. In a year's time the ship will cruise over a pie-shaped area of about 1,000,000 square miles.

According to Drs. H. G. Goodell and J. K. Osmond of the FSU Geology Dept., who will direct the studies at FSU, the students' job will be to take core samplings of the ocean sediments—cores of from four to eight meters long at depths ranging from 100 fathoms to 3,000 fathoms.

An estimated 100 cores will be taken and this material will be returned to FSU's sedimentology research laboratory for months of examination. Textural and mineralogical studies will be made, material will be dated, geochemical studies will be made and a study will be made of microfossil ontology.

In November the two graduate students will go to Bayonne, N. J. and board the newly converted 296-foot vessel for its shakedown cruise in the North Atlantic, accompanied by Dr. Goodell. The students will test the 2,000 pounds of gear used in taking samples.

TESTING APPARATUS

Other scientists at the university time will be testing apparatus for measuring cosmic rays, sampling airborne insects, studying marine biology and meteorology and other subjects. The University of Wisconsin, Stanford University, Texas A & M College, Lamont Geological Observatory and half a dozen other research centers will be represented.

The ocean sediments which will be brought back—Dr. Goodell estimates there will be two to three tons of them—will supplement sediments received earlier during Operation Deep Freeze 61, the last International Geophysical Year exploration.

These have been under analysis in the sedimentology laboratory at FSU for more than a year and examination of them is nearing complete.

Goodell said a third student is being sought. To qualify, he must be well along in his graduate work in geology with special knowledge in sedimentology.

By 1990 Almost Everyone Will Have To Go To College, 'Harper's' Says

EDITOR'S NOTE: HARPER'S MAGAZINE in its October issue included a special supplement titled "The College Scene". Because of the importance and general interest of these articles the FLAMBEAU is running a series of condensations of some of the articles. The first in the series, "The Next Thirty Years in the Colleges," by Christopher Jencks, has been condensed by FLAMBEAU staff member Ann Carroll.

Universal college education has already become inevitable in America—although it probably will not be accepted for another generation.

By 1990 automation will have installed a lighter proportion of the population in white-collar jobs, and built-in unemployment will probably assure that anyone competing for such a job will need to claim some sort of college experience

The average age for starting work will almost certainly have risen to twenty-one, and people seeking top professional and administrative jobs will have to stay in graduate school well beyond this age.

Our American romanticism about "college life" dooms in advance all proposals to rationalize higher education by confining it to "suitable" students. Of course some of these proposals deserve short shrift. In many cases "suitable" is merely a euphemism for "intellectual" or "bright."

* * *

The advocates of such plans would emulate the Europeans by confining higher education to those who have already demonstrated their academic gifts. Yet research has repeatedly shown that great numbers—perhaps a majority— of the most talented young people show very little scholastic promise while still in high school.

Hence if every American college accepted the definitions of suitability which govern admission to Yale, Caltech, or Bryn Mawr, a very substantial proportion of our country's intellectual manpower would go down the drain.

But some definitions of suitability for higher education might prove more defensible. Looking at the superior records of students who marry or do military service before graduation, or otherwise prove to themselves and others that they are grown-up, a psychologist might well conclude that late adolescence is not the most suitable time to attend a good college or university.

A revised sequence of work and school would . . . require a greater fiscal investment in education, and might not yield sufficiently higher returns.

The next 30 years, then, will probably bring about a society in which most of our children will enroll in college. And with what result? Will the colleges be organized so that young people can benefit from the more leisurely pace at which they will be allowed to grow up? Will they encourage the students to try out new skills and new self-portraits without suffering seriously for their inevitable miscalculations—and will thus policy really produce alumni who are more experimental and more imaginative than those people who have spent late adolescence pushing papers or shoveling coal? Will the colleges really offer young people any understanding of the world in which they themselves will live, or will they be taught only about the world of their professors?

In practice, if not always in intention, undergraduate instruction at great universities like Harvard is primarily a device for training—or simply recruiting—academicians.

If the freshman is to justify the money and energy expended on him, many faculty members assume that he must become an amateur chemist, economist, philosopher or the like. If he is "really talented," moreover, he is expected to go on to a Ph.D and a research career. Professors often seem to judge their own undergraduate programs by the number of graduates who undertake doctorates.

Stage Ices For Follies

By JOAN ABBOTT
Flambeau News Editor

It would be a cold day in Tallahassee when Westcott Stage freezes over, but next week this will not be necessarily so.

Westcott stage will be converted into an ice rink next week for the Ice Follies, a charity show, which is being sponsored by Tallahassee Junior Women's Club.

Tickets for Jack Kelly's Ice Follies, featuring world champion skaters, next Thursday and Friday are now on sale at $2 per person. The tickets may be purchased at the University bookstore from Mrs. Helen Revel or by calling Mrs. Kay Ansley at 385-3635.

The hour and 45 minute show will begin both nights at 8 p.m. A Detroit company will arrive in Florida State University Tuesday to set up the rink and begin freezing the ice. It will take about 40 hours for the rink to release.

The show stars Dick Button who was the U.S. Figure Skating Champion from 1946 to 1948, North American Figure Skating Champion from 1947 to 1953, World Figure Skating Champion from 1948 to 1952 and Olympic Figure Skating Champion from 1948 to 1952.

Other stars in the show are Vivence Rae and George Von Gaspelin, who is the world's champion young and still skating champion.

FIVE ACT

The program, in five acts, will feature Esco La Rue—The Mystery March of the Ice. Trixie—billed as the world's foremost juggler. Cavanaughs—Adagio Highlights. June Rae—Dreamer Ballerina. and Jack Kelly Production.

Producer of the show, Jack Kelly, has produced ice shows for 17 years. He has lived in Florida for the past five years and makes his permanent home in St. Petersburg.

The choreographer of the show, Rae Lee Kelly's wife, also writes and designs all the costumes for the show.

Dr. Bradford and his band will furnish the music for the show. Part of the proceeds from the show will go for a $200 scholarship given annually to an FSU student who is in elementary education or who is in a field that concentrates on work with children.

WESTCOTT FREEZES OVER

One of the championship skaters in the Jack Kelley Ice Follies show plays in Westcott Auditorium Nov. 2 and 3. The show is sponsored by the Tallahassee Junior Women's Club.

Florikana Show Starts Wed.

"Florikana" — a tribute to the state of Florida—is the theme for the Gymkana Troupe's annual performance beginning here next week.

This salute to Florida, which will be presented Wednesday through Saturday of next week, will feature different festivals and points of interest throughout the state.

Tickets will be on sale Monday for the show at the men's gym and at a table at the student center.

They will also be on sale at the door. Wednesday night prices will be on special rate of $.50 per person. For the remainder of the week, adult tickets will be $1.00 and students, $.75.

Tonight the troupe is appearing for the disabled veterans in Thomasville, Georgia.

Among the talents appearing with the FSU gymnasts this year are Bob and Colleen May and their two children Bob May is the coach of the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots.

Joe Gustle is director of the production this year in the absence of Dr. Hartley Price who originated Gymkana at FSU. Dr. Price is presently in Colombia, South America, on a Fulbright scholarship.

The queen of Gymkana and her six princesses will be announced Nov. 4, at the final performance of the show. She will be selected on the basis of personality, cooperation with the troupe and general interest in the show. Linda Walton, reigning queen of Gymkana, will crown her successor.

Sam McCall will act as master of ceremonies. Alexis Demas is overall chairman of Gymkana for this year.

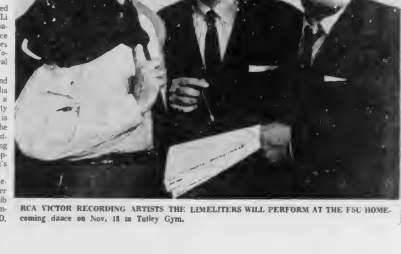
Limelighters Slated For Homecoming

RCA Victor Recording Artists, The Limelighters, will be the main feature of the Westcott show, Nov. 18 for Florida State University's Homecoming weekend.

Appearing with this folk-singing trio, will be night club comedian Adam Keefe and comedian-singer Isobel Robins.

The Limelighters who will entertain at the Homecoming Dance as well as at Westcott, on the Saturday of FSU's big weekend have appeared throughout the country presenting a blend of vocal and instrumental folk music combined with a type of comedy which they choose to call "untitutional satire."

They have been seen by audiences of the Ed Sullivan Show, and the Dinah Shore Chevy Show, as well as in concerts with Chris Connor, George Shearing and Shelley Berman. Also in the past year they have appeared in night night spots as San Francisco's Hungry i and New York's Blue Angel.



Among recent songs recorded by the Limelighters are "Hey Lu Lee Li Lee," a "group participation" song in which the audience is invited to contribute verses, and "There's a Meetin' Here Tonight," a rousing rhythmical show-opener.

Louis Gottleib is bassist and comic spokesman for the trio. His special trademark on stage is a burlesquing of the University pedant, the sort of teacher who is knocking himself out over the jokes in Chaucer while his restless and puzzled class has nothing on its collective mind that happened earlier than last night's date.

An original member of the Gateway singers, as well as arranger for the Kingston Trio, Gottleib left the entertainment field temporarily while he earned his Ph.D. in Musicology at the University of California. He is the only comic in the history of show business to become a full-fledged Doctor of Philosophy.

Alex Hassilev, who alternates between the banjo and the guitar, was a professional actor in many an and off Broadway productions. He speaks fluent French, Portuguese, Spanish and Russian and sings in over a dozen additional languages and dialects. He spent his academic years at the University of Chicago.

Glenn Yarbrough, a singer in his own right before he joined the Limelighters, is solo voice for the group. A tenor, he is featured in ballads such as "The Far Side of the Hill" and "I First Came To This Land."

RCA VICTOR RECORDING ARTISTS THE LIMELITERS WILL PERFORM AT THE FSU HOMECOMING dance on Nov. 18 in Tulley Gym.

Writer Vance Packard Speaks Wednesday

Vance Packard, twentieth century social critic, will deliver the fourth Beth Wilson Mooe lecture at Florida State University on "The Changing Characters of the American People."

The lecture, which will be the first in this year's University Series, will be given on Wednesday at 8:15 p. m. in the Westcott Auditorium.

The Packard lecture is free and the public is invited, Dr. A. Gib DeBusk, Chairman of the University Lecture Series, announced. Dr. Lewis Killian, professor of sociology, will introduce the speaker.

LATEST BOOK

In the latest of his series of provocative books, The Waste Makers, Packard says American society is suffering from what he calls "Consummatism." The enormous increase in productive capacity is fast outrunning the market and strategies are developed to make us discard what we buy before products have level out their usefulness, resulting in a "philosophy of waste" he says.

Packard began collecting material for his first book in the early 1950's and The Hidden Persuaders, published in 1957, concerned itself with "persuasion in depth" in advertising. His next book, The Status Seekers, argued that supposedly classless America was actually headed toward a rigid class system.

JOURNALISM DEGREE

A native of Pennsylvania, Packard has been a writer or teacher since receiving the master's degree from Columbia Graduate School of Journalism about 20 years ago. Before becoming preoccupied with the social seances he spent five years as a newspaperman in Boston and New York, and then switched to writing magazine articles and books. He now lives in Fairfield County, Connecticut.

Packard will arrive by plane at 4:24 p. m. Wednesday. He will be the guest of Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, FSU president, at a dinner preceding his address. He will leave by plane at 9:20 a. m. Thursday.

Other speakers for the year will include Dr. Milton Friedman, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, Dec. 5; Professor C. Northcote Parkinson, Jan. 10; and Dr. Paul Tillich, March 2.

Senate Suggests Testing Changes

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

Fraternity and sorority test files may be on the way out.

The advantages of groups having test files will be erased if Faculty Senate adopts proposals concerning the testing system made by Student Senate Wednesday.

Introduced by Men's Vice President Carl Kuttler, a resolution requested that tests be filed in the Library, book shops be allowed to re-copy tests, that tests not be given twice, that tests be returned within a reasonable time and that strict observation be placed over assistants that print the tests.

OPEN HELP SESSIONS

An amendment by Women's Vice President Mygnon Champion requested that help sessions be open to all students in the classes concerned.

It is not fair to a person who has studied to receive a lower grade than a person who had access to a test file, said Kuttler. This unfair advantage needs to be removed, he said.

Sen. Gerry Dobson said that the person who was being cheated was actually the one who had access to the file. The important thing is obtaining an education, not grades, he stressed.

The University of Florida students are able to purchase exams for $.65 in the book store, said Kuttler. The old tests would be the best study guides possible, he added.

It will be more work for the professors to compile different tests each time, the men's vice president said, but it will raise their reputation in the eyes of the students.

CUT OUT CHEATING

Some senators did not feel that the program would cut out cheating and did not feel that professors should have to send all tests, including pop quizes, to the Library. They also did not think it would radically change the reputation of the honor system nor improve studying.

The pro-testing bill faction replied that the bill is not designed to change the honor system, but to erase an unfair advantage which some groups have. The Faculty Senate can decide many of the other problems, such as how many tests professors should file in the Library.

Kuttler felt that the testing revision would not change the school's reputation but add to it.

The University of Chicago and Harvard University use the system, he said. A dean at this University, who was a University of Chicago graduate, tried unsuccessfully to get this policy adopted a few years ago, he said.

"The weaknesses of this measure are not as great as the weaknesses of the present system," Kuttler said.

Sen. Dobson moved that the bill be tabled until the next meeting, to permit the Faculty Senate to meet and decide a policy. The motion faded.

Kuttler suggested that a service organization or the Library could handle the filing of the tests.

IN OTHER ACTION

The Senate also decided to:

—Investigate the possibilities of using voting machines in future elections. Passed unanimously.

—Establish a committee to draw up an "established system" of choosing Who's Who nominees. Passed unanimously.

—Re-establish a food service committee to act as a liason between the student body, administration and adjacent-to-campus eating establishments. Passed unanimously.

—Request that special permission be granted to students to stay out until 1:30 a.m. on the evening of the Pow Wow, Nov. 17 in order that all student activities can be best utilized." Passed unanimously.

Referred to a committee a bill requiring that members of the election committee be directly responsible for seeing that polling procedures are correctly carried out.

$25 Million May Go To Colleges

The attorney general's office has recommended that Governor C. Farris Bryant's proposal to borrow $15 million for the construction of university buildings be increased to $25 million.

If the recommendation is carried through, the building program for the state universities will be increased to an even greater rate than was planned by the $15 million proposal which was approved by the state cabinet in September.

FINANCIAL ASPECTS

The proposal came as a result of a thorough study of the financial aspects of the program. The study was made by the state board of control, the attorney general's office and other agencies.

Assistant Attorney General, Ralph Odom, who serves as lawyer for the Board of Control, said the study had convinced him there are sufficient unpledged revenues accruing to the university system to support a $25 million issue.

The $25 million will come from appropriations already made by the Legislature for buildings in the university system. The proposal will only speed up the building program.

"Greatness has been thrust upon Florida by the space age, and we must know that educationally we must meet the challenge. We must provide for the needs of our students now or our university system will sink to worse than mediocre," said Odum.

"There is only one thing wrong with the governor's proposal, to be increased to $50 million. It is not big enough," he said.

The legality of the proposal has been questioned by Secretary of State Tom Adams and some legislators on the ground it would be committing the Legislature to make appropriations. They have insisted there be specific legislative authorization for the proposal.

"There is no question in my mind that the plan is feasible, sound and legal. The courts have approved this same plan for financing to construct state office buildings at Miami, Winter Park, Tampa and Tallahassee and the new district court of appeals headquarters at Lakeland," said Odum.

The governor has not discussed the increase on revenue certificate issue with Odum because of Bryant's trip to Europe. Odum said if the governor and the Board of Control accepted his plan he could start legal action to validate the bonds within a month.

Thursday the State Board of Control will meet and discuss the proposal to increase the issue of

Queen's Applicants

Final applications for Florida State University's Homecoming candidates must be submitted to Miss Adams, director of Longmire, no later than 5 p.m. today. This is also the deadline for having candidates pictures made.

Pictures of all candidates will be taken all day Nov. 6 at the Student Center and Westcott. Voting will be held the following day, Nov. 7 at the same places. If a run-off is necessary, it will follow on Nov. 8. All regular FSU students are eligible to vote.

The 1961 Homecoming Queen and her court will be announced and presented at the Pow Wow, the initial activity of Homecoming Weekend, Nov. 17.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

For All Or None

A bill has been forwarded from Student Senate to Faculty Senate that is designed to bring old test copies out where every student can have a crack at them.

The bill would place copies of tests in the library, and would make copies available to area bookstores for duplication and general distribution over bookcounters.

THE ENTIRE IDEA would be to give the entire student body access to a "test file" similar to those in existence in various organizational units. It is designed to bring a new measure of equality to testing, or better yet, perhaps to bring the University administration into the picture with determination flying.

Since most major tests are graded on the curve system, every fee paying individual on this campus is greatly entitled to have a copy of any test to study by that any other student has access to.

IF THE ADMINISTRATION will take a strong stand, and back it up with action, then all test files can be abolished or all students can have equal access to old tests. It has long been one of the thorns in the flesh of many off-campus students.

Call it spoon-feeding if you wish. Or call it an act of equalization. Call it prodding some of the professors into making up a new test now and again. Call it anything you wish, but let's have a change.

ANOTHER SORE POINT: When help sessions are conducted on university property, using university facilities for the benefit of a portion of any class, then all members of such a class should definately feel welcome to attend such a help session. No more special help sessions for the chosen few. It looks as if a portion of the student body enrolled here under the impression that they were part of a private school.

Instructors that want to hold help sessions for friends and friends of friends should take the crowd home or out to a drive-in. If stars from various teams or other areas of non-academic student endeavor must have help sessions of a special nature, then all their classmates in a given course are likewise entitled to the extra help if they so choose.

LP

Standards Aren't Rules

It has been a growing conviction in some areas of the campus that those administrative figures often blamed for a lot of the less happily accepted rules are not directly at fault. When authority is delegated, it tends to spread horizontally. At Florida State University, this spreading often takes the form of a new set of rules drawn up to one's own tastes.

THERE IS SOME CONFUSION about the difference between standards and rules. Standards are merely modes of behavior that can, supposedly, be reasonably expected to guide one's path through the thorny little problems of dorm life, etcete-ra; through the "living in communities" part of college life.

Standards, as some people seem to think, are not necessarily rules. Women students have been dragged before the various house councils because they "broke standards." That is a ridiculous and disgusting state of affairs. Breaking rules is one thing for house council, but nobody should set themselves up to punish someone else for an infraction of "standards" that include the merely ludicrous items like "it is not proper for a woman to smokes in the street." This gem has been refined at FSU to "it is not proper for a girl to smoke on her feet," for all practical purposes. Actually it really should not matter. It just is not important.

STANDARDS MAY or may not add charm to the FSU coed. It might be argued that in a number of cases the charm has merely been another layer added to the aura of vagueness that surrounds a goodly number of our young ladies.

Knowledge for College, perhaps one of the most precious documents ever committed to writing, covers every thing from "Absences — Out of town," "Beer-Beer Parlors" and "Calling form (sic) Windows" to "Shower Baths," "Unapproved Places" and visiting (sic) Men's Rooms." Aside from being a sloppy job of printing, it is a confusing morass of details that are bound to give every homegrown authoritarian in a coed dorm the chance to play martinet.

THERE ARE PLENTY of sensible items in the booklet mentioned above, but there is an awful lot of excess wordage calculated to stagger the reader with great import. The authors at one point say "After all the regulations you've just read, (28 pages of them) you're probably asking yourself, "How will I ever remember everything?" They don't bother to answer that question. They go blithely along to make more suggestions calculated to instill charm in any event.

Our suggestion: Scrap the unnecessary whether it be unlikely rule or misguided prosecution of infractions of standards. Women students. Phi Beta Kappa. Corn Laude type women students, who have come away from FSU to work other places have been known to write back "Gee, it's good to be credited with having a little sense."

LP

Change In Kellum

It is good to know that Kellum has set a new voting record with their new election. It is even better to know that the situation in Kellum may actually have been brought back on an even keel.

When recriminations regarding a dormitory election reach the point where letters are flying back and forth between students and officials, then something is wrong, even if it is only a personal feud. In any event the matter should be looked into and publicly straightened out.

It is hard to believe that Kellum officers were "not aware" that the Flambeau was interested in their last election and the resulting uproar. Anybody that thinks it was a big dorm-clique secret is mistaken. We are only happy that it hasn't been necessary to print all the material pertinent to the event that has long been available.

Reflections

English Prof's On TV No Threat To Paar

By LESLIE POWELL

To be "in" the FSU English Department, you must necessarily smash up any and every illusion you find plaguing the students. That is the picture I get.

Once I firmly believed that English instructors were people fiercely devoted to looking for something original and fresh. But that was before classroom TV replaced flesh and blood.

NOW I WONDER . . . in the light of the annual TV barrage emanating from the FSU studios and manned largely by English profs, I wonder . . . are English profs interested in originality? If they are, you'd think that the annual "bash Flambeau" bull might take a different tack one of these years. Always it's the same old tired, hackneyed tale.

Flambeau is compared to various commercial periodicals which are moneyed, technically updated in every respect and staffed with people who are in publications as professionals bent on making rent money. Always the comparison of a student publication like Flambeau to the noble New York Times is a rather ghastly business and not one that you might expect to find the more literate elements indulging in since the kinship of the publications is perceptible only where the ink dries—on paper

AS FOR THE paragraphing of various papers, on the editorial page or any other, there is a matter of opinion involved. At the risk of losing some of the professors to seizures of various sorts, let's say it: the New York Times offers the best news coverage available in a domestic newspaper. The make-up of the Times, however, is definitely open to question. Just like some of the highly touted authors that are shoved down the students mental gullets, there is room for individual opinion regarding newspaper paragraphing.

While the idiom Quixotes are tipping pin-wheels, compare their field to Underwater Basket Weaving, then just sit back and listen to the panel howls. But the comparison . . . pardon me . . . criticism is just as justifiable as anything yet that has come from the English Dept., in regard to Flambeau make-up.

As for the "written for children" observation, which must have taken hours and hours and hours of concentrated thought, I have an observation to make too: All the children are not necessarily watching the TV lectures, et cetera. Why not write for children? Obviously even the older children are reading it, even if the copies clutched in their hands are several years old. Old Flambeaus, I suspect are not so dated as many attitudes ingrained in English departments around the country.

MAYBE A FREAKISH comparison of students newspapers with professional commercial Journals is worth the self-conscious classroom yak it will forever evoke. But, if I may make one more comparison, the local TV stars aren't going to wreck Jack Paar's audience rating. Oral Roberts probably is even a better draw . . . at least his listeners have the faith to place their hands on the TV screen. Given the chance, FSU students would smash the entire set. Even Freshmen can't be fooled forever.

Then again, maybe the absurdly "unbiased" critiques from uphill do serve a useful purpose. Maybe they break up the deadly monotony of the florid filibustering in the department of pomposity.

It seems to me that the English Dept., wasted a little late in the day to take an interest in college journalism on this campus. The School of Journalism was deported to Gainesville several years ago. Where was the zest for criticism then? Certainly it was not in the English department.

Biological Aftermath Of The Bomb

By E. J. ROSCH

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. Rosch is a Predoctoral Fellow in the Bio-Chemical Genetics Laboratory at Florida State University. His discussion of the effects of fallout on the National population will be continued in the Tuesday issue of Flambeau.

Concerning the biological aftermath of a thermonuclear war, A. Gib DeBusk in the September 20 issue of Flambeau, expressed the optimistic opinion that "Man would survive somewhere and adapt." Mr. Jerry Binger has, in the October 6, Flambeau, attacked this position as a "classic of unscientism." While reader Binger established some excellent points he inadvertantly admitted his ignorance of some known facts and questionable issues, merely by electing to refer his genetic "surgery" to an Air Force "barber."

IT IS TO BE expected that one who is not a student of radiation biology should have difficulty in evaluating the opinion expressed by DeBusk and the criticism uttered by Binger. It is the purpose of this column to attempt to explain what we do know and of what we are uncertain. All statements presented in this column, unless otherwise excepted, are documentary. A word of caution seems in order: The reader ought to bear in mind, regardless of the conclusion at which he arrives, that no strong position, optimistic or pessimistic, can be adequately defended.

A number of possible blast patterns have been suggested as the type which the Russians might employ. Naturally, there is no way in which to choose among these with any certainty. However, it is reasonable to suppose that at least fifty of the twenty megaton Bravo-type bombs would be exploded in the "industrial eclipse" between St. Louis and Boston. This is an area of one-half million square miles, and each bomb would spread its fallout over an area of 10,000 square miles, indicating that the area would be blanketed. All exposed persons within this entire area would receive between 1500 and 3000 roentgens (r) within the first twelve hours, depending upon geography and local meteorological conditions. These are average values, meaning that some persons might receive less and others would be exposed to levels of radiation in excess of 100,000 r in the first hour. Those in the latter category would die in a matter of seconds.

THE HUMAN LD 50 (that dose which will kill on the average of fifty per cent of an exposed population) is 400r. Therefore, all persons falling within the "average" category would die in less than thirty days. There are only guesses as to what fraction of the population this would include. Civil Defense authorities admit, albeit reluctantly, that it would include at least 50 per cent of our national population. Considering our present state of unpreparedness, it is the author's opinion that 90 per cent is a more reliable estimate.

Unfortunately, the statistics have not yet terminated. The failing, whether is designed to be occupied for a two-week period. Should the "protected" emerge on a full time basis, they would be irradiated between 500 and 600 r in the first six weeks subsequent to their exit. This dose could be reduced in proportion to the fraction of time they would remain fossorial. A completely unprotected emerging population would be reduced by a conservative 10 per cent 60 days after their emergence. We have thus accounted for the fallout during the first two months.

IN THE NEXT four months, an exposed person would accumulate a dose of 1 r which would leave him with, still, only a 50 per cent chance to survive.

The facts all up as follows: A reflecting population might suffer little physiological damage if it existed in Class A fallout shelters for a period of not less than six months, and preferably one year. These figures may seem excessive, but it must be recalled that one will have no way of knowing whether the bombs are 50 or 20 megaton, nor whether there were only 50 or 500 of them dropped. Without excellent monitoring equipment the "safe" level cannot be ascertained. Furthermore, under the, density conditions initially described, the dose rate at the end of one year period would be 0.5 r per day, which is roughly 50 times above the recommended level for sound health.

IT IS NOT INCONCEIVABLE that 500 bombs would be dropped upon the United States, particularly if the "checkerboard" or "saturer" blast patterns was employed. Under these conditions the entire United States would become an "industrial ellipse." Since it would be presumptuous to assume that the Soviets could not bombard our allies in a similar manner, it must be admitted that a path could be swaged from Japan, through the North American continent, the British Isles, to the city of Vladivostok. Again, considering the present state of ignorance and unpreparedness, it is the opinion of this author that under intensity conditions equivalent to, or greater than the aforementioned, that entire area could easily be voided of all mammalian forms of life, and, possibly, an herbal desert with the exception of the annual plants, within a period of ten years.

It must be stressed that the above statements concern an ad hoc situation since we are assuming the use of a particular type of bomb, and predicting its numbers and distribution. In reality, the situation might be considerably less severe, or severe beyond imagination. In the final analysis the story will unfold only on the tally sheet of competent monitors under siege, than empirically.

THE GENETIC consequences are, unfortunately, very "sticky" since the geneticist does not know the number of survivors with which mankind would have to begin to evolutionary process. He does not know the limits of a prospective fallout, nor does he know how to contend with radiation as an evolutionary selective factor as well as an evolutionary affector. He has only limited data concerning the effects of chronic radiation upon evolution and extinction. If we must construct a situation, we can only attempt to predict the genetic consequences.

Letter Policy

The Flambeau appreciates letters to the editor. We attempt to print as many of these as possible.

To be eligible for publication, letters must be free from libel and in good taste.

The letters should be not not exceed 250 words, are correct in spelling and grammar, and are well written.

Letters exceeding the 250 word maximum may be cut. Opinions which are no longer may be submitted as guest columns.

The letters must be signed by a student, but the name will be withheld upon request.

Candidates Stir Kellum Hall Pot

The subversion, charge-and-counter-charge, closed doors technique employed in recent elections in both men's dorms had finally one positive result.

An almost phenomenal number of men turned out to cast ballots for the gubernatorial candidate of their choice in Kellum Hall.

Stunningly, 407 out of 576 residents exercised their seldom used privilege of democracy. And a 70.5 per cent turnout on this campus of contented complacency is a commendable rarity.

For winner Floyd Price, a transfer student who last year was President of the Student Body at Pensacola Junior College, it was a satisfying victory. Price worked hard circulating among the rooms trying to stir up support and interest. He wanted the office badly and got it on the second try.

For the man who held in the massive dorm's highest office for the longest stretch in its history, the vote was no disgrace. Jerry Spinks campaigned on an "everyone vote" ticket. And achieved what he asked for. They voted—he was out.

Both men deserve credit for stirring the passive political pot.

Price was well-pleased with the voter turnout.

"I think that the fact that as many guys turned out as did proves that they are interested in seeing that things are done right," Price said. "But we need the cooperation of everyone if we are going to have a good year."

The new governor outlined briefly a few of the projects he is interested in.

"I feel the executive council meetings should be open to the public. Of course, this will have to be approved by the council but I personally think they should be open."

"We are going to check into the constitution. I have the authority to appoint a committee to look into the constitution and the by-laws."

One of the issues Price is not committeed on is whether the dorms should be placed under student body statutes or not.

"I'm not fully informed about this yet. I'm inclined to say that it seems to me that we should come under the statutes to some degree. But I'm just not sure."

The fervor over previously alleged election frauds was paradoxically beneficial in that it made dorm officials aware that the residents were concerned with honesty in office.

No longer will counselors be able to play favorites with the rules to the benefit of their pets. Nor will counselors be living the dream that nothing no one cares what happens in the dorms.

When 407 people care enough to cast a ballot, under-the-table action on anyone's part is going to be difficult to hide.

The political situation has been muddled in the dorms for several years. All is not correct in the big houses, nor will correcting of old faults be an easy task.

But the overwhelming turnout for the Kellum Hall voting is the first clear-cut indication of a large mass of resident action in many years.

Perhaps the reawakening of voter interest heralds a new era in dorm government.

Waving Wrists And Placards

TO THE EDITORS

I have yet to see a demonstration on this campus against anything besides gator meat, a petrified yellow rose or a sledge hammered 1947 Studebaker. So if Mr. Sanchez bears of the limp wrist gang gathering to demonstrate against ROTC, would be kindly post when and where we are supposed to meet.

The desire to protect something that is at least capable of knowing that I am protesting a tremendous after years of trying to make myself understand by semaphores, you know the kinds of a prospective fallout, nor does he know how to contend with radiation as an evolutionary selective factor as well as an evolutionary affector. He has only limited data concerning the effects of chronic radiation upon evolution and extinction. If we must construct a situation, we can only attempt to predict the genetic consequences.

On Kellum Record

TO THE EDITOR:

An election was held at Kellum Hall Tuesday at which an unprecedented number of residents cast their ballots: 406 of the 576 men in residence voted, a whopping 70.5 per cent. This exceeded by almost 60 votes the previous record. This was due to the increased interest of the residents which was directly relevant to the interest expressed by the candidates, the Assistant Counselors, and the members of the election committee.

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate and to thank all involved for a job well done.

JOHN MERTING
Chairman of Election Committee

at the hands of the, Uncle Max, Beetle Bailey and Baby gang, only with my perusal of obscene literature that calcifies my pulmonaries at the mention of the SW-600 it cots to train green troops.

Now, thanks to Mr. Sanchez' brilliant analysis of the psychology behind my proposed demonstration, I can pick up my silly placard, wave my limp wrist, command peace and at last be understood.

MICHAEL GALLAGHER

He Was Honest!

TO THE EDITOR:

He was honest; but we all now that only fools are honest. And you fixed him fellow resident! You planted the knife square between his shoulder blades. You disposed of the individual who was given more to Kellum Hall than any other president in the dormitory's history. Right? Wrong! Jerry Spinks for all the time he spent making life in this dormitory more pleasant and you.

And so it should be with all who are conscientious—who attempt to improve conditions — who do a good job. You were right; all this type of individual is worthy of a your spit!

My sincere compliments for a job well done.

Ocean Offers Raw Products

The ocean just offshore probably is more productive, acre-for-acre, than the land nearby, in the opinion of a speaker at the First Coastal and Shallow Water Research Conference at Florida State University.

The conference, attended by 163 scientists from 20 states interested primarily in the Gulf of Mexico area, heard Dr. H. T. Odum, director of the Institute of Marine Science at the University of Texas, describe the methods used in a survey of the economic importance of bay waters in the Corpus Christi area.

Dr. Odum said researchers studied the productivity of the 230,000 acres of waters in these areas and found they had an annual production of $383 an acre—a lot more than some of the best farms.

Roughly half of this annual production was from industrial uses such as navigation, for waste disposal and for the use of the bay bottom in oil production, the scientist said. Approximately the other half results from the use of the bay waters for commercial fishing, recreational fishing and similar uses, he said.

Dr. D. S. Gorsline, acting director of the FSU Oceanographic Institute and conference chairman, said the two-day conference ending today was one of five being held over the country, sponsored by the National Science Foundation. One at Baltimore was for the Atlantic Coast area and one at Los Angeles for the West Coast.

Geologists, biologists, coastal engineers, oceanographers, geographers and meteorologists attended the meeting and the 50 speakers represented research installations in a dozen states and Japan, Finland, Denmark and Germany.

It is planned from FSU's Oceanographic Institute, Dr. R. W. Menzel told the group yesterday that experiments with clam culture on the Gulf 40 miles south of Tallahassee indicates the possibility of a gross income of $10,000 to $100,000 per acre in two years. The clam "mariculture." He said he and the term mariculture to refer to farming of the sea.

JOSHUA SPEED, THE KENTUCKIAN WHO WAS A BOSOM FRIEND OF LINCOLN, TAKES a leading part in poet Mark Van Doren's first play, "The Last Days of Lincoln," which had its premiere at Florida State University. Two relatives of the original Joshua Speed, both formerly Kentuckians but now residents of Tallahassee, were guests at Wednesday's performance. They are Mrs. Mare L. Wymond and her brother, William Speed, a retired engineer. The book they have here is a history of the Speed family.

creasingly serve merely as introductions and recruiting stations for particular disciplines, while those for juniors and seniors have largely been supplanted by departmental offerings. One reason for this is the intellectual teacher whose interests and methods do not assure his promotion by a regular department.

Since all these departments exist to train graduate as well as undergraduate students—and since none shares the view of certain Oxford dons that specialized knowledge has nothing to do with high culture and is not a fit subject for conversation—the so-called generalist rarely survives long in the race for tenure.

Perhaps the limited demand for university education is a covert piece of good fortune for educators, since the supply of university scholars is barely adequate for even the minority of students who want their services.

Our graduate schools turn out about 10,000 new Ph.D.s each year, but nearly half take nonteaching jobs with government, industry, or university research groups. Many of the remaining men do not think of themselves as potential astronomers, anthropologists, or literary critics, but simply as potential professors. After a few years of teaching they gradually stop following their professional journal, and give up their dreams of contributing to it. They tend to slip into comfortable jobs in colleges which send relatively few students to graduate school, and thus they soon lose contact with colleagues elsewhere.

Thirty years from now they will probably be distributing ideas they picked up in graduate school, and will have made little or no effort to formulate new approaches suitable to the new generation before them.

The failure of college students to gain a sense of the possibilities of life—to go beyond the hackneyed alternatives presented by our everyday culture—is never precisely recorded, either by official college accreditaiton reports or by statistical studies of college annual. . . .

Yet considering all the benefits which do come, occasionally, from higher education, we shall deceive and cheat ourselves badly if we do not confront the immense gap between the possible and the actual in college education today. For if the quality of life is to improve anything like as fast in the second half of this century as the quantity has grown in the first half, our colleges will have to become enthusiastic promoters of new ways of thought and new styles of life.

FSU Receives Ton Of Books

A ton of books and government reports on geology have been given to Florida State University geologist Dr. George W. DeVore by a University of Chicago professor who cleared out his library prior to retirement.

Dr. Walter H. Newhouse, professor of geology, and Dr. DeVore were associates at the University of Chicago where DeVore served on the faculty before coming to FSU in September, 1960, as associate professor. Dr. DeVore received the Ph.D. at the University of Chicago in 1952.

The 800 books arrived at FSU in 30 wooden boxes. They were taken to the Robert Strozier Library where they were added to the general collection. Any duplicates will either be put in the Geology Department student reading room or used for exchange with other libraries for books not in the FSU Library.

Speed Relatives See 'Last Days'

Two distant relatives of Joshua Speed, who have an important part in the Mark Van Doren play, Last Days of Lincoln, sat in the audience Wednesday at the eighth and final presentation of the new play in Florida State University's Contradi Theatre.

The play, a production of the Eddie Dowling Foundation using student and professional actors, now goes on the road with the following schedule: Tampa (University of South Florida), Oct. 27-28; Jacksonville (Jacksonville University) Oct. 31; Valdosta, Ga. (Valdosta High School), Nov. 1; Tallahassee (A. & M. University), Nov. 2; and Hollywood (Broward County High School), Nov. 3.

A leading character in the play by Pulitzer prize-winning poet Van Doren, is Joshua Speed, Lincoln's close friend from Kentucky. Lincoln reveals many of his thoughts to Speed, and therefore to the audience, and Speed interprets Lincoln to other characters in the play and also to the audience.

The part of Joshua Speed is played by James Clark, Broadway professional actor whose wife, Nora Dunfee, plays Mrs. Lincoln. The leading part of Lincoln is taken by Jim Campbell of New York. Other parts are played by student and local actors.

William Speed, a retired civil engineer who formerly was with the Florida Improvement Commission, and his sister, Mrs. L. Wymond, both of Tallahassee, are not lineal descendants of Joshua Speed but are descended from a commoo ancestor.

Their great great grandfather was the great grandfather of Joshua Speed, a business man who became acquainted with Lincoln early in life. Joshua's brother, James Speed, was attorney general in Lincoln's cabinet.

William Speed and his sister inherited land in Louisville and the Speeds of that state are related to John Speed, an expert map-maker and antiquary who lived from 1552 to 1629 in England. A copy of John Speed's The Historie of Great Britaine Under the Conquests of Ye Romans, Saxons, Dane and Normans, published in 1623, is owned by William Speed.

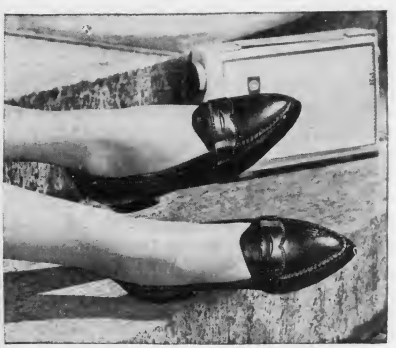
certificates to $25 million. The Board of Control was involved in the study which resulted in the recommendation.



It is not known yet what the extra money will be used for if the proposal goes through, however, Florida State University might possibly get a new student union, a men's dorm and a hospital sooner than was planned, according to President Gordon W. Blackwell.

Pugh To Speak

Dr. Griffith Pugh, English professor at Florida State University, will be the speaker at the English Coffee Hour this afternoon at 4 p.m. in Westminster House.

Dr. Pugh, who will speak on "Dialect and Dialogue" says that Joel Chandler Harris's stories of Uncle Remus represented the literal reproduction of dialect at its most pronounced point, but the publishers' attitude today has changed literary styles and there is no contemporary of Harris.

The literal representation of dialect grew out of the efforts of American writers toward realism and reached a height among the local colorists, said Dr. Pugh. Now, however, writers only lightly suggest dialect, he says.

'Vanishing Lakes' Under Stiff Study

One of Florida's "disappearing lakes" has been the subject of intensive study by a retired general in the Air Force who received a master's degree in geology in June from Florida State University.

Thayer Olds of Santa Rosa Beach has carefully studied the "water budget of 160-acre Lake Bradford on FSU's reservation from 1957 to the present.

SINK HOLES

His estimates of the amount of water reaching the lake and the amount lost from runoff and evaporation clearly indicate a considerable drain through sink holes to the Floridan aquifer (water-bearing stratum) below.

Sinkholes of the sort, which may be opened or closed by debris on the lake bottom, have resulted in the "disappearance" during prolonged dry periods of numerous lakes in the Florida highlands between the Ochlocknee River and Hernando and Pasco counties.

Several such lakes are near Tallahassee and the most celebrated in in Florida is the eight-mile long basin near Gainesville which was called Alachua Savannah at the time William Bartram visited it in the late 18th century, later it was called Alachua Lake; and now is known as Payne's Prairie.

DISAPPEARING ACT

For about 20 years prior to 1891 it was said to have been a lake and small steamboats plied its waters. Then it pulled the most famous of several disappearing acts which have occurred within historical times.

On a small scale Lake Bradford has done the same thing, falling several feet in 1954 to leave FSU's swimming dock a quarter of a mile from the water. A large sinkhole was stopped on March 1954, but Olds' studies have shown there are still others draining at a considerable amount of water.

Olds began his studies of ground water hydrology here after a career of nearly 30 years in military service. A native of Ohio, he attended the U.S. Military Academy in the Twenties, graduating in 1928 and afterward taking flight training at Books and Kelly fields in Texas.

In World War II his service took him to England, North Africa and the Pacific and among his commands was the 14th Fighter Group in North Africa. His last command before retirement was the 26th Air Division, with headquarters at Roslyn, Long Island, and he retired as a brigadier general.

LAKE BRADFORD

The disappearance of Lake Bradford in 1954 worried FSU and the Florida Geological Survey and U.S. Geological Survey were called on for help. H. G. Stewart of the U.S. Survey's Ground Water Branch began a study of the lake level in relation to ground water levels nearby and Olds continued it with the cooperation of the state and federal agencies.

Working under the head of FSU's Department of Geology, Dr. B. F. Buie, Olds measured the lake level and nearby ground water level weekly. Plentiful rainfall has kept the lake filled for some time but Olds estimated that if not resupplied with water the level would fall five inches a month as rainfall flowed down into the Floridan aquifer 60 feet below the normal level of the lake.

Olds' wife also has been a student here. She obtained her bachelor's degree in anthropology in June, 1960, and expects to get a master's degree this winter. Her master's thesis reviewed the history and archaeology of St. Mark's Fort.

Brahms Played

The Second Symphony by Brahms and a suite from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera, The Golden Cockerel will be performed in the first concert of the season by the University Symphony Friday night.

The 75 piece orchestra, with Robert Sedore conducting, will appear in Westcott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. The concert is free and open to the public.

The Brahms Second Symphony in four movements is thought by many to be the most expressive of his major works in this medium. Its four movements reflect a particularly happy period in Brahms' life.

WRITTEN IN 1907

The opera, The Golden Cockerel, was written by Rimsky-Korsakoff in 1907 and was the last of his compositions. He was considered one of the masters of orchestration and his instrumentation in this work makes lavish use of the colorful wind instruments of the orchestra.

The music with its oriental flavor depicts the magic Golden Cockerel who has the power to warn King Dodon and his court of impending danger.

THIS DISTINGUISHED WAITER AT THE KAPPA SIGMA DINNER is none other than Florida State University President Gordon W. Blackwell, who was purchased at the Faculty Slave Auction by the Kappa Sig's.

Profs Had To Slave

Florida State University's first "Faculty Auction," held last week in front of Wescott, was a financial success.

Publicity Chairman Lowell Horton reported that with some 22 deans and professors, including Pres. Gordon Blackwell, participating, $522.00 was earned for Campus Chest.

Sponsored by Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity and Kappa Delta Sorority, the auction drew more than 300 students to participate in the bidding.

In return for being purchased, the faculty members performed certain duties during their period of "enslavement."

Such duties included serving meals in sorority and fraternity houses, carrying students trays in campus cafeteria at mealtime, treating a purchaser and date to dinner, participating in sorority and fraternity pledge work parties, shining shoes, and giving lectures.

President Blackwell, auctioned off to the Kappa Sigma fraternity, served dinner at the Kappa Sigma house that evening as part of his "slave" duties.

Those faculty members who so willingly participated in the charity event were as follows:

'Bombs Near', Prophets Warn

By LESLIE POWELL

Since the Enola Gay dropped the lethal fledgling atomic bomb on Hiroshima in 1945, the world has lived with haunting fear that it could happen again with more devastating results.

Novelist John Hersey (The Wall; A Single Pebble; The War Lovers) used the demolished Japanese city for what may be the first book really centered around the Atomic bomb so far as the reading American public is concerned. Hiroshima recounts a searing day in the lives of a handful of survivors of the great fiat that fell from the belly of the Enola Gay.

Pat Frank, widely known for his Mr. Adam, the story of the last man on earth capable of fatherhood, switched his view of the bomb from the comic to the terror of the fight to live by survivors in Alas, Babylon. This novel is set in Florida, and among other things, has Tallahassee being evacuated to escape the fallout drifting in from bombed out major cities.

Author Philip Wylie (Generation of Vipers; The Disappearance) calls his novel about the bomb falling on American soil Tomorrow! This one is set in the midwest and gets graphic in its description of victims of panic following the blast, as well as victims of the blast itself. A major theme in Tomorrow! is that of the creation of a metropolitan population which has never before faced war on its neat suburban lawns.

While novelists Hersey, Frank and Wylie are content with limited areas of bomb destruction, writer Nevil Shute (No Highway In The Sky: Trustee From the Toolroom) has the after effects of the Third World War wiping out the entire population of the earth in his On The Beach.

Some of the foregoing novels are calculated to scare the daylights out of you, and some of them intend to make you stop and think. All of them are currently available in paper back editions at near-campus locations. Prices range from $.35 to $.95.

Other books available now on softcover stands at prices students can afford are Advise and Consent (Drury) which is an eyewitness-man's view of the inner workings of Washington political burlesque; Rebellion In a Golden Eye (McCullers), which boasts a minimum of characters who interact upon each other in a manner that brings murder leisurely to the fore; George Orwell's Animal Farm, which is possibly the most telling satire ever directed against twentieth century despots; and Truman Capote's Breakfast at Tiffanys which it is to be hoped is as delightful as his The Grass Harp.

Other titles now on the stands: Brave New World Revisited; Atlas Shrugged; The Fountainhead; Exodus; The Day on Fire; The Last of the Just. And if you want a book guaranteed to leave you angry, try The Inhabitants, available downtown on newsstands.

In Intramural Action

Swimming Ends Tennis To Begin

By SHIRLEY HARDISON
Flambeau Sports Writer

The finals of the swimming intramurals are over; tennis courts feature the action for the next few days as the men's intramurals take a full size swing into action while the girls continue competition in bowling, volleyball and tennis.

Basketball and swimming are completed but the intramural office will be kept busy with more of tennis and fraternity basketball.

The tennis singles and doubles will begin Friday afternoon and continue through Sunday afternoon. They will be played on the courts behind the Women Gym and the courts close to the Men's gym. All seven of the fraternities have scored teams in the competition beginning tomorrow, showing more interest in intramurals than ever before.

In the swimming finals held Tuesday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, Kappa Alpha was the returnee to the winners' circle from last year. Phi Delta Theta came in second, just as they did last year, while the Majority Club rose to the occasion and bring the title after coming in second last year.

In the dorm - independent league the Majors topped Kellum by only three points, 69-66, with the Foundation Scholarship Organization coming in last with 36.

Fraternities had close competition between the top three teams. Kappa Alpha, Phi Delta Theta and Theta Chi. Kappa Alpha won the meet with 41 points while Phi Delta Theta and Theta Chi tied for second with 39 points.

Steve Edington served as the meet referee while varsity swimmers and the faculty of the Physical Education Dept. were the timers and scorekeeping.

Tribe Shooting For Third Win

Seminoles Seek Win Over Virginia Tech

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

The Florida State Seminoles will clash in Miles Stadium with the Virginia Tech Cobblers Saturday afternoon in Blacksburg, Virginia.

In 1959, the last time the teams met, the Seminoles defeated the Techmen and foiled their homecoming celebration. The Seminoles will be out to claim their third consecutive win of the season and once again spoil the Cobblers' homecoming.

In previous games the Tallahasseans have a 2-2 lead over the Techmen. Winning the '59 game on a touchdown pass by Roy Bickford, the Florida State crew was able to nip the Cobblers 7-6.

The Tech team boasts a 2-2 record. The Cobblers were victorious in their opening game with William and Mary 20-6. The Techmen dropped their next two games to West Virginia 25-0 and Tulane 27-14. Last Saturday the Virginians surpressed their state rival Virginia with a 20-0 victory.

The Seminoles have scored less than seven points a game. They have their best first-half season record in a decade, against possibly the toughest Tribe opponents in the opening game of the season, the Tribe defeated Georgia Washington 75-7. The Seminoles then tied the University of Florida 3-3 on a field goal by John Harllee and several goal line stands by the Renegades.

Facing Mississippi, the number two team in the nation at the time, the Tribe fell victim to the mighty Rebels 33-0. Cropping their second Southeastern Conference in the history of FSU, the Seminoles defeated Georgia 3-0. The University of Richmond fell to Florida State 12-7 after throwing a scare into the Tribe.

"We couldn't get the ball in the right position," Coach Bill Peterson said about the FSU-Richmond tilt. "Our kicking game wasn't up to par."

"They (the Seminoles) came back in the fourth quarter and marched 88 yards for a touchdown. This shows real determination."

Peterson expressed concern over the Virginia physical conditions. The FSU head coach is afraid it will affect his team's performance.

"The air is thinner up there and it makes it hard to breathe."

This is the key game. It's a must," Peterson said simply. "They have a head of steam up because they beat Virginia, a state rival.

"They don't make mistakes."

Tech hasn't been dazzling opponents, but Warren Price runs and throwing on the quarterback sprint-out, the Gobblers have improved steadily, and with several new offensive wrinkles have become a dangerous club. Incidentally, Price is from Miami, Fla.

Another senior, Terry Strock, is a deceptive runner with good speed. Last Saturday against the Cavaliers, Strock returned a kickoff 98 yards for a touchdown. Terry is a good punter. Last season he was the second leading punter in the Southern Conference.

"They have a good kicking game," Peterson commented about the opposition.

The heftier Seminoles will be sporting a slight weight advantage in the line—averaging 210 lbs.-per-man to 207 in the line. FSU backs average 184 lbs. in the backfield to 174 lbs. for the Gobblers.

Feely, Kinderman Lead FSU Gainers

Now that five games have passed in the 1961 Seminole football season, halfback Ken Kinderman leads the FSU rushing with 333 yards, an average of 4.8 yards per carry.

In second place is quarterback Ed Feely with 296 yards, an average of 3.6 yards per carry. Feely is also the leading passer for the Seminoles with a total of 193 yards for 36 attempts and 21 completions.

At the pass-receiving end of the Seminoles, the credit goes to Jim Daniels who has caught 7 passes for 81 yards, an average of 11.6 yards.

Roy Bickford leads the team in pass interception with three for a total of 28 yards and an average of 9.3 yards.

In punting all the credit goes to Charlie Calhoun with 35 punts for a tital of 1,150 yards and a punting average of 32.9 yards. Along with punting, Roy Bickford is leading the Seminoles in Punt returns with one for 31.0 yards.

Paul Andrews leads the team in kickoff returns with two for 47 yards, an average of 23.5 per carry.

Ed Feely is the leading scorer for FSU with two touchdowns and 12 points.

Florida State is suffering a losing season statistically, though their record shows a winning season.

Gymkana Troupe Honors Florida This Week In 14th Annual Show

'Florikana' Production Includes Athletes, Dancers, Beauty Queens

By MARTHA ROBERTS
Flambeau Feature Writer

After traveling to the four corners of the globe and even out of this world in past productions, this year Gymkana honors Florida in its 14 annual presentation.

"Florikana" will begin tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Tully Gymnasium and will run through Saturday.

A special price of $.50 per person is set for tomorrow's performance. Thursday through Saturday admission will be $1 for adults and $.75 for students and children. Tickets are available at the athletic ticket office and at a booth at the Student Center or at the door. Seating is on a general admission. "first come, first served" basis.

GYMKANA INTRODUCED

Gymkana was introduced to Florida State University by Dr. Hartley Price, currently serving as a Fulbright visiting lecturer at the National University of Columbia in Bogota. The 1961 program is dedicated to Dr. Price, who has coached 11 national champion gymnastic teams.

An added attraction of this gymnastics show will be the procession of 23 beauties constituting the Gymkana Court, On Saturday night, Linda Walton will relinquish her title as the new Miss Gymkana is crowned.

Selection of the Queen and six princesses will be based on beauty, charm, poise, personality and contributions to the show, such as painting and making scenery, according to Joe Gusic, who is directing the show this year in the absence of Dr. Price, cooperated with the latter into the show are of major importance in the final selection.

FLORIDA ATTRACTION

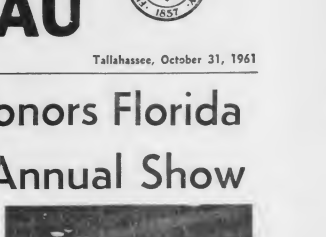
Each of the acts in the production has the name of a noted Floridian.

The parade of beauties, for instance, will be called "Miami Beach" and a high bar act following it will be called "Gasparilla." "State Capitol" will be the title of an acrobatic adagio and the "State Universities" will be honored with a parallel bar act.

One of the most spectacular acts, performed by Gary Kidwell and Mitch Weinrock atop a high stack of chairs, is appropriately named "Cape Canaveral."

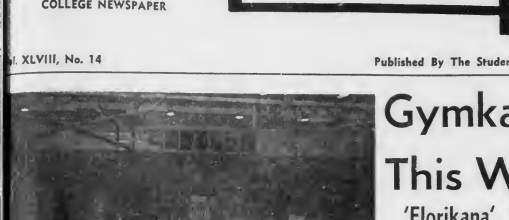
THIS VERTICAL, AREAL handstand is one of the many feats which will be performed in the "Florikana" show.

Other acts featured are entitled "Ringling Museum," "Florida Keys," "Florida Cowboy," "St. Augustine," "Sarasota Circus," and "Seminole Village."



Several former FSU students who are expert gymnasts and have participated in past Gymkana shows will be guest performers. They include Rafael Lecuona, Bill Beavers, Jim Fadigan and Joe Taylor.

TUMBLING TOTS



Several acts will also be performed by the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots under the direction of Bob May.

As pointed out by Gusic, Florikana will be of great interest not only to Floridians, but especially to out-of-state students, who will hear of Florida's noted attractions, both historical and entertaining. Sam McCall wrote the script for the show. Gusic and McCall will alternate as masters of ceremonies.

Gusic further added that the nucleus of the Gymkana show is FSU's competitive gymnastics team. The show serves as a training device in preparing the gymnasts for later meets. Since the intercollegiate team is dropped, the gymnastics team has been rebuilding under the Physical Education Dept. and will be supplemented by funds from the Gymkana production.

ONE OF THE MEMBERS OF THE GYMKANA TROUPE demonstrates the muscular control which will enable him to do the various routines which will appear in tomorrow night's show.

TEAM OF DANCERS REHEARSES ONE OF THE DANCES THEY WILL DO IN THE "FLORIda" Show. The dancers add feminine grace to the pageant of physical co-ordination.

In the varsity division, FSU's affirmative team Linda Dee and Marilyn Young placed third. Overall the varsity teams finished fourth and seventh in competition against 17 teams.

BETTER RECORDS

Richard Hahn, head debate coach, was very pleased with the debate team's first tournament of the year. However he is expecting even better records as future tournaments.

Hahn is used to coaching a winning team. Last year, for example, FSU attended 9 intercollegiate tournaments, traveling a total distance of 7,250 miles and recording 85 wins against 63 losses. Its teams debated 71 different schools, including schools as far away as the University of Utah, University of Rhode Island and Yeshiva University of New York, and attended tournaments as far away as the Tau Kappa Alpha National Tournament in Louisville, Ky.

Last year's awards included 2 trophies, 8 first place medals, and 7 certificates of merit.

The awards won in the tournament last week-end are on display in the Debate bulletin in the History Bldg. Already FSU students have won one trophy, and seven certificates of award.

Coffin Nails Cause Campus Fires Here

Carelessness of two cigarette smokers could have caused severe damage at Florida State University Friday, but quick action by several University cecds stamped out the two fires, one fire was in Magnolia Hall and the other near Building "A."

The first fire, which brought four fire engines to the campus, occurred at about 10 a.m. Friday in a room in Magnolia Hall. A coed in a hurry on the way to class left a live cigarette in an ash tray. The cigarette fell off, igniting the paper in the plastic wastebasket by the desk.

FIRE DISCOVERED

Smoke coming from under the door caused the fire to be discovered by a maid who left the door open while she went to get the house manager. Two students from neighboring rooms, Sandi Roulerson and Janet Billman began dousing the flames with water and smothering them with large bath towels.

By the time the fire trucks had arrived the women had extinguished the blaze, although the hall was still smoke-filled.

The wastebasket was melted by the heat, several pieces of clothing on the back of a chair were destroyed, the chair back burned and the sole of a dresser scorched by the blaze. The student who left the burning cigarette will have to pay for the damages, said Mrs. Ruth Keene, Magnolia Hall social director.

Had it been necessary to evacuate the building, ringing the fire alarm would have been ineffectual since the alarm is normally tested everyday at 10 a.m., which was approximately the time at which the fire was discovered.

SECOND FIRE

The second fire occurred at nearly the same time, in front of Building "A." An unidentified person tossed a lighted cigarette from the porch into a pile of dry pine needles. A small blaze started, igniting a wooden screen frame which was learning against the wooden porch railing of the building.

An exchange student from the University of Massachusetts, Laura Goltmso, stamped out the blaze before it could reach the railing.

The Fire Dept. was not called for this fire.

Earlier this month a fire was started in the East Landis trash chute by a lighted cigarette.

According to Safety Coordinator W. H. Watsob from 400 to 500 small fires are extinguished each year by persons on campus.

Traveling Music Men To Talk To Students

Two members of the music faculty at Florida State University who spent the summer abroad will speak to music students at 3 p.m. today in Opperman Music Hall.

Harry Schmick, who taught music in Indonesia and Taiwan during the summer under the International Educational Exchange program, will present a "Report from Asia." Dr. Wiley Housewright, who spent the summer in Europe, will speak on "Europe and Music, 1961."

In June Dr. Housewright spoke before a meeting of the International Society for Music Education, which took place in Vienna. The topic of his address was "Choral Music." Goals and Processes." The meeting was sponsored by UNESCO and the Austrian State Government.

Dr. Housewright attended a number of operas during the last two weeks of the Vienna Festival, beard the USSR Orchestra from Moscow, and saw Aida, in Rome. He also heard various musical performances in Bayreith, Berlin, Spain, Morocco, Greece, Turkey, and Yugoslavia.

Schmick was in Asia from August, 1960 to June, 1961 on leave of absence from FSU. While in Djakarta, Indonesia he taught and performed with the Radio Indonesian Symphony and did workshops and clinics in Jojakarta and Bali. In the spring he worked in Taipei with the Political Staff School, the Chinese Youth Symphony, the Taiwan Normal University music school, and the Provincial Symphony.

Recital Held Here Friday

A composition for quartet by the late Ernst von Dohnanyi will be performed for the first time on the Florida State University campus by the Faculty String Quartet Friday.

The recital will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall and the public is invited.

The Quartet has been performing on the campus since 1950. In addition to "Dohnanyi Quartet" in D Flat major, Opus 15, they will play "Late Swallows," a composition by Frank Delius and "Haydn Quartet" Opus 77, No. 1 in G major.

Kellum Cops World Room Stuffing Title

MORE THAN 16 TONS OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY MEN WERE STUFFED INTO THIS two-man room at Kellum Hall Sunday night. These "stuffers" shown above helped break the previous world record of 141 men in a three-man room when 215 of them got into a two-man room.

By HOWARD DENSON
Flambeau Staff Writer

Kellum Hall copped the world's room-stuffing title Sunday night, shattering the mark recently set by Kent State University of Ohio.

Exactly 215 students stuffed themselves into room 816, which is normally occupied by only Bengi Lebow and Pete Podres.

16 TONS OF MAN

The stuffers calculated that if each member of the 215-man team weighed an average of 150 lbs, the total weight of the men in the room was 32,315 or 16 tons. The stuffers were recruited from both Smith and Kellum Halls.

"We could possibly have gotten 300 in there," boasted one stuffer

Kent State set the old mark by cramming in mere 141 students in a dorm room.

"What's more," said a stuffer, "they used a three-man room."

"Yeah," agreed a cohort, "ours was only a two-man"

Social Critic Talks Tomorrow At 8:15

Vance Packard, whose book The Waste Makers has joined his two other recent books of social criticism on the best seller lists, will speak at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow in Westcott Auritorium.

Packard will deliver the fourth Beth Walton Moor lecture at Florida State University. His lecture on "The Changing Character of the American People" will open this year's University Series.

The Packard lecture is free, and open to the public.

Dr. Lewis Killian, professor of sociology, will introduce the speaker.

WRITES FOR MAGAZINES

Packard is the author of a large number of articles for newspapers and national magazines and is a university lecturer on magazine writings. He has written articles for national magazines on education, science, national problems, travel, entertainment, parent-child relations, food and dieting, and family problems.

He has also written inspirational pieces, articles for children, and a considerable number of articles under the general heading "insight into self."

His books are of varying kinds, from the unique and authoritative book "How to Pick a Mate" to Animal I. Q., a humorous book to his most recent best seller, The Waste Makers. In the latter Packard says that American society is suffering from what he calls "consumerism."

INCREASE IN CAPACITY

The enormous increase in productive capacity is fast outranging the market, and strategies are developed to make the American people discard products before they have lived out their usefulness. This results in a "philosophy of waste," he maintains.

Motivational research, the study of why advertisements appeal to the public, has been the subject of much investigation by Packard. When the results of these investigations are applied to advertising, they work on the prospective consumer's subconscious and are called "hidden persuaders."

In the conclusion of Packard's book The Hidden Persuaders he states, "The most serious offense is that they try to invade the privacy of our minds. It is this privacy in our minds—privacy to be either rational or irrational —that I believe we must strive to protect.

CLASS SYSTEM

The Status Seekers, another of Packard's best sellers, argues that supposedly classless America is actually headed toward a rigid class system.

Packard attended Pennsylvania State College where he majored in English and contributed to the literary magazine, was on the college newspaper staff, was co-editor of the Summer Collegian, and was also a member of the cross-country team. A scholarship to the Graduate School of Journalism, Columbia University, enabled him to study for his master's degree, which was conferred in 1937.

Packard will arrive by plane at 4:24 p.m. tomorrow. He will be the guest of Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell, FSU president, at a dinner preceding his address. He will leave by plane at 9:20 a.m. Thursday.

Flambeau Editorials

FLAMBEAU editorials do not necessarily reflect the opinion of the student body as a whole or the administration of Florida State University. Editorials represent only the opinions of staff members and the initials of the writer follows the editorial.

Proposal Deserves Thought

Men's Vice President Carl Kuttler is carrying his fight for the Harvard testing system to the faculty with some interesting results.

Some of the professors conferring with him on the proposal were quite receptive, some hesitant, and some diametrically opposed to the idea.

The proponents of the measure agree with Kuttler that the placing of tests in a file which would be open to all students is a part—often a vital part—of the learning process. They do not look upon the filing of these tests as an unnecessary burden being imposed upon the faculty by the students, but rather as one of the obligations of a teacher to give a student every possible aid to learning the material embodied within the course.

THEY ALSO LOOK upon this file as a duty of the instructor to provide equal opportunity to every student enrolled in his course by not regiving tests which are safely lodged in a few houses around campus.

The position of the hesitants is understandable. This is a new concept for Florida State University and it is not one to be adopted without thorough study. There quite conceivably are holes in the proposal which a thorough study by faculty and administration may turn up and remedies may be prescribed.

But this does not mean that the system should be killed by study. There is a certain point beyond which further debate is futile. At this point action must be taken. We personally would encourage the hesitants not to committee the proposition for fear of strangulation by verbage.

Opponents offer half-hearted arguments. One faculty member contends that tests do not get out. Another contends that this is undue regimentation of the faculty and that the students are out of their place. Both of these are sick arguments.

IN THE FIRST PLACE, tests, both of the old and the new variety, get out. If the individual professor is not aware of this fact, at least half of his class does know it. Assuming the ostrich-position and ignoring the leakage does not stop the drip.

As for regimentation of the faculty, few students would feel there was much chance of regimenting the faculty as delightful a possibility as this might be. On the other hand, faculty members regiment the students every day with the stated intention of teaching them to "think." Possibly the lesson was taught too well, for here is an instance where a student is thinking. And these thoughts have devised a plan to remedy an unhealthy situation.

If faculty members expect their lectures to be effective and the students to answer their call to "think," the professors must give careful heed to the fruits of these thoughts.

In the main, the proposal is a good one and deserves the careful examination of professors who are genuinely interested in judging its merits. Nothing can be accomplished with faculty members who feel any original student thought or criticism is an infringement upon their position.

BCS

Instructors Are Not Doctors

The medical doctors attached to the University Infirmary have spent years in training and most of them have undoubtedly been practicing physicians for extended periods of time. Therefore, we wonder why various instructors do not feel inclined to honor reasonable requests to allow occasional students to refrain from participating in some courses which might not, in the opinion of a medical doctor, necessarily be beneficial to a student's health.

WE DON'T THINK the physicians at the infirmary are going to request wholesale excused absences. We don't think they will advise an excused absence from, say, a physical education class, unless there is good reason to excuse a student.

It is unreasonable for an instructor to refuse to honor an excused absence request without first checking with the appropriate doctor at the infirmary. Two minutes of phone time is not an exorbitant price to pay for making sure that a student does need to be sidelined for a class or two.

IT WOULD SEEM better to check on excused absence requests than to run the risk of bringing on grave consequences should a student be forced to take part in activities that undermine all that the infirmary doctors might be trying to correct or alleviate.

If a star athlete sprained his finger, beadlines would result on sports pages all over the state. Other students suffering from sprains or other ailments that do not necessarily force them to bed for treatment, are entitled to a certain amount of indulgence where medical attention is concerned.

We don't think that to be an instructor automatically one, professor or assistant, to dispute the opinions of the medical doctors. Good physicians are hard to find. Ours deserve more respect—particularly when the opinion they offer is based on knowledge and training not geared to a grade book.

Let's Get Serious

That Certain Parallel Of Honesty

By ROBERT SANCHEZ

A few students may recall the story of "The Emperor's New Clothes." In this tale, a wily tailor convinces everyone that the robes he has made for the Emperor are so fine and so perfect that only the pure-in-heart can see them. Thus it came about that everyone spoke admiringly of the non-existent clothing until a small boy finally blurted out the obvious truth that the parading monarch was naked.

THERE IS A CERTAIN parallel here at FSU in the absence of criticism of the recent theatrical failure, "The Last Days of Lincoln." Perhaps the restraint was caused by a sincere desire to see perpetuation and expansion of the Theater Foundation idea.

Certainly the idea deserves our support, but it is no excuse for intellectual dishonesty. Perhaps the absence of criticism is an indication of the awe with which Dr. Van Doren was received. No doubt he is a charming and affable person, but the degree to which some members of the faculty and student body were fawning over him like screaming teenaged girls around a bobby-sox idol is an indication of how rare it is that a "name" in the academic world descends upon our campus for a prolonged stay. Thus, normally discerning people were either hypnotized by the good professor's personality or paralyzed by the haunting fear that if they spoke out they might spoil an enjoyable dream. In any event, the absence of criticism was certainly not caused by the fact that there was nothing to criticize.

The play "The Last Days of Lincoln" was remarkable in only one respect. It was amazing that the actors could have remained so stationary and unanimated in the face of such a windstorm. Although there were a few good lines, scattered here and there—evidences of Van Doren the poet —they were either drowned in a sea of words or murdered in cold blood by the actors.

JAMES CAMPBELL, in the lead role of Lincoln, showed commendable courage—or perhaps the word is nerve—in appearing in a role for which he was ill prepared by rehearsal. By the end of the last act in which he appeared, he was obviously yearning for the security of a script and microphone from his days on "Portia Faces Life." The other performances may generously be described as mixed, although the characterization of Duff Green would have been sufficiently atrocious to ruin the entire play had there been anything left to ruin. But the play never got off the ground. As theater, it was an utter flop.

Now does this mean that the last event is finished? Not necessarily. If, instead of considering the play as a presentation of a finished product, we consider it a trial run, an experiment, an invitation for audience response, then there is hope. In spite of its amateurish treatment, the play showed flashes of insight into Lincoln's character. For a few brief moments, Lincoln seemed alive—a kindly, troubled man rather than a plaster saint. The play still needs a great deal of revision, to say the least. But it can reach its ultimate potential as a great tragedy in the Greek tradition. It will never appear, however, if the author on whom it is being tried blinds itself to the play's faults and engages in an orgy of undeserved praise.

United States Has No Divine Sanction

A prominent minister several days ago warned against invoking the name of God as a cure-all, quick remedy to Communism. His thinking is clear—unhampered by a false faith that leads to cowering in the corner with head bowed and Bible clutched rather than taking positive action.

The Rev. John C. Bennett, dean of the faculty at Union Theological Seminary in New York City told a vast assembly of Christians at the Catholic Association for International Peace assembly, that it was "covert idolatry" to assume that God is always on the West's side in the cold war.

"Speaking further," Bennett said that "The fact that the United States is a status quo nation, fearful of radical change and influenced by a large body of opinion that is still committed to an uncritical capitalistic ideology is one of the greatest obstacles to the success of the Free World in upholding its own against communism."

"The utterly self-defeating character of the intransigeant forms of conservative anticommunism in this country is amazing to contemplate."

With these words the Protestant minister hit upon vulnerable nerves in this nation's quest to preserve its system.

* * * * *

The United States from its beginning has been composed of a people with deep religious concerns. The great overwhelming majority of its citizens profess some religious faith and the country has emphasized moral righteousness and altruism from its birth. The United States has even gone so far as to adopt a religious motto and to attempt to make faith in God and faith in country go hand in hand.

As a result we have too often patted ourselves on the back for our godliness and made the brash assumption that the almighty somehow prefers us to the other peoples of this world. It is a brash and dangerous thought that assumes that a divine being patronizes our sector of the globe at the expense of another.

* * * * *

The very nature of our conception of a divine being precludes His preference for one nationality, creed, race, or ethnic group at the expense of another.

* * * * *

But still we persist in viewing God as a private possession who has wrath for everyone save us. Such misplaced faith blinds us to action which must be taken.

We can not remain blind in this time of stress, Dr. Bennett is reminding us. We cannot fear to criticize American institutions if they are to remain strong and healthy. The fear of an outward force should not back us into the corner so that we are constantly defending without bothering to investigate the state of that which we are defending.

We can not rest on our laurels of material wealth while our people and others go starving, uneducated, poverty stricken, and cast out. We can not stand proud of our Christianity while Americans hate other Americans and would do them harm at every turn. We can not rely on God to do what we are not willing to do ourselves.

* * * * *

We can not stand fearful of change if change is necessary. Nor can we hide behind a cloak of "the lord didn't mean it to be that way" when scientific developments are advanced. We must change, for status quo does not actually exist, and if we do not change for progress, we will change into stagnation.

Rev. Bennett made his statements eloquently, but his meaning was the same as the country judge which proclaims "the lord helps them that helps themselves."

With the rubbish in America's back yard, which has long gone unleashed, this country has no reason to delude itself into claiming divine sanction.

The following Ten Commandments are not without merit. But, being somewhat accustomed to the ways of the academic world and the temptations thereof, none should be surprised if this second set of commandments are not broken as badly as the original ten.

I. Honor thy students, that thy days may be prolonged upon this campus, which the Lord thy Governor giveth thee.

II. Force not thy student into thine own image. He is not thy disciple, neither is he thy parrot.

III. Read not from the textbook overmuch. Hast not thy student eyes?

IV. Nor shall they give great honor to thine own degree, which is, in truth, but old paper.

V. Seek out thy student after class, upon his own soil. There can be he taught. There may ye also learn.

VI. Thou shalt not spring pop quizzes.

VII. Beware the graduating seniors. He hath need of thee, and thy most high grade.

VIII. Beware the brown-nose. But also, pity him, that he should ever thy grade—meaningless thing—beyond thy knowledge.

IX. For thy grade is no more important than thy opinion and thou are not the Pope. Nor art thou IBM

X. Respect thy student, and trust in him, for he is more than a thing to be filled with fact. In this way alone shall he also learn to trust thee. For there is a world beyond thy class, outside thy book. Condemn not thy student for parties, when thou hast a paper due. He may have learned more things than thou hast dreamed. Remember the days of thy youth.

To Win Is Conceivable

TO THE EDITOR:

Re Ed Johnson's letter concerning the fact Kellum Hall presidential election:

Neither was a knife planted between the shoulder blades of Jerry Spinks, nor is he to be considered an object of our spit. Jerry served the men of Kellum last year as president of the dorm. He was defeated in his re-election bid for the 61-62 year.

It is inconceivable that he or his supporters could enter an election without the realization that defeat is a possible consequence

It is also evident, I would think, that the unprecedented 70.5 per cent vote clearly showed the choice of the 406 voters. Mr. Floyd Price beat Spinks by a surprisingly large margin considering his relatively new association with Florida State University.

Rather than degrade the voting conscience of the majority of his fellow residents just because their presidential choice differed from his, it would seem that Mr. Johnson could better serve his dorm by supporting the new administration and by helping to make it a successful one.

If this isn't acceptable to Mr. Johnson we suggest that he at least try to accept defeat humbly, and not belittle the intelligence of the rest of the men of Kellum Hall.

TO THE EDITOR:

HUZZAH for the Music School and the Phi Mu Alpha, Music Honorary!

Sunday afternoon, four Bb Clarinetists and the Brass Choir directed by William F. Cramer emerged from the murk of mist that envelops this campus and delivered a concert par excellence in Longmire Lounge. Forty-five minutes of hot coffee, exquisite comfort, and "living stereo" beautifully performed.

One more cheer for the musicians; more Coffee Concerts, please; and who said the Music School couldn't produce good horn players?

Poison Letter From A Clam

By LESSLIE POWERS

EDITOR'S NOTE: The letter reprinted herein was too sad to die. It is reprinted just as we received it.

Since the Flambeau isn't allowed to print unsigned letters, it sometimes is necessary to find a way to get around the rule because we get some beauties. Witness the following lovely bit of correspondence:

"DEAR EDITOR: My name is Tinkie. I read the Flambeau. Last week's edition was up to the usual standards of the Flambeau. I would like to congratulate Leslie Powers. He has shown that even college people can be stupid. "English Profs no threat to Jack Paar," should be corrected to read, "Leslie Powers no threat to Idiot." Lessie Powers' acid pen would turn litmus blue.

I am eight years old. I understand the Flambeau. I understand it to be verbal slang. The Flambeau is a mouthpiece for adolescents and would-be David Lawrences. Its articles on Berlin, the US Army and English Profs show that the staff has the political, social and cultural acumen of my clam Tinkie, whom I just found.

The Flambeau should be made up of two things Ben Sharp's column and the advertisements. These are the only things that show any degree of intelligence.

I have already found toilet paper named Flambeau. Next week I am going to look for a newspapper named Flambeau. Affectionately, Tinkie."

For myself, I only say gee, Tinkie, I'm glad you found yourself. Now you can keep you warm on these clammy nights.

And it is more flattering than obviously intended to note that our clam friend with IQ split personality actually went to the trouble to erase my name here and there in order to misspell it properly. And what do your parents (should you be so lucky) think of your having David Lawrence and you only an adolescent eight-year-old?

Candle In The Wind

Guest Column

By E. J. ROSCH

EDITORS NOTE: Mr. Rosch's view of the biological aftermath of an atomic war is continued from the Friday issue of the Flambeau. Today's column concludes the article.

Since it Is the Occident with which we are primarily interested, the exploration should be confined to the limits of technological civilization. Though there may exist motives, there is no empirical basis for extrapolating any localized conflict to include world-wide genetic consequences. It is, however, a personal attitude of the author that a thermonuclear war would have to exceed the above proposed proportions (previously discussed) by two or three orders of magnitude to define the failure of our species as an evolutionary participant. Future data alone will disprove the validity of this attitude.

IT IS WELL KNOWN that ionizing radiation produces mutations in the germ plasm; changes which are passed from one generation to the next, and which cause developmental and functional differences in these subsequent generations. We also know that there exists no threshold level of dose, or, stated differently, that the frequency of induced gene mutation is proportional to dose. Therefore, the greater the dose, the higher will be the mutation frequency.

About 30 r per generation (25 years) would double the mutation frequency of man. Observations of the effects of the Hiroshima bomb readily verify this. It could prove exceedingly difficult for a nuclear bombardment survivor to avoid accumulating 30 r in thirty years. The obvious question here involves the consequences of multiplying the mutation frequency by a mere factor or two. The answer to this question is simple: we do not know the consequences for any specific case. We do know, however, that they, insofar as evolution is concerned, would be greatly dependent upon the size of a breeding population.

DOMINANT LETHAL mutations are of little consequence as they drop out of the germ line quickly, and therefore have little effect upon future generations. Their frequency, however, is an index of the degree of induced sterility in the population. Visible mutations (two-headed calves, etc.) are infrequent and unimportant. Recessive lethals are of great importance since they accumulate in the population. Deleterious non-lethal mutations are also of considerable importance since they persist in the germ line and lead to decreased viability and shorter average life. If these latter types of mutation were sufficiently frequent, extinction would result.

In recapitulation it should be said that we are concerned with the size of a surviving population, the degree to which radiation might render the surviving population sterile, and the frequency of induced deleterious and recessive lethal mutations. In the opinion of this author, a war on the scale of the above proposed, would allow the Occident only isolated "pockets" of survivors. These progenitors of a new modern civilization would be subjected to a radiation intensity which would at least double, and probably triple or quadruple the present overall mutation frequency. Coupled with a low survival population and induced sterility, they would be fortunate to reproduce themselves successfully. This argument ignores the effects of an onslaught of correspondingly resistant bacterial strains, the effects of malnutrition; and the questionable success of any agricultural program.

The author feels incompetent to expound upon the world-wide effects of such a war, particularly since he is only capable of inferring its effects upon technological society. To be sure, this is a simple matter of employing some multiplicative factor by a base value. Unfortunately, we know neither.

Volumn Missing, Reward Offered

The Flambeau is short one of the bound volumes of back issues and vitally needs these issues back.

This volume contains the issues from the year 1959-1960, which are needed for a permanent record of Florida State University history. The bound copies date back to the 1920's and the Flambeau cannot afford to lose one of these volumes.

Because of the necessity of getting these back, we will offer a $5 reward to anyone who can secure this back volumn intact.

If you can bring to this volume, we will ask no questions as to where you got it. But we need the volumn back.

Anyone having copies of the 1959-60 Flambeau could be of great service by contributing them to replace the file. Bring them or mail them to the Flambeau, c/o the editor.

Hume Outlines $200,000-Pool Plan

By MILA ARNOLD
Flambeau Staff Writer

Plans for a $200,000 student - faculty swimming pool were explained Sunday by Dick Hume.

Hume is administrative assistant to Student Body president, Bobby Byrd.

He is also chairman of the swimming pool committee appointed two weeks ago by the Board of Student Enterprises.

BREAKDOWN NOT AVAILABLE

Hume stated that he could not make available at this time an itemized list of how the $200,000 budget is to be spent.

He said, however, "At the time when the final financial picture will be drawn, I can assure all students that this statement will be presented not only to the Board of Directors of Student Enterprises, but to the student body at large."

Other committee members are Burt Wolford, Ralph Wansenberg, Stephanie Hagan, Jim Spoonts and Genne Maxwell.

"It is our desire to design and construct the most modern pool in the world, that is, in reference to facilities and design," said Hume.

The pool, which is now in the blueprint stage, will be a Z-shaped, 50-meter Olympic style pool.

For convenience and economy the pool will be constructed on the corner lot across from the Business Bldg., in conjunction with the University Union Complex.

The new pool will be available to all students and faculty members, Hume stressed.

With careful planning, he stated, additional features in the facilities may be provided that will cost no more in the long run than to do without them.

For example, plans are being made to include a four-level diving tower. This would attract and provide for competitive athletic events. Hume added that to provide facilities without this feature would be completely uneconomical.

REGULATED TEMPERATURE

There will be constantly regulated deck and water temperature. The most accelerated ideas in fencing and wind-breakers will be used to provide near total use of the facilities, Hume said.

In regard to the financing of this $200,000 project, he stated, "Last year Student Senate, in passage of a bill, provided for Student Enterprises an annual commission of $13,000." This money will be used for the pool, he explained.

This capital was the result of an excess within the student activity fund, and provided a one-time opportunity for student government to appropriate this large a sum, Hume explained.

Student Enterprises is the Student Government Corporation. The pool project is being handled by Student Enterprises exclusively and as a corporation, with no state legislation required.

ADMINISTRATION CONSULTED

Hume added, however, that the administration has been consulted and that their opinions are regarded as most pertinent.

All present pool facilities in the South, Hume commented, charge admission fees. Whether or not such a charge should be made to finance this project has not been decided; however, any admission fee would be moderate, Hume stated.

The selected design for the pool was drawn up by the International Pool Company, whose district office is in Florence, Ala. Four other major firms were consulted before this plan was chosen.

Hume reiterated that the $200,000 amount is only an approximation and that the actual cost may be either lower or higher than this.

BIDS NOT IN

Hume also stated that the final bids are not in from the construction companies, which will be a determining factor in the final cost.

In the design of this pool, he said, an attempt is being made to suit the University's needs for as far into the forseetable future as is possible to project.

Many other special features such as underwater viewing windows, an underwater sound system and dressing room facilities will be included, he said.

He concluded that with the trimester system coming into effect, there is an even greater need for these facilities, placing an even stronger obligation on Student Government to see the pool constructed.

STUFFED NEARLY TO THE CEILING ARE THESE MEN WHO PARTICIPATED IN THIS record-breaking "room stuffing" project at Kellum Hall Sunday night. Shown above are a few of the 215 men who were in one room which is designed to house two students.

ler, John Schaffner, Tom Crook and Ed Partelow.

"We saw this AP story in the St. Petersburg Times," one said, "and we figured we'd break the record."

"We started at eight o'clock," another chimed in, "and we had the room filled in 10 minutes."

Where did they put them?

"We put them in the closets . . . on the window sills . . . everywhere."

"PUBLICISTS" AT WORK

By this time, the "publicists" were at work—trying to get the feat on radio, the wire service and the local television station. The student talking to the TV representative screwed up his face and took the telephone away from his ear.

"What's the matter?" asked a by-stander. "she think you're crazy or something?"

"By the way," the reporter asked, "How long did it take to clear the room . . . and were there any complications?"

Van Doren Compares Poetry, Philosophy

By MAUREEN PERKINS
Flambeau Staff Writer

The resemblance between poetry and philosophy was discussed by Mark Van Doren at the Philosophy Club last Thursday. The purpose of his talk was to "begin stirring thoughts" on these two subjects.

The Pulitzer prize-winning poet has been at Florida State University for the premier of his first play, The Last Days of Lincoln. A professor of English, he taught at Columbia University.

ADDRESSED TO MIND

He feels that poetry addressed to the mind is interesting because "it is philosophical." The benefit of the emotions of poetry is in the understanding of the reader.

Distinct poetry has the power to put the meaning of the chaos of life in the form of poetry said Prof. Van Doren. He believes poetry to be more philosophic, more interesting and greater than history.

"Philosophy is coocerned with generalizations: the philosopher seriously searches for all truth," said Van Doren, "but almost everyone is hardly ever serious."

The poet is a storyteller, who also is interested in the truth, Van Doren defined. Good poetry only occasionally generalizes. "Poetry tells us as much about truth as does philosophy," the professor added.

ACCOUNT OF ERROR

"A story is an account of human error: there never is a story of a flawless, perfect man," he said. There are two main types of stories—comedies and tragedies. The errors in a comedy are not disastrous or tragic, but the errors in a tragedy are disastrous.

Pugh Talks

Dr. Griffin Pugh lectured last Friday at the English Coffee Hour at Westminster House. His topic was "Dialect and Dialogue," a manuscript he completed last summer.

Introducing his paper, Dr. Pugh pointed out nineteenth century examples of dialect in literature. Since that time there has been a modification in the use of dialect and a trend toward less editorial influence on the author's work. Today the reader has no middle man between him and the author.

The word "dialect" is from a Greek root meaning "to speak." It was originally synoonomous with language, but now has come to mean language in relation to locale.

Who's Who Vote Nov. 7

Candidates from Florida State University to the 1961-62 Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities will be elected.

Polls for the election will be at Westcott and the Student Center at the same time of the Homecoming Queen election. Only seniors and graduate students are eligible to vote for Who's Who.

OLD METHOD

The selection will be made under the old method as the new bill adopted by Senate will not go into effect until Jan. 1, 1962. After much discussion and debate, Senate passed Bill Five which provides for a committee nomination of one third more than the quota of students allowed by the national organization as candidates for final election. A quota of thirty-six students will be elected, as nominees this year.

To be eligible a student must have a 2.5 overall average for five semesters, have shown outstanding leadership, cooperation, willingness to give of time and effort in educational and extra-curricular activities at FSU, and have shown by his college record ability to be of service to his community and society.

Ivylyn Frazier, secretary of student events, has stressed that candidates must submit two typed 5x8 cards listing his overall activities at FSU, not designated yearly, to the Student Government mailbox, or to the Student Body President's Office, 214 Longmire, before Monday. These cards will be posted at the polls and will be the only method of informing the voters of the qualifications of the nominees.

SENIOR CANDIDATES

Senior candidates for nomination are: Sally Adams, Ann Almond, Reta Ambrosini, Sandra Asher, Caroline Lee Avera, Ann Brennan, Jane Ann Briggs, Selby Cannon, Mygnon Champion, Constance Church.

Frances Ramona Deeson, Penelope Diehl, Alexandra Daman, Jan Dougherty, Kathleen Downey, Virginia Dunn, Phyllis Eichert, Karen Ekman, Alla Erman, Jo Ellen Eyster, Frances Exum, Laura Fetterley, Jane Love Fincham.

Ivylyn Frazier, Judy Freeman, Gail Gillespie, Dorothy Ann Gilmore, Marianna Girtman, Sally Gotshall, Charles Hawkins, Pat Houston, Penny Howell, Gail Jacoby, Charles Kenuman, Pauline

Kelley's Ice Follies Offers Juggling, Adagio Routines

Juggling and adagio acts are features of Jack Kelly's Ice Follies which will arrive at Florida State University for performances Thursday and Friday nights.

The shows, sponsored by the Tallahassee Junior Women's Club, will begin both nights at 8 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. Tickets may be purchased from the University Bookstore or by calling Mrs. Kay Ansley at 385-8651.

The five act show features Trixie, billed as one of the most outstanding jugglers in the world, the Cavanaughs who perform adagio feats, June Rae, "the prima ballerina of the ice" and the Jack Kelly Frolicettes.

Kelly is the producer and his wife June Rae Kelly is the choreographer. She also designs the costumes for all the shows.

Jeff Bradford and his band will provide music for the Follies.

A Detroit firm began setting up the rink and the 40 hour freezing process today.

Opera Tickets Go On Sale Tomorrow In Westcott

Tickets for the first Opera Guild production of the year, Orpheus and Eurdice, will go on sale tomorrow at the Central Ticket Office in Westcott.

Admission for the Nov. 9 and 10, production will be $1 for students and $2 for adults. The opera will be presented in Westcott Auditorium.

Miss Elena Nikolaidi, Greek soprano and professor of voice at Florida State University, will direct the production. Cooperating in producing the opera are the University Opera - Chamber Orchestra, the University Singers, the Theatre Dance Group and the Opera Guild.

OPERA-CHAMBER ORCHESTRA

The Opera-Chamber Orchestra will be conducted by Richard Collins, director of opera. This group which was organized in 1959 by Robert Sedore, director of orchestras, is especially designed to accompany operas and concertos where a small group of musicians is needed. The membership is drawn from members of the University Orchestra.

The Theatre Dance Group, under the direction of Miss Nellie Bond Dickinson, will use 13 of its members to perform the original choreography for the opera.

The University Singers will be directed by Wiley F. Housewright, chorus director.

Joy Davidson, a graduate student in the School of Music, will play the lead role of Orpheus. Euridice and Eros will be played by Ethel Donaldson and Patty Sue McCarty, respectively.

APPEARED AS ORPHEUS

Miss Nikolaidi has appeared as Orpheus in performances in Vienna and Athens. She has appeared here and abroad in leading roles with Metropolitan American and Vienna State Opera. She has also appeared with several world-known orchestras such as the New York Philharmonic, and Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Los Angeles and St Louis Symphonies.

Orpheus and Euridice by Gluck was first produced in 1762 in Vienna. It is based on a Greek legend. Orpheus mourns his lost Eurdice. Eros, the god of love, is so touched by the grief of Orpheus that he allows Orpheus to descend to the world of Pluto to seek Euridice. Orpheus must not look at Euridice until they have crossed the River Styxs.

Students Retreat To Camp This Weekend

Members of Florida State University's Student Government will sponsor their annual Student Government Retreat, Friday and Saturday.

The retreat will be held at the FSU Reservation. According to Suzy Workizer, general chairman of the project, "Members of the FSU Student Government and all those interested in Student Government will be able to get together to discuss and to attempt to work out new solutions to internal problems at this time."

The Student Government Retreat is open to all FSU students, she explained. Students may register through Tuesday in the lobby of Longmire.

Tickets are $2.75 per person.

The Retreat will begin Friday night with a general meeting and a dinner. The principal speaker will be Dr. John Blackburn, dean of men at the University of Alabama.

The agenda for Saturday includes special interest group meetings concerning the functions of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of Student Government. At other meetings the functions of class officers and the Board of Publications will be discussed. Students active in each of these areas will lead the discussions.

LUCKY STRIKE presents: LUCKY PUFFERS "SATURDAY NIGHT"

WHAT HAPPENS ON CAMPUS SATURDAY NIGHT? If you could peek into an average campus on Saturday night you would see students planning a hunger strike and smoking Luckies, ironing their Sunday suits and smoking Luckies, playing dominoes and smoking Luckies. College students smoke Luckies all the time—and more of them than any other regular cigarette. If you go to college, you should smoke Luckies. It's expected of you.

'62 CORVAIR MONZA

NEW FACE, SAME SPORTING HEART

We might as well tell you straight off: Corvair's the car for the driving enthusiast. Think that lets you out? Maybe. Maybe not.

Until you've driven one, you really can't say for sure, because Corvair's kind of driving is like no other in the land. The amazing air-cooled rear engine sees to that. You swing around curves flat as you please, in complete control. You whip through the stick spots other cars should keep out of in the first place. (Especially this year, now that you can get Positraction as an extra-cost option.) You stop smoothly, levelly with Corvair's beautifully balanced, bigger brakes.

And Corvair's found other new ways to please you this year. A forced-air heater and defroster are standard equipment on all coupes, sedans and both Monzas and 700 Station Wagons. So are dual sunshades and front-door armrests and some other goodies. You'll note some new styling, inside and out. Nice. And safety-belt installation is easier, too, and cheaper. Another extra-cost option well worth considering is the heavy-duty front and rear suspension; it turns a Corvair into a real tiger.

So you can see we haven't really done much to Corvair this year. Why on earth should we? If this car, just as she is, can't make a driving enthusiast out of you, better take a cab.

CHEVROLET

A New World of Worth

And here's America's only thoroughbred sports car, the '62 CORVETTE. We warn you: If you drive a Corvette after your first sampling of a Corvair, you may well end up a two-car man. And who could blame you?

Tribe Upset By VPI 10-7

By BILL CHEEK
Flambeau Sports Editor

A freak pass and a couple of fumbles spelled a 10-7 defeat for the Florida State Seminoles Saturday in Blacksburg, Virginia.

Playing before 14,000 fans on a clear but crisp afternoon, the Seminoles could not pick up the necessary pep to provide them with a victory.

According to Coach Bill Peterson, "Tech wanted to play more than we did."

Warren Price, a 167 lb. senior from Miami, was Virginia Tech's most outstanding player of the game. Price was the Tech ground gainer with 60 yards on 12 attempts. The Gobbler air force attacked the Seminoles 11 times to gain 74 yards on 7 completions.

Eddie Feely and Keo Kinderman led the Seminoles' statistical column. Kinderman rushed 12 times for a net gain of 52 yards. Feely totaled 80 yards via air on 14 attempts.

Virginia's first score came as a result of a fumbled handoff from Feely. Tech fullback Art Pruett pounced on the ball at the Seminole 40 yard line.

A pass and a long run put the Virginians on FSU's 14. With the Seminole forewall holding the Tech crew was forced to call on Aster Sigemore to boot a field goal. With the game four minutes and eleven seconds old the Gobblers split the uprights from the 18 yard line and gained a 3-0 first quarter lead.

Essentially a bad day remained in store for the Seminoles as long runs were erased by penalties, and fumbles were dropped frequently.

In the middle of the second quarter FSU effectively faked a punt from the Tech 40 to the 26. The Seminoles played the ball to the 19 but could go no further.

John Harlee came into the game to kick a field goal. The attempt was a fake. As the ball was snapped back, Feely, the holder, suddenly became Feely, the passer. John McConnaughhay was all alone standing in the end zone waiting for the missile. Harlee then placed the ball between the posts for the point after the touchdown with three minutes and 36 seconds left in the first half.

Statistical wise at the half the Seminloes were leading in first downs 6-3 and yardage 125-60.

With the third quarter well underway, the Gobblers were knocking at the Seminoles' scoring door. The defensive Renegades relieved the Chiefs and prepared to halt the oncoming Gobblers. At this point, the freak that decided the game occurred.

Price aimed at intended receiver Dick Goode but the ball bounced off of Goode's shoulder. The ball skipped towards FSU's Ken Russom's eager hands but Buddy Weihe grabbed it and raced for the touchdown. The freak play covered 31 yards all total.

Armstrong added the extra point and put the final tally of 10-7 on the scoreboard.

"We beat a real good football team," said Tech's coach Claiborne. "We won on guts and determination—and a terrific defensive effort. We really got after 'em on defense."

Kinderman, Weber Lost For Season

Florida State University's Seminoles suffered two setbacks other than ones due to injuries when two backs left the team.

Ken Kinderman, the 205 lbs. junior halfback, was discharged from the team by Coach Bill Peterson for "breaking training rules."

Peterson would not elaborate on the facts and circumstances involved in the case, but explained the decision with only that one explanation.

Another halfback, Richie Weber, also left the Seminole camp. Weber dropped out of school for "personal family reasons" according to Peterson.

Kinderman had been a work horse in the tribe backfield in the opening encounters.

He had carried 81 times for 393 total yards and 385 net yards. This averaged 4.8 yards per carry.

Kinderman attempted two passes, completing one. He also returned one punt for five yards and has returned four kickoffs for 49 yards giving him an average of 12.3 yards per kickoff return.

Kinderman scored once, in the Richmond game, for six points.

Coaches had hoped that Weber, a freshman star last year, would develope into the team's top breakaway threat. He also indicated promise as a pass receiver.

The 160 lbs. Miami back led last year's Baby Seminoles in rushing with a 6.4 average and scoring with 36 points.
